Saint Dominic Academy names new president

Timothy Gallic

The Roman Catholic Diocese of Portland has announced that Timothy Gallic will be the new president of Saint Dominic Academy of Auburn and Lewiston, effective immediately. He succeeds Donald Fournier, who left the position in June after serving as president since 2014. Most recently, Gallic was principal of St. John XXIII College Preparatory, a coed, private high school in Katy, Texas.

Earlier this summer, Roger LaChapelle was named interim principal of Saint Dominic Academy's Auburn campus (Grades 6 through 12), while Alanna Stevenson was appointed as the new principal of the academy's Lewiston campus (Pre-K through Grade 5).

"Tim, Alanna, and Roger are dedicated to ensuring that the true Catholic identity of the school is preserved, and that all opportunities to build for the academy's future will be fully explored," said Marianne Pelletier, superintendent of Maine Catholic Schools. "Tim has a proven record of success in helping high schools successfully grow through nurturing relationships with parents and students, encouraging community engagement, and energizing his staff."

"I am honored and humbled to have been selected to lead St. Dom's and to continue its commitment to imparting our faith, celebrating academic excellence, and creating lifelong learners who will mature into confident contributors," said Gallic. "All of the elements of success exist at St. Dom's, and I look forward to working with our parents and guardians in preparing well-rounded, value-centered young people who will succeed in their future endeavors."

Prior to his time at St. John XXIII College Preparatory, Gallic was principal at Cardinal Mooney High School in Sarasota, Florida, and Holy Family High School in Broomfield, Colorado. In addition, he served as the national director of advancement at Saint Paul's Outreach, an organization that brings students around the country back to the fullness of the Catholic faith, and spent nearly 20 years as a high school teacher in New Jersey. Outside the classroom, Gallic was the owner and operator of St. Isidore Farms, a family-owned farm in Warren, New Jersey, from 1996 to 2009.

Gallic earned his bachelor's degree in arts and history from Rutgers University in New Jersey and holds a master's degree in school administration from the University of Scranton in Pennsylvania. He and his wife, Laura, have seven children and will reside in the Auburn area.

Out & About with Rachel Morin Auburn Community Concert Band Wraps Season at Schooner Estates

Simon welcomes Schooner residents and visitors to the Finale Concert.

Story and photos by Rachel Morin

Despite the looming threat of a downpour, a dauntless crowd assembled outside on the lawn at Schooner Estates Retirement Community in the early evening of Wednesday, August 28 for the Auburn Community Concert Band's Summer Finale.

A few scattered droplets fell on our sweatersand jackets, but we are Mainers, used to sudden changes in the weather, and no one budged. Conductor Milt Simon tuned up the band as the crowd settled in and waited for the concert to begin.

In keeping with their concert tradition, the band's first song was the National Anthem. The audience stood to greet Old Glory as flag bearer David Leclair came to the front. Popular trombone player Mark Jacobs led the audience in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Andro. Historical Society acquires portrait of Hannah Harrington (Frost) True

The Androscoggin Historical Society has recently acquired an oil portrait of the late Hannah Harrington (Frost) True to its collection. Mrs. True was the first wife of John Fogg True, inventor of the famous True's Elixir. The portrait was generously donated to the society by Phoebe Lowell of Lewiston,

Mrs. True was born on March 20, 1823 in Norway, Maine and married John Fogg True on May 3, 1846. She died on October 10, 1861 at the age of 38. She and her husband moved from Dexter, Maine to a home on Drummond Street in Auburn in 1854. That year, she won prizes from the Androscoggin County Agricultural Society for her picture frames and woolen hose. The couple had four children together: Henrietta Adelaide True, who married Henry Lowell; Abraham Frost True; Blanche Maude True, who married Walter I. Parsons; and Josephine E.

The portrait was painted by artist Amasa (Asa) Hewins, who was born in Sharon, MA on July 11, 1795 and died in Florence. Italy on August 18, 1855. He was living in the Boston area (Dedham) when he painted the portrait. It is probable that he traveled to Auburn, Maine and painted the portrait there.

True, who died at age 12.

Measuring 33 by 40 inches in its 2.5 inch-wide gold, gilded wood frame, the portrait shows her seated with a shawl over her right arm and her left hand on the book "Rose of Sharon." The portrait is now hanging in the Clarence E. March Library at the Androscoggin Historical Society.

Arata appointed to Commission to Study the Mental Health of Children in Maine

Representative Amy Arata, who represents District 65 in the Maine House of Representatives, has been appointed by the Speaker of the House to serve on a newly created Commission to Study the Mental Health of Children in Maine.

The commission will review federal and state laws, regulations, and policies governing the diagnosis and treatment of children with mental health issues. LD 40, which created the commission, was enacted as an emergency measure this year, signaling a strong level of bipartisan support by legislators.

"We hear more and more about the issues facing children today, and I'm interested to hear about successes that other states have had, especially rural states, to advance our response as a Legislature," said Arata, who will be the only Republican member of the House of Representatives to serve on the Commission.

In public testimony before the Health and Human Services Committee, lawmakers learned that the 2017 Maine Integrated Youth Health Survey indicated that 14.7% of high school students reported seriously considering suicide and 7.4% of Maine high school students reported attempting suicide at least once in the prior 12 months. Further, 15.6% of surveyed middle school students reported intentionally hurting themselves without wanting to die.

Only 22.5% of Maine's psychiatrists practice in rural counties, as opposed to 50% in Vermont and 37% in New Hampshire.

The Commission has its work cut out for them: no later than December 4, 2019, they are required to submit a report that includes its findings and recommendations, including suggested legislation, for presentation to the Legislature convening next in January of 2020.

Representative Arata also serves on the Joint Standing Committee on Appropriations and Financial Affairs and on the Government Oversight Committee. Her District 65 is comprised of New Gloucester and part of Poland.

Skyline Farm to host 5K Run-Walk Sep. 15

On Sunday, September 15 at 10 a.m., Skyline Farm will hold its sixth annual Benefit 5K Trail Run-Walk. The course consists of one loop through the trails at Skyline Farm and the neighboring Yarmouth Water District land.

The fee to register in advance is $20, payable at www.running4free.com. The fee to register on the day of the race (between 8:30 to 9:30 a.m.) is $25. The first 50 registrants will receive a free t-shirt. Fleet Feet Sports has generously donated $100 gift certificates for the top male and female finishers. Local sweet and savory pies will be awarded to the top male and female finishers in eight age categories.

New for this year is a kids' 1K Race, coordinated by Skyline's neighbor and runner Evan Hall and featuring prizes of pumpkins and gourds grown by Farm to Table Kids. For more information about the event, contact Jennifer at 415-6830 or info@skylinefarm.org.

Governor's Address: Special Session reminds us that compromise is not inevitable, no matter the merits

Two months ago, Republicans in the Legislature said that the price of my original bond proposal was too high. So, I reduced it.

They also said there should be four separate bills instead of one. So, we broke it into four different bills for them to vote on.

I then personally called lawmakers on both sides of the aisle, invited their questions, and offered to accommodate any objections. I thought we had arrived at a practical, responsible compromise that should have garnered bipartisan support.

Well, surprise, surprise, the bonds did not all pass.

The first bond that lawmakers considered during the Special Session on Monday, August 26 provided funding for equipment for our career and technical centers, for refurbishing and modernizing Maine National Guard facilities, and for expanding broadband to rural Maine.

Career and technical education centers haven't gotten significant funding for equipment since 1998. Our National Guardsmen deserve mission-ready facilities, not aging and outdated ones. Key areas of our state still don't have adequate internet to do things like telehealth and tele-education or just conduct normal business.

That's what we need to attract new businesses and young families and to support existing industries, including farming, fishing, and forestry, all of whom have to be online. They need internet access.

The second bond I proposed included funds

for municipal wastewater treatment, to remediate hazardous waste sites, and for loans for heat pumps for Maine homeowners.

Maine's wastewater treatment systems are desperately in need of updating. There are now more than 250 hazardous waste sites across the state that absolutely need to be cleaned up.

Heat pumps will certainly lower the cost of heating your home. If voters had been given the chance to approve this bond in November, heat pumps could have been available to homeowners with low-interest loans.

The third bond invested $20m over two years for the very popular Land for Maine's Future program, which guarantees public access to open lands for hunting, fishing, and outdoor recreation and preserves working waterfronts and family farms.

Nearly all of these programs had significant matching funds available. And historically low interest rates put Maine in a very strong position right now not next year, but right now - to finance these critical capital projects at very low

If we could have gotten these bonds out to bid as early as January or February, we might have been able to get interest rates as low as two percent or below.

I entered Monday's legislative special session with a good sense of hope. I hoped that legislators, regardless of party, would see the value of letting Maine people decide the fate of these bonds. And I certainly hoped that they would do so at a time when interest rates are so low.

Instead, a lot of people in the Legislature - Republicans in the House and Senate - just said no, with no real reason given.

No to expanding broadband for our rural areas

No to heat pumps.

No to conserving working waterfronts, family farms, and lands for

No to repairing our critical National Guard facilities.

No to providing equipment to career and technical education centers to train more people in the trades.

You know, in Maine, people expect and deserve better than that.

While the Legislature did pass our transportation bond so we can fix some of our aging roads and bridges, Maine people won't have a chance this November to vote for broadband, for land and waterfront conservation, or for the equipment to help young people gain work in the trades.

Compromise is not always easy. This Special Session reminds us that sometimes it's not inevitable, no matter the merits.

While I am disappointed, I will continue to fight for these priorities because they are what Maine people want and what our economy needs to grow.

Thank You, Janet Mills Governor

Paper sculpture workshop underway at Museum L-A

Artist Karen Brooks, standing near the post, introduces participants to the process of creating 3-D paper sculptures.

An eight-week 3-D Paper Sculpture Workshop led by artist Karen Brooks opened at Museum L-A in late August and will continue through October. The workshop will culminate in a celebration and exhibit of the art works created by the 12 participants. Admission to the celebration will be free and open to the public.

"These workshops are wildly popular," said Museum L-A program coordinator Denise Scammon. "We had space for 12 participants and a long wait list. Artist Karen Brooks is well known, and her work is admired by many.'

"It's exciting for me to see people delighted with creating paper art," said Brooks. "The museum is a great space for this workshop because of the resources available here. The museum exhibits will be inspiring for the participants.

This free workshop was made possible through a grant program called Seeding Vitality Arts in Museums. This initiative is funded by Aroha Philanthropies and was designed to support the development and expansion of successful creative aging programs. The goal is to inspire and enable older adults to learn, make, and share the arts in ways that arenovel, complex, and socially engaging. Museum L-A will host another SVA free senior art program in spring 2020.

Museum L-A is located in the Bates Mill Complex at 35 Canal Street in Lewiston, Maine. Entrance to the museum parking lot is on Chestnut Street. Hours of operation are Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information, call 333-3881.

Bishop celebrates Jubilee Mass in Lewiston for Dominican Sisters of the Roman Congregation

Sister Francesca Cloutier, OP, originally from Lewiston, and Sister Therese Demers, OP, originally from Skowhegan, have served as members of the order for 60 and 50 years, respectively.

Two members of the Dominican Sisters of the Roman Congregation, who together have served as members of the order for 110 years, marked their jubilees with a Mass celebrated by Bishop Robert P. Deeley at Holy Cross Church in Lewiston on Sunday, August 25.

Sister Francesca Cloutier, OP, who is originally from Lewiston, is celebrating her 60th jubilee, while Sister Therese Demers, OP, a native of Skowhegan, made her temporary commitment to the sisters 50 years ago.

"God has always been the one there in my life," said Sister Francesca. "I knew him when I was very little, and I always talked to him. When I entered the convent, it was just going to meet my loved one."

"He's the anchor that has sustained me all my life - in difficult moments and in good moments," said Sister Therese. "For me, God is always there."

Both sisters credit the presence of the Dominican Sisters in Lewiston Catholic schools for helping them recognize their call to religious life. Sister Francesca had the sisters as teachers both at St. Peter's School and St. Dominic High School, while Sister Therese, whose family moved from Skowhegan to Lewiston, first encountered them at St. Dom's.

Sister Therese began her religious formation in Brookline, Massachusetts, but then went to Rome, Italy, to complete her religious training. After returning to the United States, she taught elementary education, first in Brookline and then in Staten Island, New York. She made her final commitment to the Order in 1975, and was then assigned to Davenport, Iowa, where she continued to teach, while studying for her master's degree in counseling and theology.

She would go on to serve as a pastoral associate at several parishes in Iowa before returning to Maine in 1997, where she became coordinator of the Dominican Retreat House in Litchfield. She then took clinical pastoral education courses, which led to her becoming chaplain at Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston. She served there for 13 years, until retiring in 2016.

Sister Therese has also held leadership positions within her community and province, and in 2017 she was elected to serve as a general counselor for the congregation, a ministry that takes her around the world to meet with sisters.

Sister Francesca also began her religious formation in Brookline, but her postulancy took her to Mortefontaine, France. When she returned to Maine, she studied to become an educator. She taught in schools in Sabattus and Lewiston, as well as in Brookline, Rome, and Staten Island.

"I enjoyed teaching because I think it was a part of me," she said. "I love the children very much. They were precious to me, and to me, for all the years that I taught, all my students, they were the best that you could get. I loved them so much."

After teaching for 25 years, she, too, took courses in clinical pastoral education and was certified as a hospital chaplain, becoming a grief and bereavement counselor and director of pastoral care at a Staten Island Hospital. She retired in 2001 due to a spinal cord

During the Mass, Sister Francesca and Sister Therese renewed the vows they had made 60 and 50 years ago. Standing beside them, in addition to the bishop, was Isabel Barroso, prioress general of the Dominican Sisters of the Roman Congregation, Sister Isabel is based in Rome and traveled from a meeting in France to attend the Mass.

"To be able to celebrate important events in the lives of the sisters is important," she said. "That is a way of pointing out that you belong to a bigger family. My presence isn't me, but what I represent. I represent the larger family, so with my presence, all the other sisters are here to celebrate and be with them."

Brother Irénée Richard, OP, shared the Gospel reading during the Mass, while Sister Christine Plouffe, OP, led the Prayers of the Faithful. Sister Monique Belanger, OP, was the pianist, with music offered by the Holy Cross Church

At the conclusion of the Mass, the sisters were surrounded by well-wishers and many whose lives they have touched.

Lisbon Historical Society meeting

At the next meeting of the Lisbon Historical Society on Wednesday, September 11 at 7 p.m., society member and volunteer Bill Cizmar, who describes his childhood in Lisbon Falls in the 1950s and 60s as "Norman Rockwell-esque," will discuss how his journey into genealogy was aided by his love of history and his career in computing.

Cizmar and his wife divide their time between Tucson, Arizona and Lisbon. He has become a fixture at the Lisbon Historical Society, where he volunteers when in town. His interest in genealogy began when a son, in Grade 5 at the time, was assigned to report on his family history for class. His subsequent research turned up family ties to both the Mayflower and French royalty.

Free and open to the public, the program will take place at the society's headquarters in the MTM Center on School Street in Lisbon Falls. The parking and entrance are at the rear of the building. Doors will open at 6:30 p.m. and refreshments will be served. For more information, call 353-8510 or email Lisbonhistsoc@ gmail.com.

Trinity Episcopal Church welcomes new minister

The Rev. Sheila Seekins

Trinity Episcopal Church of Lewiston will celebrate new ministry with the Rev. Sheila Seekins on Sunday, September 8 at 4 p.m. The Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Brown, newly elected Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Maine, will lead the worship service and the Rev. Kerry R. Mansir, rector of Christ Church, Gardiner, will preach. A reception will follow the service. The church is located at 247 Bates Street.

The congregation is excited to partner with the Rev. Seekins in their ministry as a progressive 21st-century center of urban ministries and inclusive worship. The public is invited to join in this special celebration of new life and hope.

A Celebration of New Ministry honors both the ministry of the new rector and the ministry of the people of the congregation. It gathers the larger faith community together because shared ministry develops and is sustained in the context of connection with others.

The Rev. Sheila Seekins joins in life and ministry with the people of Trinity Episcopal Church as pastor, priest, and teacher. She comes to Trinity with great joy and gratitude and is looking forward to getting to know the life and people of Lewiston. She seeks always to follow the Holy Spirit's nudging. This path in life has formed her and called her to healing work and ministry.

The youngest of three siblings, Rev. Seekins grew up in Ohio, where she shared in woodworking, sewing, caring for cats and rabbits, tending the garden in summer, and putting up tomatoes in the fall. During summer, she loved to go to daily mass at the Catholic Church. Her mother was a first-generation French Canadian immigrant and her father was a sixth-generation Mainer.

That family history drew her to Maine. After work in nursing and a time of formation in a religious community, she moved to Seattle and earned a Master of Pastoral Ministry. She worked as Catholic hospital chaplain in several city hospitals, then returned home to Maine. She then worked as chaplain in a state mental health facility and in hospice home care.

In 1997, she was welcomed into the Episcopal Church. She worked in a psychiatric and substance abuse facility as a nurse while completing a Master of Divinity at Bangor Theological Seminary. She was ordained a priest in May of 2017 at St. John the Baptist Church in Thomaston.

"Da Vinci" robot joins CMMC team as surgical service grows

The purchase of "Da Vinci" (the robot's trademarked name) is just the most recent development in Central Maine Healthcare's growing surgical service.

A new surgical assist system in the form of an actual robot is coming to Central Maine Medical Center this fall, and doctors there say the new addition will give them advanced tools for use in a range of areas, including urology, bariatrics, and gynecology.

The purchase of "Da Vinci" (the trademarked name of the device) is just the most recent development in Central Maine Healthcare's growing surgical service. In the past year, CMH has hired new surgeons, realigned duties, and invested in facilities and technology to provide a broader range of services to all its locations, including Bridgton and Rumford Hospitals and the Topsham Care Center.

"We're committing to recruiting surgeons, providing some depth on the bench, so to speak, so that we can provide surgical services 24/7, including more services beyond CMMC," said Chief of Surgery Scott Johnson. "Technology like this robot is not only state-of-the-art and important to have from a quality standpoint, but it allows us to recruit doctors with a more modern skill set."

New bariatric, gastroenterological, and plastic surgeons are among those recruited in the last year, Johnson said. While much surgery continues to take place at CMMC, schedules and rotations have been updated so that surgeons are available to provide consultation, pre-op visits, and follow-ups at locations more convenient to patients. Surgical patients in the Lakes Region, for example, no longer have to drive to Lewiston for every visit.

"We are maturing this organization," said Johnson. "In surgery, we've moved into a very contemporary position. Technology is allowing us to put people into the right places,"

The Da Vinci robotic assist supports minimally invasive (laparoscopic) surgery with an advanced set of instruments and a 3D, high-definition view of the surgical area. It helps surgeons provide a consistent, high level of surgical skill and is typically used in surgeries of the pelvic floor, including bladder, prostate, rectal, and gynecological procedures.

The robot will report for duty at CMMC in October. A robot steering committee at the hospital will set priority guidelines for its use. And patients will be informed, pre-surgery, that their operations will come with a technological assist. For more information, see www.cmmc.org.

New rebate encourages Mainers to drive electric

A new $2,000 rebate announced recently by Governor Janet Mills is aimed at encouraging Mainers to choose electric vehicles as an opportunity to save money, reduce pollution that contributes to climate change and unhealthy air, and curb Maine's reliance on imported fossil

When combined with federal incentives, Maine residents can now get up to $9,500 off the purchase of a new electric vehicle.

With the measure, Maine becomes the 14th state to offer a rebate or tax credit on the purchase of electric vehicles. States with financial incentives for EVs have experienced 15-25% higher sales of plug-in vehicles compared to the national average.

The rebate will be offered by Efficiency Maine in coordination with car dealers across the state. It is funded by a legal settlement with Volkswagen aimed at reducing harmful air pollution from gas-powered cars and trucks, dating to Governor Mills' time as Attorney General.

Efficiency Maine has also been using funds from a separate Volkswagen settlement to invest in an expanded network of charging stations at key travel, commuting, and visitor locations across Maine.

An increasing number of Maine people are choosing to drive electric vehicles as more and more models are available and as the network of charging stations continues to grow. Electric car owners report that the vehicles are fun to drive and can save a lot of money in avoided maintenance costs and gasoline.

A survey of Maine electric car owners conducted in 2018 by the Natural Resources Council of Maine found that more than 1,300 Mainers own electric cars. The top two reasons reported for purchasing an electric vehicle were to reduce air pollution (76%) and to save money on gasoline (50%). More than 90% of those surveyed would recommend them to friends and family.

According to Dylan Voorhees, Clean Energy Director for the Natural Resources Council of Maine, Maine and New England have one of the cleanest electricity mixes in the country, so driving a vehicle powered by electricity from Maine's electric grid is "an absolute win for the environment."

According to a calculator available from the Union of Concerned Scientists, driving an electric car in Maine is the pollution equivalent of driving a gasoline-powered car that gets 107 miles per gallon.

or so, Milt regaled the audience with witticisms while introducing songs of the 1960s, 70s, and 80s, including music from Woodstock, which recently saw its 50th anniversary. The audience was right in tune, fondly recalling all these popular songs of yesteryear.

When the sky darkened and a few drops of rain were felt, Milt, with the impeccable timing of a conductor, decided it was high time for the traditional closing of the program. Flag bearer David Leclair paraded in the Stars and Stripes and, led by Mitch Thomas, the audience rose to its feet to sing "God Bless America." As the final strains faded away, down came the rain!

Minutes later, indoors in Schooner's spacious Village Green gathering place, all were warm and snug as they sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" while enjoying a retirement party for band conductor Milt Simon.

Many were relieved to hear that Milt is retiring from his day job and not the Auburn Community Concert Band.

CENTRAL MAINE MEDICAL CENTER NAMED AMONG TOP 50 CARDIOVASCULAR HOSPITALS IN NATION

Only Hospital in Maine to Receive Honor

Central Maine Medical Center (CMMC) has been named one of the nation's 50 Top Cardiovascular Hospitals by IBM Watson Health™ This is the first year that CMMC, with its Central Maine Heart and Vascular Institute (CMHVI), has been recognized, and it is the only hospital in Maine to receive the honor.

The Central Maine Heart and Vascular Institute is a center of excellence at CMMC, offering advanced cardiac and vascular diagnostic and treatment services, including interventional cardiology, cardiac surgery and cardiac arrhythmia management, as well as many other advanced procedures. Our expert team provides specialty care to inpatients at CMHVI and CMMC in Lewiston, while outpatient care is delivered from CMHVI's Lewiston offices and at other locations throughout central and western Maine. This recognition distinguishes CMMC for the high-quality care provided to patients as well as its ongoing commitment to quality and safety.

Corinne Buonomo and Gus Jaccaci arrive early.

Claudette and Gerry Martel never miss a performance.

Author of acclaimed memoir to speak at APL

Mira Ptacin's memoir "Poor Your Soul" chronicles her heart-wrenching decision whether to continue her pregnancy or undergo an abortion in the face of severe medical complications.

Auburn Public Library will present Mira Ptacin, author of the highly acclaimed memoir "Poor Your Soul," on Monday, September 9 at 5:30 p.m. Ptacin's book chronicles her decision to continue her pregnancy or undergo an abortion in the face of severe medical complications. It was named by Kirkus as a Best Book of

At age twenty-eight, Ptacin discovered that she was pregnant. Though it was unplanned, she embraced the idea of starting a family and became engaged to Andrew, the father. Five months later, an ultrasound revealed that her child would be born with a number of birth defects and no chance of survival outside the womb. She was given three options: terminate the pregnancy, induce early delivery, or wait and inevitably miscarry.

In her memoir, Ptacin pairs her story with that of her mother, who emigrated from Poland to the United States and also experienced grievous loss when her only son was killed by a drunk driver. Their interwoven stories portray a mother and daughter searching for strength in themselves and each other in the face of tragedy.

Ptacin's work frequently appears in Lenny Letter, Guernica, Tin House, Vice, New York Magazine, McSweeney's Internet Tendency, Creative Nonfiction, Poets & Writers, Slice Magazine, and other publications.

She is also the founder, host, curator, and executive director of Freerange Nonfiction, a Manhattan and (soon-to-be) Maine-based reading series and storytelling collective, which has been praised by CBS as one of the "Five Best Things To Do in New York," selected as a "Critic's Pick" by New York Magazine, and was voted "Best Nonfiction Reading Series" by Electric Literature.

She teaches memoir writing to women at the Maine Correctional Center and lives on Peaks Island, Maine with her husband, Andrew, son, Theo, and daughter, Simone.

Great Falls Forum kick-off about new advances in memory loss research

Dr. Andrew Kennedy, Assistant Professor of Chemistry and Biochemistry at Bates College, conducts research supported by the National Institutes of Health.

The Great Falls Forum will kick off its 2019-20 season on Thursday, September 19 at noon when Dr. Andrew Kennedy, Assistant Professor of Chemistry and Biochemistry at Bates College, will present a program called "Retooling the Genome to Treat Memory Loss."

The brain is made of molecules, which means its thoughts, emotions, and memories are made manifest by molecules. Advances in neuroscience are making it possible to reorganize how genes -including those that are critical for memory storage, maintenance, and retrieval - are used by the mind.

In his Great Falls Forum presentation, intended for a general audience and to be followed by an interactive discussion with audience members, Kennedy will explain how treatments of memory disorders and memory loss are emerging because processes that were once analyzed in purely abstract terms are now being examined from the perspectives of molecular chemistry and genetics.

Andrew Kennedy teaches courses such as

"Mechanisms of Memory and Organic Chemistry" at Bates College, where he is known, not only as a gifted teacher, but also, in the words of a recent student, as "a brilliant researcher, mentor, and friend."

A graduate of Providence College, Kennedy earned his Ph.D. in Drug Discovery, also referred to as Medicinal Chemistry, at the University of Virginia. He completed a Postdoctoral Fellowship in Neurobiology at the McKnight Brain Institute at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. His current research, supported by the National Institutes of Health, attempts to understand the chemical mechanisms that encode and maintain long-term memory.

Co-sponsored by the Sun Journal, Bates College, and LPL, the Great Falls Forum is a monthly brown-bag speaker series featuring state and regional leaders in public policy, business, academia, and the arts. Free and open to all with no reservation required, the programs take place in the library's beautiful Callahan Hall.

Coffee, tea, and bottled water are provided for a donation at the event. For more information, contact LPL Adult & Teen Services at 513-3135 or LPLReference@gmail.com.

Bates College Museum of Art to host gallery talk

Guest speaker Robert Flynn Johnson is portayed in this watercolor by DeWitt Hardy, c. 2015.

The Bates College Museum of Art will host a gallery talk by Robert Flynn Johnson, guest curator of the museum's current exhibition, "DeWitt Hardy: Master of Watercolor," on Friday, September 6 at 5 p.m.

After a long and distinguished career as curator of prints at the Achenbach Foundation, Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, Johnson remains active as a curator and author. The address he will deliver at Bates is called "A Journey, Not a Destination: The Triumphs and Frustrations of Four Decades as a Museum Curator."

The program is free and open to the public. A reception will follow at 6:30 p.m. The museum is located at 75 Russell Street in Lewiston. For more information, call 786-6158 or email museum@bates.edu.

"Outrageous Banjo" at Sawyer Memorial

Peter Mezoian

Sawyer Memorial in Greene will present Peter Mezoian and his "Outrageous Banjo" on Friday, September 13 at 2 and 7 p.m. Both shows are free and open to the public.

A talented instrumentalist who has performed as a feature act on theater and nightclub stages in America, England, and Japan, at music festivals, and on more than 50 different cruise ships, Mezoian plays the banjo with a smooth, lush tone, combining impressive technical prowess with a warmth and humanity that connects to all who

While the roots of his instrument are deeply associated with American popular music and jazz from the early 1900s, he is unusual among banjoists in finding innovative ways to successfully adapt his instrument to a wide variety of popular genres and styles.

Sawyer Memorial is at 371 Sawyer Road in Greene. For more information, call 946-5311 or see sawyer-foundation.com.

Senior College offers Food for Thought on service dogs

Speaker Eric Bellevance, with his service dog, Ike

LA Senior College will launch its seasonal Food for Thought program series on Friday, September 13 at noon with a presentation by Eric Bellevance and his service dog, Ike. Free and open to all, the program will take place in Room 170 at USM's Lewiston-Auburn College, located at 51 Westminster Street in Lewiston.

Eric Bellevance has a disability which significantly impairs his mobility. He applied for and was matched with his service dog, Ike, in 2015. Ike assists Eric by retrieving dropped objects, opening and closing doors, manipulating light switches, barking on command when Eric needs assistance, and other tasks.

Bellevance is frequently approached by people asking questions about service dogs. A few years ago, he was approached by a co-worker who asked if he would speak about service dogs at the annual convention of the Maine Fair Association. He developed a presentation that educates people about what makes a service dog different from other dogs; state and federal laws and rules applying to the dogs; and the rights and responsibilities of service dogs and their owners and the places they may visit. He appears free of charge for civic groups, businesses, and other interested parties. He can be contacted by email at Ikenme713@gmail.com.

Bellevance is a lifetime resident of Lewiston-Auburn. He attended the University of Southern Maine and work for the Maine Bureau of motor vehicles for 29 years. He has volunteered at Camp Sunshine in Casco, Maine for many years and recently began volunteering at Central Maine Medical Center.

For those who wish to have lunch, the cost is $8 dollars and a reservation is required before noon on Wednesday, September 11. To reserve, call 753-6510. Food can also be purchased at the campus café without a reservation.

Maine Music Society announces 2019-20 season

Mark your calendars now for a season of spectacular musical presentations. The Maine Music Society's Artistic Director John Corrie has selected an impressive array of songs and compositions to mark his final year with MMS.

Battle of the Blends XXVI will kick off this season on November 2, 2019 at 7:30 in its typical exuberant style. Year after year the amazing talent performing a cappella music blows audiences away. It is such a joy to present singers from around the state of Maine and beyond. This year's groups include the Deansmen (Bates College), Fermata NoWhere (Edward Little High School), Maine Music Society Chamber Singers, None of the Above, Northern Pitch and Vocal Solution. What a lineup! You just can't miss this popular concert of a cappella

On December 14 and 15, 2019 at 3:00 pm, the MMS Chorale will present Heritage Holidays featuring the exquisite Christmas cantata: Hodie by Ralph Vaughan Williams. Hear this extraordinary setting of the familiar Christmas story composed by one of the most beloved British composers. In addition the Chorale will perform seasonal Chanukah songs and Christmas carols. We'll conclude this festive concert with the traditional audience sing-along. Come usher in your holidays with us!

The performance of Beethoven's 9th Symphony on March 29, 2020 at 4:00 pm in the magnificent Basilica of Saints Peter and Paul will undoubtedly be the highlight of the musical season. The Maine Music Society Chorale and Orchestra will once again join music-making forces with the Bates College Choir and Orchestra, the Schola Cantorum of the Basilica of Saints Peter and Paul and the chamber choirs of Edward Little and Lewiston High Schools to present the monumental 9th Symphony by Ludwig van Beethoven. The year 2020 marks the 250th anniversary of Beethoven's birth. It is a most fitting way to celebrate this composer by performing his last symphony, which includes the triumphant choral last movement - the "Ode to Joy."

In the last concert of the season, A Gala Farewell, on May 17, 2020 at 3:00 pm, John Corrie and the Chorale will continue to Make Music Soar by presenting many of their favorites from the past 14 years. You are sure to hear a number of familiar and beloved songs. Join us as we sing a fond farewell to a fabulous director!

We look forward to seeing you at these concerts for a year of truly memorable musical experiences.

All of the concerts are in the Gendron Franco Center except for Beethoven's 9th Symphony.

New season subscriptions go on sale September 16 giving buyers a choice between two subscription packages:

A. 4-Concert Subscription with 30% off price before handling fee - Each 4-Concert subscription includes a ticket to one performance of each of the concerts plus a free flex pass good for one additional ticket to the Heritage Holidays Concert. Use it to introduce a friend to the Maine Music Society.

B. 3-Concert Subscription with 20% off price before handling fee - Each 3-Concert subscription includes a ticket to one performance of any three concerts of your choice.

Individual ticket sales will start on September 30.

Group rates: 20% off price before handling fee for 10 or more tickets to the same performance when purchased at the same time.
