According to a new study in JAMA there were no important differences in pain reduction after 2 hours with ibuprofen-acetaminophen or opioid-acetaminophen combination pills in emergency department patients with acute extremity pain. The findings suggest that ibuprofen-acetaminophen is a reasonable alternative to opioid management of acute extremity pain due to sprain, strain, or fracture. Acetaminophen (Tylenol) is cleared by the liver, while ibuprofen (Advil, Motrin) is cleared by the kidneys. Each medication works differently and they are broken down differently, so taking both is of minimal concern. Acetaminophen is a pain reliever and fever reducer but not an anti-inflammatory. Ibuprofen is all three.

Some surgeons might be able to prescribe a third of opioid painkiller pills that they currently give patients, and not affect their level of post-surgery pain control, a new study published in JAMA Surgery suggests. That would mean far fewer opioids left over to feed the ongoing national crisis of misuse, addiction and overdose.

One of the most hotly debated issues in eye care in recent years has been over three similar anti-vascular endothelial growth factor (anti-VEGF) treatments for age-related macular degeneration. To find out if there are differences in their ability to protect sight, researchers reviewed records for 13,859 patients treated with a single drug type-Avastin (bevacizumab-zumab: 6,723), Lucentis (ranibizumab:2,749, or Eylea (aflibercept: 4,387)-for one year. According to a study presented at the 2017 Annual Meeting of the American Academy of Ophthalmology, patients achieved similar improvement in vision regardless of drug type. Mean number of injections were 5.9 with Avastin, 6.4 with Lucentis, and 6.2 with Eylea.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED
Virgin Mary. Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruit of the vine, splendorous of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me here you are my mother. Man's doctrine that Christians are not under law of The Holy Father but are under the law of Christ reveals men trying to divide The Holy Father, The Holy Word (Jn 1:1-14) and The Holy Ghost (Mt 12:22-28) which are One (1Jn 5:7)! So Be It!
