Welcome to the Main Line

PETE BANNAN-MEDIANEWS GROUP
The grounds of Stoneleigh Natural Garden in Villanova

For decades, the Main Line has been one of the most desirable places to live in the region and the country. That's because this area offers its residents an experience they can find only on the Main Line.

The things that make our community unique are what make it such an incredible place to live, work and play.

Whether you are a newcomer to the Main Line or you've lived here your whole life, there's always something new to discover, and it can be hard to keep track of all of the many people, places and businesses that contribute to our unique community.

That's where the Guide to the Main Line comes in.

Produced annually by Main Line Media News, this guide brings together all of the best the Main Line has to offer in one place.

Starting on page 51, check out our comprehensive business listings, presented in partnership with the Main Line Chamber of Commerce.

Looking to find a new restaurant or visit an old favorite? The Main Line has both, as well as many restaurants that commit to using various locally-sourced ingredients

Get an inside look at how the Main Line's many unique small businesses are distinguishing themselves in a market dominated by big box stores, and see what local schools are doing to prepare students for the careers of tomorrow.

From education to health and wellness, from real estate to food and dining, this guide offers a comprehensive look at what makes life here on the Main Line so incredible.

We hope you'll hold onto this guide as a year-round resource, in addition to relying on Main Line Media News online, on social media and in print each week for the latest updates on life along the Main Line. People like to go out to eat. According to data from the National Restaurant Association, with more than 1 million restaurants in the U.S., restaurant sales for 2019 are projected to top $863 billion.

In Pennsylvania, there are more than 26,500 restaurants, which in 2018 contributed $24 billion in sales in the state.

The Main Line is home to hundreds of restaurants — featuring a variety of dining concepts to satisfy just about any taste, attracting diners from across the region.

"That is what brings people to towns," said Christopher Todd, who along with his wife, Molly, owns Christopher's: A Neighborhood Place, with locations in Wayne and Malvern. He is also the president of the Wayne Business Association.

CHADWICK & MCKINNEY
FUNERAL HOME

“From the moment we walked into your funeral home, to the day of burial, your comforting presence and reassuring support meant so much. You listened to our thoughts, and truly made the entire process much easier on us.” — Susan

We are so fortunate to receive many notes of thanks that echo Susan’s. Having lost my own father when I was 8, I feel that I bring heartfelt care and concern to every family who calls upon us in their time of need.

My family and I live at the funeral home, so your loved one is always under our care. I personally answer your calls at any time of the day or night, and I am here to help in any way I can.

When we sit down to discuss funeral, cremation or arrangements in advance, I can meet with you in the comfort of your own home. I will listen, care well, and handle all the details, as if you were a member of my own family.

— Rodger McKinney

Rodger McKinney’s family has strong roots in the community. His daughter Courtney is an Episcopal Academy and University of Delaware graduate, working in physical therapy; his son Andrew is a Lower Merion High School graduate, attending Penn State University; his wife Lauren Hurtubise is an Agnes Irwin and Mt. Holyoke graduate, teaching at Ithan Elementary School.

One of the dining concepts that continues to experience success focuses on fresh, locally-sourced, seasonal and sustainable ingredients.

In its 2019 State of the Restaurant Industry report, the National Restaurant Association found that throughout 2019, natural ingredients and local sourcing will remain increasingly important to consumers.

Todd, who began his restaurant career in the 1980s, said he has always

 “We just don’t talk about it as much anymore. If you’re paying a good price for good food, it should already be there,” he said. “What we do is we try our best to locally source as much as we can.”

Christopher and Molly Todd opened their first restaurant in Wayne, 108 N. Wayne Ave., in 2001, followed in 2014 by the Malvern location, 335 E. King St.

The dining concept is a trend Todd said has been growing for decades, but really started to take off 10 to 12 years ago. He said it grew because people started paying more attention.

“It was generational. People started to demand it. When you are eating lettuce doused in pesticides, you start asking, ‘what’s going on with your lettuce?’ Now, if someone says, ‘hey there’s a

After more than 10 years of solid growth, Todd said the Wayne location has "leveled off" in the past couple of years, which he attributes to an influx — between 25 and 30 — new "fast-casual" restaurants. The Malvern location grew by about 1.5 percent last year.

That said, Todd added that market conditions are such that he could expand his business — if there is an improvement in the labor market.

"It has never been a bigger challenge," he said. "When you have historically low unemployment, it drives wages up." He added that there are also fewer job seekers.

Rich Silverberg and his wife, Ruth, own The Silverspoon, 503 W. Lancaster Ave. in Wayne, a restaurant the couple first opened in 2003.

Silverberg said the restaurant originally had 12 seats in less than 1,000 square feet of space, and reflected a trend the couple saw in other places — salad and soup that were totally scratch made.

It was a concept that resonated with seats about 40.

Silverberg said when his son Ron came on board as executive chef; he pushed the scratch concept into local and sustainable sourcing.

"When people ask what we do — we call it 'seasonally inspired, sustainably sourced, contemporary flair,'" he said.

Silverberg acknowledged that in terms of growth, The Silverspoon needs more space — at least another 500 square feet.

"If I could get more room, I would expand the kitchen," he said, instead of adding more seats.

"I don't subscribe to the concept that every business has to become the biggest. I am more interested in controlling the product, keeping customers happy and filling the restaurant."

Silverberg said his restaurant's approach absolutely resonates with customers who want fresh and seasonal food.

JPM Catering in Ardmore takes the model in a slightly different direction — to the world of weddings and private parties. The company at 8 E. Lancaster Ave. in Ardmore, houses the company's kitchen, according to Joe Petrucci, who with his wife, Jennifer McCafferty, own JMP Catering. JPM Catering also offers take out.

Petrucci said the business, launched in 2009 in the couple's kitchen, has always had a focus on seasonal and homemade options.

"She [Jennifer] really had the environment on her mind when she figured food would be what she would get into," he said.

Petrucci said the couple started with a kitchen in Manayunk, but needed more space and wanted to be closer to their clients on the Main Line.

In November 2013, the couple opened their new kitchen and small restaurant — called the Tasting Room BYOB.

As business grew 18 months ago, the couple made a decision to keep the focus on catering and switch to a market offering fast-casual take out.

"It has worked well, and is a better representation of what we do," Petrucci said.

JPM Catering's seasonal menu changes four times a year.

"We cook all our own food — it's all house-made with the exception of some baked goods," Petrucci said. The company also uses compostable disposables, and is reducing plastic packaging waste.

Three years ago, the company began providing organic lunch service to several area schools — growing from one to five schools.

Petrucci said the dining concept is "increasingly appealing" to diners on the Main Line, and believes there is room for more sustainability inspired restaurants in Ardmore.

"I am a firm believer that a rising tide will lift all boats," he said.

One of the newest additions to the farm-to-table or fresh dining concept in the western suburbs is Founding Farmers, which opened in the King of Prussia Town Center in November 2017. Not only does the restaurant focus on providing fresh, sustainable cuisine cooked from scratch, but the company is owned by the North Dakota Farmers Union.

"When you hear farm to table we are substantially different than that," said Dan Simons is co-owner of Farmers Restaurant Group, which includes Founding Farmers King of Prussia.

The King of Prussia Founding Fathers is the fifth location for the company and the first outside of the Washington, D.C. area.

What was it about the western suburbs that appealed to Simons?

"This area had all of the macro trends to be good for several decades and to attract the kind of people where community matters and education and mindfulness matters," he said, adding that potential growth and future transportation plans also played a part in the decision.

Simons said that in addition to getting products supplied by the North Dakota Farmers Union, the King of Prussia restaurant is also sourcing locally, including dairy, eggs and meats.

Having reviewed area restaurants for Main Line publications for the last 33 years, I was asked to write about our favorites in recent years. Here they are:

- I cannot count all the times we have eaten dinner at Yangming since it opened almost 30 years ago, and it is always a joy. There is a reason why executive chefs Vince Viola, a native of Manayunk, and MuYang Shen, a native of Taiwan, have won so many accolades. Some chefs have more baggage than an airport carousel at Christmas time, but Viola and Shen — who have both been running the kitchen for the entire three decades — have earned nothing but good will and respect from their peers in the area's restaurant community.

Someone once said you cannot direct the wind, but you can direct the sails. When it comes to producing consistently excellent Asian cuisine with an inextricable Western influence, the kitchen staffers at Yangming have become quite the proficient sailors, indeed. If you have not been there recently, I would urge a visit.

Yangming is at Haverford and Conestoga Roads in Bryn Mawr. For more information, call 610-527-3200 or visit www.yangmingrestaurant.com.

- The opulent 160-seat Autograph Brasserie in Wayne's Spread Eagle Village opened in 2016 in the building that previously housed George's and before that Le Mas Perrier, Samuel's and Helen Sigel Wilson's "L'Auberge."

The dishes we have eaten in several visits unflinchingly showed the high quality of the ingredients, which does not wax and wane like a radio signal in stormy weather, and the impeccable preparation. The flavors are as delicately balanced as the wings of a hummingbird. For example, the truffle wild mushrooms ($13), served with whipped fresh ricotta cheese and roasted garlic, were as soft as down feathers, a mingling of flavors that sing in the mouth.

For more information, call 610-964-2588 or visit www.autographbrasserie.com

- A former co-worker of mine turned me on to Pescatore ("fisherman" in Italian), her go-to restaurant, a charming Italian BYOB at 134 Bala Ave. in Bala Cynwyd. Thomas Anastasi, owner/chef of Pescatore, is a fifth-generation member of his family's Italian Market (South Philly) seafood business, Anastasi Seafood, Inc., Thomas graduated from the Restaurant School of Philadelphia in 1999 with a specialization in fresh seafood.

According to Thomas, "My father brings fish to me every morning from

"They did a really nice job. They completely captured what we think Villanova is. They totally got it," said Marilou Smith, project manager, facilities management. "They didn't try to make it theirs. They made it for us."

With its winning men's basketball team, Villanova has a nationwide presence and many more students apply than can be accepted. However, officials want the university to offer all the features that competing schools provide.

"We know our peer institutions are offering those kinds on campus living opportunities and so we wanted to be able to offer that, as well," said Christopher Kovolski, assistant vice president, government relations & external affairs.

"I think that it was important for us to be able to have the amenities that students are looking for. There's obviously a tremendous amount of interest in Villanova. We're fortunate to attract a record number of applications, but we know that in order to remain competitive we need to address we saw were great needs. And the opportunity to live on campus, to live in a community, to be close to amenities, was really important so we felt that we had to do that for Villanova. But it also helps us remain competitive, as well."

Even though there is more housing now, the university does not plan to increase enrollment. Some 1,675 freshmen matriculated this year.

"I think there's been a demand for students who wanted to live on campus and stay on campus," added Tom DeMarco, dean of students. Before this new student housing, the university was able to accommodate about 70 percent of students who wanted to live on campus. Now 85 percent will be able to live on campus, he said.

"They were on campus for their freshman, sophomore and junior years and this gave us the ability to offer it to a higher percentage of the senior class, having the additional housing,” he said. “There’s a different variety of housing [in the new dorms],” he said. “There are suites; there are singles, so it offers us more variety and the central location.”

Smith said she also expects fewer students to bring cars to campus with the new residence halls, which was what happened on West Campus when new dorms opened there.

In the new residence halls, there are collaborative work spaces, lounges on each floor, study rooms and “little study nooks throughout,” said Smith.

There’s a mail room and a technology zone, partnering with Dell and HP with the latest technology, and also help for students who need it. And high speed internet, including outdoor wireless connections if students want to enjoy the courtyard while working, she said. There are two fitness centers: one with aerobics, and the other with spin classes or an open class. The fitness centers are open to students, faculty and staff.

Smith said they also installed state-of-the-art stormwater management systems for the site, which also now drain rainwater from Lancaster Avenue. There are bio-swales and cisterns. And the performing arts center will have a green roof and retention basin. They are also taking in water from Lancaster Avenue at Pike Field through an infiltration basin, she said.

Although a new, 154-seat restaurant and bar, The Refectory, will open in September as part of The Commons, the residential halls will include two communal kitchens, said Tony Alfano, associate vice president for auxiliary services. There will also be Parliament, a grab-and-go coffee shop that will offer drinks, breakfast sandwiches, muffins, snacks and other edibles, he said.

“I’m sure a lot of people on campus will patronize it but we would love to have people from the community come and enjoy the restaurant and what it has to offer,” said Alfano. The Refectory will have a “classic American” menu, with burgers, flat breads, pasta and small plates. "It will be a pretty robust menu," he said. "We're partnering with Greg Dodge. He owns a number of restaurants in the Philadelphia area through Zavino Hospitality."

The Villanova construction project has been nine years in the making.

"It took us until 2014 to get approvals from the township," she said. "We broke ground in 2015."

The performing arts center will have a soft opening in January, with no performances until the summer.

"We have a fly loft and that's kind of complicated," said Smith. "It's people learning how to use the different systems." (A fly loft is a higher ceiling for the theater with rigging to pull up or put down scenery).

"I think it's critical," said Smith, about the performing arts center. "We have students that are in a cappella groups, dance groups and they practice in the basements of buildings, they practice in the church, they practice in chapels." This will give musical groups a place to practice, and also students who just want to play guitar or piano will be able to practice in soundproof rooms.

"Really, this space is for Villanovans," said Smith. "It's not a space we're looking to bring outsiders in all the time."

"That's to support the great interest there is in the arts here on campus," Kovolski added. "We lack facilities but we don't lack for interest among our students. There is a tremendous desire to participate in the arts and so this facility will be a venue to support that interest."

The bridge across Lancaster Avenue was an instant hit with the students, said Kovolski. They immediately began using it to get from the campus to the Norristown High Speedline stop.

The Villanova project was "the largest masonry job in the state of Pennsylvania in a very long time," said Smith. D.M. Sabia & Co. performed the masonry work and five tons of various color rubble stone came from the D'amico Quarry and Delaware Quarries Inc., she said. Torcon was the construction manager and "did a terrific job," she said.

Education

Two Main Line districts push back high school start times

By Richard Ilgenfritz

rilgenfritz@21st-centurymedia.com

There are a lot of issues that come up involving discussions on improving education and what might help students learn better.

One issue that's gotten a lot of discussion in recent years has been the sleep and start times for high school and middle school students.

Earlier this year, two Main Line school districts decided to push start times back for their high schools. The board of another one is continuing to discuss the issue and will take another look at it over the 2019-2020 school year.

Over the last few years, students and members of the public in Lower Merion have attended meetings asking the district to push for later start times for the district's two high schools.

Now, some movement might begin happening on the issue in Lower Merion.

This past spring, the district brought in a consultant company named Tre-goEd to help investigate the issue and facilitate stakeholder meetings. They will also develop recommendations for start times.

The district also organized the Sleep Health and School Schedules Advisory Committee that includes students, parents/guardians, staff and community members who bring a wide variety of expertise and perspectives to the discussion.

According to district spokesperson Amy Buckman, the committee held three full-day working meetings in April and May with a facilitator to evaluate five different options and their impacts.

The committee is expected to deliver a recommendation in September, once additional data such as costs can be analyzed.

After that, community input will be gathered throughout the fall. The school board is expected to make its decision on this issue in winter 2019-2020.

Lower Merion's school hours currently run from 7:30 a.m. to 2:40 p.m. for both high schools, 8:15 a.m. to 3:05 p.m. for the two middle schools and 9 a.m. to 3:35 p.m. for its six elementary schools.

As the issue was discussed this past spring in Lower Merion, both Radnor and Tredyffrin school districts voted to make the change.

In Radnor, the board voted to push high school start time beginning in September 2019 back by 55 minutes. That means that instead of starting at 7:35 a.m. as they did in the 2018-2019 school year, high school students will now begin at 8:30 a.m. for the 2019-2020 year.

In a report called More Sleep for a Healthier Student from the district sleep and start time committee, a committee similar to what Lower Merion is doing, recommended the 55-minute start time delay.

"I commend the dedicated and thorough work of our Sleep and School Start Time Committee, which allowed our district and Board to feel confident in our solutions to the obstacles and, most importantly, that a change in schedule is best for our students," Superintendent Kenneth E. Batchelor said about the change. "Everyone in Radnor should feel proud of what caring people accomplished on behalf of the township's youth."

According to information provided by Radnor High School Principal Dan Bechtold at the time the board made the start time change vote, it would require the district to hire two new bus drivers at a cost of about $120,000 for salaries and benefits.

The middle school start time would begin 10 minutes earlier at 7:50 a.m. and the elementary schools will start slightly later at 9:07 a.m.

At about the same time Radnor made its change, the Tredyffrin/Eastown School District also voted to push back secondary school start times by 30 minutes.

Under the plan approved by its board, the high school times will run from 7:50 a.m. to 2:50 p.m. for the 2019-2020 school year. The middle schools will run from 8:27 a.m. to 3:10 p.m. The elementary start times will be pushed back from the current start time of 8:45 a.m. to a new start time of 9:10 a.m.; instead of ending at the current 3:20 p.m., those schools will now end at 3:45 p.m.

According to comments made by Superintendent Richard Gusick at the time of the vote, the old high school start time for the 2018-2019 school year went into effect at the start of the 1992-1993 school year when it went from 7:50 a.m. to 7:20 a.m.

- Cynwyd Heritage Trail
- Lower Merion Historical Society at the Cynwyd Academy Building on Bryn Mawr Avenue

Fun facts:

- Named for the town of Bala and village of Cynwyd by Welsh Quakers who settled in the area in the 1680s
- Neighborhood Club of Bala Cynwyd was founded in 1906 and still works to plan community events
- Home to one of the troops that claims to be the first Boy Scout troop in the United States, Troop 1
- Kobe Bryant attended Bala Cynwyd Middle School

Bala Cynwyd was originally two distinct towns: Bala and Cynwyd. Due to the US Post Office serving both communities under a single ZIP code, the town was grouped into a single community. Bala Cynwyd's original center was settled in 1682, following William Penn's landing in Pennsylvania, and has long been featured on the National Register of Historic Places. Some of the commercial buildings in this area date to the earliest years of the 19th century.

Modern day Bala Avenue is an extension of the original town center and holds a commercial district that is more than a century old.

Zip code: 19035
Population: 4,050
Places to visit/attractions:

- Gladwyne Historic District
- 1690 House - oldest structure in Lower Merion Township that is still standing
- Saunders Woods
- Rolling Hill Park
- Idlewild Farm Complex
- Henry Foundation for Botanical Research
- Bridlewild Trail

Fun facts:

- Bart Blatstein resides in Gladwyne
- Formerly known as "Merion Square" - renamed because of confusion with the many geographic areas bearing a name that included "Merion"
- Twenty-four mills used to operate along Mill Creek Road

Gladwyne, known until 1891 as "Merion Square," was originally settled by Welsh Quakers beginning in 1682. It has been ranked among the richest ZIP codes in the country.

A tiny town center includes a few shops and the recently renovated public library. Nearby are four churches, a synagogue, Gladwyne Montessori, a private school and the public school, Gladwyne Elementary, as well as the Gladwyne Fire Company.

A portion of the original Merion Square town center and surrounding streets were designated a Lower Merion Historic District.

The Lower Merion Conservancy plays a significant role in protecting the local heritage and maintains its office in Gladwyne's Rolling Hill Park. Early to preserve space and a heavy receiver of land donations, developers have been unable to subdivide the area into typical suburban developments, and Gladwyne is still a host to late 19th/early 20th century homes, uncharacteristic of other Main Line communities.

Zip code: 19066
Population: estimated 5,950
Places to visit/attractions:

- Commercial district along Montgomery Avenue (Merion-Cynwyd Commercial District)
- Merion Botanical Park

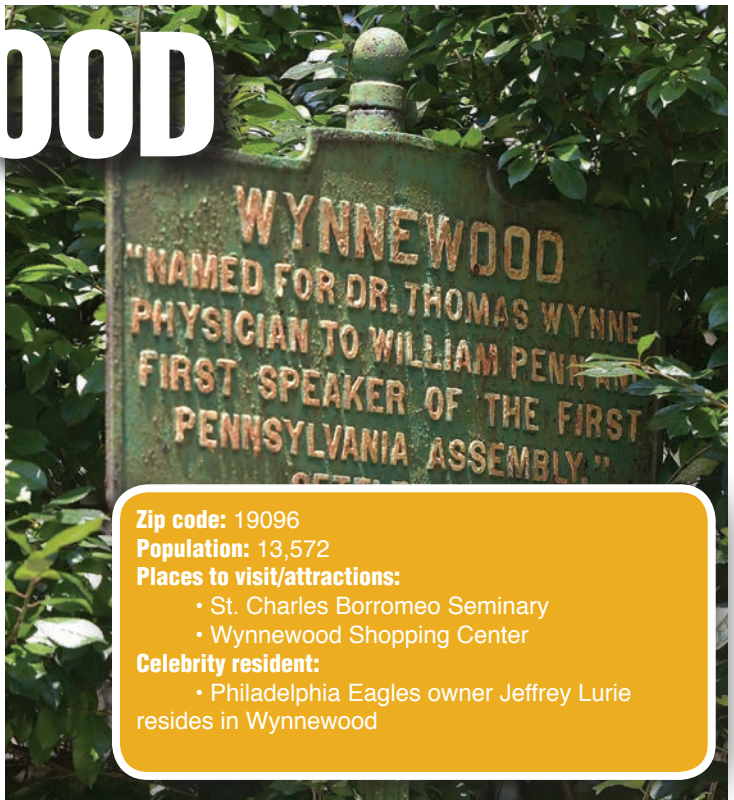

Fun facts:

- Merion Friends Meeting House is the oldest Quaker meeting house in Pennsylvania and the second-oldest in the U.S.

Often referred to as “Merion Station” by postal service workers who hope to distinguish the town from Lower Merion and Upper Merion, Merion was first settled in the 1690s by Welsh settlers who established the Merion Meeting House at what is today the intersection of Meetinghouse Lane and Montgomery Avenue.

By 1913, the community had set up the Merion Civic Association, which was organized by Ladies’ Home Journal editor Edward W. Bok, and offered a motto for the town to live by — “To be Nation right and State right, we must first be Community right.”

One of the Main Line’s many celebrities, Eldridge R. Johnson, the founder and president of the Victor Talking Machine Company and later RCA, made his home in Merion. Johnson would go on to donate his house, located at Hazelhurst Avenue, but it was later demolished to make way for a new Merion Tribute House.

For most of its history, Wynnewood was a rural farming community. It was named in the late 17th century for Dr. Thomas Wynne, William Penn’s physician.

Today, Wynnewood is predominantly residential, with shopping centers, schools and a large modern hospital. As of the 2010 Census, there were 13,572 people and 5,436 households residing in this Lower Merion Township community.

The eastern border abuts Philadelphia and runs along City Avenue from the Delaware County line to the town of Merion to the north at East Wynnewood Road.

Wynnewood is part of the Lower Merion School District.

Within Wynnewood is the community of Penn Wynne, which has a small shopping area along Manoa Road.

Fun facts:

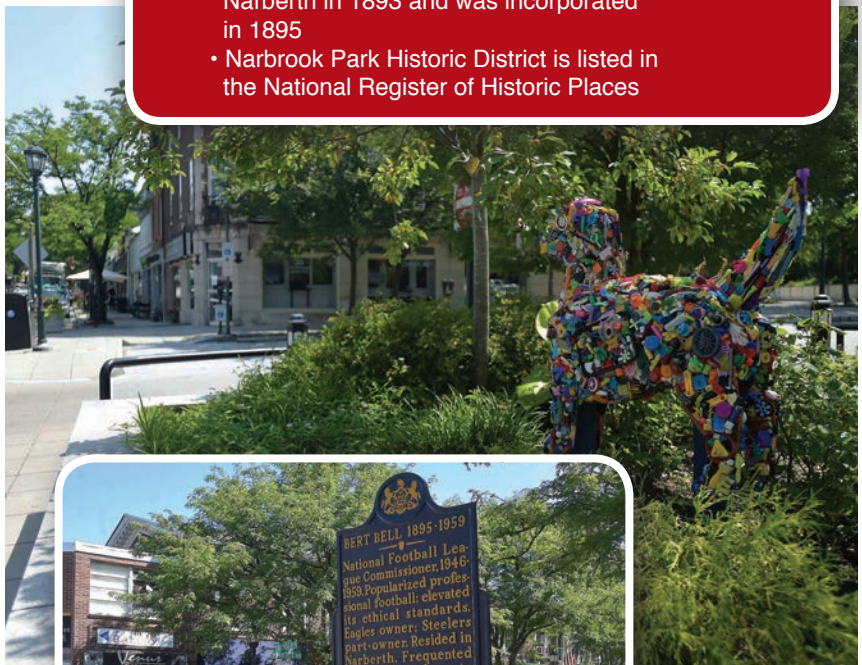

- Originally named Elm when it was founded in 1881 as a Quaker-friendly town by Edward R. Price; became known as Narberth in 1893 and was incorporated in 1895
- Narbrook Park Historic District is listed in the National Register of Historic Places

Narberth, a quaint borough that stretches only a half-mile wide, has no major thoroughfares running through the town, giving it a quieter, small-town feel. Townies, or Narbs, can hop off the Paoli/Thorndale train line to be met with town shops, a playground and, of course, residential homes, all within walking distance.

Narberth's business district is filled with small businesses that locals simply love, including Ricklin's Hardware and neighborhood pubs like The Greeks and Mcshea's.

Narberth's Civic Association has been quite the power-house in recent years, hosting events like the Dickens Festival, when the downtown is redecorated for an immersive experience for any fan of "A Christmas Carol," and NarbEarth Day, along with the family favorite NarBark dog and costume parade.

With so much going on, it's no wonder why Narberth has a reputation for being "The Heart of the Main Line."

Originally known as Athensville, the town of Ardmore was rechristened in 1873. Today, it serves as a host to a charming center of business, industry and residential diversity, swimming in both vibrant history and modern culture.

The town's Lancaster Avenue business district is home to a mix of buildings with architectural styles dating from the late 19th and early 20th century, making it one of Lower Merion's seven historic districts.

Ardmore's easily walkable town layout, mix of historic and contemporary housing and bustling downtown make it one of the most desirable close-in suburbs of the Philadelphia area.

Fun facts:

- American fashion designer Tory Burch resides in Haverford

Haverford, named after the town of Haverfordwest in Wales, sits in two townships and counties — Haverford Township in Delaware County and Lower Merion Township in Montgomery County.

It is the home of historic Haverford College, the renowned all-boys Haverford School and Haverford Friends Meeting. Allgates, the Federal School, Merion Cricket Club and the Whitehall Apartments, which are featured on the National Register of Historic Places, are all in Haverford. The Merion Cricket Club, designed by Philadelphia architect Frank Furness and his partner, Allen Evans, was designated a National Historic Landmark in 1987.

Bryn Mawr, once known as Humphreysville, is named after the estate of Rowland Ellis, a Quaker who emigrated in 1686 to escape religious persecution. The town was renamed by railroad agent William H. Wilson after he acquired the 283 acres for the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Bryn Mawr Hospital, built in 1893, is ranked as one of the top health care providers in the state. Main Line Health recently dedicated $250 million to the renovation of the building, an investment that largely funds a new medical office building, an addition to the parking garage and a new Patient Pavilion.

Students with Bryn Mawr addresses attend schools in the Lower Merion, Radnor and Haverford school districts. Bryn Mawr is also home to The Shipley School, the Baldwin School and the Holy Child School at Rosemont. Additional schools such as The French International School of Philadelphia and Clarke Schools for Hearing and Speech are located in the area as well. Bryn Mawr also hosts several schools of higher education, such as Bryn Mawr and Harcum colleges.

Bryn Mawr has several points of interest for residents and visitors. The Bryn Mawr Campus Arboretum has a lovely variety of trees and is the perfect spot for an afternoon walk, while the Bryn Mawr Film Institute is a fun visit for any movie lover.

Population: 9,189

Places to visit/attractions:

- Arboretum Villanova
- Stoneleigh: A Natural Garden
- Friends of the Willows College

Fun facts:

- Community is named for Villanova University

It's not surprising that the history of the Villanova Train Station and Villanova University are intertwined. The train station that was built in 1890 is actually located within the college campus on Spring Mill Road. The stone station that was built in the same style as the Haverford and Wynnewood train stations features ground-level eastbound and westbound platforms that are connected by a pedestrian tunnel that runs beneath the tracks.

The town of Villanova, which lies in both Radnor and Lower Merion townships, takes its name from Villanova University, which was established as Villanova College.

The college was founded by the Augustinians in 1842 and took its name from St. Thomas of Villanova, a 16th century Spanish Augustinian bishop, writer and educator.

his fish market. He gets it right off the boat."

Of course, the heroes on Pescatore's menu and list of daily specials are seafood dishes, but Anastasi also makes his own ravioli, gnocchi, fettuccine, pappardelle and tortellini as well as all desserts. The small tablecloth BYOB, which seats about 45, has food of real epicurean ambition.

For more information, call 610-660-9400 or visit www.pescatorebyob.com.

•Azie on Main at 789 E. Lancaster Ave. in Villanova, which is not visible from Lancaster Avenue, was opened in July of 2009 by Win and Sutida Somboonsong, natives of Thailand who own and operate several other restaurants (Win Signature Restaurants) in or near the Main Line.

Over the years, we have been to Azie on Main at least a dozen times, and it never disappoints. Anne, the manager, could not be more sweet and accommodating and the servers have always been excellent. The awesome rock shrimp appetizer is enough reason to go there. Fresh seafood dishes are consistently outstanding. Prices are not cheap, but neither are top quality ingredients. The ambience is stunning; the bar is top-of-the-line, and the noise level is quite reasonable. Ask for a booth; you may not want to leave. Consistently classy.

Call 610-527-5700 or visit www.azieonmain.com for more information.

• I have read dozens of customer reviews on a few websites of Nectar, the Asian fusion restaurant at 1091 Lancaster Ave. in Berwyn, operated with python intensity since it opened 15 years ago and now firmly woven into the tapestry of the Main Line, and certain memes are repeated again and again. They are: spectacular ambience; amazing food; very pricey, but worth it; extremely loud and tables so close together you can hear other conversations, especially the cell phone conversations. If the noise doesn't make you bristle like a toothbrush, you can have a great experience. We have eaten there numerous times and have found that the food, service and ambience are all New York quality. The only negative is the supersonic sound level when the restaurant is crowded.

Bringing people together for our businesses and communities

A message from the president of The Main Line Chamber of Commerce

When it comes to the strength of our region, its companies and economy, it's all about the people. Are we taking full advantage of the talent of our region in a fair and inclusive way? Do our companies have the employees they need to do the work that needs doing? What are we doing about training our workers for a future in which fewer baby boomers are at work and automation calls for different skillsets? Are we developing our future leaders? Who will show up on what might be our worst day, in case of fire, disaster or medical illness?

The Main Line Chamber of Commerce concerns itself with the people of our present and future. Although we are one of the most robust networking groups in the region, that focus on helping the people of our region and our multi-county membership are what make our nonprofit business organization different from every other group that brings people together. By becoming members, 950 companies and nonprofits together empower The Chamber to bring people together in a purposeful way, toward addressing important causes.

That's why we talk about connecting with business, leadership development and talent.

As this Guide to the Main Line and Main Line Chamber Membership Directory goes to press, The Chamber is celebrating the 10-year anniversary of The Society of Professional Women, our largest program. SPW is also the largest women's business networking organization in Greater Philadelphia, providing professional development opportunities to women and men from throughout the region. This cutting-edge program includes mentoring and features nationally known speakers we fly into town. Thanks to the resources our members and sponsors provide, few chambers across the nation have anything that comes close to matching it.

At the core, SPW is about talent, professional development and elevating women who are underrepresented in the C-Suite and in corporate boardrooms. Helping women overcome long-established disadvantages is good for our economy and the companies that power it.

But it's far from the only way in which The Chamber elevates talent. Leadership Main Line has for 17 years trained employees to be more effective leaders in their companies and communities. Our three-year-old Leadership Principles & Profiles program is helping leaders become more effective communicators with their teams. It's hard to achieve success when your employees don't understand the goal and aren't working together.

Companies also need to engage effectively with young talent. The Chamber's Talent and Education Network employer collaborative is poised with a series of events this fall designed to connect a group of employers with college students they hope to hire as interns and entry-level employees. While many employers are seeking experienced employees from other companies, a tight labor market is causing innovators to come up with ways to develop their own talent. The Chamber can help.

Even The Main Line Chamber Foundation, our charitable arm, is focused on talent as we seek to support our region's volunteer firefighters and emergency medical workers. This year, we provided more than $47,000 in scholarships to help these dedicated volunteers develop good-paying careers.

With leadership development and talent programs at the heart of our mission, our ability to bring people together to learn from each other and do business with each other has never been stronger. Our member organizations, which are highlighted in this guide, are making a statement that they care about the people of our region. We ask you to provide them with the opportunity to earn your business. Find out more about what we have to offer at www.mlcc.org.

Have an energizing and profitable day.

Radnor, which is Welsh for red earth, is said to be a nod to the town of Radnorshire in central Wales. The former old-time village was initially named Morgan's Corner for the owner of the land, Mordecai Morgan. The land that contained both Morgan's Corner and Radnor can be traced back to a land grant issued from King William in 1682.

The Columbia Railroad, later known as the Pennsylvania Railroad, first traveled through Radnor Township in 1832.

- Anthony Wayne Theatre
- Radnor Trail System
- Farmer's Market
- Wayne Hotel

Fun facts:

- Development in the area began when Cleaver's Landing, a railroad stop, was established, which was later renamed after General Anthony Wayne
- Development called Wayne Estate began growing into a town after the land on which it sat was purchased by A. J. Drexel (banker) and G. W. Childs (newspaper editor) in 1880

Downtown Wayne, located in Radnor Township, has had a family friendly environment since its beginning. The town was originally named Louella after founder J. Henry Askin's daughters, Louisa and Ella. The first inhabitants of modern Wayne were the Lenni Lenape Indians, quickly followed by 40 Quakers seeking religious freedom from Radnorshire, Wales, who settled the land between 1633 and 1635. In 1880 banker A.J. Drexel and newspaper editor G.W. Childs purchased the Louella land from the Askin family, and officially renamed the area Wayne after Gen. "Mad" Anthony Wayne, who grew up in nearby Paoli and served during the Revolutionary War.

Modern-day Wayne offers a rich cultural center. Many annual festivals, including the Main Line Jazz and Food Festival, Radnor Fall Festival, the Top Dog Show, Wayne's Old-Fashioned Christmas celebration and the Radnor Memorial Day Parade line the calendar with a dusting of light-hearted fun. Iconic structures such as the Art Deco-style Wayne Movie Theater, Gothic-style Wayne Presbyterian Church and Tudor revival-style Wayne Hotel offer a brief lapse in time to the curious onlooker.

Downtown Wayne has established itself as the place to go for quality dining. North Wayne Avenue is lined with unique restaurants such as Teresa's Café, Christopher's, Margaret Kuo's, White Dog Café and Matador.

Students throughout Wayne attend Radnor High School, Conestoga High School, Upper Merion Area High School, Archbishop John Carroll High School, The Shipley School and the Agnes Irwin School. Post-secondary institutions include Cabrini University, Eastern University and The Valley Forge Military Academy and College.

7th annual Wheels of Wayne a huge success

It was a beautiful Sunday for the 7th annual Wheels of Wayne event on May 19.

Tracey Krum with the Radnor Township Recreation & Community Programming Department they were excited to hold the event.

"Thousands of members from the community came out to enjoy the car show. This year we had 20 awards to potentially win with a few new categories like Best In Show overall and the Township Manager's Award," she said. "We cannot do these events without the support from our Board of Commissioners, township manager, township staff, sponsors, vendors, and volunteers. We have already started to plan for our 8th Annual Wheels of Wayne in 2020 and we cannot wait to deliver another fantastic event."

- Devon Horse Show (late May-early June)

Fun facts:

- Hosted the Valley Forge Music Fair from 1955 to 1996

Charming Devon, named after England's Devonshire, holds several distinguishing landmarks. Jenkins Arboretum and the Devon Horse Show and Country Fair grounds all lie within Devon's jigsaw borders.

The Devon Horse Show, the oldest and largest multi-breed horse competition in the United States, is held annually in late May to early June. Opening in 1896 as a one-day event, featured guests have included Vice President Calvin Coolidge, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, movie legend James Cagney and actor Jonathan Frid, who drew 20,000 fans to the fair-ground, marking the highest day of attendance at the fair.

While Conestoga High School and Tredyffrin-Easttown Middle School are located in the Berwyn zipcode area, fellow Tredyffrin-Easttown School District schools Devon and Beaumont Elementary Schools are located within Devon.

Devon Yard, a development with upscale shops and restaurants, recently opened in the former Waterloo Gardens site near from the Devon Horse Show grounds.

- Town developed around an inn run by Joshua Evans in the 18th century who named it after a Corsican general, Pasquale Paoli
- Chubby Checker, known for "The Twist" in the '60s, lives on the outskirts of Paoli
- M. Knight Shyamalan owns an estate in Willistown

Paoli's bustling downtown serves as the meeting place for many commuters, as well as a shopping hub and place for family friendly dining. Nudy's Café, right across the road from SEPTA's Paoli/Thorndale line, offers a fun breakfast stop, and the nearby Wawa stands in for those in a rush. TJ's Restaurant & Drinkery features a unique offering of dishes along with a drink suggestion for each option on the menu, making for a fun, light-hearted dinner.

The annual Paoli Blues Fest always brings a crowd ready to enjoy the live music and food from local vendors.

Historically, Paoli is known for being the birthplace of notable Gen. "Mad" Anthony Wayne, who served with Gen. George Washington during the Revolutionary War. Paoli is also the namesake of 18th-century Corsican hero Pasquale Paoli, whose bust is displayed at the Paoli Library.

- Annual Memorial Day Parade is tied for the oldest of its kind in the country, having started in 1869

Malvern is a thriving mix of residential neighborhoods, retail and industrial business, open land and many civic, cultural and religious organizations. Malvern Borough is home to 3,000 individuals, many of whom utilize the Paoli/Thorndale SEPTA line and easy access to Route 202 in their daily commutes.

Malvern offers a rich historical influence to visitors. The area, originally settled by Welsh immigrants in the 1800s who purchased the land from William Penn, is also the site of the Paoli Massacre.

The bustling town of Malvern offers a surplus of restaurants, shops and residential spaces. On the east end of King Street lies the Eastside Flats, a four-story luxury apartment complex that opened in 2013. Nearby, the Great Valley Corporate Center holds both a Wegmans and a Target, along with six hotels. For those who prefer a more rural setting, the Chester Valley Trail offers several miles of green walking and cycling space.

Malvern offers a unique living environment, fueled by a rich fusion of historical and modern attractions.

Fun facts:

- Has had many past names (Cocheltown, Reeseville, Glassley and Gaysville); received current name in 1877 when a Welsh settler proposed that it be named after Berwyn Hills, a village in Denbighshire, Wales

Berwyn Village is home to many popular restaurants and shops: The Footlighters' Theater, the oldest community theater on the Philadelphia Main Line; Easttown Public Library; and popular Handel's Ice Cream store stand as the gathering place for students leaving the nearby highly-ranked Conestoga High School and T/E Middle School.

The Berwyn/Daylesford mansion, once home to world-renowned American painter Mary Cassatt and her family, is now one of the largest YMCA complexes in Pennsylvania. The Berwyn-Paoli Little League's Field of Dreams and Jenkins Arboretum and Gardens offer several outdoor activities.

Prior to 1877, the town had been referred to as Cocheltown, Reeseville, Glassley and Gaysville. The name Berwyn was finally settled upon by Welsh settlers who named it after the Berwyn Hills in their home of Wales.

Suburban Square in Ardmore has integrated seamlessly with the independent shops in town.

Main Line shopping centers offer mix of mom and pop shops, big-box retailers

By Gary Puleo
gpuleo@21st-centurymedia.com

Lancaster Avenue has been gracefully evolving into a mix of the quaint shops that still trade in neighborliness as much as they do unique services and goods and the gleaming commercial giants that are moving in.

They're all thriving, collectively side-by-side as the one and only destination known as the Main Line.

"I think the Main Line as a set of communities is a very powerful brand and I think people really connect with it," noted Bernard Dagenais, President and CEO, Main Line Chamber of Commerce.

"There's an interesting mix of retail throughout the Main Line and a lot of businesses continue to do well and they're evolving. The difference between what you'll find on Main Street, which, in our case, is Lancaster Avenue, Route 30, is that they're going to be one of a kind stores that you're not going to find in other places."

Geographically, what defines the Main Line?

"The definition of Main Line is really the Route 30 corridor, from a kind of a city border out to Exton and Frazer, and that's how I would describe the Main Line," Dagenais said.

"But these borders are not hard borders; they're not even drawn on a map when it comes to the Main Line. It's not even as hard of a border as the county, and that's not a hard border either in my opinion. People do business across county lines, so it doesn't really matter."

Contrary to prevailing opinion, "the mall has not shut down Main Street USA. They're co-existing," he said. "The King of Prussia Mall has obviously got a lot of great shopping options, but there's still room for independent retail in strong residential areas. This all means foot traffic for stores that are one of a kind ... clothing stores, boutiques, selling a wide variety of different products, different than what you might find at Victoria's Secret or any retailer that you could find in any city across the nation.

"Many of the stores have found a good niche and are doing quite well. There are stores throughout Narberth, Wayne, Bryn Mawr. We had a hardware store in Bryn Mawr close down within the last couple of years, a hardware store in Narberth closed down. So the big box hardware stores have definitely put some smaller stores out of business. But there's a great hardware store on the backstreets of Wayne, Do It Best Hardware, that seems to be doing extremely well. They drive on service. I had something done there and it was a very different experience than you'd have at a Lowe's or a Home Depot. I was very impressed and I want to go back and do more business with those folks. It was that old-style hardware store and there are so few of them out there."

Dagenais cited another Wayne icon, the recently relocated state store Fine Wine & Good Spirits, now nestled away off of Lancaster Avenue in the Gateway Shopping Center.

"It's kind of a cutting edge store of the future type thing," he said. "There's a lot going on because a lot of people live there and businesses rise up to serve the individuals who are there. Businesses need to evolve, but there's still a place for that old-fashioned [philosophy] where you walk into a business and they know your name and you might find things there that you won't find in other places. People really appreciate that experience. Maybe more so now because it's not as common.

"There's also a great locksmith, Dayton Lock Company, for example, that's been on Lancaster Avenue forever which is very successful. They have parts that you just don't find anywhere and can help you with your mailbox, your doors, locks, keys; that's all work that they do. These are trusted businesses in the community that you know are going to help you. There are these great family-owned businesses that have a nice niche."

Ardmore has been in the midst of a revival, he allowed.

"There's new residential and more people are moving to Ardmore, so there's a lot going on there. Every town kind of has its own flavor but Ardmore is kind of unusual because the main community — the village is not on Route 30. It sits in kind of in an enclave.

"There are a lot of good stores there that are doing quite well and they're very unique; not that there aren't a lot of national retailers. Suburban Square has some of the national retailers. Suburban Square is a reason to go to Ardmore, and once you're in Ardmore there's a good chance to see some of these independent stores that are nearby as well. Suburban Square is going very strong and is going through a major renovation right now. They created a parking garage to accommodate more parking. Suburban Square fits into the community. It benefits Ardmore and creates a destination, and that's good for any business, whether it's a bar or restaurant or somebody who is a retailer on Lancaster Avenue."

Now in its 91st year of business, Suburban Square, East Montgomery Avenue and Anderson Avenue, Ardmore, touts a legacy that took root decades before mixed-use outdoor shopping plazas achieved their commercial dominance.

"The center opened as one of the United States' first lifestyle shopping centers, a non-enclosed pedestrian friendly shopping center in the suburban market," noted Tom Simmons, President, Mid Atlantic Shopping Center of Kimco Realty Corporation.

"Kimco bought the center a little over 10 years ago," Simmons noted.

Suburban Square is in the midst of reinventing itself with several stages of redevelopment to suit changing consumer needs.

"The first phase was a modernization of the Central Courtyard, which was probably finished about five or six years ago. The second redevelopment phase started about three years ago when we had the opportunity to purchase Macy's lease from Macy's," Simmons said. "We also constructed a 700-space parking deck on site, to accommodate the increased foot traffic we thought would be generated by the replacement of the Macy's with a true anchor, Life Time Athletic. The overall performance of our asset has improved drastically since bringing Life Time Athletic in, as opposed to Macy's."

Other occupants of Suburban Square include Banana Republic, Dandelion, Francesca's Collections, Inc., Free People, Kitchen Kapers, Lilly Pulitzer, Lululemon Athletica, Paper Source, Starbucks, Ruby's Diner, Trader Joe's and Ten Thousand Villages.

"We have a mixture of experiential retailers ... some are fine clothiers while others are more every day uses. I think as people are coming to understand the tenant mix and the gathering places we've created, they've been very receptive to both," noted Simmons, who indicated that Suburban Square has increasingly harmonized with the modern notion of what a lifestyle town center should be.

"For us, town centers have a better sense of place, a community gathering place," Simmons said.

The other giant now booming amiably among the cozy mom and pop retailers is the recently launched One Ardmore Place.

"One Ardmore Place is putting a lot of feet on the street," Dagenais noted. "It's basically across the street from Suburban Square."

Developer Carl Dranoff's website, dranoffproperties.com, describes the residences at One Ardmore Place as setting “a new standard for apartment living on the Main Line. This superbly designed mixed-use building – conveniently located on Cricket Avenue – brings new energy and excitement to the neighborhood. Offering 110 high quality one-, two- and three-bedroom rental apartments, 8,450 square feet of ground floor retail and both covered public and private parking. In addition, residents enjoy state-of-the-art amenities, elegantly furnished communal spaces, a landscaped terrace, recreation area, and the ultimate walkable location near many restaurants, shops and transit.”

On the traditional Main Line, “which is really the Route 30 corridor, probably one of the biggest developments is that we see some single family homes and some multi-family homes go in and the other biggest development is the expansion of Villanova University, which is what used to be a parking lot, and is now shops, a theater and parking garage under construction.”

Main Line condo, apartment purchases on the rise

SUBMITTED PHOTOS

By Lucas Rodgers

lrogers@21st-centurymedia.com

The housing market in the Main Line continues to boom, but the preferences of home buyers and renters have been changing.

Lately there has been a rising trend of home buyers favoring condos or apartments instead of single-family homes.

Janis Peterson, a Realtor who has more than 25 years of experience in the industry and currently works at Main Line Homes in Haverford, said there are a number of factors driving this trend.

Peterson said she's personally seen the sales of condos and apartments increasing. In Lower Merion, where she lives, so much of the new construction is for apartments and condos, she said.

In the Philadelphia suburbs, there's not as much open land available as more rural areas, so it makes sense to build condos and apartments, rather than big houses, she said.

"You can see condos all the way up Route 30 all the way to Malvern and Paoli," she said.

Peterson said a few of the Main Line towns that are becoming more and more popular in the real estate market include: Ardmore, Wayne, Bryn Mawr, Lower Merion and Wynnewood.

"People are looking for more walkable areas, and they don't want to have to drive far away," she said.

These towns are attractive to millennials and transplants from Philadelphia because they're very walkable and close to public transportation so residents can stay close to the city and save on expenses such as car insurance and wage taxes, she added.

"While the Main Line has some of the most expensive zip codes in the country, it attracts buyers who want the additional amenities that the larger homes offer," Peterson said.

The Main Line has proximity to the city and all the wonderful things the city has to offer but while still providing a suburban environment for residents, she said.

"Proximity to the city of Philadelphia is a great plus along with: proximity to local highly rated restaurants, museums, and gardens, such as Chanticleer, Stoneleigh, Jenkins Arboreturn; and world class entertainment, like the Philadelphia Orchestra, etc.," she said.

"People want to travel," she added. "They don't want a car anymore."

Towns in the Main Line also tend to have popular restaurants and breweries, such as Tired Hands Brewing Company in Ardmore, which make them attractive places to live, Peterson said.

Younger folks are increasingly opting for condos or apartments because they don't want the upkeep that goes along with having a big house and yard, and they want the freedom to go out and travel, Peterson said.

"A lot of people want things already done," she said. "They don't want to do restoration."

Peterson said there's a big apartment complex in Narberth right behind Lancaster Avenue that has become a popular place to live.

One Ardmore Apartment Homes is another apartment complex that's attracting a lot of new residents, she added.

"It's literally right by the train station, which makes it really great for commuters," she said.

Home buyers of all ages seem to be trending toward apartments and condos rather than single-family homes, she said.

Senior citizens who are established in the community are moving into 55-and-older living communities so they don't have to deal with the maintenance of a house, and they can enjoy the facilities included in such communities, Peterson said.

"A lot of baby boomers are reaching retirement age and want to pare down, rather than keep a big house," she said.

"Some people are downsizing, some don't want to own, and would rather have their money be liquid."

The Main Line offers great housing options for seniors as well as younger folks who just want to get started with an apartment or condo and maybe eventually buy a house, she said.

While millennials and folks moving out of the city may be looking for apartments or condos, some families with children are still seeking the amenities that go with single-family homes, she said.

“As the city dwellers with younger children move to the suburbs, not only do they want great schools, but also homes with yards for the children,” she said.

“Additionally, there are so many options for top public education, but also many top private schools ... and colleges as well.”

The Main Line has some of the top-rate school districts in the state, such as Tredyffrin/Easttown, Radnor, Lower Merion and Wallingford-Swarthmore.

She said the Main Line’s proximity to both metropolitan and rural areas make it a great place to live.

“It’s one of the best places to live,” she said. “You can go to New York City, Washington, D.C., shores lakes, and Amish Country are all close by.”

Peterson has sold properties in a wide range of places in the Philadelphia area, she said, but she specializes in Main Line real estate in communities in Montgomery, Delaware and Chester counties.

Stoneleigh continues to develop as a nature garden

PETE BANNAN-MEDIANEWS GROUP

By Richard Ilgenfritz
rilgenfritz@21st-centurymedia.com

In the short time it's been open, the Stoneleigh Natural Garden in Villanova has quickly become one of the Main Line's newest and most talked-about nature spaces.

But its life as a nature garden was nearly short-lived when it briefly faced an eminent domain threat from the Lower Merion School District. The district considered the site for a new middle school, but that threat disappeared after the school district purchased another nearby estate mansion that will instead be demolished for the new school.

Over the next few years, the district will convert the newly purchased former Claremont Estate at 1860 Montgomery Ave. into the school.

The demolition of one Villanova estate is what helped save the garden at Stoneleigh and its historic mansion.

With that brief eminent domain threat now in the rear view mirror, Natural Lands, owners of the Stoneleigh site, can focus on continuing to make its improvements to the site.

In a recent walkthrough of the site with Ethan Kauffman, director of Stoneleigh, he said a lot of work had been done on the gardens over the past couple of years.

Since improvements on the gardens began, Kauffman estimated that about 25,000 different plantings have been made on the site 42-acre site. That includes about 1,500 different types of plants.

“When we came to Stoneleigh, there were about 300 on the property,” he said.

The Stoneleigh property is one of the classic old Main Line estates.

The mansion dates back to 1877 when Edmund Smith, an executive with the Pennsylvania Railroad, purchased 65 acres. When Smith died, Samuel Bodine purchased the site. Bodine ran the United Gas Improvement Company.

In 1932, portions of the property were subdivided. The area with the mansion was sold to Otto Haas, co-founder of Rohm and Haas Company.

John and Chara Haas, Otto’s son and daughter-in-law, acquired the property in 1964 and raised their family there.

Following their deaths in 2011 and 2012, the property was donated to Natural Lands in 2016. Over the next 18 months, crews were brought in and prepared the property for the grand opening on Mother’s Day weekend last year.

Although it’s open now as a public garden, work and improvements are still being done on the site.

According to Kauffman, it takes years for a new garden to take hold fully and so far they are at about 2 ½ years into the process for Stoneleigh.

With the gardens at Stoneleigh still being relatively new, some of what they will do is to experiment and see what works.

In the area of the gardens that has been called the Great Meadow, they were planning on letting it grow wild through the summer and then decide about cutting paths through it.

One of the first things visitors will see at Stoneleigh as they enter the main public parking lot on County Line Road are some new plantings.

In the area of the former pool house that has since been converted to rest-rooms for garden visitors, there is a small circle garden that Kauffman described as a nod to the much larger circle garden on the property nearby.

When deciding on what to plant, Kauffman said there are several things to consider.

"When you deal with native plants, it's not always about the flowers," he said. "We look at things like foliage color, texture, height variation all of these different things to add to the display."

On one side of the mansion, prickly pear cactus plants are growing. They are the only native cactus plants to Pennsylvania, he said.

Also, near the mansion, there were yellow sun drop flowers that can attract butterflies to the garden.

Kauffman said in the summer of 2019 they were scheduled to begin adding a water feature and an associated garden. It will be built where the mansion's tennis courts had been located.

"It'll be a really nice garden area hopefully by the end of this year," Kauffman said.

Another thing in the same area will be a covered pavilion seating area for 16 to 18 visitors where they can bring food for snacks.

At the pergola, there will be new plantings with lots of perennials

Along with visitors stopping by to see the gardens, many people come by Stoneleigh to help, and volunteer said Mae Axelrod, media relations for Natural Lands.

"There are regular volunteer efforts," Axelrod said. "Volunteers stop by to help with planting and gardening projects. It is not only a chance for folks to volunteer and do a little work with us but to help them learn about sustainable gardening practices."

Some of the volunteers are individuals and some are groups such as student groups that come to help out.

Main Line senior centers help aging adults stay physically and mentally active

By Victoria Ebner

For MediaNews Group

The Main Line is helping to dispel the notion that seniors typically take on a sedentary lifestyle, offering unique, fun programs that all focus on keeping seniors regularly active.

When thinking about senior activities, most people think of walking in the park, bingo and crafting. But on the Main Line, seniors can enjoy a much larger variety of programs.

One example is at the Wayne Senior Center, where instructor Danielle Foley leads a class called Dance Yourself Fit — a dynamic combination of yoga, cardio and dance, all to the tune of fun, rhythmic music like Cher, Mamma Mia and even more contemporary artists like Ariana Grande.

“What the students often say is that ‘I love this so much, it doesn’t feel like I’m exercising. I feel like I’m just having fun,’” Foley said.

Foley said the class was started almost a year ago and aims to provide participants with a more vigorous workout than some of their other exercise programs. It is held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9:15 a.m. and is available to the public at a cost of $5 per class.

“If you don’t like to go to the gym or go on the treadmill, it’s a great way to exercise,” she said. “It’s a great way to have fun and work all the muscles in your body.”

And if dancing to pop isn’t your style, the center also offer a Tai Chi class to help with balance and stress management 2.p.m. Thursdays, a routine-based Line Dancing class 10:30 a.m. Fridays and an upbeat Tap Dancing 12:30 p.m. Fridays.

“There’s plenty of people that like to go to the gym and use machines,” she said. “But if you find yourself in the different group ... these are different

She also said that this is especially important for older adults to keep their brains working and memories strong. "As we age it's very important to learn new things ... it's good for brain health," she said. "Doing something new out of your routine is a good thing."

Wayne Senior Center isn't the only facility on the Main Line looking to spice up exercise for older generations.

New Horizons Senior Center in Narberth teaches a class called Folk Dancing Aerobics 1 p.m Tuesdays. Seniors learn basic folk dance moves from different cultures around the world under the instruction of Oliver Larmi, who has been folk dancing internationally his whole life before moving to the area.

After Music Week ended Aug. 8, the center took a summer hiatus that will end Sept. 3. Class will resume in early September.

"People have been enjoying the class," Ringold said. "We want more people to come out."

The Main Line also offers other one-of-a-kind programs that enrich seniors not just physically, but mentally as well.

At Main Line Adult Day Center in Bryn Mawr lives a program simply called The Club — a group for adults in the early stages of Alzheimer's and dementia. The group has been running since April.

Family Services and Project Coordinator Elizabeth Dyke said the program is unlike any in the surrounding Main Line cities because none of the others focus on the early stages of these illnesses.

"The program does a tremendous job of highlighting the members' capabilities and independence while expanding

The program is for adults that aren't fit for an ordinary senior center and it is open to any adult as long as they register online.

Whether seniors participate in programs working out their mind or ones working out their body, Dyke said it is important for both to be a part of every senior's life.

Preventative medicine: helping children and adults

SUBMITTED PHOTO
Dr. Forman with a baby

By Linda Stein
lstein@21st-centurymedia.com

We all want to stay well. To that end, doctors give their patients advice but getting them to take that advice is another story.

"It's not an easy thing to do," said Dr. Gary Gilman, an internist with Lankenau Medical Associates. "Frankly, it's like baseball in the sense that if you're hitting .300, you're failing seven out of 10 times. Often we are unsuccessful getting people to make those changes."

However, Gilman said that he and the other doctors in his practice spend a large part of their time talking to their patients about how to get healthy or stay healthy. Some of the topics include weight loss, smoking cessation and exercising more. With weight loss, the most effective strategy is for the patient to have his or her own motivation to lose weight, he said.

"That can be very effective," he said. "I really want patients to lose weight, not because the doctor told them to, but to have their own reasons to lose weight," he said. "And I don't like to put in terms of losing weight. [Instead think of] 'lifestyle modification. [Eating healthy foods and] 'not worshipping numbers on a scale.'"

It's 80 percent diet and 20 percent exercise, he said.

"I like patients to have their own input," he said. "There are fad diets left and right" and "no one size fits all."

But "the white devils: bread, rice, pasta and potatoes" should be avoided if you are dieting.

Otherwise, "just do things in moderation. That's where I like to start. I want patients to take ownership of it, to take control of their lives," he said.

Too many times we respond to stress by "comfort eating," like finishing a whole bag of chips during an Eagles game. Instead be "mindful" of what you're eating.

And if you've had a lousy day at work, drive yourself to the gym, rather than to a bar.

"Nobody is ever upset they worked out," he said. But they are "upset that they ate too much pizza."

"Take someone with borderline diabetes," said Gilman. "The choice is, I tell the patients, 'Would you rather do something on your own to prevent that from happening, or the next few years, I prescribe different medications or hospitalize you?'"

By taking some “preventative measures that [diabetes] will never happen,” he said. If not, you’ll be in “in the cath lab or down the line on dialysis. You have some control over the situation. Just because your mother or father developed diabetes, does not mean that you have to. You have the chance to control the trajectory of your own life.”

Another part of preventative medicine is making sure adults’ vaccinations are up to date.

“Everybody after 65 gets one or two pneumonia vaccinations,” he said. “The same thing goes with shingles.” Otherwise, “One in three people develop shingles. The newer vaccination for shingles reduces it by 90 percent.”

Not smoking is “obviously a very big part of preventative medicine, too.” Just as with obesity, “you want the person to be motivated to quit. If the patient is not ready to quit smoking, you’re not going to make it happen. Everybody knows the hazards of smoking. That became uncontroversial decades ago.

They know intellectually they’re harming themselves.”

And there are the “same triggers as over eating such as stress and being ready to quit.”

It can work to set a date to stop smoking, like New Year’s, he said. There are also medications that are helpful, as well.

“It’s highly addictive,” he said. “Some people have stronger will power than others. Other people relapse. You need to individualize. The same with diet and exercise. Get them to take ownership and do what works for them.”

“If not for health reasons but because their daughter is getting married,” she said. “I’ll go with whatever works for them.”

And if the person does lose weight for the wedding they will see that their knees don’t hurt or their heartburn goes away.

“I’m interested in seeing sustainable weight loss, a pound a week may not seem like a lot but in four months you can lose 20 pounds,” he said. On the other hand, losing and regaining weight, is not good because it can slow down your metabolic rate.

Dr. Andrew Forman, a pediatrician with Pediatric Associates of Paoli, said that preventive medicine is a large part of his job.

He gives parents “anticipatory guidance” telling them what to expect from their baby, toddler, young child, older child or teenager.

He talks about toddlers and pool safety and about car seats, he said. Avoiding choking hazards is another warning, he gives.

And with teenagers he talks about guns, sex, alcohol, drugs and vaping, he said.

“We’re keeping you healthy as a teenager so you become a healthy adult,” Forman said.

Sleep is another factor in preventing illness.

Forman talks to parents of infants about getting their new babies on schedules with consistent bedtimes.

For older children and teenagers, he advises removing television, computer, phone and video-game screens from their bedrooms to they can get enough sleep.

And, of course, vaccinations are also needed for children to stave off dangerous diseases.

While there are “pockets of people who don’t want to vaccinate, people are fairly amenable to things in this area. We don’t have any non-vaccinators.”

ment, Villanova University's website, villanova.edu, noted that "Villanova continues to be a University on the move with its dramatic transformation of campus. The next addition to open — The Commons — will welcome its first residents as our newest complex this August. The much-anticipated enhancements to Mendel Field are almost complete and will be ready by the fall semester, while the Performing Arts Center is standing tall with its new stone façade and will be ready to open in early 2020. Final preparations are underway to ready The Commons, the new residence halls along Lancaster Avenue, for move-in for the first student residents in August 2019. The complex provides a variety of living options and includes apartments, suites and single rooms. Student-centered amenities include two fitness centers, collaborative workspaces and outdoor courtyards."

A full-service restaurant and grill serving the entire community will open at the corner of Lancaster and Ithan avenues this fall. The Refectory, a partnership between Villanova University and Zavino Hospitality Group, will provide a gathering space for students, faculty, staff, alumni, visitors and neighbors, and will serve "updated American classics in a sophisticated, family-friendly atmosphere." Parliament Espresso and Coffee Bar, a café serving grab-and-go options adjacent to the restaurant, will also open this fall.

The site also noted, "Scheduled to open in early 2020 and host its first performances in the fall, the Performing Arts Center will unite the University's artistic community under one roof, enriching Villanova's campus and enhancing opportunities across disciplines. Serving as home to the Villanova Theatre program, as well as other music, performance and dance activities, it will provide a destination where students, faculty, parents, alumni and members of the local community can share their passion for the arts. The new center will feature state-of-the-art performance spaces, including a 400-seat proscenium-style theater and a Courtyard Theater, classrooms to support education and artistic innovation, a dance studio and costume and scenery shops."

In nearby Wayne, a vital community has sprung up in the past decade, Dagenais pointed out.

"There's a lot of great shops and restaurants that have come into Wayne in a big way," he said. "There's a great baby store in north Wayne — Kids 'N' Kribs — that is very unique. You'll see some farmers' markets that occur in Wayne, and some markets that set up on a Saturday in Bryn Mawr and that brings foot traffic as well. There are a lot more suburban dining opportunities than there used to be. King of Prussia is not very far away, and the King of Prussia Town Center has added a lot more dining."

Lancaster Avenue, more than ever, is a regularly traveled road, which bodes well for all businesses along Route 30, Dagenais noted.

"So there's definitely an opportunity to see these shops that are on Lancaster Avenue as you're driving by, and there are some that are off the beaten path too that have a strong following as well."

Whether off-leash or on, the Main Line has a dog park for your furry friend

The desire for modern public amenities has led to the establishment of new types of attractions for residents across the Main Line.

One of these attractions has been the addition of dog parks and designated off-leash hours for dogs within the municipalities and townships covering the area.

The growing demand for dog-friendly environments has been seen across the Main Line, and many townships are starting to reflect this desire with ordinance changes and by tweaking park rules.

These parks are used throughout the year and prove very popular in the communities they serve, according to Tim Denny, Haverford Township Director of Parks and Recreation.

"Parks allow people and dogs to get outside in nature and meet other people, thereby strengthening the fabric of the community," Denny said. "Dogs need to socialize. It is fascinating to observe."

Some of these dog friendly areas are specifically labeled as dog parks, while others are multipurpose parks that have regulated systems of when dogs and dog owners may use the park.

The Main Line has a variety of off-leash dog parks and programs located in different townships within the area.

Harford Dog Park, operated and maintained by Radnor Township, is the only off-leash, unfenced dog park in Montgomery and Delaware counties that does not charge an annual registration or license fee for dog owners or their dogs, according to the park's website.

Even though the park's rules allow for outside use, it is specifically targeted for use by Radnor residents only because it is paid for by Radnor taxpayers.

This target base can also be attributed to the high amount of traffic which has developed inside and out of the park's site due to overuse by non-residents, according to Tammy Cohen, Radnor Township director of recreation and community programming.

Another park dog owners on the Main Line can go to is the Haverford Reserve Dog Park, located in Haverford Township.

Haverford Reserve Dog Park is the only completely fenced in park of its kind in the area that, similar to Harford Dog Park, does not charge fees for usage or licensing.

The park is 90 percent maintained by volunteers, dog owners, park users and through donations from supporters and features separate areas for both large and small dogs and naturally shaded areas, according to the park's website.

After the idea of a dog park was first discussed by township officials about 20 years ago, the park opened in 2010 with a mission to make dog owners feel valued in the community.

Though no other dog parks have been added since, township ordinances have been adjusted to allow dogs in other parks if they are on a leash.

Citing changes like these in other communities, the township has followed suit in trying to make parks in the area more friendly for dogs, dog owners and the community as a whole.

“Parks are perhaps the number one place the community gathers in 2019,” Denny said. “By including a dog park in our system, we are sending a message that everyone belongs and is valued.”

This difference between dog parks and dog friendly parks is typically seen by the regulations set as to where and when dogs can play off-leash, on-leash, or in some cases, parks where dogs are not allowed at all.

Drawing these distinctions allows for not just a higher level of activity for dogs and their owners, but elevated clarity as to where people can enjoy these amenities and where others who do not have pets can enjoy their time without these types of disturbances.

— Rolling Hill Park and West Mill Creek Park.

Both of these off-leash areas were approved by the township's Board of Commissioners as pilot programs in 2009.

Since then, the parks have seen registration numbers of around 200 dogs on an annual basis, according to Donna Heller, Lower Merion Township director of parks and recreation.

Unlike Harford Dog Park and Haverford Reserve Dog Park, these two parks have annual fees of $25 per dog for Lower Merion residents, and $30 per dog for non-residents.

Though off-leash programs like this have seen high levels of popularity in the communities they serve, dogs and their owners can find other opportunities to play and be a part of parks in townships across the Main Line that do not have parks specifically for this purpose.

These can be found at multipurpose parks like Teegarden Park in Tredyffrin Township, where the township approved off-leash hours for specific times in the day at a Board of Supervisors meeting in November 2018, according to the township's website

These hours are dawn to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday; dawn to 8:30 a.m., Saturdays; and dawn to 11:30 a.m. Sundays.

The reason these hours were designated were to make the multi-use park friendly for everyone, according to Hillary Mallory, Tredyffrin Township public works coordinator.

Allowing off-leash hours gives the community, dogs and dog owners a place to play and interact, while providing township residents time where they can use the park without unwanted interferences.

"I believe there is a higher level of satisfaction for all parties using the park," Mallory said.

For usage of these resources at Teegarden Park, the township assesses annual registration fees of $25 per dog for Tredyffrin residents, and $50 per dog for non-residents.

By changing the ways these parks can be used, dogs and dog owners are beginning to reap the benefits of exercise, socialization and relaxation in townships across the Main Line, according to Heller.
