BRUNSWICK COUNTY

BROKEN SCHOOL SYSTEM

BY BERNEST HEWETT
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The Brunswick County School System is one of the most twisted and illogical systems to which we, as citizens, have to send our children. There is a policy that doesn't make very good sense to those of us who have children in this public school system. My grandson has been bothered by school bullies most of the year, and the assistant principal knows about it. Some of the teachers know about it. He has had several "run ins" with these guys and has done all that has been asked of him as a student. He has reported the problems to the right people and has even tried to walk away

FIFTY CENTS

STATE ELECTIONS BOARD SIDES WITH GOP COLUMBUS COUNTY SHERIFF'S CANDIDATE

BY CASH MICHAELS
OF THE WILMINGTON JOURNAL

If incumbent Columbus County Sheriff Lewis Hatcher, a Democrat, is going to retain his seat after the State Board of Elections (SBOE) voted 4-1 on Monday to uphold last November's election victory by Republican challenger, Jody Greene, he'll have to appeal it in court.

And unless Sheriff Hatcher is, indeed, able to convince a court that the SBOE is in error, the way will be clear for the SBOE to officially certify the race in Jody Greene's favor.

Despite evidence of questionable residency and complaints of alleged ballot irregularities being considered, and ultimately dismissed, by the SBOE, Greene's unofficial 37-vote victory over Hatcher was upheld by the Democratic majority elections board.

The SBOE is Democrat majority 3-2.

Greene had been sworn in in December but then had to step aside after the case had been appealed.

as soon as it is enacted. All findings and recommendations would be reported to the Joint Legislative Oversight Committee on Justice and Public Safety "...no later than March 1, 2020," the proposed bill states.

According to a 2014 report by the Immigration/Human Rights Policy Clinic at the University of North Carolina School of Law, solitary confinement has been identified as a "...cruel, inhumane, and degrading form of punishment that is - or at the very least approximates - torture and a severe form of human rights violation *..."Prison and jail inmates are held in confined isolation from the rest of the population for 22 hours a day, for sometimes weeks, with virtually no human contact. The UNC Law report continues, "...Under North Carolina's State Constitution...the nation and State of North Carolina must not be complicit in any act that falls within this category of atrocity."

"Solitary confinement is hell," wrote a Central Prison inmate to the Weekly Independent newspaper in Durham in 2012. "I agree with the public. It is a form of torture. It is a tiny cell about 6 feet by 8 feet. It has a steel toilet, with a sink built in the top. There is a steel bed, with an extremely thin mattress."

"We are in this cell 23 hours a day," the Central inmate continued. "We are allowed to come out for recreation five times a week for one hour. The "rec" is a cage. They just stick us in a little cage, and we can walk around. That's it. We are only allowed to take three showers a week. Only once or twice, but the bully took this as a sign of weakness, so he kept up the ordeal. Not much of anything happened, but, when my grandson retaliated, he was given 3 days out of school and told that the school had a No Tolerance Rule and that, if he is hit or confronted, he needs to tell an adult. How many times, however, is this to happen? When is the bully to be put in his place or stopped at his game?

I don't send my children to school to fight. They go to get an education for the life that's ahead of them, but I don't send them to be bullied by a kid that needs to be guided by a counselor or a group that will get him or her on the right track of life to be a productive person in society. Bullying is a major problem in all schools. There has to be a set of rules that will deal with this problem besides no tolerance. That punishes both for one student's actions because the aggressor will think he has won and that every time an occurrence happens, he can get away with his bullying. There is also "No child left behind," which, used right, would improve the lives of school children. Then again, if not used properly, it can have a child go through school without a good education.

Brunswick County, your children are at risk! Your school system is broken! It's time to get it back on track! Election time is coming! It's time to vote again!

SPECIAL REPORT:
Mass incarceration of women and minorities a new crisis

BY STACY M. BROWN
NNPA NEWswire
CORRESPONDENT

Although the number of people in prisons and jails in America has slightly declined, numbers released on Thursday, April 25, by the Statistics show that nearly 1.5 million individuals were in prison by the end of 2017.

The statistics also note that the U.S. continues to lock up more people than any other nation. And, despite a narrowing disparity between incarcerated black and white women, females have emerged as the new face of mass incarceration.

"I don't think this should be much of a surprise as two of the main for-profit prison companies were founded around the same time," said Ron Stefanski, whose website prisoninsight.com, works to hold prisons accountable for the treatment of current, former and future inmates.

"When these for-profit companies were created, they found a way to generate revenue off of inmates and this led to a huge influx of prisoners, both male and female," Stefanski said.

In 2000, black women were incarcerated at six times the rate of white women, but in 2017, black women were imprisoned at less than double the rate of white women, according to the latest information.

The number of white women in prison has increased by more than 40 percent since 2000 while the number of black women incarcerated has fallen by nearly 50 percent.

The most recent report from the Prison Policy Initiative revealed that, looking at the big picture shows that a staggering number of women who are incarcerated are not even convicted with one quarter of the women behind bars having not yet gone to trial.

Sixty-percent of women under the control of local authorities have not been convicted of a crime and adding to the picture of women in local jails, aside from women under local jurisdictions, state and federal agencies pay local jails to house an additional 13,000 women, according to the Prison Policy Initiative.

For example, ICE and the U.S. Marshals, which have fewer dedicated facilities for their detainees, contract with local jails to hold roughly 5,000 women - so the number of women physically held in jails is even higher.

According to the Prison Policy Initiative, avoiding pre-trial incarceration is uniquely challenging for women.

The number of un-convicted women stuck in jail is surely not because courts are considering women, who are generally the primary caregivers of children, to be a flight risk, according to the Prison Policy Initiative report.

The far more likely answer is that incarcerated women, who have lower incomes than incarcerated men, have an even harder time affording cash bail.

When the typical bail amounts to a full year's income for women, it's no wonder that women are stuck in jail awaiting trial, the report's author said.

Even once convicted, the system funnels women into jails: About a quarter of convicted incarcerated women are held in jails, compared to about 10 percent of all people incarcerated with a conviction.

Also, while stays in jail are generally shorter than in stays in prison, jails make it harder to stay in touch with family than prisons do.

Phone calls are more expensive, up to $1.50 per minute, and other forms of communication are more restricted - some jails don't even allow real letters, limiting mail to postcards.

This is especially troubling given that 80 percent of women in jails are mothers, and most of them are primary caretakers of their children.

Thus children are particu-

[RALEIGH] The trial of a Wake County deputy, accused of using his K-9 dog to viciously attack an unarmed black man in April 2018 while he was being beaten by state troopers, began this week. Deputy Cameron Broadwell has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon, inflicting serious bodily injury and willfully failing to discharge duties. The victim, Kyron Hinton, who suffered serious lacerations and other injuries, has since died of a drug over-

After much discussion, the Malcolm X resolution was passed at midnight.

LEGISLATURE WAITING FOR THE US SUPREME COURT ON GERRYMANDERING?

[RALEIGH] Observers say it could be at least two months before the U.S. Supreme Court makes its decision on North Carolina's political gerrymandering case. The case, along with a similar one in Maryland, is critical because a ruling would define the right of states to draw voting districts that overwhelmingly favor political parties, which is currently legal. Opponents say that doing so, however, denies voters of the other party their constitutional rights because they're drawn into voting districts that will not allow them to choose different leadership. Legislation in the NC General Assembly is pending the U.S. High Court's decision.

SBOE

Several weeks ago, the Democrat-led Columbus County Elections Board came to the exact opposite decision of the SBOE, based on doubts that Greene had permanently lived in an RV on his farm property near the town of Cerro Gordo a year before the November 2018 election, as required by law.

Opponents alleged that Greene had homes outside of Columbus County that actually served as permanent residences. Members of the Columbus BOE visited Greene's RV and inspected it. The majority of the board determined that, given the length of time Jody Greene claimed to have lived at the site with his wife, the couple did not live there permanently.

The Columbus Elections

Board turned its findings over to the SBOE for final review, which it did on Monday. The State Board disagreed, saying that the Columbus BOE "put too much weight" on the RV issue.

And neither did the fact that Greene used the services of controversial election "consultant" McCrae Dowless, who stands indicted for allegedly mishandling Bladen County absent-tee ballots in the Ninth Congressional District race, where Republican Mark Harris won, but whose victory was thrown out after evidence of the ballot tampering had been discovered.

However, investigators for the SBOE testified Monday that, despite Dowless' dubious activity in Bladen County, they found no evidence that he did anything questionable in Columbus County.

There were also allegations of illegal mishandling of absentee ballots at a local nursing home. That case is still under investigation.

And even though there were charges of serious problems at the Columbus County Elections Office with claims of ballot shortages and people being unable to vote as a result (the elections director confirmed those claims, also alleging that there were ballots "brought in through the back door"), the SBOE still voted 3-2 (with the SBOE Democratic chairman voting with the board's two Republicans) to dismiss the claims.

Attorneys for the complainants argued for a new election to be granted but lost.

At press time, there was no word regarding whether, or when, Sheriff Hatcher would file an appeal in court to the SBOE decisions.

three! And we can only take 5 minutes. If we are lucky, we get 10 minutes."

It was two years after that UNC Law report that North Carolina prison officials announced the end of isolating inmates 17 years old and younger in what is known as "restrictive housing" by Sept. 1, 2016. That January, Pres. Barack Obama ordered the practice ended for young offenders in federal prisons because of the proven likelihood of "lasting, psychological consequences."

Furthermore, almost a year before that, in 2015, at the urging of the ACLU, North Carolina was investigated by the U.S. Justice Dept. for putting mentally ill inmates in solitary confinement.

In January of this year, Mecklenburg County Sheriff Garry McFadden, who won office last November, formally ended the practice of housing 16 and 17 year old suspects in solitary confinement, saying that it "...stripped teens of their dignity."

According to a 2016 report by the nonprofit Sentencing

Project, "Among 40 jurisdictions providing data, Black women constituted 24% of the total incarcerated population, but comprised 41% of the female restricted housing population (across the nation)."

Under HB 781, the study group will be tasked to examine:

 under what conditions inmates with mental illness

 the number of incarcerated individuals with a diagnosed mental illness

 information on the types of confinement used for inmates diagnosed with mental illness

 the average length of stay in restrictive housing for inmates with mental illness

larly susceptible to the domino effect of burdens placed on incarcerated women, the report's author said.

Black and American Indian women are markedly overrepresented in prisons and jails, according to the report.

Incarcerated women are 53 percent White, 29 percent Black, 14 percent Hispanic, 2.5 percent American Indian and Alaskan Native, 0.9 percent Asian, and 0.4 percent Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander.

"While we are a long way away from having data on intersectional impacts of sexuality and race or ethnicity on women's likelihood of incarceration, it is clear that Black and lesbian or bisexual women are disproportionately subject to incarceration," Prison Policy Initiative Author Aleks Kajstura said.

Three out of four women under control of any U.S. correctional system are on probation, according to Kajstura.

Probation is often billed as an alternative to incarceration, but instead it is frequently set with unrealistic conditions that undermine its goal of keeping people from being locked up, she wrote for the Prison Policy Initiative.

For example, probation often comes with steep fees, which, like bail, women are in the worst position to afford.

Failing to pay these probation fees is often a violation of probation.

Childcare duties further complicate probation requirements that often include meetings with probation officers, especially for women with no extra money to spend on babysitters or reliable transportation across town.

"All of these issues make women particularly vulnerable to being incarcerated not because they commit crimes, but because they run afoul of one of the burdensome obligations of their probation supervision," Kajstura said.

Still, she noted in the report that the picture of women's incarceration is far from complete, and many questions remain about mass incarceration's unique impact on women.

"Based on our analysis in this report, we know that a quarter of incarcerated women are un-convicted," she wrote in the report.

Kajstura continued:

"But is that number growing? And how do the harms of that unnecessary incarceration intersect with women's disproportionate caregiving to impact families?

Beyond these big picture questions, there are a plethora of detailed data points that are not reported for women by any government agencies, such as the simple number of women incarcerated in U.S. Territories or involuntarily committed to state psychiatric hospitals because of justice system involvement."

Miami Gardens in 2012 by neighborhood watch captain George Zimmerman simply because he "looked suspicious" and was wearing a hoodie.

"So, we have to fight for our children," Fulton said.

The NNPA was "pleased to join in with the NAACP, Black Clergy, and Florida elected officials to protest the racially-motivated and vicious police assault on Delucca Rolle in Fort Lauderdale," said Chavis, a longtime civil rights activist and member of the famed Wilmington Ten, a group who were wrongly arrested and convicted in 1971 of various charges.

After serving nearly a decade in prison, Chavis and the group were exonerated and ultimately pardoned.

"We demand the immediate arrest and prosecution of Broward County Officers Christopher Krickovich and Greg LaCerra," Chavis said.

Last month, Rolle, an African American, was pepper-sprayed, punched and had his head slammed against concrete by Broward County Sheriff's deputies Krickovich and Sgt. LaCerra, who are white.

Rolle suffered a fractured nose in the incident which occurred after the teen attempted to recover a cell phone of another teen after a fight.

The incident was caught on video and sparked a firestorm after it was shared on social media.

Sheriff Greg Tony suspended the two officers, but many, including some local elected officials, said they should face criminal prosecution.

"We will not stop until those officers are fired and charged," Broward/Fort Lauderdale NAACP president Marsha Ellison said.

"We will remember the choices [Tony] makes when it comes to justice for Lucca," Ellison said of the sheriff who, like the local District Attorney, is up for re-election in 2020.

Henry, whose Westside Gazette newspaper has continued to be a strong voice for the African American community throughout Broward County, said attending the march and calling for justice for Rolle is important.

"To have an iconic Black History freedom fighter in Dr. Benjamin F. Chavis, Jr., to join us in this march was like a step into time when black people felt important, stood up for each other and weren't going to let anyone turn us around," Henry said.

"Say it loud, I'm Black and I'm proud, was a shot to the bodies that vibrated to the core as everyone Black, white, brown, young and older, male and female, were in unison in reaffirming our pledge to continue our fight for justice against police brutality," he said.

Henry continued:

"We will march from the streets right into the court houses. This was a wake-up call and it ain't over yet."

How strong is our economy?

(Via TriceEdneyWire.com)

The April unemployment rate, at 3.6 percent, is at its lowest rate since December 1969. Payroll employment increased by more than 250,000, outperforming expectations and reversing the disappointing job creation numbers of last month. First quarter growth was reported at 3.2 percent, a robust figure that exceeds estimates, earlier this year; that growth would be somewhat slower. This perhaps gives the man who lives in the House that Enslaved People Built something to crow about since he so enjoys crowing.

But many economists are waiting for the other shoe to drop, having workshops and forums about the coming recession. And as positive as the numbers seem, there are always gaps and inequities reflected in the fine print. Take the unemployment rate. It declined overall, and for adult men and women, Whites, Asians and Hispanics. At the same time, the unemployment rates for African-Americans and teenagers were unchanged. The Black unemployment rate, at 6.7 percent, is more than twice the white rate of 3.1 percent. This ratio of 2.16 percent is higher than the

I'll be watching all of you, from the heavens up above.
So take good care of each other and carry all my love.

When your way seems dark and drear, don't have to worry cause God is near.

If in your heart there is no song, just keep the faith and keep holding on.

Turn your plate down, fast and pray.

Jesus will always make a way.

There's a bright side

somewhere.

It's been so very hard these twelve years without you.
But we're glad that Jesus knows.

He knows just, just how much we can bear.

We are still holding on and we're looking up, giving you a smile, Because we will always remember;

"There's a Bright Side Somewhere".

Wilmington District 'Retools' at Annual Lay Person of the Year Celebration

SUBMITTED BY LAVERNA HARGROVE

Using the theme 'Retooling the People', the Wilmington District Lay Council celebrated 22 people recognized by their home church as their Lay Persons of the Year. This year's event was held at Brunswick Senior Resource Center in Southport, NC.

After the Call to Order by Athelston Bethel, 2nd Vice President, the devotion was led by the youth of the district.

Maddox Boswell of Summerville AME Zion Church, Leland presented the scripture reading; Joshua White, Jr of Browns Chapel AME Zion Church invited the Spirited of the Lord and gave Him praise; Love' Greene of Johnson Chapel AME Zion Church led the Affirmation of Laity. The Moores Chapel AME Zion Church Youth Choir sang to the glory of God. After being introduced by 1st Vice President, Alphonso Robinson, Sister Naomi Johnson of Evergreen AME Zion Church gave the meditation that called the laity and pastors to examine first what we are doing and to improve on it by retooling with the tools God has already given us. Mrs. Johnson admonished us to remember that we have been brought to the kingdom of God for such a time as this to increase our efforts to help other know Jesus Christ and our blessings will increase.

Having dined very well, the awards were presented by President William Evans and Presiding Elder Alexander Jones assisted by the 2019 Chairperson, Tarita Nelms (St. Luke, Wilmington) and Co Chairperson Pamela Ferguson (St. James, Southport).

The awards were guided by a program that contained the testimonial evidence of each persons efforts to get others to come with us to Christ. Efforts ranged from keeping neighborhoods and church grounds beautified and free of debris to taking piano lessons in order to provide a consistent music ministry to repairing sanctuaries after Hurricane Florence, to lifetimes of service, to chairing outreach efforts and teaching the word of God and the Discipline of the AME Zion Church, to establishing support groups answering the call to serve in any capacity. The persons who were celebrated were quiet prayer warriors who possessed generosity of spirit that fueled generosity of finances. Those who were celebrated this year were: Dennis Waddell of Blackwell Chapel; Linda Kelly of St. Phillip, Marion Brown Carter of St. Mark; Jackie Smith of Price Cathedral, Robert Benson of Mt. Zion; Barbara Campbell of Bowen Chapel; Ernestine Bennett of St. Andrew; Maria Boykin of Evergreen; Judy Gordon of St. James, Southport; LaShonna B. Dyson of Johnson Chapel; Cedron Emerson of St. Luke; Loretta James of Christian Chapel; Richard Bennerman of Moores Chapel; Melanie Robinson of Walters Chapel; Constance White of Browns Chapel; Lovatta Smith Robbins of Summerville; Meller Rese Freeman of Lees Chapel; Harold Boone of Mt. Hebron; Shirley Wooten of Warner Temple; Robert Edward James, Jr of St. James, Leland; Mary Thompson of St. Paul; and Nathaniel Brown of Zion Chapel. Cedron Emerson of St. Luke, Wilmington was celebrated as the Wilmington District Lay Person of the Year.

Brother Emerson has made his Just Cut It Barbershop an instrument of his ministry by allowing it to be used in partnership with New Hanover Regional Medical Center to provide health care assistance to the community. He has established Sensory Day to provide services to the special needs clients on Wednesday by appointment. He also holds no less than five offices at St. Luke including videographer and steward.

Tarita Nelms of St. Luke Wilmington was awarded the 'Keeper of the Flame' Award for her services as Co Chairperson at the 2018 Lay Person of the Year Celebration and for Chairperson of the 2019 Lay Person of the Year Celebration.

Dr. Mary Matthews, International President of the Connectional Lay Council gave words of encouragement to all the attendees and congratulations to the 22 Lay Persons of the Year. Brother Oliver Dobson, Cape Fear Conference Lay Council President echoed like sentiments.

The celebration was adjourned with the singing of Onward Christian Laity and the Laity Prayer.

Mother our hearts are heavy but the never ending love and all the years the nurturing you gave, finds us eternally grateful to our loving Savior Jesus Christ. God gave us a God fearing mother, who guided her through life. She trusted God's word and their relationship was strengthened daily. Parenting was a blessing for her. She knew that through prayer and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, the life her family lived would be blessed. She always encouraged us to listen to God and encouraged us to follow His instructions. We are forever thankful to God and to our mother for all of her kindness, love, and great deal of admiration shown throughout her life.

The special people in our lives are never really gone, they have a cherished place in our hearts where they will always be remembered.

We come from a long line of women who have always been workers and survivors, women of color and courage, women of spunk and spirituality, women whose faith kept them going, women who lifted up their eyes to God in prayer because they knew He would answer even in their darkest hours, women of honor and pride, women of wisdom and ideals, women of peace and passion, women of strength and courage, women of laughter and love.

For all that you were, for all that you are, for all that you have done, and for all that you do to Bless and Inspire others, we celebrate You.

Our Mother's Crown

Heaven lit up with a mighty presence, as the Angels all looked down.
Today the Lord was placing the jewels
Into our mother's crown.

He held up a golden crown,
as our darling mother looked on.
He said in His gentle voice,
'I will now explain each one.'

The first gem,' He said, 'is a Ruby,
and it's for endurance alone,
for all the nights you waited up for your children to come home.'

'For all the nights by their bedside, you stayed till the fever went down.
For nursing every little wound,
I add this ruby to your crown.'

'An emerald, I'll place by the ruby, for leading your children in the right way.
For teaching them the lessons,
That made them who they are today.'

'For always being right there,
through all life's important events.
I give you a sapphire stone, for the time and love you spent.'

'For untying the strings that held them, when they grew up and left home.
I give you this one for courage.'

'Then the Lord added a garnet stone.
I'll place a stone of amethyst,' He said.
'For all the times you spent on your knees, when you asked if I'd take care of your children, and then for having faith in Me.'

I have a pearl for every little sacrifice that you made without them knowing.
For all the times you went without,
to keep them happy, healthy and growing.'

'And last of all I have a diamond,
the greatest one of all,
for sharing unconditional love whether they were big or small.'

It was your love that helped them grow
Feeling safe and happy and proud
A love so strong and pure
It could shift the darkest cloud.'

After the Lord placed the last jewel in,
He said, 'Your crown is now complete.
Happy Mother's Day'

Gone But Never Forgotten

No matter how old we are, losing a grandmother is one of the deepest sorrows a heart can know, but her goodness, her caring and her wisdom live on....
like a legacy of love that will always be with you.
As we look upon your picture,
Sweet memories we recall,
Of a face so full of sunshine,
And a smile for one and all.
Our grandmother was a precious gift from our glorious Lord above, but the Lord chose to take her,
nineteen years ago
and give her all His love.

Mother's Day will be a special day in heaven

because our mothers, grandmothers, aunts and sisters are together

If only we could hear our Mothers pray, sing, talk or laugh again, how happy we would be but those memories have been engraved into our hearts.

Shirley Caesar sings "I remember Momma" so do we.

Each had their own type of smile, their way of helping all of us to enjoy each other, respect our elders, trust in God and try to do the right things.

Up above my head, I do hear singing in the air; so I do believe there is a heaven somewhere and we will see them again.

All we ask Dear God is that you will allow us to serve you so that we can all join hands again, no more departure, holding hands forever.

There is never a Motherless Mother's Day because even if they cannot speak to us they are still in our hearts.

Rest in Peace, Moms!!!

Happy birthday Ezmas Marscine on the 13th and Ezmas Juanita on the 22nd.

Capitol Hill hearing takes up the war between the needy and the greedy: The future of payday loan regulation

At an April 30 Capitol Hill hearing, the multi-dimensional problems wrought by small-dollar, high-cost loans were brought to the attention of lawmakers serving on the powerful House Financial Services Committee. A witness panel representing bankers, consumers, clergy, and public policy organizations taught, recounted, reasoned and preached to lawmakers on the rippling and disastrous effects of debt-trap loans.

Each addressed the industry that reaps billion-dollar profits from the poor: payday, car-title, and other triple-digit interest small-dollar products. The average annual interest rate for payday loans in the United States is 391% although in more than 17 states, many of them home to consumers of color, the APR is even higher.

As consumers suffer financially, it's a different story for payday lenders: $4.1 billion in fees every year in the 33 states that allow these debt traps, according to the Center for Responsible Lending (CRL). Similarly the annual fees generated on car-title loans was found to be $3.8 billion.

The session occurred as the current Administration seeks to permanently reverse a payday rule that was developed over five years of public hearings, research and comments that sought the input of consumers, financial institutions and other stakeholders. Announced by the first Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) Director, the rule would require lenders to determine if a consumer could repay the loan, also known as the ability-to-repay standard.

With a new CFPB Director, the rule's suspension was accompanied by an announcement of an intent to begin rulemaking anew. For the industry, the suspension provides yet another opportunity to take the teeth out of financial regulation. For consumers, long-awaited consumer protection that would have taken effect this summer is now indefinite.

With the average borrower earning $25,000 to $30,000 a year, whatever difficulty led them to a payday loan store or web site, made their lives even worse.

For Detroit resident Ken Whittaker, the hearing was a high-profile opportunity to share his personal experience with a $700 payday loan that wound up costing him $7,000, in addition to debt collections, a court judgment, and his tax refund garnished.

"I found I could not afford to pay off the first loan without taking out another one. Then I began a cycle of debt which lasted over a year," testified Whittaker. "Soon I was paying $600 per month in fees and interest. I eventually closed my bank account to stop payments from being drawn out and leaving me without cash for my family's rent, groceries and other essential bills."

In the hearing's most poignant moment, Whittaker appealed to the lawmakers saying, "Please support strong reform of predatory payday and car title lending for people like me. We work hard to support our families and make our finances stable, and this kind of lending only makes it harder."

For one lawmaker, Boston's Rep. Ayanna Pressley, Whittaker's plea was heard loud and clear:

"Any universe with payday

Charlene

lending is answering the question of how to make poverty a sustainable profitable enterprise," noted Rep. Pressley. "Well a lot of people are getting rich off of keeping people poor. And so how do we reform anything that's based on that premise? The short answer is, we don't."

Todd McDonald, Senior Vice President and Board Director of the New Orleans-based Liberty Bank and Trust, a Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI) spoke at the hearing from the perspective of community banks. His own firm operates in eight states through 15 branches. He is also a board member of the National Bankers Association, the leading trade association for the nation's Minority Depository Institutions.

"As a CDFI that serves a largely low and moderate-income consumer base that often utilizes these high-cost, small dollar loans," testified

McDonald, "Liberty often works to help our customers get out of these predatory loans and into more manageable products."

Since 2008, Liberty Bank has offered a payday and car-title loan alternative known as Freedom Fast loans that averages just over $6,000 and comes with an average interest rate of 12.6%. Liberty provides these loans to customers with credit scores ranging from a low of 500 to higher than 700. It also reports payments to the credit bureaus so that customers can also build their credit ratings.

For the Rev. Dr. Frederick Douglass Haynes III, senior pastor of Dallas' Friendship West Baptist Church and a leading partner in the Faith and Credit Roundtable facilitated by the Center for Responsible Lending, predatory lending is a matter of economic justice that deserves actions and not just hearings.

Nearly 1 in 4 borrowers report some form of public assistance, retirement funds, or other benefits as an income sources.

STOP THE DEBT TRAP PAYDAY LOAN

"Payday predators are a part of a hostile takeover of the economy of the unbanked and underserved. This exploitative industry targets and saturates communities that are already suffering from economic apartheid," said Rev. Haynes to the lawmakers. "When the vulnerable are drowning in desperation the payday industry throws a 'life preserver' weighted with the iron of usurious interest rates."

"We are calling for strong protections so that those who experience an emergency don't end up drowning in debt they cannot repay," added Rev. Haynes. "The pastor forcefully called for the CFPB to implement its 'common sense rule' and for enacting legislation, like a bill introduced by Illinois' Senator Richard Durbin, that would establish a national 36% interest rate cap while allowing states to have lower rate ceilings."

"Borrowers have described the debt trap, in their own words, as 'a hole that you can't get out of,' 'soul-crushing,' and a 'living hell', Diane Standaert, a CRL EVP testified. "And research has shown time and time again, that these high-cost lending storefronts are disproportionately situated in Black and Latino communities, even when they have the same or higher incomes than white communities."

The good Reverend Haynes agreed, adding, "The Bible teaches that nations will be judged by how they treat 'the least of these'. It must not be said of this nation, 'I was hungry, and you gave me a payday loan...I was given a bad hand and you gave me a bad plan.'

Amen, Reverend!

FedEx partnership aims to grow 75 black businesses

BY DENA L. OWENS
SPECIAL TO THE NEW
TRI-STATE DEFENDER

"Grow or die," says Richard Smith referring to future economic growth in Memphis.

Smith, president and CEO of FedEx Logistics and board chairman for the Greater Memphis Chamber, revealed plans to identify and support 75 black entrepreneurs wanting to grow their small businesses through a public/private partnership.

The announcement came last Thursday (April 18) as partner executives, minority business owners, Mayor Jim Strickland and other officials gathered for a breakfast meeting.

Smith explained the rationale for the effort as concerns mount about the need for investment in underserved areas of the city.

While large-scale developments enjoy extensive tax incentives in Downtown, Midtown and East Memphis, disadvantaged African-American communities such as New Chicago in North Memphis and others could use more capital support for small business growth. Investment in these areas can create jobs where needed and build a stronger Memphis economy, inclusively.

"Our new-found momentum can be easily derailed," said Smith, referring to the economic momentum often touted by Strickland.

"We 'must be intentional' as we expand opportunities to more minorities and disenfranchised groups," Smith added. "We have to do better."

The capacity-building plan is the result of an alliance between FedEx, Regions Bank, City of Memphis and the Initiative for a Competitive Inner City (ICIC), a national driver of urban economic prosperity. ICIC began its Memphis work in 2014 with Regions Bank providing capital coaching. In 2015, the partnership expanded to include FedEx.

This year, Memphis will participate in ICIC's tuition-free leadership program called Inner City Capital Connection (ICCC) to prepare entrepreneurs for lasting, sustainable growth.

ICCC provides instruction to minority and women owned business enterprise (MWBE) owners with a focus on: (1) capacity training, (2) one-on-one coaching and (3) connections to capital providers.

Approved applicants must complete 40 flexible training hours in three to six months. Instruction includes a day-long opening seminar, webinars and a national conference.

To qualify for ICCC, an MWBE must have five or more employees, be two or more years operational in low-income neighborhoods across Memphis, and satisfy other criteria as required.

Revenue of at least $500,000 annually is preferred. However, ICCC officials say this condition is negotiable.

MWBE owners may nominate themselves or to six other MWBE owners, or be nominated through a small business developer, such as the City of Memphis Office of Business Diversity and Compliance.

Jiljana Coleman, a certified MWBE owner and head of Jamerson Strategic Consulting in Memphis, is one of 4,000 ICCC alumni nationwide. Coleman, who once held a career in banking, decided in 2017 to open her own company assisting MWBE owners with financial strategy and training.

After only two years, Coleman is poised to move her company from serving local and national clients to pursuing global customers. She gives ICCC credit for her growth.

Memphis, a city that is more than 60 percent African American, has faced decades of stagnant economic growth with only 1 percent of local revenue going to minority owned businesses, according to a 2015 census. Currently, several public/private partnerships are working side-by-side to address the issue.

For example, FedEx, an ICIC partner, is also aligned with the 800 Initiative, a program led by the City of Memphis to grow minority business revenues by $50 million in five years. Participation in ICCC could in fact support the goals of the 800 Initiative, which is backed by a $1 million investment from FedEx and $500,000 in funding from the City.

Simultaneously, FedEx, which spent $9.5 billion with minority suppliers across the U.S. in 2018, is seeking to expand local minority supplier contracts since Memphis is home to FedEx headquarters and the expanding FedEx Logistics operation.

Pat Hopper, managing director of Sourcing and Supplier Diversity for FedEx, encourages local MWBE owners to "get prepared" to fill large-scale needs that companies like Fed-Ex might require.

ICCC can help MWBE owners move into greater levels of service in order to bid on larger, sought-after contracts.

To learn more about ICCC, visit <http://icic.org/urban-business-initiatives/inner-city-capital-connections/memphis/>. Follow the prompts to apply for ICCC training or to nominate MWBE owners for the free program. The deadline for nominations is July 26.

celebration of Deacon Robinson's life was held on May 1, 2019 at Faith Temple Church of God in Christ. Interment followed in Christian Hope Cemetery

God presented Deacon Eric Clinton Robinson, Sr. as a shining, precious gift to the world May 23, 1957 to the late Mr. Gaston Jones and Evangelist Luvenia Pridgen in Wilmington, NC.

Equipped with many gifts and talents, he was ready to take on any and everything that came his way as Eric had served 4 years with distinction as a Marine. He worked for Container Products Corporation for over 20 years as a welder until an injury required him to retire. He knew at an early age where his blessings came from and did not take anything for granted.

So as it is in the natural, let it be in the spirit. Eric kept his vow and commitment not only to man, but to the Lord, by giving his life to God and giving it all he had. He became a member of Faith Temple COGIC where he faithfully served as an Usher, Deacon, and Sound and Production Team Member. In addition, Eric sang in Men's Choir and assisted anywhere his hands could be of help and doing the master's work. Eric never let God down and his work spoke for itself.

Eric loved his family. God blessed us with a wonderful husband, father, godfather, brother, uncle, and friend. In Eric's spare time when he was not enjoying his day with his Granddog Layla, you could find him bowling, working on his truck "Blue Betty" or spending the day sitting on the Wilmington shores fishing with his beloved wife Janzara. He was always ready to cook and show you why God made him an "excellent grill and cook master". He gave us a great road map to an amazing life and his legacy will be cherished forever.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Mr. Gaston Jones, Evangelist Luvenia Pridgen, and Rev. Bannerman, his mother-in-law Modessa Thomas, his brothers Cary Pridgen and Alfonzo Pridgen.

He leaves to cherish his memory, his wife of 41 years Janzara Robinson; his children, Eric C. Mother's Day is a national holiday observed on the second Sunday in May of each year for the appointment of honoring mothers. Looking at the history of Mother's Day we find that Mother's Day was first proclaimed in 1870 in the United States. Julia Ward Howe called for it to be observed each year at the national level in 1872. The original idea behind Howe's Mothers Day was a call for Pacifism and disarmament by all the women. Later, Anna Jarvis, followed by her daughter, launched a quest to get wider recognition for Mother's Day. As the custom for Mothers Day celebration spread, its focus shifted from pacifism and reform movement to a general appreciation, and admiration of mothers. Later, on May 14, 1914, President Woodrow Wilson signed a bill proclaiming
