A Greater Shoals WORKING GROUPS DETAIL SOME OPTIONS

FLORENCE-The Committee ORAGRA for a Greater Shoals was formed in 2018 with an eye on growing and improving the Shoals area.

A series of community meetings took place in recent months that included close to 200 interested volunteers from all walks of life.

The meetings were spawned from a Public Affairs Research Council of Alabama (PARCA) report released in February, commissioned by the Greater Shoals steering committee. The PARCA report recommended that the Shoals community build on existing areas of cooperation, its strong education base, and enhancing the area's unique assets.

Some specific 🗾 in the recommendations PARCA report included expanding the use of the summer 2019 production. The show will be June 28 and 29 at 7:30pm and again June 30 at 2pm. All performances will be in Norton Auditorium. Tickets are $15 for adults and $5 for UNA students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

Shoals Economic Development Fund; solidifying the Shoals Scholar Dollars program; broadening educational and workforce alliances between K-12 schools, NWSCC, and UNA; creating more governmental cooperation; and exploring the merging of tourism agencies.

Charlton James, Creative Director of the UNA Theatre Program, is directing the show. Department of Music Alumnus, Nicholas Murphy will serve as the Musical Director. Benjamin South, who is a student in the Department of Music, is the Assistant Music Director.

Little Shop of Horrors is a delightful sci-fi horror musical with an electrifying 1960s pop/ rock score by Alan Menken and Howard Ashman. Seymour Kelborn is a meek and dejected assistant at a floral shop who happens upon a strange plant, which he affectionately names "Audrey II" after his crush at the shop. Little does Seymour know that this strange and unusual plant will develop a soulful R&B voice, a potty mouth, and an unquenchable thirst for human blood. As Audrey II grows bigger and meaner, the carnivorous plant promises limitless fame and fortune to Seymour as long as he continues providing a fresh supply of blood. Just when it's too late, Seymour discovers Audrey II's extra-terrestrial origins and his true drive for world domination. Tickets may be purchased at https:// www.una.edu/ schoolofthearts/ purchase-tickets.html or by calling the School of the Arts office at 256-765-4559. You may also visit the School of the Arts Box Office at 128 W. Tombigbee Street between the hours of 8am-4pm. Monday-Thursday and on Friday from 8-11:30am.

Max Increase 4.1% for Fall

FLORENCE - The University of North Alabama last week announced a move toward a transparent, true cost-of-attendance tuition model for students and parents. This includes a reduction in fees (from seven to one); fee inclusion in overall tuition cost; and a "truth in advertising" methodology, which sets UNA apart from many peer institutions.

"UNA is extremely conscious of and sensitive to a total costof-attendance for our students, evidenced by the comparison to our peers, all of whom receive significantly more funding from the state to provide essential services," said Dr. Ross Alexander, UNA's Vice President for Academic Affairs and Provost. The impact of the new plan on students will vary depending on course load. Some students will see little to no change in overall expenses, while others will see an increase. The maximum increase for students taking 15 hours will be 4.1%, and officials expect UNA to remain 9th out of the 14 public universities in Alabama in total cost of attendance.

That cost will include tuition plus fees. Further, UNA receives between $10 million and $20 million less annually in state funding compared to peers with enrollments of 5,000-8,000 students. University officials have created "Project 208" – named for the distance in miles from Florence to Montgomery – to highlight the need for fairness in funding for UNA.

UNA President Ken Kitts notes that impact of the funding deficit extends to the region.

"UNA has missed out on hundreds of millions of dollars that should

by "The Computer Skeptic"

gift cards and 1 iTunes gift card for a total of $2,695. He was then required to text the gift card numbers to the Mystery Shopper people. For his trouble, my friend got to keep the remaining $300.

Easy money, right? Wrong. Here's what would have happened had my friend allowed himself to be roped into the scam: his bank would have accepted the checks, my friend would buy the gift cards, texts the gift card numbers to the scammer, and, knowing my friend, would buy $300 worth of beer with the proceeds.

The scammers would then use the gift card numbers to purchase expensive merchandise from the Apple Store. A couple of days later, my friend would get a sad call from the bank informing him that the 3 checks were fake, and the funds would be removed from his account. My friend would be on the hook for the entire $2,985.

I talked with a banker friend of mine to get his opinion on whether or not my friend would have been on the hook for the $2,995. He said that Federal law requires that banks reimburse clients for certain kinds of scams, mainly electronic scams. For example, if your bank account is hacked and thieves transfer your entire balance to some other account, you have 48 hours to report the breach. After that, the bank is not obligated to reimburse you one penny. They still might pay you back, but they aren't obligated under the law. But this particular check scam is non-reimbursable. My friend would have been out $2,995 and no way to get it back unless he owned the bank.

My banker friend also told me that tellers are trained to look out for these kinds of things. So if you show up at the bank with this kind of thing, you might be asked to speak with the branch manager. The manager may warn you of the dangers of proceeding but they cannot stop you from making a bad decision. So if you're approached by the branch manager, please pay attention.

Everyone is susceptible to this kind of scam, of course, but the usual targets are our older folks who simply aren't able to recognize the dangers as well as they once did. So please share this story with your favorite old person.

Doublehead was among a delegation of Cherokees who visited U.S. President George Washington in Philadelphia in 1791. Rising From The Dead

Mark 9:10 "And they kept that saying with themselves, questioning one with another what the rising from the dead should mean." It means when you die, you will live somewhere for all eternity. It means how you lived in this life finally catches up with you. It means you will have your day in court and give account of yourself to your Maker, Almighty God. It means you will see friends and family and folks again. It means you will see the final destination of every soul that has ever lived.

It means you will see the One who you either cursed, loved, worshipped, prayed to, laughed at, joked about, made fun of, and or trusted to get to heaven. It means the One who shed his blood for your sins will meet you face to face. It means Jesus Christ will be seen in his glory by the entire world. It means if you refused to receive Jesus Christ as your saviour, you will see what you missed for that mistake.

I've talked to many that said that "death ends it all. I am going six feet under and that is it." What we believe doesn't change the truth of an issue one bit. It is very easy to slip into eternity believing a host of lies. What really will be heartbreaking is to have tried to warn as many as we could and still see them go into eternity unprepared, scared, uncertain, and not sure of where they will finally spend eternity. Imagine facing the younger years, the best years of your life, wasted on the pleasures and cares of this world. Life has no re-runs. You only have one lifetime to meet God, prepared. Your soul is your responsibility, not your teacher or preacher, or your mom and dad, or your church. This 12 year old minimum-age salvation is another lie. As soon as you realize what sin and its consequences are, you are ready to be saved. Repent, change your mind and receive Christ today.

2001 with a few years away to give my weekends to Little League Baseball and to my Son, "Sloan", who just didn't understand why daddy had to work every Saturday. 2019 with my 3 Year Anniversary to a LADY that I am just crazy about named Gina Rice Wilson. God has also blessed me with the 2 best step-daughters (Lacey & Lauren Oliver) that a man could ask for."

"I love the car business, greeting customers and giving them my very best to help them meet their needs. I've had many tell me, sometimes afraid that I'd be insulted, "You don't act like a Salesman". That's honestly the best compliment I could ever hope to hear. At that point I knew I just didn't sell you a car, we are now friends. I'm so blessed to have a place here at Ray Miller Buick GMC. No offense to previous employers, but the hospitality among supervisors, colleagues, and customers is like nothing I have experienced before. By all means, get out here and come see me and see the difference for yourself, you'll never regret that you did." - John Wilson-285181-1

Several volunteers took us through a Powerpoint presentation that tied in over six months of work that began with a Public Affairs Research Council of Alabama (PARCA) report and continued with a series of meetings on the local level. However, the presentation represents the beginning of the real work, implementing a plan for the area's growth. Topics included Digital Infrastructure, Tourism,

The United States has been given by God the great gift of demonstrating to the world the truth of the concept of one human family, a concept enshrined in all the world's great religions. This is the first time in the history of the world that it has been possible to build a multiethnic democracy in which no single ethnic group is in the majority. The extent to which the United States accepts that mission and moves toward a society in which political equality, social equality, and economic justice can be achieved is the extent to which God's blessings will be showered on our nation.

It appears that our great nation is moving in the opposite direction. It's easy to see that many great problems that threaten not only peace and tranquility, but that of the entire world.

Greater Shoals...

That report helped create six general areas of focus that the Greater committee Shoals members would consider: Infrastructure, Digital Tourism, Workforce Development, Economic Development, Quality of Life, and Governmental Collaboration.

Committees were formed to discuss those areas in detail. Each committee met three times in recent months with solid attendance of between 25 and 40 at each one. Among general findings the by the working groups was that the Shoals is fragmented, the area has more deaths than births, has too many agencies government, and of has a need for updated economic development and tourism marketing plans.

A spokesperson from each committee shared those recommendations through a Powerpoint presentation to a packed room of community leaders and interested parties at the Sweetwater Depot in Florence last week.

Bank Independent President, Macke Mauldin, former University of North Alabama President, Robert Potts, Shoals Chamber of Commerce President, Caitlin Holland, and Alvin Rosenbaum, author of "The Muscle Shoals: First Frontier of These United States," formed the steering committee.

Mauldin welcomed everyone to last week's event and gave a brief overview before handing it off to the presenters. He wrapped up the presentation by reminding the gathering that the presentation they just saw and participated in represented a beginning to the process rather than an end. "We have the framework for how we're going to make the Shoals a better place to live," said Mauldin. "We have a mandate, so now we need the leadership of the private and public sectors to move toward getting these things done." Mauldin closed by saying the steering committee will review polling from the meeting, establish priorities, develop a budget for implementation, and report back to the community in early November.

DIGITAL INFRASTRUCTURE

Develop a digital infrastructure in the Greater Shoals in order to become one of the best-connected communities of our size in the USA.

Working Group Findings:

1. Create a new entity as shaped by all the Shoals utility departments to design, finance and implement a modern digital infrastructure throughout the Greater Shoals to take advantage of the significant TVA investment in broadband fiber resources already installed in the Shoals area. 2. Assure that the implementation, availability, affordability and customer service provided are markedly better than that which is currently available from existing providers. 3. Provide widespread training on uses of the Internet as services continue to migrate to online-only communications.

One huge positive from the PARCA study was that the Shoals MSA is FIRST in Alabama in the percentage of high school seniors who are college and career ready. That is a positive combination of early reading, access to resources, stability, teachers, mentoring, specialized programs, and much more covering all 13 years. PARCA Graphic

Working Group Findings:

1. Expand and clarify uses for the Shoals Economic Development Fund. 2. Explore a stronger collaboration among the Generator, Small Business Development Center, and the Shoals Business Incubator to better expand opportunities for small business, to include more effective funding levels. 3. Expand SEDA's focus on

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

The Greater Shoals should be known in the Southeast as the most effective. aggressive and diverse economic development community of its size in the region.

• SEDA should develop and implement a 21st Century Economic Development Model for the Greater Shoals. • Use the Shoals Economic Development Fund and other resources prudently and strategically.

• The SEDF should provide funding support to additional mandated, local organizations that contribute to important economic development to include: Shoals Business Incubator, Shoals Scholar Dollars, and UNA and NWSCC Business and Work Force Development Programs

WORKFORCE DEVELOPMENT

To leverage our well-documented educational successes and to combat poverty, the Greater Shoals education, business and employer communities must more closely cooperate and communicate to meet the needs of our evolving economy

- Working Group Findings: 1. Expand Shoals Scholar Dollars support.
- 2. Marry skills development more closely with labor needs. 3. Increase education and vocational retention and quality
- SUGGESTIONS: Scholar Dollars leadership should explore and develop ways to expand students' access to NWSCC and UNA.
- Develop' Computer Coding Certificates and/or degrees.
- Develop a retention plan for NWSCC and UNA graduates.
- More closely collaborate all workforce development groups in The Greater Shoals.
- Develop a mentoring program for workers.

• Determine the level and causes of under- employment in The Greater Shoals and then develop programs to address them.

QUALITY OF LIFE

Quality of Life.

SUGGESTIONS:

With our planned smart growth, the Greater Shoals must maintain and improve access to our abundant natural and cultural resources. Additionally, we need to work to become a regional model of collaboration to foster poverty alleviation. Working Group Findings:

1. Develop riverfront beauty, recreational facilities and more public access to the Tennessee River.

3. Anticipate, recognize and address the possible

2. Encourage and promote cooperation among agencies and organizations concerned with poverty alleviation.

UNIFIED TOURISM

Tourism leadership must leverage the Greater Shoals global recognition to boost regional tourism through collaboration with all tourism groups, hotels, restaurants, museums and tourism related entities or attractions

Working Group Findings:

- Create a single brand for the Greater Shoals.
   Expand "things to do and buy" and product - development.

3. Use data analytics to target generating markets and areas to expand offers.

SUGGESTIONS:

• Eliminate friction and promote cooperation between the two tourism organizations in the Greater Shoals or merge them.

GOVERNMENT COOPERATION

To compete in the new digital economy, we must leverage the cooperative spirit of elected officials to seek every opportunity to combine public services, while at the same time, maintaining names and unique identities of each Greater Shoals Community.

1. Seek to harmonize and recodify ordinances among the four cities.

2. Combine municipal services where efficiencies can be achieved.

3. Move, with dispatch, towards consolidation of adjacent cities and other government entities with a collaborative metro government.

SUGGESTIONS:

• Tuscumbia and Sheffield should develop an immediate plan to share sewer and water plants saving the Greater Shoals taxpayers millions of dollars in unnecessary expenses and debt.

• Develop a working group for Tuscumbia and Sheffield and other interested entities to seek opportunities for cost savings or consolidation of identical municipal services.

the other day! (I remember writing a column here about being forty-something!) But this sixtieth birthday was going to be a problem for me. I was having a hard time wrapping my head around being the age that I most remember my mom being. But then something wonderful happened – my husband and my sisters gave me a surprise birthday party – a people from, NĆ, VA, Tenn., AL and NYC birthday party!

It was a surprise party and I was surprised! My husband had taken me dress shopping, and told me that he had made a reservation for the night of my birthday. When he parked across the street from Rhoda P's in Sheffield, he told me to close my eyes. Now I must admit that, as is my habit, I had checked our bank statement that day.

Hey y'all, I turned sixty When I saw that there had been a major expenditure, I thought someone had stolen our identity. No joke. Then I clicked on the line item and the details said that it was a jewelry purchase. So, I thought that he was going to take me somewhere fancy and give me a ring. Therefore, didn't understand why I was having to close my eyes to go into Rhoda P's since I had been there before. I didn't understand, until I opened my eyes.

"Surprise!" There were dozens of people who I love! In front of me was about 20 of my Turners from Memphis – including my 82 year old mother-in-love and a new infant nephew! "Oh my goodness!" Then I saw my church folks! "Oh my gracious!" Then our son from NYC...tears. "Wow, wow, wow!" And my sisters and brothers-in-law!

More tears..."Wow!" These people had already called or Facebooked to wish me a happy birthday! And then watched my reaction on through some spindles, I saw my co-workers in the next room. I shouted as I pointed to them, "My Y people!" But everyone in the room, I later found out, thought that I had said, "My white people!" Even though, I did remark, at some point, that it was great that my white people met my black people, because my co-workers and church family don't get to see me in that context and haven't gotten to hang out with my family much – especially not with my husband's side. It was wonderful, and while they waited on us to get there, everyone fully enjoyed each other.

We had a delicious sit-down dinner, but before that there was a professional photographer with a backdrop, who captured the night. There were decorations, done by my sister, which made the place look like a palace. Our son, the sound guy, was the DJ and Skyped his sister into the program. There was a program! And it had a theme, "Pearl of a Girl"! (June's birthstone pearl.) There were printed programs and napkins! gmail.com

They had a loved one from every segment of my life speak. Our daughter one brother's phone as her other brother played a video that she and Kuby, our granddaughter, had made reviewing all the silly skits and songs that we have done at camps, at home, and in our car during her childhood. "A legacy of fun," she said. They went all out. And then my husband presented me with a strand of pearls (which went rather well with my dress). Crazy, amazing! By the time the program was finished, I thought no one should be talked about this much unless they were dead! Well, I can die happy!

But that's how my family loves each other. We express our love and care now and always. They filled my cup to overflowing again. So much. How can sixty be a problem when I have such love from my family, the awesome folks at my party, the others that couldn't be there, my community, my church family world-wide and my God? Come on 60! Bring it! Happy birthday to me!

Highway Hypnosis

Have you ever been driving down the road and your mind goes into autopilot? It happens most frequently when you are driving on a familiar road. You can go for miles in deep thought about something other than driving and then you kind of "wake up" and wonder, "How did I get here?" You do not remember driving through familiar areas, the cars you met or passed, or the stops and turns you made- - but somehow you did it!

Probably most drivers can identify with this phenomenon. There is even a name for it. It is called "highway hypnosis" or "white line fever." A textbook definition for "highway hypnosis" is "a mental condition in which a person can drive an automobile great distances, responding to external events in the expected and correct manner with no recollection of having consciously done so."

I will admit that I have been a victim of highway hypnosis from time to time. But even though I have lived to tell the story, I do not believe it is a good thing for me or any other driver.

Even worse is the thought that this type of hypnotic trance can slip into our spiritual lives. For example, it could easily happen during worship services. We might mouth through the songs, bow our heads during prayer, stare at the preacher during a sermon, partake of the communion, and make a monetary offering as we have often done before, but with our minds in another place. Surely, that is not a good thing either! Jesus taught, "The hour is coming, and now is, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth; for the Father is seeking such to worship him. God is Spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth" (John 4:23, 24). Hence, there are two ways our Lord specified that are essential for acceptable worship. One is "in truth," meaning that we much worship in the manner he prescribed in his teaching. The second is "in spirit," which means our hearts and minds must be engaged when we worship. Worshiping God in both spirit and truth are equally important. Thus, we cannot worship with our minds in autopilot and think God will be pleased. God expects our proper attention as well as our proper actions.

But as you know, worship is just one component of Christianity. We must give "all our heart, soul, mind and strength" 24/7 (cf. Mark 12:30). But "highway hypnosis" is a danger along any stretch of heaven's road! That is why Paul warned, "Let us not sleep, as others do, but let us watch and be sober" (1 Thessalonians 5:6).

percentage of any Metropolitan Statistical Area in the state. Efforts to increase the quality and readiness of the local workforce have been nothing short of sensational. The credit can be spread far and wide from basic reading skills early, to innovative programs late, teacher efforts throughout, and so many other factors and directives within those 13 years.

That doesn't leave much room to improve. Between those who really aren't interested in working or continuing their education and those who can't pass a pre-employment drug screen, 85% may be a best case. Apathy and excessive drug use are already crippling local employers looking to increase their work roles.

Another valid consideration was brought up by the working group that was looking at quality of life, albeit maybe not for the reasons mentioned here. They recognized that accelerated growth may create some unintended consequences for our community that may impact our quality of life.

Many of us would say that we like living here because it's relaxed with comparatively little traffic and road congestion, rural areas are literally 10 minutes away from anywhere, courtesy seems to reign on the roadways, long-held Southern values, little added stress, and so on. Accelerated growth could change all that quickly.

If we wanted more hecticness and headaches, we could move to suburbs of Huntsville, Nashville, San Antonio, or Greenville, SC.

Another thing that happens when growth comes in from the outside that communities is become more liberal. That trend toward liberalism occurs naturally enough in young people anyway. Their gleeful ignorance is often pro-government, pro-social equality, and pro sex of any kind. When a community grows quickly and people come in to accommodate that growth and fill newly-created positions, they often bring a more progressive, urban, fastpaced mindset, that is not conducive to a smalltown, individual-driven America. Therefore, if more progressivism is а part mandated of accelerated progress, we need to decelerate a little.

The Power of Small Things

If you were to take a penny and hold it between your thumb and index finger, with Abe Lincoln facing you, you could hold it up between you and your view of the sun in such a way as to eclipse the sun.

Imagine that. Something as small as a penny and yet it can block your view of something so enormous. Too often we are impressed with those things that are bigger than life and discount the small things. I would like to speak today on behalf of the power of small things.

Have you ever considered the power of one small word of encouragement? This last week I stood to one side at a funeral visitation and watched as friends encouraged the grieving members of a family. There were no speeches offered. No attempts to comfort the hurting by reciting lengthy prose. There were men and women saying, "I'm so sorry." "I love you." "I'm here to help." They were all speaking volumes by saying very little in a soft, kind and heartfelt way. One or two words spoken with meaning can soothe an aching heart.

What about the power of one small touch? At that same visitation, I saw those who did not speak a word. Instead they offered a hand resting on the shoulder of another or clasp in the hand of the bereaved. One small touch but it was of more value than medicine. No words could have conveyed the meaning of that touch. It said what couldn't be said.

Over the course of the next few days, I am sure that members of that family will go to their mailboxes and will find cards of sympathy. Not a book about grief but a simple card or letter. However, those cards will provide a

difficult time. A few lines written paper but more powerful than a shelf full of books.

A word, a touch

have thought that their ğifts were of little consequence. Remember that penny? Our small deeds can change another's life. Every one of us should look for little ways to use small things to make a big difference. One gigantic fact about small things is that none of us can excuse ourselves from doing them. If they were huge and difficult, we might have a reason to leave them undone but we are all able to do the small things.

Get your penny and go outside and block out the sun. Remind yourself of the power of small things.

There's No Place Like Home"

Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz" repeated over and over "There's no place like home." Dorothy was right! The word "home" has a special ring. Memories of childhood. Kids without a care in the world. Thoughts of security, being protected by loving parents. Even as adults, we relish the word "home," because we can bolt the doors and shut out a topsy-turvy world to find moments of peace and serenity.

Back in 1983, our lawmakers enacted "The Hospice Benefit," allowing the terminally ill to retire from this life in the comforts of home, surrounded by family and friends. Medicare Part A, Medicaid and many private insurances pay for hospice care, giving hospice patients the option to "go home."

At Good Samaritan Hospice, we help patients realize the dream of going back home. After all, "There's no place like home."

HELPING IS OFTEN MORE THAN JUST GIVING

Dear Dave,

My husband and I met a young woman through an outreach program at church. She is a single mother with she is a single mother with a small child, and recently she asked us for money, so she could buy baby food and diapers. This isn't the first time she has asked us for money. In the past, she has used money we've given her to buy alcohol for herself after telling us it was going to be used for the baby. She truly does need financial help, though. Can you give us some advice on handling this situation? Angela

Dear Angela, Financially speaking, her problem sounds as much like a mismanagement of money as it is a lack of money. That, and she seems to have an issue with lying. If you're determined to help this woman, you can put conditions on your help designed to improve her decision-making abilities and her life.

If someone is bold enough to ask for your money, you have every right to attach requirements to the money for their own good. One of two things will happen if you handle it this way. She'll either graciously accept your conditions and welcome the help, or she'll get angry and say you have no right interfering in her helping someone is a business. I've never had a problem helping people who have good hearts and just need a break. But if someone cops an attitude with me in a situation like this, I wouldn't be breaking out my wallet anytime soon.

If you choose to do this, make the money a gift and not a loan. Concentrate on trying to get her on a path where she's a little more honest with you and thinks a little straighter. Hopefully, as a result she will start making better choices. Teach her how to create and live off a budget, or help her enroll in a personal finance course, too. Right now, just handing her money is like giving a drunk a drink.

This whole situation is a lot bigger than helping someone with baby food and diapers. The answer to that is easy. In this case, however, I'd probably give it to her in the form of a gift card. Some of those don't allow alcohol purchases. You could avoid that possibility, too, by getting things for the baby yourself and taking them to her.

In many cases, truly lot more work than just throwing money at them. Sometimes, you have to get down in their mess, get real with them, and walk with them. –Dave

Reliable Ride and Donated to the Carless

Reliable transportation is a challenge for many. For those living in bigger cities with access to public transportation, it's not a big deal. But, for those outside of large, metropolitan areas, having a car can make all the difference.

The National Auto Body Council Recycled Rides™ program works with insurance companies, body shops, vendors and more to provide renovated cars to those who need it.

The body shops, parts vendors, paint shops and more donate their time, labor and equipment while repairing vehicles for the Recycled Rides program. State Farm® partners with the National Auto Body Council to provide vehicles for the Recycled Rides program.

Eric Showalter, lead collision repair instructor at Washburn Institute of Technology in Topeka, Kan., teaches students the skills needed in the car repair world. His shop works on cars for Recycled Rides recipients.

Students in the program get hands-on instruction from people in the car repair field. They also participate on the committee that reviews applications for the refurbished cars.

"We're building hands-on skillsets for automotive technicians, but we're also building community service, outreach and connecting them with student ambassadors," Eric says.

Once the car has been found and repaired, a recipient is chosen.

The council has a committee that works with at-risk youth from the foster care system in the area to determine good candidates for the "Recycled Ride". Providing a car for someone who is underprivileged but hard working is empowering. It is a great way for the insurance and auto body industry to have impact on a local community.

Concern Over Education

Editor:

I am writing this because the children here because the children here in Florence, AL are not being taught English or the importance of using it properly. If they are, one would never know it. I have to wonder what the requirements are for a Bachelors degree these days, and even more importantly, a state Alabama teaching of certificate.

There are two reasons I make that rather bold statement. The first is that the students with whom I interact through my places of employment are unable to speak in complete sentences; using dangling participles; use the wrong verb (or tense) if a verb is used at all; end sentences with prepositions; use the incorrect pronoun; and have very poor vocabularies. I could point out other deficiencies. However, those are the most glaring. I am not referring to only those in kindergarten, or first grade. I see the problem in all K-12 students.

The problem, and remedy appears to be the teaching staff. I believe that if tested, a very large number of teachers don't know or choose not to use grammatically correct standards themselves.

I have been on field trips with a lot of them, and I hear teachers saying things such as "me and her", or incorrectly using "is" with a plural subject. They don't know the difference between bring and take.

I also grew up during a time when ALL teachers time when ALL teachers considered grading for grammar and spelling to be part of their job, even if Biology was the subject for which I had to write a paper. I don't see that anymore. In fact, when I have asked, I have been tald by a tracker that their told by a teacher that their job was to teach History, or whatever subject, and they left the grammar to the English Department. We no longer diagram sentences in school. Why? sentences in school. Why? The answer I was given for that by the head of the English Department in the high school where I taught was that the "kids found it boring." I too found it boring, but I learned how to construct a sentence, which was a skill obviously lacking in too many of the students we were graduating. We do not, or so it would appear, constantly teach and reinforce grammar in the See LETTERS... on p. 44 classroom. I doubt there is a classroom filled with K-6 students in the entire State (probably few across state (probably few across the country) in which the students are corrected every time they say something grammatically incorrect. I don't wish to sound like the "back in my days as a student" old foot but we were all but fogy, but we were all but brow beaten when we made those mistakes, or so it felt. We did however, grow up knowing that good grammar, and a large vocabulary were important to a successful life.

It is my belief that something must be done at the level of the Superintendent of Schools to get the attention of the Principals and teachers in our schools. I don't think they are bad at what they do; however, I do believe they are missing something very significant, and which I also believe as a retired high school teacher, is a primary responsibility. It is fundamental to education to ensure that the teachers being hired have an excellent command of the English language. They need to know that if they fail in that aspect of the education of their students, they (as the teacher) have failed those students. Frankly, I don't believe that many of the teachers realize the significance of this preparatory hurdle for their students' futures.

and "Melissa Tubb's Celebration & Preservation."

The Helen Keller Art Show of Alabama is an annual juried exhibition that displays work by blind, deaf-blind and visually impaired students from across the state of Alabama.

The Rise of the Southern Craft Movement is one of the most comprehensive collections of the late 20th century Southern fine craft movement. It features a series of purchase awards made by the Tennessee Valley Art Association during their time organizing the Helen Keller Art and Craft Show at the Helen Keller Festival from 1978 through 2011.

Melissa Tubb's Celebration & Preservation is a touring Alabama Bicentennial project featuring 25 pen and ink drawings of landmarks from across the state.

All three exhibitions are endorsed Alabama Bicentennial events, and they are open during normal museum hours through July 5. Each exhibit not only tells its own story but also displays part of the Southern story.

Los Angeles Homelessness and Econ 101

Editor:

"We can't arrest our way out of this. We can't shelter our way out of this. We have to house our way out of this," Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti said last year while campaigning for a measure to spend $1.2 billion in taxpayer money over ten years on housing for his city's homeless population.

Los Angeles County Supervisor Mark Ridley-Thomas, who backed a $355 million county sales tax initiative to provide services to the homeless in the county, called it the height of contradiction that homelessness is growing in "The stunning increase in homelessness announced in Los Angeles this week -- up 16% over citywide," reports CNN, "was an almost incomprehensible conundrum given the nation's booming economy and the hundreds of millions of dollars that city, county and state officials have directed the problem." toward There's nothing stunning or incomprehensible about it. or Eric Garcetti, Ridley-Thomas, Mark meet Ronald Reagan, "If you want more of something, subsidize it."

Los Angeles is already an inherently attractive destination for the homeless for several Homelessness reasons. in the Midwest can mean freezing to death if you can't find a shelter bed, to jobs, to transportation, to an already larger concentration than rural areas of both private charities and government services aimed at their problems.

did Ridley-What Thomas Garcetti and EXPECT to happen when they announced their plans to stack hundreds of millions of dollars in new government assistance on top of those inherent attractions?

If I were homeless in the western United States, I'd make a beeline for LA.

Garcetti is correct that housing is key to reducing homelessness. If Garcetti and Ridley-Thomas want to address homelessness with housing, they should get to work reducing tax and regulatory burdens that make it more expensive, difficult, time-consuming, and less profitable, to build new housing in Los Angeles than it should be.

However good their intentions, políticians hate giving up any amount of power and control over any activity. LA's politicians will probably just continue pouring gasoline on the fire and wondering why it gets hotter instead of burning 011t.

Many times, a person who is going on Medicare for the first time will come into our office with the understanding that Medicare will cover any and all medical procedures they have performed. Today's FAQs will address some items, services and procedures Medicare does not cover.

Does Medicare cover all medical procedures? Medicare doesn't cover everything. If you need a service that isn't covered under Medicare Part A or Part B you will have to pay for it yourself unless it's covered by a supplemental Medicare health plan or Medicaid. The phrase that Medicare uses is "medically necessary". If you have a procedure performed that is elective and not "medically necessary" there is a good chance it will not be covered by Medicare. It is always a good idea to check with your healthcare provider before you have a procedure performed to assure that it is covered by Medicare.

What are some examples of items and services not covered by Medicare? Some items and services not covered by Medicare are: Long-term custodial care, most dental care, eye examinations related to prescribing glasses, dentures, cosmetic surgery, acupuncture, hearing aids and exams for fitting them and routine foot care. Also, most prescription drugs are not covered by Medicare.

Will Medicare cover me outside the U.S.? Medicare generally doesn't cover healthcare while you're traveling outside the U.S. There are, however, rare exceptions when Medicare will cover you outside the U.S. You can find these exceptions in your Medicare and You Handbook or by going to Medicare.gov. In these rare cases Medicare, may pay for ambulance transportation to a foreign hospital only with admission for medically necessary covered inpatient hospital services. You pay 20% of the Medicare approved amount, and the Part B deductibles apply.

If you have questions regarding any aspect of Medicare or Medicare health plans feel free call us at Alabama Health Guidance (256-648-5710), stop by our office at 885 Florence Blvd (Four Lane Shopping Center) or email me at ikey@ alabamahealthguidance.com. Alabama Health Guidance is is for a new attraction, but today we're proud to cut a ribbon to mark a kind of rebirth for this amazing state park," said Blankenship. "There has been a beehive of activity here at Joe Wheeler where the staff has been busy making improvements all over the park. It is great to share this celebration with all the staff, our park volunteers and our friends and local partners in the Rogersville/Lauderdale County area."

Joining the Blankenship and Lein at the ceremony were Alabama state Sen. Tim Melson of Florence, Rep. Lynn Greer of Rogersville, Rep. Phillip Pettus of Greenhill, and Rogersville Mayor Richard Herston.

"We are very happy to put a spotlight on these improvements that we have wanted to tackle for some time," Lein said. "Our dedicated staff worked hard to continue to provide excellent service while the maintenance
