First day of BCPS features new schools, school closings

Interim Superintendent Verletta White interacts with a fifth grade class at Victory Villa

- By Patrick Taylor -

Tuesday marked the first day of school for districts around the state, and while there was plenty of excitement in Baltimore County as the first day marked the opening of multiple new and rebuilt schools around the county, the school system also ran into familiar problems with 10 schools closed due to extreme heat.

Despite the setback for some schools, excitement was in the air on Tuesday as Interim Superintendent Verletta White toured multiple schools on the east side, including the brand new Honeygo Elementary School in White Marsh and the rebuilt Victory Villa Elementary School in Middle River.

"I'm thrilled beyond belief," said - see BCPS on page 2 -

District 8 senate race promises to be tight in last two months before election

This weekend marks two months until the 2018 gubernatorial election, and there are some tight races with major implications in Baltimore County.

Perhaps the most important race in the county is the race for the District 8 Senate seat, currently occupied by incumbent Kathy Klausmeier (D). First-term Delegate Christian Miele is challenging Klausmeier, and as the campaigns begin to wind down, Miele is looking like he will be the biggest test of Klausmeier's political career.

After the June primary, Miele received some fundraising help from Senator Marco Rubio (R-Fla.). And just last week he enlisted the help of Governor Larry Hogan, the popular Republican governor who is battling Democratic nominee Ben Jealous for the governor's mansion. Miele's moves have not gone unnoticed by Klausmeier.

"He's certainly pulling out the heavy hitters," Klausmeier said.

Miele will certainly need the help if - see DISTRICT 8 on page 2 -

Jealous wades into Hogan territory to pick up environmental endorsement

- Article & photo by Devin Crum -

Maryland gubernatorial candidate Ben Jealous (D) made a daring foray into Kingsville Friday, Aug. 31, to visit a solar farm and pick up the endorsement of two environmental advocacy groups.

Registered Republicans outnumber Democrats in Kingsville by nearly 2-to-1, and Governor Larry Hogan won there in 2014 with 94 percent of the vote. But the Maryland chapter of the Sierra Club and the Maryland League of Conservation Voters chose a solar farm on Pfeffers Road, operated by WGL Energy in conjunction with Mom's Organic Market, as the site for their announcement to make a point about renewable energy.

Among his campaign pledges, Jealous has promised to set a deadline for 100-percent clean and renewable energy produced in the state.

"Mr. Jealous is running on a strong environmental agenda that aligns with many of our current campaigns and priorities," said Maryland LCV Executive Director Karla Raettig in a statement. "In particular, we are inspired by his commitment of our shared goals for Maryland to lead on renewable and clean energy and his focus on smart growth for all of - see ENDORSEMENT on page 4 -

- continued from page 1 -Councilwoman Cathy Bevins (D-6), who represents the Victory Villa community. "It's beautiful, and when you have a school like this that's so beautiful it's a sense of pride [for the community]."

Victory Villa, whose students were moved to the Rosedale Center over the last couple of years while construction was taking place, was bustling with students, faculty and parents Tuesday as everyone tried to get acclimated.

Marge Roberts, the principal at Victory Villa, said that everyone was "really just awestruck" by the new facility.

"We worked hard to get here," said Roberts.

The construction projects at Victory Villa and the new Honeygo Elementary were planned as part of Baltimore County's "Schools for Our Future" project. The projected timeline for finishing the project was originally 2023, but after a well-publicized spat between late County Executive Kevin Kamenetz and the tagteam of Comptroller Peter Franchot and Governor Larry Hogan - who make up two-thirds of the Board of Public Works and oversee capital dollar allotments for school systems - Baltimore County opted to forward-fund the projects. In total, the county forward-funded about $240 million worth of capital improvement dollars for the school system.

"We have only received about $40 million of that back so far," said acting County Executive Don Mohler, Kamenetz's former chief of staff.

Heat closures

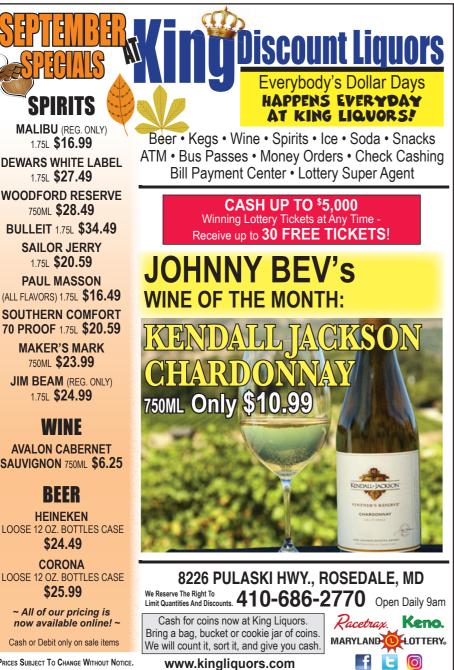

While the mood was mostly celebratory around the county, 10 BCPS schools were closed on the first day due to excessive heat. The announcement to close the schools, which included Patapsco High School and Center for the Arts along with Berkshire, Colgate and Dundalk elementary schools, was made Monday night. The aforementioned schools are getting new buildings - with the exception being Patapsco, which received renovation funding - which will include air conditioning. But until those schools are finished they have to abide by the heat policy set forth by the school system.

The new Dundalk Elementary is set to open in 2019, with Berkshire and Colgate set for 2020. Until then, they will have to abide by the heat policy.

"You don't like to miss the first day of school, but it's for the children's safety and the teachers' safety," said Delegate Ric Metzgar (R-7).

Despite the closures, Metzgar was impressed with what he saw at Victory Villa, telling The East County Times he hopes that the schools in his district get the same treatment.

"When I first drove up it felt like I was going to a university," Metzgar quipped. "The space, the lighting, the openness, it's great."

DISTRICT 8

- continued from page 1 he is going to flip Klausmeier's seat, which she has held since 2002. Before winning the District 8 Senate seat, Klausmeier previously sat as a member of the House of Delegates from 1994 - 2002. Her lengthy spell as an elected official has become a point of ire for Miele, who called for term limits to be enacted at a fundraiser at Columbus Gardens in Perry Hall last Tuesday.

"We need term limits. Having career politicians in office for 34 years is not ok," said Miele. "We need to move in a new direction and I hope to be your voice." Klausmeier brushed aside Miele's concerns about "career politicians."

"I get up and go to work everyday, I listen to my constituents, and if they want to paint me as a 'career politician' it's inaccurate," said Klausmeier, noting that she has moved from the House of Delegates to the State Senate.

"I work very hard and will continue to work very hard," Klausmeier continued. "And when it isn't fun anymore and I don't want to work anymore then I'm out. But right now I'm here."

Miele told the audience gathered at Columbus Gardens that internal polling showed him neck-and-neck with Klausmeier after starting his campaign down 16 points. In an area as purple as District 8, getting the support of a popular governor and centrists like Rubio can go a long way.

The Maryland Republican party views Klausmeier's seat as one of six Senate seats that is vulnerable. As it stands, there is a veto-proof majority in the Senate, which has taken a toll on some of Hogan's initiatives. With Hogan representing the best chance the GOP has had in decades of securing a second term in the governor's mansion, they feel they have a window to effectively push Hogan's agenda.

Miele has made a name for himself over the last few years, most recently pushing an anti-bullying campaign in Baltimore County Public Schools, whose discipline policies have come under scrutiny of late. For Kimberly Merriken, a Perry Hall resident who describes herself as "apolitical," it's that type of work that makes Miele a palatable choice.

Merriken said she reached out to Miele regarding bullying, and since that time she has leaned on him for help in other areas of need.

"I am apolitical. I don't want to identify with a party," said Merriken. "I identify with a candidate who speaks to me, and Christian certainly does that."

Klausmeier gave Miele credit for the work he has done with his bullying and discipline initiatives. She noted, however, that whether he knows it or not she had a hand in helping his bill, which established an anti-bullying task force to review disciplinary policies, pass. And Klausmeier credits her clout and longevity for getting it passed.

"He probably doesn't even realize it but with his bullying bill, it would have been dead," said Klausmeier. "But because I was the chair of the Rules Committee [in the General Assembly], I said the bill had to come out. It's an important bill. But he put it in late, and if it hadn't been for my experience and my longevity, I wouldn't have been the chair. And had it been your average Democrat in Annapolis it wouldn't have gone anywhere."

With the election just two months away and both candidates sitting with hundreds of thousands of dollars, the only certainty about this race is that it is going to come down to the end. While there has been a lot of talk in national media about a "blue wave" of Democratic voters, Hogan sees things differently.

"We've got great candidates in Baltimore County. With your help we are going to elect a Republican county executive, a senator, a council member and lots more delegates," said Hogan.

Care package Angels need a new home - and quickly

- By Marge Neal -Angels Supporting Your Troops Inc. founder Irene Spatafore is in need of an angel herself.

The longtime Dundalk resident founded Angels nearly nine years ago to gather and send supplies to troops serving abroad. She and a loyal handful of volunteers collect donations, store them and then gather three Sundays a month to pack boxes filled with goodies and ship them to war-zone troops in need of a little piece of home.

Since the inception of the program in January 2010, Spatafore has enjoyed the generosity of Sonshine Fellowship Church on Sollers Point Road in Dundalk, which donated a dedicated room for the group to use. But Spatafore was recently told the church plans to open a Christian school and needs the room that she has been using as her base of operations.

"They gave us until Oct. 18, so we don't have much time to find another place," Spatafore told the East County Times. "And if we don't find another place, we're going to be out of business."

The Rev. Terry Turbin, pastor at Sonshine, could not be reached by press time.

The organization is strictly volunteer, according to Spatafore. All "staff" members are volunteers, and any monetary donations received are used for shipping. There is no money to pay rent for a space, so she is hoping a business or organization with spare room will step forward and offer it to the group free of charge.

forward and offer it to the group free of charge. "It is so expensive to ship these boxes," she said. "That's the hardest part of this project - getting enough money to send the packages."

Donations of all sorts of small items, from hard candies to paperback books and magazines, come in on a consistent basis, but raising money for postage is a constant challenge, Spatafore said.

"We spend between $10,000 and $12,000 a year just on postage," Spatafore said. "Every penny we raise goes to pay for shipping."

The group sends out about 38 packages a month, each weighing about 25 pounds. That's 456 packages a year, filled with a total of 11,400 pounds of personal hygiene items, snacks and candy, books, socks and other items that are sometimes difficult for soldiers to obtain otherwise.

Spatafore and her small band of loyal volunteers daughter Valerie Spatafore, Terry Burton, Shirley Monk and Sharon and Frank Baker - also spend their own money on supplies in addition to donating countless hours per year collecting donations, inventorying goods and packing and mailing boxes.

who do so much for our troops," Spatafore said. "It would be really sad if we can't find another place and we have to close down."

The head angel is doing the best she can to work the phones and is talking with a couple of local churches that might be able to help out. "I'm in touch with one church that might have two rooms for us to use, but nothing has been decided yet," Spatafore said. "We're keeping our fingers crossed."

To make donations or to offer the group space they can use to continue this project, call Spatafore, 410-284-5275, or send an email to baker81057@aol.com.

- continued from page 1 -Maryland's communities."

David Smedick, campaign and policy director for the Sierra Club Maryland Chapter, called Jealous an "environmental champion" while noting that the state, country and the planet are at a critical juncture regarding environmental protection and leadership.

"As we continue to face smoggy summers, litter and debris flowing into the Chesapeake Bay and the threat of dangerous climate disruption, we must look to our leaders to put forward bold and innovative solutions to protect our beautiful natural resources and firmly establish our state as a leader in the clean energy economy," he said. "Over the last four years, we've seen too much zigging and zagging on priority environmental issues from the Hogan administration."

Smedick criticized Hogan for his action in 2015 to "block and eventually gut" clean air protections for coal power plants instituted under former Governor Martin O'Malley, and for his veto in 2016 of the Maryland Clean Energy Jobs Act which "set us on a path to increase our renewable energy standard and grow solar in Maryland."

The state legislature overrode Hogan's veto, however, and the act became law in 2017.

He also criticized the governor for scrapping public transit projects such as the Red Line light rail in Baltimore while noting that transportation is now the leading source of "dangerous climate pollution" in the country.

A spokesperson for Hogan's campaign did not respond to a request for comment by press time.

By contrast, Smedick said Jealous has a "steadfast commitment to environmental protections and climate action" and a "fundamental grounding in the principles of environmental justice and equity."

He said analysis shows if the state meets the 2030 and 2050 goals in place for greenhouse gas reduction, the state will see nearly $3 billion and $15 billion in climate benefits, respectively.

"We can get more businesses and industries in the clean energy economy here in Maryland with the courage to lead," he said.

Jealous told the modest crowd of supporters he has spent his life in the green movement, and the first protest

The solar array chosen as the site for the announcement, located between two fields of soybean crops, was an example of such facilities taking the place of what is considered prime productive farm land. he ever chose to attend was an anti-clear cutting rally at age 12. He touted his work as an investigative reporter looking into cancer-causing industrial pollution as well as his time on the board of the Environmental Defense Fund and philanthropic investments in clean energy.

The candidate said leaders need to act urgently on environmental issues. And if they don't we all pay a price, like young people dying unneccessarily from asthma, having to raise boating docks on waterfront properties or people losing their way of life because the community gets flooded, he said, referring to events in Ellicott City and other towns around the bay.

"And it's only a matter of time before our state capitol is impacted," he said.

Jealous said the state now has an opportunity to create a "clean and green future."

"When you build more mass transit, you create more jobs; when you build more wind turbines, you create more jobs," he said. "We should be building those turbines in Baltimore and floating them right down the bay - creating jobs in both places - and shipping them over to create wind farms on mountains in western Maryland."

Jealous told the East County Times one of his clean jobs initiatives specific to Baltimore County would be that the area around the Port of Baltimore in southern Baltimore County "will become an epicenter of the green economy that we build in the state," he said referring in part to Tradepoint Atlantic's redevelopment of the 3,250-acre former steel mill site.

He said since Baltimore's port is the only deep-water port in the eastern U.S., "we should be building our turbines right next to it in Dundalk and shipping them straight out," adding that the port will play a big part in the future of both wind and solar power in the state.

With respect to solar, the candidate said we will have to create a distributed grid, with solar panel arrays not just in rural open fields, but incentivizing them on rooftops in residential, commercial and industrial areas as well.

Some advocates in the county, including in Kingsville, have pushed for restricting the amount of solar facilities that can be built on what is considered prime productive farm land, hoping instead for more rooftops to be used for that purpose.

"Ultimately our goal in solar is to be producing more in the state and installing as much as possible, and that means a distributed grid on some of the rooftops," Jealous said.

He noted that Montgomery County recently passed new regulations to allow for community solar projects so people can buy solar panels as part of a solar array with other investors, rather than just individual homeowners installing them on their roofs. Similar projects are slated to begin soon in Baltimore County.

"It also means, quite frankly, leveraging bonds at the state to make it easier to finance, easier for entire communities to buy solar to go across their rooftops, and not just leaving it to wealthier individuals to put solar on their roofs - making it more possible for all of us," Jealous said.

While Hogan's camp did not respond for comment about his own initiatives and achievements on environmental issues, Councilman David Marks (R-5) took some issue with the groups choosing his district for their announcement.

"We don't see much from the Sierra Club in Baltimore County except when they are endorsing Democrats in partisan elections," Marks said. "They were nowhere to be found when I was downzoning thousands of acres of land to protect places like Kingsville and played little role when we were developing solar farm legislation."

Amazon starts hiring for Sparrows Point site jobs

Apply online, interview by invitation only - By Virginia Terhune -

Amazon has begun hiring to fill more than 1,500 warehouse jobs at its new fulfillment center at the Tradepoint Atlantic site in Sparrows Point that is expected to become fully operational before the holidays.

Available are full- and part-time jobs that involve working with robotic systems to pick, pack and ship items such as electronics, household goods, toys and books. Applicants must be 18 years or older and have a high school diploma or equivalent.

To apply, job seekers must first fill out an application online by going to www.amazon.com/baltimorejobs.

Baltimore County's Department of Economic and Workforce Development is also asking applicants to register online with the Maryland Workforce Exchange at https://mwejobs.maryland.gov. The state-run program operates centers in Eastpoint, Hunt Valley and Randallstown that help applicants find jobs.

Qualified applicants are then invited to schedule an appointment to interview with Amazon officials during one of a series of hiring events being held in September at the Tradepoint Atlantic offices in Sparrows Point, the Sollers Point Multipurpose Center in Dundalk and the Community College of Baltimore County campuses in Essex, Hunt Valley and Owings Mills.

Amazon's staffing vendor, Integrity Staffing, will also be scheduling in-person interviews Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

After applying online, applicants will get a return email that either invites them to schedule an interview at one of the hiring events or with Integrity Staffing, or tells them they are no longer being considered for a job at this time.

Those invited to a hiring event for interviews who are chosen for jobs will be asked to undergo a background check and fill out an I-9 form, which is used by United States Citizenship and Immigration Services to verify the identity and legal authorization to work of all paid employees in the U.S.

Those interviewed who are not chosen for jobs will have a chance to talk to county officials, also attending the events, who will advise them about the county's Job Connector program and the Maryland Workforce Exchange job seeker services.

The hiring events listed below are held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and they are not open to the general public. They are by invitation only and walk-ins will not be accepted.

Assisted living facility planned in White Marsh

Building would provide up to 16 beds

- By Virginia Terhune -

A general contractor in White Marsh won county approval last week to build a two-story assisted living facility for senior citizens near the southwest corner of Philadelphia Road and Ebenezer Road.

"We're planning something that's very eye appealing to the community, that's in a residential setting," said Keith Randlett, founder and owner of Superior Design and Restoration which is headquartered nearby on Cowenton Avenue.

The family-owned company has recently grown to the point that Randlett is buying property at or near the intersection to accommodate his vehicles and employees.

"Business has been booming," Randlett said. "I think it's the economy. In the last two years, we've doubled in size."

He recently bought three buildings on the southwest corner of Philadelphia Road and Ebenezer Road that he is rehabbing for company use.

Last year he bought the adjacent lot at 5407 Ebenezer Road for $215,000, according to state property records.

His plan is to raze the existing twostory house, built in 1912, and a smaller building behind it and replace them with two new buildings.

The new assisted living facility with up to 16 beds would sit on the front of the lot, while a new two-story, 4,900-squarefoot building at the rear would provide space for a possible company showroom on the first floor and offices upstairs.

The plan was reviewed and recommended for approval by the county's Development Review Committee on Aug. 28.

"In 2016 we had five employees and now we have 40 full-time employees," said Randlett about his need for more space.

Meanwhile, also expanding across Ebenezer Road on the southeastern corner of the intersection is the An-Nur Foundation mosque, which plans to add 15,558 square feet to an existing 8,400-square-foot vacant building on its property.

The expansion would enable relocating Friday and holiday prayer services from a smaller building that faces Ebenezer Road.

A May 31 public hearing in Towson before a county administrative law judge was continued pending a suggested informational meeting between the mosque and community organizations.

However, the meeting did not come to pass, and the mosque subsequently resubmitted the plan to the DRC, which approved it with a request it show the future uses of the expanded building.

Mosque officials did not return a request for comment about the plan.

Both Superior Design and the mosque fall within the county's Cowenton-Ebenezer Commercial Revitalization District, which provides tax credits and other incentives to spur redevelopment of older properties.

Todd's Inheritance Defenders Day celebration to include displays, reenactments, flag unfurling

- By Marge Neal -

Fresh off a dress rehearsal of sorts at last weekend's Defenders Day celebration at Fort Howard Park, Todd's Inheritance Historic Site volunteers are busy putting the finishing touches on their own Defenders Day gathering this weekend.

The lawn of the historic Todd home will come alive with a variety of activities and demonstrations to celebrate Defenders Day, officially recognized on Sept. 12 each year in Maryland to commemorate the successful defense of North Point and the City of Baltimore on Sept. 12-14, 1814.

"We will have our War of 1812 displays, reenactments and Scott Sheads will be giving a lecture on Hampstead Hill," said Fran Taylor, a member of the historic site's board of directors.

Among the more unique artifacts on loan for the event will be the original spy glass, passed down through generations of the Todd family, that was used during the Battle of North Point to spy on the British as they marched up the North Point peninsula, according to Taylor.

"And we will have an original sword that belonged to Bernard Todd, who owned the house at the time of the invasion," he said.

Sheads, a local historian and former Ft. McHenry park ranger, will deliver a talk on Saturday, Sept. 8, titled "The Last Stand at Hampstead Hill."

Another crowd favorite to take place on Saturday only will be the unfurling of a giant, 30-foot by 42-foot American flag, with spectators helping to unfurl and display it, according to Taylor.

Reenactments will be held on Saturday, with several groups in attendance, Taylor said.

On display throughout the weekend will be Native American artifacts, period muskets and bayonets and the regular displays on exhibit inside the house.

'We will also have a diorama of the Battle of North Point which was made by Joe Szymanski, a collector and very knowledgeable local historian," Taylor said. "It's really pretty neat."

Members of Patapsco United Methodist Church will attend with a display of Methodist Meeting House memorabilia, according to Taylor.

The Todd's Inheritance Defenders Day celebration will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9, at the historic home at 9000 North Point Road in Edgemere. Weather-permitting, activities will be held outside on the lawn as well as inside the restored home.

Activities on the lawn are free and attendees are also welcome to tour the Todd family cemetery free of charge. Inside activities and house tours are available with an admission of $10 for adults and $7 for senior citizens. Children 15 and younger are admitted free of charge. Family memberships, good for unlimited visits for one year, cost $30.

For more information, visit the Todd's Inheritance Facebook page.

sion projects, plus a new development by the Keelty Company of 311 apartments and a retail center on the northwest corner of the same intersection, are likely to add to traffic backups on Philadelphia Road during evening rush hours.

In July, the Maryland State Highway Administration adjusted traffic signals, which seems to have eased the traffic flow heading east on Philadelphia Road toward Bowleys Quarters.

"I believe the SHA changes have made a difference, at least for the pass-through traffic on Philadelphia Road," said Sarah Halford, chief operating officer for Global Substation Services, Inc., located on the northeast corner of the intersection.

SHA has also proposed adding an eastbound through lane on Philadelphia Road, but funds have not yet been committed to the project, which could be years in the future.

"I can only have faith in the system that someone has taken a good, hard look at the impact this will bring to the commu-nity and daily commuters," said Halford about the development projects under way on three corners of the intersection.

After the initial crash, a Ford Crown Victoria traveling eastbound on Philadelphia Road struck the Honda Civic, pushing the Civic into a parked Honda CRV.

The driver of the Honda Civic was pronounced deceased at the scene. He has been identified as Jose Vicente Alvarenga Cruz, 54, of the 1200-block of Hanson Road in Edgewood. Kingsville man pleads guilty to child porn production

Keith Edward Taylor, 33, of Kingsville, pleaded guilty on Aug. 29 to production of child pornography.

The guilty plea was announced by United States Attorney for the District of Maryland Robert K. Hur; Acting Special Agent in Charge Cardell T. Morant of U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement's (ICE) Homeland Security Investigations (HSI); Chief Terrence B. Sheridan of the Baltimore County Police Department; and Colonel William M. Pallozzi, Superintendent of the Maryland State Police.

According to Taylor's plea agreement, in 2017, Taylor used an instant-messaging software application to communicate with minors throughout the United States and internationally. Specifically, Taylor admitted that he engaged in sexually explicit conversations with at least five minor male victims, ranging from 12 to 15 years old, and residing in various states, including Texas, Massachusetts, Iowa, Michigan, and Colorado. During the course of his conversations with the boys, Taylor typically portrayed himself as a woman. Taylor repeatedly requested that the boys send sexually explicit photos and videos of themselves engaging in sexually explicit conduct. Taylor sent some of the boys sexually explicit photos of women, falsely claiming that they were photos of himself.

Taylor further admitted using the messaging app to distribute and trade child pornography with adults. For example, during December 2017, Taylor traded child pornography with a user who sent Taylor a live photo of a child that the user claimed was his own stepchild. Taylor repeatedly requested sexually explicit photos of the child and discussed the other user engaging in sex acts with the child. Taylor also maintained digital collections of child pornography in multiple cloud storage accounts and electronic devices.

Taylor faces a mandatory minimum sentence of 15 years in prison and a maximum of 30 years in prison followed by up to lifetime of supervised release for production of child pornography. Sentencing is scheduled for Nov. 30 at 3 p.m.

Motorists urged to follow school bus safety laws

As summer winds down and students begin heading back to school between this week and after Labor Day, Maryland State Police are stressing school bus safety for motorists.

Troopers are reminding motorists to be on alert for school buses and not to ignore the red flashing lights when a bus is stopped. Those caught breaking the law by police can cost a driver a $570 fine and a three-point penalty on their driver's license.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), from 2007 to 2016, there were 281 school-age children killed in school transportation-related crashes: 58 were occupants of school transportation vehicles, 116 were occupants of other vehicles, 98 were pedestrians, eight were pedalcyclists and one was another non-occupant. Also, more school-age pedestrians were killed from 6 to 7 a.m. and from 3 to 4 p.m. than any other hour of the day, according to the NHTSA.

The Maryland Highway Safety Office has compiled the following tips for sharing the road safely with school buses:

* When backing out of a driveway or leaving a garage, watch out for children walking or bicycling to school.

* When driving in neighborhoods with school zones, watch out for young people who may be thinking about getting to school, but may not be thinking about getting there safely.

* Slow down. Watch for children walking in the street, especially if there are no sidewalks in the neighborhood.

 * Watch for children playing and congregating near bus stops.

* Be alert. Children arriving late for the bus may dart into the street without looking for traffic.

* Learn and obey the "alternately flashing warning light" system that school bus drivers use to alert motorists.

* Yellow flashing lights indicate that the bus is preparing to load or unload children. Motorists should slow down and prepare to stop vehicles.

* Red flashing lights and extended stop arms indicate the bus has stopped, and that children are getting on or off. Motorists approaching from either direction must wait until the red lights stop flashing before proceeding.

Police continue search for Dundalk shooting suspect

Baltimore County Police have identified the suspect responsible for the double shooting in Dundalk that took place on Aug. 27. Tavon Powell, 37, is wanted for murder.

At 7:30 p.m. on Aug. 27, Baltimore County Police were called to the unit-block of Wise Avenue in Dundalk for a fatal shooting. Officers arrived and found two victims suffering from gunshot wounds. Both victims were transported to a local hospital for treatment. The female victim, identified as Gabrielle Marie Paugh, 26, of the unit-block of Wise Avenue, was pronounced deceased at the hospital. The male victim, Aaron Michael Wearins, 34, of the 3000-block of Mcelderry Street, in Baltimore City was originally listed in critical condition but succombed to his injuries on Aug. 29.

If anyone has information about Tavon Powell, please call the Baltimore County Police at 410-307-2020. Metro Crime Stoppers, an organization that is separate from the Baltimore County Police Department and Baltimore County Government, offers rewards for information in connection with felony offenses.

Anonymous tips can be sent to Metro Crime Stoppers by phone at 1-866-7LOCKUP.

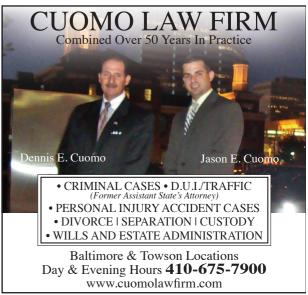

Crossing guards needed

The Baltimore County Police Department needs men and women to serve as school crossing guards. There is an increase in the demand throughout the entire county, but due to road development and traffic concerns, the need is especially great in the central sections of Baltimore County. If you have been thinking of a way to become more involved in your community while getting paid to do so, this is the time to act.

Parents, grandparents, college students or anyone who wants to help insure the safety of children to and from school are encouraged to apply. The pay is $13.04 per hour and the time commitment is only two hours daily, Monday through Friday. When schools have off due to inclement weather, so do you, without loss of pay. Additionally, you incur paid leave as you gain years of experience. You may receive paid national and state holidays from September through June. You will be given your equipment and uniforms free of charge.

Those wishing to apply to the Baltimore County Police Department for the position of crossing guard need to be at least 18 years old. All applicants will undergo a background check, including fingerprinting.

This is the perfect part-time job for stay-at-home parents, retirees and those with a little extra time in the morning and afternoon. The best part of the job is the satisfaction of knowing that you play a major role in keeping the children in your neighborhood safe in their travels.

Explaining common terms found on food labels

When shopping for groceries, some consumers may feel as if they need a degree in nutrition sciences to determine just what it is they're buying. Food labels can be complex and include various terms that may be unknown to consumers. Understanding these terms can help people make sound decisions regarding the foods they eat.

• Cage free: Eggs labeled "cage free" means that the hens that laid the eggs were not raised in caged housing systems, which the Humane Society of the United States has described as inhumane. The organization Food and Water Watch notes that living conditions for hens raised in cage-free environments may still be poor.

• Daily value: According to the medical resource WebMD, daily value indicates the percentage of a certain nutrient in a food, based on a 2,000-calorie-per-day diet. WebMD notes that 8 percent is generally considered to be good.

• Dietary fiber: The Mayo Clinic notes that dietary fiber refers to the parts of plant foods that the human body cannot digest or absorb. Fiber is typically classified as soluble, which refers to types of fiber that dissolve in water, and insoluble, which is used to describe types of fiber that promote movement of material through the digestive system. Soluble fiber can help lower blood cholesterol and glucose levels, while insoluble can help people who suffer from constipation or irregular stools.

• Enriched: Foods that are labeled as "enriched" have had nutrients added to them to replace those that were lost when the food was processed.

• Fortified: Fortified describes foods that had nutrients added to them that were not present initially. A common example of a fortified food or beverage is milk, which is fortified with vitamin D to help the body absorb the calcium present in milk.

• GMO: GMO stands for "genetically modified organisms," which are organisms that have had their genetic material artificially manipulated in genetic engineering labs. The Non-GMO Project says that a growing body of evidence has connected GMOs with an assortment of health problems and environmental damage.

• Grass fed: Grass fed implies that the animals used to produce meat and dairy were fed only grass. Consumer Reports advises consumers to look for seals such as American Grassfed or PCO Certified 100% Grassfed to ensure that manufacturer claims have been verified and that the animals were fed 100 percent grass and raised on pasture.

• Hormone free: The federal government of the United States prohibits the use of hormones to raise poultry and hogs, so manufacturers who label their foods as "hormone free" have not gone above and beyond to make their foods healthier.

• Organic: The United States Department of Agriculture has strict criteria in regard to labeling foods as "organic." To be labeled "organic," dairy, eggs, meat, and poultry can come only from animals that were not given antibiotics or growth hormones. Fruits and vegetables can only be labeled "organic" if they were produced without conventional pesticides, fertilizers made with synthetic ingredients, bioengineering, or ionizing radiation.

• Processed: Many consider processed foods to be bad and loaded with additives. But that's not always the case. The USDA defines processed as foods that have undergone a change of character. For example, cut, prewashed spinach qualifies as a processed food.

• Sodium: Otherwise known as salt, sodium is necessary to maintain nerve and muscle health. However, many people consume too much sodium, oftentimes because of processed foods. WebMD notes that sodium intake should be limited to 2,300 milligrams or less per day. Certain people, such as those over the age of 51, African Americans or those with certain conditions, such as hypertension and diabetes, should consume no more than 1,500 milligrams of sodium per day.

Understanding food labels is a great first step toward eating healthy.

What is gluten?

Gluten-free foods are more widely available than ever before, but unless they adhere to gluten-free diets, consumers may not know just what gluten is and why some people need to avoid it. According to the Celiac Disease Foundation, gluten is the general name for the proteins found in wheat, rye and barley. Many foods and beverages, including breads, soups, beer, and cereals, contain gluten. However, the CDF notes that many foods also are naturally gluten-free and many naturally gluten-free foods are nutritious. These foods include fruits, vegetables, fish and seafood, dairy, beans, legumes and nuts. While it may seem as though people advised to avoid gluten must remove grains and other starches from their diets, that's not the case. In fact, the CDF lists a number of naturally gluten-free grains and starch-containing foods on its website (www.celiac.org).

Marpland Citizen When do city concerns outweigh county concerns?

Dear Editor:

Since when do Baltimore City concerns outweigh Baltimore County concerns, even in Baltimore County?

Having just read the August 23rd feature in your paper about the Metzgar Town Hall, I am filled with disappointment. Delegate Ric Metzgar and other elected officials missed an opportunity to represent and return respect to Baltimore County residents that evening in Essex. Why was Baltimore City Council President Jack Young given a forum to once again allow the City to take precedence over County concerns? Not a single socalled Baltimore County representative requested that Jack Young apologize for calling county residents who are merely concerned about imported crime, by the term "racist." Young's hit and run remark has gone unanswered.

When a dangerous situation at White Marsh Mall last month resulted in the arrest of two young adults and seven juveniles, council members David Marks and Kathy Bevins did their jobs, discussed the matter with law enforcement, the property managers and the community. Together they proposed changing the late night bus schedule to the Mall in order to make the week end situation more manageable. However, Jack Young stated that the Marx/Bevins proposal "sparks racism." By saying so, Young framed the argument to mean that Baltimore County is represented by two racists and therefore the people who put them in office are also racist. This should not be allowed to go unanswered. Unfortunately, during the forum it was.

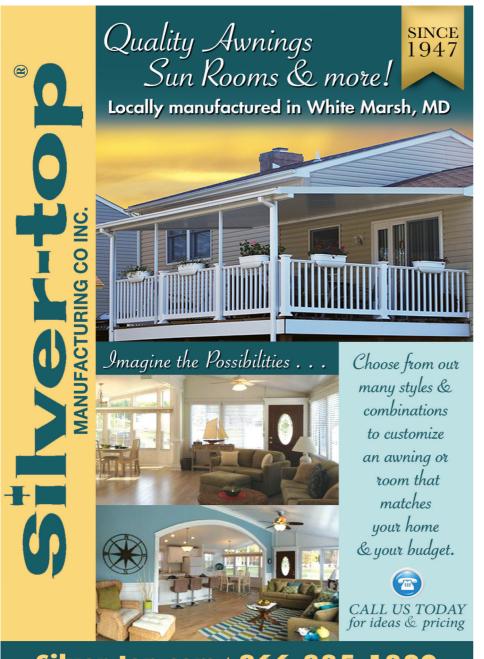

This was the same Jack Young who elevated the prestige of street gangs during

Excellent planning by Baltimore County

Repaving of Bird River Road was completed several weeks ago, although this work has been needed for many years. It seems Baltimore County waited until the developers cleared approximately 100 acres of woodland for a new housing development before the repaving began, instead of waiting a few more months until the underground utility and associated work was completed. In the short time since the repaving was done, at least four trenches have been cut into the new roadway. So now there will be a bump in the surface for the next 20 years. Perfect planning.

Another issue - where will the developer replant the hundreds of trees cut down during the clearing of the land?

the Baltimore City riots. He said nothing against Mayor Blake when she expressed giving the rioters "room to destroy." He also said nothing when Marilyn Mosby dropped charges or refused to charge rioters even when evidence was clear. Why were our officials so afraid to stand up for their constituents?

Candidate for County Executive Al Redmer was at the forum. He has known David Marks and his family, as have I, since David was a boy scout. David

Sanitary survey being conducted in Perry Hall Manor

Over the past two months, Baltimore County has received three requests for assistance from residents in Perry Hall Manor who have failing septic systems. Perry Hall Manor is the area of northern Perry Hall in the vicinity of Perry Hall and Miller Roads.

The county has also received an additional complaint at a fourth property regarding an illegal discharge of sewage onto the ground surface.

As a result of these concerns and at the request of several neighborhood residents, the Baltimore County Public Works is conducting a sanitary survey to assess the need for public water and sewerage. While county officials will was not raised racist nor has he ever expressed racial agendas in his policy decisions. David Marks does not have a racial agenda. He has an all people of all communities agenda. Mr. Redmer should have demanded that Jack Young recant his attack on David Marks and the residents of Baltimore County.

attempt to speak with all the residents during this survey, it is not mandatory from residents to participate. Once the investigation is finished, finding and recommendation will be made to the Department of Public Works.

I want to emphasize that, for right now, only a survey is being done in Perry Hall Manor. There is a detailed process that must occur for public water and sewerage to be installed and funded. I will continue to engage the community, but felt it necessary to alert residents about the complaints the community has received.

Repaired American flag flies high over Essex

A 20 foot by 30 foot American Flag located at Trinity Temple Interfaith Church at 914 North Essex Avenue is once again flying over Essex.

The flag which is the largest flag in Essex was purchased in 2016 with donations from the community. However, the heavy windstorms which swept through the area in March of 2018 damaged the flag.

Thanks to the kindness and generosity of Cliff O'Connell and twelve employees of Cliff's High Tech Auto Body Shop in Essex the large flag was removed with a bucket truck and repaired by Cathy's Canvas & Sails Company in Middle River.

Once repaired the flag was raised again by Cliff's High Tech Auto Body in time for Flag Day and the Annual Pause for the Pledge Ceremony.

The Pause for the Pledge was started in 1980 at the Flag House in Baltimore. Americans across the nation are encouraged to stop what they are doing and recite the Pledge of Allegiance on June 14 which is Flag Day at 7P.M.

The Pause for the Pledge in Essex was started by the late Alfred E. "Al" Clasing, Jr. in the 1980s at Trinity Temple Church which had the largest American Flag in Essex.

Delegate Ric Metzgar (R-6), a member of the House Veterans Caucus, wanted to continue the tradition in honor of his friend Mr. Clasing who worked tirelessly for veterans and the preservation of the Back River Neck Peninsula Community. Mr. Clasing was a World War II Navy Veteran who passed away on December 16, 2015 from kidney failure at the age of 90. Delegate Metzgar served as the Pause for the Pledge Master of Ceremonies.

The Pause for the Pledge in Essex was a beautiful patriotic ceremony which drew about 100 people and is growing every year. Pastor James H. Lane, 93 year old Pastor Emeritus of Trinity Temple, led the Invocation. The Essex-Holly Neck Memorial VFW Post # 2621 All Services Honor Guard and Patapsco School for the Arts Junior R.O.T.C. presented the Colors. The Baltimore Baritone Joe DiCara sang The National Anthem.

Patriotic Music was performed by Local Recording Artists Maria Rose and Danny Elswick who sang several ballads. Pastor Lane's Son-In-Law Bob and his Daughter Hope Larson and their families donated refreshments and canopies for this year's Pause for the Pledge.

Delegate Metzgar presented Girl Scout Troop 4981 from Rosedale, a Maryland Flag which flew over the Middle East and Citations were presented to employees of Cliff's High Tech for their community service with the large flag. After the ceremony, people stayed afterwards to spend time together. Good things happen when the community comes together. Everyone again enjoyed the Pause for the Pledge and are looking forward to next year's ceremony.

All published obituary corrections will be as brief as possible.

Operation Finale puts a period on one of the exclamation points of history

- By Teddy Durgin -

This December, Universal Studios will be re-releasing "Schindler's List" in theaters to commemorate that Oscar-winning film's 25th anniversary. In the movie, the great Ben Kingsley played Itzhak Stern, a Jewish accountant who worked for German industrialist Oskar Schindler (Liam Neeson) and helped him in his rescue activities during the Holocaust and World War II. It was a quiet and beautiful performance in which Kingsley was the calm, controlled conscience of the film and, ultimately, of Schindler himself as he sparred with the Nazis day in and day out and ended up saving hundreds of Jewish lives.

It is now indeed a quarter-century later and Kingsley has since proven his range as one of the cinema's finest actors in such subsequent films as "Sexy Beast," "House of Sand and Fog," "Shutter Island," "Hugo" and "The Walk." And now, how is this for range? In the new historical thriller, "Operation Finale," he plays a ... Nazi! And not just any Nazi, but Adolf Eichmann, who was tasked with facilitating and managing the logistics involved in the mass deportation of Jews to ghettos and concentration camps in Nazi-occupied Eastern Europe during WWII.

Eichmann was one of the Nazis who escaped and had to be hunted down in subsequent years to answer for his atrocities. The film tells the story of that hunt

- By Teddy Durgin -

OK, some of you may read this summer movie recap of mine and think it's incomplete because I didn't include "Avengers: Infinity War" for consideration in any of the below categories. The flick came out in late April. I'm sorry. That's NOT the summer. I was still dealing with spring pollen allergies when I saw that flick. My daughter was like, "Awww, look at Dad. He's crying because Spider-Man just died." And I was like, "Uh, I'm cryin' because MY Spidey senses are on fire with all of this oak pollen!"

At any rate, they say that all good things come in threes. They also say celebrity deaths come in threes. And whoever had John McCain, Aretha Franklin and Neil Simon in the pool ... wow, you hit the trifecta this past week! Alright, enough small talk. Here's one last look back at the 2018 summer movie season that was (in threes):

Three best movies of the summer: 1) "The Incredibles 2;" 2) "Mission: Impossible - Fallout;" and 3) "Crazy Rich Asians."

Three favorite movies of the summer: 1) "Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again;" 2) "Solo: A Star Wars Story;" under the direction of Mossad agent Peter Malkin (Oscar Isaac), who travels to Argentina in 1960 and finds his target. The movie is a bit oddly paced. I am not spoiling anything by giving away the fact that Malkin and his colleagues do capture Eichmann. That happens sooner in the picture than I thought it would. The meat of the movie, and where "Operation Finale" is at its best, is in a whole middle section that delivers a verbal sparring match between Malkin and Eichmann with both lead actors up to the challenge. Matthew Orton's screenplay really jumps to life in these scenes, and you can tell it's where he and director Chris Weitz (and Isaac and Kingsley) are most engaged.

And while it's good to get a film in 21st-century theaters to remind today's shoot-first-aim-later partisans and pundits what real Nazis really were and are, unfortunately, the thriller aspects of the flick come off as slack and perfunctory and bring the film down. Hey, I wasn't looking for a Jason Statham action flick. But if you look at flicks like "Munich" and "Argo," there are ways to ratchet up tension in based-on-real-life thrillers of this type that will keep you engaged throughout. Weitz, whose credits include "American Pie" and one of the "Twilight" flicks, just isn't up to the task in delivering a complete film here (even though his intentions are completely noble throughout).

But when "Operation Finale" is good, it's really good.

Teddy's summer 2018 movie recap and 3) "Deadpool 2."

Three most disappointing movies of the summer: 1) "Jurassic World: Fallen Kingdom;" 2) "Oceans Eight;" and 3) "The Equalizer 2."

Three movies more people should have seen: 1) "Teen Titans Go! To the Movies;" 2) "Disney's Christopher Robin;" and 3) "Won't You Be My Neighbor."

Three movies nobody should have seen: 1) "Slender Man;" 2) "Action Point;" and 3) "SuperFly."

Three movies I wanted to see but didn't: 1) Eighth Grade; 2) "BlacKkKlansman;" and 3) "Tag."

Three favorite performances (male): 1) Donald Glover in "Solo: A Star Wars Story; 2) Ryan Reynolds in "Deadpool 2;" and 3) Henry Golding in "Crazy Rich Asians."

Three favorite performances (female): 1) Lily James, "Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again;" 2) Zazie Beetz in "Deadpool 2;" and 3) Awkwafina in "Crazy Rich Asians."

Three favorite scenes: 1) The "Waterloo" song-anddance number in the French restaurant in "Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again;" 2) Baby Jack-Jack Vs. the Raccoon in "The Incredibles 2;" 3) Han speaking Wookiee in The back-and-forth middle stretch that I love here takes place during a 10-day flight delay in which Malkin must coerce or persuade Eichmann to sign off on his willingness to be transported to Israel to face what he regards as a show trial. The tension between the two men crackles, like old-school "Homicide: Life on the Street" whenever Andre Braugher or Clark Johnson or Ned Beatty would get a suspect in "The Box" and interrogate him/her for a suspected murder. In this way, "Operation Finale" might have worked best as a stage play. Maybe someday it will...

"Operation Finale" is rated PG-13 for disturbing thematic content and related violent images, and for some language.

"Solo: A Star Wars Story."

Three best lines: 1) "I'm your father. Your momma didn't tell you?" - Denzel's Robert McCall to a drug dealer asking "Who the [bleep] are you?!" in "The Equalizer 2;" 2) "With this collar on, my superpower is just unbridled cancer. Give me a bow and arrow and I'm basically Hawkeye" - Wade Wilson in "Deadpool 2;" and 3) "You put a dime in him, you got to let the whole song play out" - T.I.'s Dave talking about Michael Pena's rambling Luis after being given truth serum in "Ant-Man and the Wasp."

Three coolest cameos: 1) Brad Pitt in "Deadpool 2;" 2) Darth Maul in "Solo: A Star Wars Story;" and 3) original ABBA members Benny Andersson and Bjorn Ulvaeus in "Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again."

Three more cool cameos: 1) Shaobo Qin in "Ocean's Eight;" 2) Stan Lee in "Teen Titans Go! To the Movies;" and 3) James McAvoy, Evan Peters, Tye Sheridan, Alexandra Shipp and Kodi Smit-McPhee in "Deadpool 2."

And, finally, three movies I am most looking forward to next summer: 1) "Avengers 4;" 2) Quentin Tarantino's "Once Upon a Time in Hollywood;" and 3) "John Wick 2: Parabellum."

The end of the world The PAT McDONOUGH Report

- By Del. Pat McDonough (R-7) -A killer asteroid is hurdling toward the planet earth and is scheduled to make its deadly arrival on November 6, 2018. Scientists have named it "The Blue Wave" from the region of space known as the "radical socialist" sector. Okay, so it's not an asteroid; it's an historic election. The election may not only change America, but probably the world.

The House of Representatives and Senate could become Democrat majority controlled which would initiate a full-fledged "impeachment circus." All of the gains we have made would be reversed or attacked. Let us take a look at the comments of some of the major Democrat politicians and get a better understanding of what America may be facing in the future.

Democrat Presidential candidate Hillary Clinton praised Mariana Taylor, a Catonsville middle school student for kneeling during the Pledge of Allegiance. Mariana said she was protesting racism and police brutality.

New York Governor Andrew Cuomo, a potential Democrat candidate for Governor, defamed America by saying, "We're not going to make America great again. It never was that great."

Senator Elizabeth Warren, another Democrat presidential candidate, denounced the American criminal justice system as being racist. Her opponent for Senate, Beth Lindstrom, challenged Warren to apologize to every police officer, judge, correction officer, probation worker and other decent honest people of all races working in our criminal justice system.

The California Democrat Party is so extreme they endorsed a radical leftist candidate for Senate, Kevin DeLeon over fourth term incumbent liberal Senator Diane Feinstein, 65% to 7%.

Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, a 28 year old former bartender, a new face of the Democrat Party, after defeating a powerful incumbent Democrat Congressional member, proudly claimed she is a devout socialist.

Tom Steyer, a billionaire "Impeachment King," is donating 110 million dollars in the mid-term elections to turn the Congress into a Democrat majority which would initiate the "Impeachment Circus." Steyer expects to be a presidential candidate, along with other left wing billionaires like Mark Cuban, Starbuck's Howard Schultz and Michael Blumberg.

The Democrat Mayor of Portland, Oregon, ordered his city police force to "stand down" (sound familiar?, Baltimore riots) while a radical left mob assaulted the ICE headquarters. The mob was violent, injured innocent people, defaced the building, littered and trashed the surrounding neighborhood. They tore down the American flag and replaced it with the Antifa flag.

Zephyr Teachout, another leftist Democrat running for Attorney General in New York, has pledged to prosecute immigration and customs enforcement agents when elected. She supports the abolish ICE movement.

Nancy Pelosi, in a speech in Texas, encouraged everyone to vote for the Democrats so they could open the borders and help illegal immigrants to flood into our country.

As you can see from these comments, the old Democrat Party no longer exists. John F. Kennedy, Harry Truman and even Bill Clinton would have a zero chance of obtaining the Democrat Presidential nomination in today's world.

Recently retired FBI Director James Comey urged voters to support Democrats. He clarified his remarks by saying, "Please don't support the socialists." A few remaining moderate Democrats like Delaware Senator Chris Coons sponsored a summit encouraging the party to shift away from the left. None of these attempts seem to be working as the party continues its socialist march.

In Maryland, we face possible destruction by a mini-asteroid known as Ben Jealous, candidate for governor. Candidate Jealous gleefully supports the entire socialist agenda. A Jealous administration would render Maryland barren and scorched by imposing higher taxes, sanctuary policies and soft on crime and drugs programs.

Clearly, those of us who have been classified as "deplorables" by Hillary Clinton or people clinging to our Bibles and guns, as Obama stated, will be facing the end of the world as we know it if the "blue wave" asteroid hits the target.

One last important point - you better vote.

Annual Sept. 11 Tribute and Flag Waving

Delegate Pat McDonough, along with volunteer firefighters and community groups, will host a flag-waving remembrance tribute to victims and families of Sept. 11, 2001.

The annual event is open to the public and will take place on the Maryland Route 152 overpass at Interstate 95 in Joppa. There will be plenty of free parking at the Park and Ride on Mountain Road (MD-152) in Harford County.

"We encourage people to bring their families, friends and flags on Tuesday, Sept. 11, from 4 to 6 in the afternoon," McDonough stated.

For more information, contact Del. McDonough at 410-238-0025 or patmcdee@ comcast.net.
