Laurel's Russell Delk pens first children's book: "The Adventure of Smelly Sock"

By Kevin Williamson
 Ever wonder what a sock might say to a refrigerator, a toilet, a lamp or a table? What if the sock hadn't been washed in a while, and the other appliances were struggling to talk because their noses were being odoriferously invaded by the smelly sock . . . have you ever considered that?

Russell Delk has. In fact the Laurel resident has now written a couple of children's books about it: "The Adventure of Smelly Sock" and "The Adventures of Smelly Sock and His Friends - Into the Yard." A third book is on the way; in fact, it's likely that an entire series will be published before the remunerative scent of this idea is completely expunged.

Now, the published collection regarding the adventures of a pungent sock may not currently be stocked in your home library, but maybe it should be. If you don't have the book, your kids are missing out - and you could be too! I mean, do you know what to say to your lamp stand or your refrigerator? Do you talk to them now? Please don't answer that. Just read Delk's books and you'll then know what a conversation with a home appliance should sound like!

So, how did Delk leap into the business of publishing conversations between socks and appliances and other objects? Well, he does like to talk a lot, but that's not the real answer. His dad taught him how. Hold on, let's back up. It's not necessarily true that Russell's dad (Raymond Delk) actually taught his son how to be chatty with appliances. To Raymond's credit, there exists no evidence that he has ever waxed eloquent with appliances. However, his ventriloquy through a sock one fateful evening birthed an idea into his son's imagination that started the series about Smelly Sock . . . that title just rolls off the tongue, doesn't it?

"One night my dad put a sock on his hand and said to my niece, 'Hey, Katlyn, I'm Smelly Sock.'" Russell, who is creative by nature, pounced on the statement. Yep, it happened just like that . . . a simple comical gesture by Raymond launched a publishing career.

"Dad still wants to know where his royalties are," laughed Russell.

With an idea for a children's book now ready to be put on paper (or should we say into his PC), Russell turned his imagination loose. The central character, Smelly Sock, was free to engage in conversations and activities with inanimate objects around Russell's house or ones from his childhood, like the family's old Snapper lawn mower; even animate creatures, like his childhood dog, have been weaved into certain scenes

HANDBAGS and HIGH HEELS

By Emily Hall

It has been a rough few days at the Hall household. Alex sustained his first semi-major injury, which is pretty amazing when you consider that he is a very active 5-year-old boy. He ran into some playground equipment at school and had to get one stitch and five staples in his forehead, right at his hairline. Since he refuses to tell me what he wants to be for Halloween, I joked that he could be Frankenstein. He was not amused.

That brings me to the topic for this week – Halloween costumes. I love Halloween, but I don't love the hefty price tag that comes with most costumes. Plus, almost every option for women has the word "sexy" somewhere in the description. Last year, I saw a sexy Big Bird. Seriously.

To save money and avoid the awful costumes in the stores, I usually craft my costume from things already in my closet. For Alex's first Halloween, he was Mickey Mouse. To complement him, I dressed in a red tunic, black leggings, red heels and Minnie Mouse ears. Two years ago, I threw on a black t-shirt and black leggings, drew some whiskers on my face and added some cat ears. Done.

My favorite costume was the one I came up with last year. I went as the female version of Negan, the main villain from The Walking Dead. It was so simple – white t-shirt, black leather jacket, black jeans, black hiking boots, a red scarf and one black glove. The only thing I purchased was a $2 black plastic baseball bat that I turned into "Lucille," Negan's prized weapon. I wrapped it in silver picture wire to mimic the barbed wire around his, and off I went. Granted, I only wore it trick-or-treating with Alex, but it was worth it. Since no one really saw it, it might get recycled if I can't think of anything for this year.

Having a child made Halloween so much more fun. I had my own little living doll I could dress up, and he couldn't say a word. As I said before, his first costume was Mickey Mouse. For his second Halloween, he was Michelangelo (of Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle fame, not the Sistine Chapel). Then he started talking and got opinionated...

As we approached his third Halloween, we made a trip to the Spirit Halloween store so he could pick out his costume. He insisted on a $60 Tyrannosaurus Rex costume. I tried persuading him with cheaper costumes, but no. Not only was it expensive, but it was the weirdest fitting costume I've ever seen. I bought a size up from his normal size, as those costumes tend to run small. It was too big on the top, pulled all through the middle, and was too long on the bottom. He hated it. I hated it. It was a Halloween fail. But he wore it three times the week leading up to Halloween, so at least we got our money's worth.

Last year, he made my life easy with his choice. He loves animals. One of his favorite television shows is Wild Kratts, which follows two brothers as they explore all different animals and what "creature powers" they possess. It's part real-life, part cartoon, super informative and, if I'm totally honest, pretty entertaining. For Halloween, he wanted to be Chris Kratt. He already had the vest, goggles and fanny pack that came with some of his toys, so all I had to add was a plain shirt and khaki pants.

I'm hoping he'll pick something simple again this year, but my luck isn't that good. I'm sure we'll end up back at Spirit Halloween in the next few weeks.

But it could be worse. I recently overheard a mom say that her daughter begged her for a $100 Princess Jasmine costume while at Disney World. I'll happily take the $60 dinosaur any day.

"I love the dialogue," admitted Russell. "I put myself into the characters."

As much as the younger Delk loves the creative process, he discovered that there were some obstacles that slowed the channeling of an idea from the mind to ink on paper.

"Writing is not hard," he explained. "Learning the process of publishing was the hard part."

After finding success navigating through the deep waters of the publishing process, Russell and his partner, Ben Gebauer, who moved to Laurel from California several years ago, formed their own publishing company, BobbleHead Books, LLC.

"We not only publish our own works, but we also help others who have good ideas but don't know how to go about getting their book to press," noted Russell.

"The Adventure of Smelly Sock" has gotten off to a resounding start, selling out quickly last year at the Loblolly Festival, the first big event the book was made available, by 11:00 that morning. Similar results are occurring at other festivals. Russell also spends time inside local school classrooms reading to kids.

"The fun things are seeing them interact with the book, laughing, asking questions, seeing the kids interested in the characters and the roles they play in the story," he noted.

Let's Make Something brings fabric and friends together

By Stephanie Higginbotham

Walk into local fabric store, Let's Make Something, on any given day, and you'll notice that you feel like family as soon as you step across the door's threshold. Owner Tammy Robinson has set up a shop that will take you back to a time when things seemed simpler, and you're sure to become fast friends as you spend time shopping in her store.

Let's Make Something opened its doors in March of 2015, after Tammy chose to leave a career in banking after 27 years. While that may seem like a daunting leap to some, Tammy says she knew right from the start that God was opening the door for her to begin her own business. "Everything began to fall into place for the store to open," Tammy said. "From the location to finding sales reps to God sending me an encourager every day while we were in the planning stages."

Tammy moved to Sander-ville, Mississippi from New Jersey when she was just five, so she calls Jones County home. Ask her why she chose this business, and she'll tell you that she can't remember a time when she didn't sew. When Tammy was a young teenager, her father had surgery. He needed to have something to do inside the house while he was recovering, so he quilted. This was Tammy's first introduction to the world of quilting.

Tammy also had a friend who quilted and that friend taught her even more. Tammy said that her neighbor had a long arm quilting machine, and she had to have one, so now she does in her own home. While encouragement was poured into Tammy during the planning process and the business's beginning, you'll find her to be a true blessing herself and one of the most caring people you'll ever meet. She shows love to others through her teaching and her generosity. "I love helping and encouraging customers to make quilts to give," Tammy explained. The shop collects quilts for the Jones County Sheriff's Department to be placed in deputy vehicles and given to children in crisis.

Tammy has also been given the opportunity to work each month with ladies going through addiction recovery typically through small projects. She said, "It is always fun to see their faces when they make something for the first time. I never leave them without a full heart." It's no secret that you'll never leave Let's Make Something without a full heart. Often when customers visit her store for fabric, they also leave with an encouraged spirit, which is always worth far more than any fabric money can buy.

In addition to cotton fabric, the store also sells small items made by its owner, including burp

LAUREL, MISS

cloths, bibs, potholders and even embroidered baby quilts. Tammy also now uses her long arm quilting machine to stitch quilts for customers and friends – the same machine that she purchased years ago after seeing her neighbor with one.

Tammy's favorite personal project was making quilts for her niece and nephew from their father's shirts. "They were a little difficult to make but well worth it to hear Brandon and Kala talk about memories of their dad wearing the shirts to different places."

Let's Make Something is a hidden jewel, tucked away on the back side of the State Farm building just south of Wal-Mart. Tammy loves their location, as it is right along 16th Avenue, yet still somewhat privately situated on the lower level of the building's back side.

The store is open Tuesday – Friday from 10 a.m. – 5:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. – 2 p.m.

The Story Teller:

"A Brother Like Him"

By Martha McCarty

She was still asleep when he caught the bus that morning, but once she got up, she was up and running. She played hard all day, ate her aviolies (Ravioles) for lunch, swang on her tummy in her tree swing and even took a 'power nap' before his bus brought her big brother home again after school . . . but she was wide awake and ready for his return. Standing in my office window, she watched him step from the bus and get the mail from the box, and she was at the back door grinning when

No sooner had he put his backpack on the breakfast bar than he had her picked up and upside-down at that. Then off

I could not help but to laugh out loud the other day when I heard the little one tell him, "You're not the boss of me! I'm telling Mama!" Oh, my! How many times have we all heard that? And how many times have we said it ourselves?

As children, my sisters and I heard so few ugly words spoken around us, and the few we knew we were not allowed to repeat. I was spanked for telling Pippy that she was stupid, and the ugliest word in my vocabulary back then was "snot".

But Ann had her own way of talking ugly. I can still see her mad face as she used the nastiest words that baby knew.

"You are not my boss, you-you-you do do grunt!" And then she followed that vulgarity with "You hunk of bugger, do do grunt!" Now who could stay mad at a little sister who would call you such a name? And then she got even madder at me when I laughed at her.

These precious years sped by all too fast for me, and they're doing so again here now, as I watch these grandchildren learn to love and get along. They do so many of the same things I did at their ages, and I often know what's going to be said before it is. And, believe you me, it's fun! And the best part is that I don't have to be the one to referee anymore!

But not much refereeing is needed. These little sisters have a 'whole' big brother who loves them more than life itself, and I know he'll be there for them always. That age difference is really an advantage in their favor, and he really has no rival. The sisters enjoy each other, they play well together, and there's usually peace on the home front. I wish every little girl could have a brother like him, like I always wished I did.

Blood might run thicker than water, but love runs thicker than blood, in our home anyway.

he opened that door.

There is a very special bond between the two of them; he's fifteen, and she's four. One might think there're too many years between them for them to be so close, but those years don't seem to matter to either of the two. He's her brother "by a different mother," but she's his sister "by the same mister!" Normally they'd be called "half-brother" and "half-sister," but that's not the case at our house. Here we have no "halves"; we have brothers and sisters! What the heck would a 'half-brother' be anyway? Would he have only half of what a brother ought to have? Or would a half-sister be only half of a girl?

When people ask my daughter how many children she has, he's in the count, and when I get a similar question about grandchildren, I certainly count him, as well as the child my daughter-in-law already had when she and my son became a family. Blood might run thicker than water, but love runs thicker than blood – in our home anyway.

they ran down the hall, with her head at his knees, her feet on his shoulders and her giggles filling the air. Of course that short trip was followed by a tickling and squealing session, and soon the two were back in the kitchen and raiding the fridge.

Their sister, between them in age, usually chooses to get out of their way and stands back watching and laughing at their antics. She receives no lack of love or attention from either of them, but she does her own thing in her own way. She'd really rather not be upside-down or held down and tickled. She's also learned to get to Mama's after school treats before they make it back to the kitchen. Now, the love is true, and the affection is genuine, but the kids are all three just that, and they have their moments of rivalry too. Of course big brother often sees himself 'in charge,' and quite often he is. But no self-respecting girl is willingly going to allow any boy to tell her what to do! Not even when Mama has put him in charge.

Oct. 13, 2013

Happy 5th Heavenly Anniversary to my loving daughter, Kimberly Diane Williams. Kim, baby, it's been 5 long years since you left us, but it seems like just yesterday. I will never say goodbye, there can be none for us, it would be too painful. Dear, our connection lives on. Although you are far from here, I miss the times that we once had, but one day, once again, I will hold you close and laugh with you. I just wish I knew when. Each moment till that day arrives, until my time is through, I will miss you more than words can say and always be thinking of you. I will look for you among the stars and at each dawn's pastel sky, and whisper words of love to you, but never say goodbye.

Week 9 Predictions: Laurel's offense projected to outduel the Mustangs' defense in 3-5A showdown

By James Pugh
Most of our local teams still have a shot at making the playoffs (some a better shot than others), but these last few weeks of games are crucial. For some teams the margin of error is small, while for others the battle is for a No. 1 or No. 2 seed. The latter is the case for our first game this week, West Jones at Laurel. This game is likely to decided Region 3-5A. Laurel's 20-0 shutout win over Brookhaven in Week 7 answered a lot of questions surrounding how the region would play out in 2018. With last year's Region 3-5A winner defeated, two teams remain unbeaten in the region – Laurel and West Jones. Laurel has arguably the best offense in Region 3-5A, while West Jones has the best defense beyond any doubt. An offense averaging 37 points a game in 3-5A faces a defense who has yet to give up a point in all three region games thus far. This one is hard to pick. Prediction: Laurel 17, West Jones 14.

South Jones at North Pike: Things went sour fast on the Reservation last week. Up 24-12 with several minutes remaining in the game, South Jones gave up 15 unanswered points to lose its most important Region 3-5A game to date. The loss now means South Jones will have to not only beat North Pike and Wingfield, but also pull off an upset over West Jones or Brookhaven for a shot at the playoffs. Brookhaven will be the likely of the two. However, nothing stays in play without a win over North Pike. Prediction: South Jones 35, North Pike 21.

this year, things have not gone in the Tigers favor. Northeast Jones has stayed within reach in both of its Region 5-4A games so far in the first two quarters. Then comes the second half. That's probably the way things will go this week vs. Quitman. Prediction: Quitman 32, Northeast Jones 14

Player of the Week

Resurrection Catholic's offense last was consistently moving last Friday night - in the wrong direction. Stringer's defense had all to do with it. And that's what earned the entire unit the Player of the Week award from Powerade & Sports601.com.

"We just did what our coach told us to do," said senior middle linebacker R.J. Holifield. "Squeeze the outside, keep contained and play aggressively in the middle."

Holifield led Stringer defensively vs. Resurrection Catholic with five solo tackles and one assist. He and the rest of the Red Devils defense limited their Region 4-1A foe to less than 60 yards of offensive, according to MaxPreps.com. That number is disputed by those who attended the game and say it was far less than 60 yards.

Stringer defeated Resurrection Catholic, 30-0, last Friday night (Sept. 28) on the road in both teams 4-1A opener. Don't for one-second think Stringer faced a considerably weaker opponent, therefore the impressive numbers. Resurrection Catholic came into the contest, 4-1, with substantial victories over 1A Sacred Heart and 2A Chickasaw (AL), and a near win vs. 3A Perry Central.

"I thought we played physical and fast," said Stringer head coach John Brown. "We executed some blitz calls very well. We put pressure on the quarterback and didn't let him get comfortable."

Senior Eagle quarterback Jacob Galle, who before Week 7 averaged 175.8 yards passing, was held to 17 yards on four completions.

"We knew they like to run the ball if you let them," said senior outside linebacker Conner Smith. "And if you stopped the run, they'd resort to passing. We knew our DB's would have to step up in that case and they did."

Smith led in sacks with two. He finished with three tackles and three tackle assists. Junior lineman Christopher Dagen also recorded a sack.

Another leader on defense, Landry Dyess, said his team's success came down to great execution.

"We just executed what we were taught all week," said the junior middle linebacker. "We did what our coaches taught us to do. We hit people hard, filled holes and flew around tackling whoever had the ball."

Fourteen Stringer defensive players notched solo tackles in the 30-0 win.

The Red Devils are filling out their schedule in 2018 much like they did in 2017. Last year, after losing to county rival Bay Springs season opener, Stringer won nine straight in the regular season. This year, Stringer is currently on a seven-game win streak after dropping its opener to the Bulldogs.

Mustangs shut out third straight region foe

By James Pugh

North Pike quarterback Alijah Martin found the seam he'd been searching for all night. A burst up the middle, then drifting right, Martin's biggest gain Friday night of 69 yards put West Jones' attempt at a third-straight Region 3-5A shutout in serious jeopardy late in the third quarter.

With North Pike 10 yards away from a score, West Jones showed why the hype has been around its defense all season. The next four plays for North Pike and its offense versus West Jones and its defense yielded a loss of 24 yards and a turnover on downs.

West Jones didn't allow North Pike to come that close again in the final quarter as the Mustangs improved to 6-1 on the season and 3-0 in Region 3-5A with a 37-0 win at Mustang Stadium in Soso.

The Mustangs have yet to allow a score in region play thus far and has four total shutout wins this season.

Neither team found success on offense in the first quarter. Eight offensive drives ended with punts, four by West Jones and four by North Pike. On a fifth North Pike punt attempt, now into the second quarter, the ball snapped too far right, tipped off the punter's hands and into the back of the end zone for a West Jones two-point safety. The first points of the contest energized the West Jones offense. On the ensuing drive led by sophomore quarterback Adam Follis, West Jones marched 47 yards downfield for its first offensive score Friday night. Follis capped off the drive with an 11-yard touchdown pass to Tajrick Randolph with 7:25 left in the second quarter. West Jones led North Pike 9-0.

Follis finished with 74 yards passing on six completions. The sophomore QB also rushed for 10 yards on five carries and a touchdown. On the offense's ensuing drive, Follis dashed in the end zone on a two-yard touchdown pass to Tajrick Randolph with 7:25 left in the second quarter. West Jones led North Pike 16-0 after its successful PAT.

West Jones added three more rushing touchdowns, two in the third quarter and one in the fourth. Three different running backs contributed to the Mustangs lead in the second half. Junior back Jasper Jones led in rushing yards with 75 on 13 carries. Senior Micheal Neal had 73 yards on 12 carries, 35 of those came on his touchdown drive early in the third quarter. Damion Cunningham led West Jones on defense with eight solo tackles and 2.5 sacks.

West Jones travels to Laurel next week for the biggest Region 3-5A matchup of the regular season. The winner will likely win the region title.

Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, left the Jordan and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness, where for forty days he was tempted by the devil. He ate nothing during those days, and at the end of them he was hungry. The devil said to him, "If you are the Son of God, tell this stone to become bread." Jesus answered, "It is written: 'Man shall not live on bread alone.'" - Luke 4:1-4 (NIV)

Compare Medicare Advantage plans to Original Medicare

Original Medicare plan

- Provides coverage for medical expenses after a deductible and requires 20 percent coinsurance for most services
- No out-of-pocket limits on how much you pay for care
- May need to add a supplement plan and separate prescription drug coverage
- Provides coverage inside the United States only

Humana Medicare Advantage plan

- Provides benefits beyond Original Medicare with costs that are easy to budget
- Maximum out-of-pocket limits help protect you financially
- Don't need a supplement plan and prescription drug coverage is usually built in
- Offers worldwide coverage for emergency care

Why Humana Medicare Advantage?

Get the Medicare benefits you need, plus the extras you want, all in one easy-to-use plan, for one affordable price. Call a licensed Humana sales agent to find out why so many Medicare members across the country choose Humana Medicare Advantage plans.

More than 3 million*

Medicare Advantage members have chosen Humana, and Humana cares about their health, their budget and their peace of mind.

Stability:

With more than 30 years of experience in Medicare and more than 50 years of experience in the healthcare industry, Humana continues to prove its commitment to get people the care they need.
