Tips on how to write CLASSIFIED ADS that sell!

- 1 USE A KEY WORD. This immediately tells the reader exactly what you have to sell.
- 2 Make your description CLEAR AND FACTUAL. State the year, make, model, color & size and tell what condition the item is in. Also, state the special features.
- 3 STATE THE PRICE. Successful classified advertisers have learned that the price in an ad helps increase the chances for results.
- 4 IF THERE IS A GENUINE SENSE OF URGENCY, say so. The words "We're moving," or "Must sell fast," suggest that readers respond immediately.
- 5 INCLUDE YOUR PHONE NUMBER. Classifieds get results fast and often generate immediate sales. If you cannot be available to answer the phone at all times, be sure to specify special calling times such as "after 9pm" or "before 11am."

Adult Education Literacy Students Celebrate the Holidays Together

The holidays were a great time for students in the Orleans/Niagara BOCES' Adult Education Literacy classes at Holy Trinity Roman Catholic Church in Medina to come together and celebrate. The students are either ESL (English as a Second Language) and/or Adult Basic Education (ABE) and/or High School Equivalency (HSE).

Teachers Shelly Smith (Literacy Instructor), Karen Cunningham (Career Prep instructor) and Dorie Kenyon (Tester) wanted to reward the students for all their hard work over the course of the last few months. "We had a gift for each one of the students that consisted of a mug filled with candy," says Mrs. Smith. "Mrs. Cunningham and I purchased pizza, fruit, pop, a veggie tray, cookies and brownies. The students also brought in their favorite snacks to add to the festivities."

One student even got a special gift of a new winter coat. "Mary Melero is with us for six hours a day," explains Mrs. Smith. "She is like a sponge in learning and a big help in the classrooms, she is always pitching in and helping clean up. She walks everywhere and only has a windbreaker. When we gave her the coat, the look on her face will always be etched in my mind."

The students all brought in a gift of $3.00 or less and played a fun game of Dirty Santa. The teachers brought in extra gifts so everyone was able to participate and go home with a gift. "Kindness is like snow," says Mrs. Smith. "It beautifies everything that it covers. It was so much fun, especially because we had invited our most recent graduates to come and celebrate with us."

COYOTES ARE IN

By Douglas H. Domedion

The coyote can become a problem if not kept fearful of humans.

Now that the deer season is over some of our hunters will take up the sport of running coyotes with hounds. The coyote has expanded its range across N.Y.S. and hunting them has become quite a sport. Their numbers have increased even though there has been a lot of hunting pressure on them. They have taken the place the wolf originally held across the country. Our Eastern coyote is larger than his Western cousin and has some of the habits of the wolf, which is why he is sometimes referred to as a "brush wolf."

It is believed that our coyote is the result of cross-breeding between coyotes and wolves and then crossing the frozen St. Lawrence River from Canada.

The red and gray wolves have been hated and feared by humans since this country was discovered. Every possible means of destroying them was used including the deadly poisoning. The wolf needed large expands of land, hunted in packs and preyed on large mammals such as moose, elk, beaver, and deer. Once this top predator was eliminated, a gap existed that was not completely filled by the coyote. What we may be seeing with our eastern coyote is a piece of evolution. The few wolves left were forced to cross breed with the smaller coyote. This could have resulted in our coyote being larger in size then the Western coyote and its tendency to hunt larger prey, like deer, in small packs. At the same time it can exist in close quarters with civilization, which the wolf could not do, and survive on small prey such as mice, rabbits, etc.

Although the coyote in this area do not often hunt in packs they definitely do in our Adirondacks. They are great opportunists and can survive on almost anything, again something the wolf couldn't. He has learned how to exist by staying out of sight and being very clever. What we really have now is a small wolf that has done an excellent job of filling that gap the gray and red wolf left.

Coyotes in this area do take some adult deer, although not as often as in the Adirondacks. I feel the real problem is their taking of fawns in the summer. Taking young turkeys before they can fly and destroying nests can be another problem.

After deer season more hunters are getting involved in hunting coyotes. The sport is expensive as good hounds with costly tracking collars are needed as are radios plus a lot of gas for vehicles to keep on the trail of this crafty predator. It also requires the hunters to be in great shape because of the large amount of footwork that is evolved in sometimes very deep snow.

There are also some serious problems in this sport like trying to keep the hounds from getting hit by cars when they are led across roads by these long ranging coyotes. Controlling the dogs is the biggest problem though; you just can't control hounds on a hot coyote trail. They don't care about private land or posted signs, just that coyote. A chase can last all day and a lot of private land can be crossed.

The ethical houndsmen take time to get permission to travel across any private land they may encounter during the day. They let the folks in the area know who they are and what they are up to.

A real problem comes from the groups who do not take the time to do this and it puts some landowners against this sport.

There is a very positive effect of these guys running coyotes all over the country side even if it means sometimes the hounds cross property that the hunters don't have prior permission on – it keeps the coyote fearful of humans. Without this pressure the coyote will get bolder and bolder until pets and small farm animals begin to disappear. Most of these hunters are decent guys and try not to disturb local residents but some times it is just unavoidable. Give them a break!

Get the Financial Facts about Timeshares

Many people turn to timeshares as a way to enjoy annual vacations. But is investing in a timeshare a financially sound decision? That depends on who you ask. Getting the facts about how timeshares work and learning a few tricks can help anyone make an educated decision about timeshares.

In a timeshare, individuals purchase a place to stay in vacation property. They typically can then use this room and the surrounding amenities once per year, and often must travel to the same location time and again. Timeshares long have held appeal because they are marketed toward people who may not be able to buy a vacation home, but still want to vacation each year.

There are some advantages to timeshares. They provide a guaranteed vacation destination each year in a familiar place. This is great for people who value familiarity. Timeshares also make it possible to afford a vacation in an expensive resort. Sometimes a person can trade times or locations with other timeshare owners, enabling more versatility and new destination experiences. For those who have to skip a year, it may be possible to sublet the timeshare or let family and friends use it if the agreement allows.

Timeshares have some notable drawbacks as well. Cost-efficiency is one notable drawback of timeshares. The American Resort Development Association, a trade group for timeshare companies, offers that the average cost of a timeshare is around $20,000, with an annual maintenance fee of $660. Those fees are paid even if the resort isn't used that year. Chances are a person can get a comparable vacation elsewhere for a lower cost - especially with the abundance of vacation property rentals available from traditional hotels as well as sites such as Airbnb.

A timeshare is not like a traditional real estate investment. According to Investopedia, it is an illiquid asset that is likely to lose value over time. Those who decide to sell their timeshares often find they must do so at a deep discount. Furthermore, those who sell a timeshare at a loss may find the Internal Revenue Service doesn't let them claim a capital loss, which is often the case with other investments and property.

To make timeshares work, individuals can opt to buy used, which is often at a fraction of the cost offered new by resort developers. Also, realize that a timeshare is a lifestyle purchase, not exactly a real estate investment. Timeshares are not a way to turn a profit. Try to purchase in desirable locations as well. Doing so increases the likelihood of resale in the future. ■

Organize & Declutter Room-by-Room

Clutter can be a major source of stress that affects how individuals feel about their spaces. Psychology Today indicates messy homes and work spaces can contribute to feelings of helplessness, anxiety and overwhelming stress. Clutter bombards the mind with excessive stimuli, makes it more difficult to relax and can constantly signal to the brain that work is never done.

Tackling messes no matter where they are lurking is not a one-time project. Much like losing weight and getting healthy, clearing a home of clutter requires dedication and lifestyle changes. With these organizational tips and tricks, anyone can work through their home room-by-room and conquer clutter.

Find a place for everything
Clutter creeps up as people accumulate possessions over the years. Over time, failure to regularly go through belongings and thin the herd can lead to the accumulation of clutter. But clutter also can accumulate if people fail to find a place to put items. Racks for garages, organizational systems for closets and furniture with storage capacity, such as storage ottomans, are some storage solutions that can help people find a place for their possessions.

Utilize vertical space when possible
Getting items up and off the floor can maximize square footage in a home. Bookshelves, hanging wall shelves, hooks, cabinetry, built-ins, and other storage solutions that rely on walls and ceilings are simple and effective storage solutions. Unused space behind cabinet or closet doors are some additional places to store belongings. Hang razors or toothbrushes on medicine cabinet walls and curling irons and other hair tools on the interior of cabinet doors in bathrooms.

Create a coding system
Home offices can be some of the more disorganized rooms in a house simply due to the volume of electronics and paperwork within them. HGTV suggests using a color-coded system for important files to keep them organized. Label important items, whether they're paper or digital files, in accordance with your system.

Put it away
When you finish using an item, return it to its storage location. This eliminates piles of belongings strewn around the house - and hunting and pecking for missing things. If you can't put it away immediately, have a few baskets on hand labeled for the different rooms in the house. Pop the items in the requisite baskets and then routinely take each basket around the house to return the items.

Investing in custom cabinetry and organizational systems also can help people organize their belongings. Tackle rooms such as the garage, basements, bedroom closets, and pantries, or those areas that tend to accumulate clutter the fastest. ■

Stay Mentally Fresh During the Work Day

Energy levels tend to ebb and flow throughout a typical workday. A cup of coffee may provide some caffeine-infused spark in the morning, but a big lunch can squash energy later in the afternoon.

Waning mental sharpness as the workday progresses can compromise productivity, making it more difficult for workers to complete projects on time. That, in turn, can contribute to stress. In fact, in its "2017 Stress in America" survey, the American Psychological Association found that 58 percent of Americans say work is a significant source of stress.

Staying mentally fresh during a workday can pay a host of benefits, and the following are just a few ways to maintain mental focus until quitting time.

- Exercise regularly. The physical benefits of routine exercise are well documented. But even the most ardent fitness enthusiasts may not realize just how big an impact physical activity is having on their brains. The Harvard Medical School notes that exercise stimulates regions of the brain that release a chemical called brain-derived neurotrophic factor, or BDNF, which rewires memory circuits so they can function better. A stronger memory can help workers recall project details and deadlines more easily, even as the workday draws to a close.

- Avoid the "quick fix." Relying on a beverage or snack to provide a quick mental boost may end up compromising your mental sharpness. Foods and beverages that are high in sugar may provide an immediate energy boost, but that spike is almost instantly followed by a crash that can adversely affect your mental sharpness. Stick to healthy snacks, such as fruits and vegetables, and avoid late afternoon cups of coffee, which studies have shown make it harder to fall asleep at night, thereby compromising your energy levels the next day.

- Take a walk outdoors. Spending some time outdoors during a lunch break, or even a quick, post-lunch stroll around the office grounds, can provide a break for the brain. That break can help the brain refocus, improving productivity as a result. One great way to get outdoors during busy workdays is to conduct meetings outside when the weather permits. This gives everyone a chance to recharge their brains in the great outdoors, and few people would prefer a dusty conference room to a nearby park or picnic area outdoors.

Various strategies can help working professionals maintain their mental sharpness throughout the workday. ■

RAVE REVIEWS

"It is in showing where to find out-of-the-way trout streams that makes the map such a treasure to the fisherman."

—Joe Gordon, TRIBUNE-DEMOCRAT, Johnstown, PA

"I have one of the original Higbee's Stream Map of Pennsylvania on my wall behind my desk. It's the best thing available as far as streams are concerned. I use it all the time for reference. I don't know of anything more extensive and it is the most accurate map out there as far as streams are concerned."

—Dave Wolf, PA Fish and Boat Commission

HOROSCOPES

• THIRD WEEK OF JANUARY •

ARIES – Mar 21/Apr 20

Aries, you may experience a few complications in regard to some big plans that you have been working on. Don't let these derail your efforts. Things will work out.

TAURUS – Apr 21/May 21

A newfound energy can sweep you off of your feet and really jump-start goals in the days ahead, Taurus. Go with the flow until you need a break; otherwise, you'll tire out.

GEMINI – May 22/June 21

Gemini, unfortunately some people you were counting on may suddenly pull out of a plan. Make sure you have a few backups so that your plans can follow through.

CANCER – June 22/July 22

Gemini, unfortunately some people you were counting on may suddenly pull out of a plan. Make sure you have a few backups so that your plans can follow through.

LEO – July 23/Aug 23

Leo, seek others' counsel on an important issue. Another's perspective or insight can help you make an informed decision. Once you're comfortable going forward, do so.

VIRGO – Aug 24/Sept 22

It is not a good idea to try to mold people into what you would like them to be, Virgo. You may become frustrated if they resist your efforts. Embrace others for who they are.

LIBRA – Sept 23/Oct 23

Knowledge is power, Libra. Do all you can to improve your knowledge base. This is especially important as you try to navigate financial waters.

SCORPIO – Oct 24/Nov 22

Scorpio, others may not take much notice of your emotions this week unless you exaggerate them. If you need a person to talk to, seek them out.

SAGITTARIUS – Nov 23/Dec 21

Don't begin a conversation if you are not willing to see it through to the end, Sagittarius. This will only make things more difficult for the relationships you keep.

CAPRICORN – Dec 22/Jan 20

Expect to encounter someone who is difficult to deal with this week, Capricorn. The cosmic forces are at play. Be patient and wait for better times ahead.

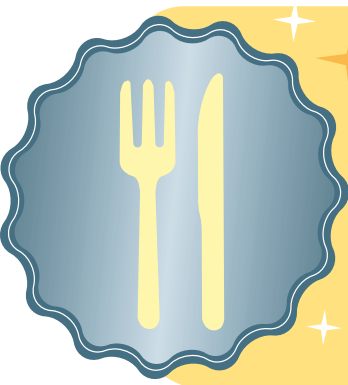

AQUARIUS – Jan 21/Feb 18

Aquarius, make a concerted effort to work with a colleague with whom you might not see eye to eye. Your efforts to communicate and compromise will not go unnoticed.

PISCES – Feb 19/Mar 20

Don't tie yourself in knots trying to sort through things you cannot control, Pisces. There are too many matters for you to handle them alone.
