In Loving Memory

Damon Scott Carter
August 14, 2016-July 29, 2017

I'd like the memory of me to be a happy one,
I'd like to leave an afterglow of smiles when life is done.
I'd like to leave an echo whispering softly down the ways, of happy times and laughing times and bright and sunny days.
I'd like the tears of those who grieve, to dry before the sun.
Of happy memories that I leave when life is done.

FIREWORKS SAFETY

Sparkling devices are now readily available in New York State. Niagara County has legalized small sparkling devices. Orleans County has not legalized these devices. As they are now available to the public in other jurisdictions safety issues should be addressed.

The sparklers burn at approximately 2000 degrees. After they have burned down please dispose of the wire remnants properly. A small bucket with water is best. Avoid trash cans with combustible materials or paper products. The sparks given off by "showering fountains" can spark a grass fire. Please use care in placing the larger showering fountains on the ground. Ornamental grasses and mulch can hold a spark and flare up hours after the sparklers had been enjoyed.

As always firecrackers bottle rockets and roman candles are still illegal. If you choose to use these types of fireworks please be respectful of your neighbors. Follow the warning label; light fuse and get away. Do not hold the larger firecrackers in your hand.

Have a safe and fun Fourth of July.

Fire Chief Thomas E. Lupo

OUR CLOSEST RELATIVES IN THE WILD KINGDOM

By Douglas H. Domedion

Some "pig" did this.

I was wondering the other day what wildlife is closely related to us humans, so I turned to the PC. Turns out that chimpanzees are the closest with 99 percent of the same DNA. They eat both plant and animal matter and their thumbs are not in the same line with the other four fingers, making them able to preform many hand tasks just like us. They use tools like sticks to dig out ants from holes and stones to break the shells of nuts. They can get many of the diseases that we do like measles, ringworm, hepatitis B and influenza. They exchange kisses, hugs, touching and have a complicated system of sounds for communication and grooming is a important ritual that creates close bonds among them. They are very strong, actually about six times stronger then us, so don't mess with them! And just like us, when they get bored they have various games they come up with to entertain themselves. (I found no information about them having smart phones yet though!) They can even learn human sign language. Although they usually walk on all four limbs they can walk upright like us. The bond between mother and her young lasts over seven years, but they live a little shorter life then we do (40-50 years).

Then we have the gorillas and orangutans which are very similar gene-wise, plus their physical traits. Monkeys come along next with brains somewhat like ours that can control the thought process. In fact, some of the similar brain regions include areas that cause obsessive-compulsive disorder and substance abuse. (Hmm!)

Another animal that shares a number of surprising comparable traits with us is the pig. We both have hairless skin, thick layers of fat under the skin (some of us more so than others!), light-colored eyes, protruding noses and heavy eyelashes. In fact, pig skin tissue and heart valves can be used in medical applications because of their compatibility with the human body.

Well it seems that we are closely related to a lot of animals, but I decided to conduct my own research on a local scale. As you all know, I spend a lot of time photographing nature and thus spend a great deal of time on the road. Because nature photography requires a lot of observation of what is happening around you, I generally noticed more than the average traveler does.

One of the things I have observed is a lot trash along the roads and ditches. It seems that no one carries their crap home to deposit it properly anymore. Just heave it out the window as you go down the road and then when the road crews mow the shoulders it gets cut up into a lot more crap and looks even worse.

Trash along the road is bad enough, but what is with the folks who come to enjoy nature at our local refuges and leave behind all their crap? We have many overlooks (parking areas) through out the state and federal areas and it seems they are magnets for beverage containers and paper of all kinds. There are a number of fishing places in these areas too, but it is the same deal – beverage containers, bait containers, balls of fishing line, wrappers and even latex gloves. Why would anyone come to these places to enjoy its beauty and then leave their crap behind?

On the state Tonawanda WMA there are four shooting ranges for the public to try their firearms out safely. So what do a lot of "dumba#*es" from the city do is haul in all the crap they can use for targets (including some old appliances) and then leave it behind. Fortunately, local sportsmen and DEC maintenance crews have taken it upon themselves to periodically police up these ranges and thus these areas look much better then in the past.

Even worse is when other "dumba#*es" have trash (such as tires, plaster board, old wood, metal and just plain garbage) and just dump it along the roads or in our refuge areas. This includes the FEW "hunters" who are too lazy to haul their deer carcass remains back into the woods a ways or haul it to a proper disposal area instead of just throwing it along the roadside. These are usually the first guys to complain about posted signs too.

So after my research I have come to the conclusion that pigs are our closest relatives, or we are just "pigs." Gee, clean up your crap and don't just throw it out of your vehicle!

My contact information is 585-798-4022 or woodduck202@yahoo.com.

ALBION HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI FOUNDATION GIVES NEARLY $88,000 IN SCHOLARSHIPS TO 54 STUDENTS

The Albion High School Alumni Foundation takes great pride in Making a difference for a lifetime for the Albion Central School District community – alumni, students, teachers, and friends. The main focus of the Foundation is a Scholarship Program that continues to grow and benefit more students each and every year.

Each year at the Class Night celebration, the Foundation presents scholarships to graduating seniors who meet the criteria of each specific scholarship. These awards provide financial assistance so that our bright young scholars may continue their educational goals and be successful in their future endeavors.

The funding for the scholarships are made possible through memberships and gifts from AHS Alumni, as well as individuals or organizations that contact the Foundation to establish a scholarship. # Tips on how to write CLASSIFIED ADS that sell!

- 1 USE A KEY WORD. This immediately tells the reader exactly what you have to sell.
- 2 Make your description CLEAR AND FACTUAL. State the year, make, model, color & size and tell what condition the item is in. Also, state the special features.
- 3 STATE THE PRICE. Successful classified advertisers have learned that the price in an ad helps increase the chances for results.
- 4 IF THERE IS A GENUINE SENSE OF URGENCY, say so. The words "We're moving," or "Must sell fast," suggest that readers respond immediately.
- 5 INCLUDE YOUR PHONE NUMBER. Classifieds get results fast and often generate immediate sales. If you cannot be available to answer the phone at all times, be sure to specify special calling times such as "after 9pm" or "before 11am."

A TRUST WITH RESTRICTIONS

When the person creating a trust has concerns about the spending habits of a beneficiary of that trust, a "spendthrift trust" may be created that provides an independent trustee with full authority to make decisions about how the trust's funds may be spent. The terms of the trust, which can be wide-ranging in possibilities, place the trustee in control of the trust property and of any benefit the beneficiary receives. The grantor must consider how much control to give to the trustee and describe the trustee's power in detail. The grantor must also decide how and when the trust will end, the status of the trust principal, if the beneficiary's circumstances change, and if special payouts are to be allowed.

The process of establishing a spendthrift trust fund is identical to creating any other trust fund except the trust instrument must contain a spendthrift provision. Before you plan or administer an estate, you want to sit down with a lawyer who will really listen to your concerns. To schedule a consultation, please call the Law Office of MACK & PACE. When conflict comes, we bring it hard with no apologies. We emphasize legal issues in real estate, business, banking, will and trusts, probate, criminal law, family law, and entertainment law.

HINT: A spendthrift trust is useful when a grantor wishes to leave property or money to a beneficiary who has an addiction, is easily deceived or defrauded, or might easily fall into debt with creditors.*

Lawyer Matters."

Your Pet Your Family YOUR CHOICE

On that dreadful day, whether at home or at a Veterinary Facility, know that you DO NOT have to use a cremation service that is offered by your Vet.

Our Pet Care Service offers removal of your pet from your home or from the Veterinary Facility on the SAME DAY he or she passes away. Once in our care, we will identify and offer you an opportunity for a private goodbye prior to cremating your pet.

We will then have the cremated remains ready for return to your family's care within 72 hours of taking your pet into our care.

REAL ESTATE GUIDE

How to Get and Keep Your Finances in Order

the mid-20th century, when global life expectancy from birth was roughly 48 years.

Longer life expectancies mean men and women will have to find ways to make their money last throughout their retirement. The earlier adults figure out how to keep their finances in order, the more money they will have when the time comes to retire. The following are a handful of strategies men and women can employ to rein in their finances in the hopes of saving more for retirement.

- Review your finances at least once per month. Hectic schedules or fear of the financial unknown make it easy for adults to ignore their finances for long stretches of time. But adults should review their financial situation at least once per month, examining how they are spending their money and if there are any ways to cut costs and redirect dollars going out into their retirement accounts. Redirecting as little as $100 per month into a retirement account can add up to a substantial amount of money over time.

- Pay monthly bills immediately. Many adults receive monthly bills for utilities, rent/mortgage, phone, and television/Internet. If you have the money in your account, pay these bills the moment you receive them. Doing so is a great way to avoid overspending on other items, such as dining out or shopping trips, and then finding yourself scrambling to pay bills come their due dates. Once all the monthly bills have been paid and you have deposited money into your savings/retirement accounts, then you can spend any leftover money on nights out on the town or new clothes if you feel the need.

- Buy only what you can afford. It sounds simple, but many adults would have far more in their retirement accounts if they simply avoided buying items they cannot afford. According to a 2015 Harris Poll conducted on behalf of NerdWallet, the average credit card debt per indebted American household in 2015 was $15,762.07. Adults who want to get their finances in order and start saving more for retirement should put the plastic away and only make purchases with cash or debit cards that take money directly out of their bank accounts once the card is swiped.

- Downsize. Downsizing is another way to free up more money for retirement savings. Empty nesters can save money by downsizing to a smaller home or even an apartment. Drivers who no longer need room for the whole family can downsize from SUVs or minivans to smaller, more fuel-efficient vehicles. Adults also may be able to downsize their entertainment, switching from costly cable packages to basic plans or cutting the cord entirely and subscribing to more affordable streaming services.

Getting a grip on spending can help adults save more for retirement and ensure their golden years are not compromised by lack of funds. ■

Finding Work After 50

Unemployment isn't easy for anyone, regardless of their age. But unemployed men and women over 50 may find it especially difficult to find work.

Whether it's a by-product of age-related discrimination or any of a host of additional variables, jobless older workers often struggle to find work. In a 2016 analysis of government figures, the Schwartz Center for Economic Policy Analysis at the New School estimated that the jobless rate for workers 55 and older in August of 2016, six years after the Great Recession, was nearly 9 percent. At the time, the national jobless rate hovered around 5 percent.

Unemployed men and women over 50 who are struggling to find work can consider the following strategies as they look to rejoin the workforce.

- Revisit your résumé. Unemployed men and women over 50 have no doubt updated their résumés to reflect their most recent professional experience. But they may need to trim some of the fat in regard to their work life 10 or more years ago. Today's hiring managers may only be concerned with recent experience that illustrates skill sets that are relevant to today's jobs. Men and women over 50 may consider their experience from 20 years ago invaluable, but if that experience does not meet the specific needs of the jobs they're now seeking, then they should remove it from their résumés so hiring managers can quickly access the more relevant information from their work histories.

- Embrace 21st century job hunting. Finding a job in the second decade of the 21st century is unlike job hunting in decades prior, and wholly different from how men and women over 50 looked for jobs upon beginning their professional lives. Networking can mean the difference between unemployment and landing a job. Go to job fairs attended by hiring managers and join professional organizations that host events where professionals in your field can gather.

- Turn your age into a positive. Men and women over 50 should accept the likelihood that their new managers and/or hiring managers will be younger than them. When interviewing for a job, men and women over 50 should make an effort to showcase their enthusiasm about working with and learning from younger colleagues, while also noting their desire to commit long-term to a company. Some hiring managers may surprise older applicants, viewing them as potentially more reliable than younger workers simply looking to gain some experience in a particular industry before moving on to the next opportunity.

- Make use of your existing down time. Another strategy unemployed men and women over 50 can try as they look for work is to make better use of their existing downtime. Enrolling in online courses can give prospective employers the impression that applicants over 50 are both tech-savvy and willing to learn new things. Each of those things can help men and women over 50 overcome any unjustified, tech-related stigmas that hiring managers may attach to older job candidates.

Finding work after 50 is not always easy, and job seekers may need to adjust their approach before they can get back in the workforce. ■
