Aitkin County CARE commitment to seniors, disabled

By ANN SCHWARTZ
Aitkin County CARE has some positive changes this fall and some reorganization to help it continue its mission of serving Aitkin County's senior citizens and disabled adults.

Lynne Jacobs recently signed on as the new director. She most recently hails from Rippleside Elementary in Aitkin where she was an administrative secretary for 10 years.

"The adventure at CARE is nothing short of exciting," said Jacobs in an interview. "Aitkin County CARE provides services to elderly as well as disabled adults — allowing them to stay in their homes longer and with dignity. This nonprofit is a community-oriented organization that promotes helping one another. Our job at CARE is to coordinate services such as homemaking, respite care, chores, rides for health, and meals on wheels by matching those in need with the appropriate volunteers."

"My employment history is filled with public service and that coupled with self-driven motivation makes me a good match for CARE," continued Jacobs. "Just recently we hired Mike Eisenbraun, former manager of Shopko, as the new program coordinator. We also have Terri Mathis, the assistant director, who is supervising our respite care and homemakers. We have a dynamite team that will do our very best for the seniors and disabled adults of Aitkin County."

Betty Jacobs, the longtime, outstanding program coordinator, has moved on to retirement and that position is now full-time with the addition of Eisenbraun, making it three full-time staff to run all the programs. CARE also has Wendy Sandberg, its nursing advisor, and about a dozen respite workers who serve clients in their homes. Four Senior Companions also are based from the CARE office.

"I've always had a calling to promote the dignity and well-being of older and disabled adults," said Eisenbraun. "Being a man of faith, I strive to be that 'bright light' for all to see. My position as Program Coordinator for Aitkin County CARE allows me to do just that. I look forward to the challenges this job will present as I begin a new career. I'm excited to get to know all the volunteers who work so hard to help CARE provide these services to those in need, as well as those who take advantage of the many programs that CARE has to offer."

CARE continues to offer many programs for seniors including nutrition, friendly visits, transportation, health and exercise classes, respite care, homemaking and much more.

Midge-borne virus causes death of wild deer in Stearns County

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has confirmed the first two cases of epizootic hemorrhagic disease (EHD) in wild white-tailed deer in Minnesota. EHD is a viral disease that is spread by a biting insect called a midge.

"All of our neighboring states have been dealing with EHD for years," said Lou Cornicelli, DNR wildlife research manager. "So it was always a question of when it would show up in Minnesota."

The DNR suspects several deer in the St. Stephen area have recently died from EHD. Tests from two of the deer were positive for EHD; other deer were too decomposed to test. The outbreak is limited to Stearns County. The disease incubates for 5-10 days, and most infected deer die within 36 hours of exhibiting symptoms.

"EHD is both naturally occurring and seasonal," Cornicelli said. "Given our cold temperatures, we can expect to see a shortened period of infection as frost will kill both the virus and midge that carries it."

The Minnesota Board of Animal Health confirmed EHD in two captive deer in Houston County on Sept. 5. Those cases appear unrelated to the Stearns County case. The disease first appeared in Minnesota captive deer in October 2018, when BAH confirmed it in six deer on a Goodhue County farm.

Wisconsin, Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio report EHD mortalities almost every year. In some cases, the disease can dramatically reduce a local deer population in the short-term but has a relatively small impact on the overall deer population. Iowa is experiencing an outbreak this year that has killed several hundred deer in the south-central part of the state.

Finding multiple dead deer near a water source is typical of an EHD die-off. Fever drives the animals to seek water, but they die from internal lesions and hemorrhages.

People who find a dead deer should report it to the nearest DNR area wildlife office. Contact information for each office is listed on the DNR website.

EHD is not a threat to humans or animals outside the deer family. Even so, people should not consume deer that appear to be sick or in poor health.

Additional information about EHD is available on the DNR website.

Crosby comprehensive plans

I agree that the antiques business in Crosby was tourist based, and those dealers who kept our town on the map by paying taxes for some two decades deserve more respect than they get from some of our self appointed elite.

But as history has shown, all tourist based businesses eventually fade, as has the antiques market. That's why cities who are economically stable practice diversity in their development and growth. Most comprehensive plans even address this in one form or another, but the mayor and constituents need to be willing to read the document to understand its potential.

Tourism based cities that don't have manufacturing, strong up scale retail or service related industries tend to promote low paying jobs, many of them either part time or seasonal.

Contrary to what our mayor spouts, tourism based cities don't have as strong tax bases as economically diverse communities have. So that's why I am against our town building its future on the current path of ONLY tourism. It's sad that words such as reawakened and reinvented describes our town, but if we gamble it all on just tourism, we will eventually need to hear those words again.

Ask a business owner in town who doesn't cater to the bicyclists about their experiences with this economic snowball. Then you may understand why I feel the way I do.

This city administration may preach how strong our economy is, but its credibility after the phantom hotel incident is gone. Plus if it hadn't been for substantial IRRRB grants,

I doubt our mayor would be bragging about these new businesses even being here in town.

On a side note, a fellow letter writer stated I am confused on a couple matters, one being rental ordinances. With the number of cities that have struggled with issues concerning these, the increased costs that are being absorbed by all forms of local governments, along with a lack of uniformed regulation concerning safety, air b&b's will eventually will be state regulated.

As regarding our disgraced former officer, or anyone else, if one doesn't want people to talk about them, or their actions, then don't do anything that would cause them to do so.

You can't fix stupid, but we apparently should reward them for doing so.

Chris Ryan, Crosby

Finally arrived in Crosby

For some reason it remains unclear to a few people that the issue in Crosby has been the actions of the chief of police.

A writer wishes everyone to think the actions of a terminated officer are the woes of Crosby and will hamper the financial future of the city. It's not wise to write about or mention the terminated officer's situation, that information is confidential, one could libel themselves with a defaming comment out of stupidity, if one seeks to do that, then, by all means continue. BMS Case No 17-PA-0260 found the chief lies, distorts the truth, alters documents, conducts biased, flawed, prejudice investigations.

Crosby is in the first of many potential lawsuits because the chief and the city administrator continued to defame the officer. They willingly and with malice broke the law by briefing a council person on the arbitration report. They lied to tell their version of what they could not and did not prove.

It is important to remember, the fired officer was completely exonerated, the records expunged, and the city was admonished from speaking about it.

The chief and city administrator have not lived up to those expectations and it is they who have libeled the city. It's with disgust the information continues to be misrepresented in the Courier, by its editor, the chief, city administrator, and a writer of letters.

The dirty, disgusting job of continuously exposing the egregious acts of the chief is an undertaking that has fallen on the deaf ears of the council and mayor, who are ultimately responsible for the mess the chief and city administrator have created. It's their failure to act and the continued destructive employment of the chief that has vicariously libeled the residents of Crosby.

Eight failed attempts to prosecute two former mayors, two failed wrongful termination lawsuits are signs of incompetence and untrustworthiness. Crosby must recognize and stop attempting to shift the blame to the exonerated officer or myself.

On September 13, the city will reward the chief with retirement, an open house, praise and thanks, that have not been earned. The chief will be back, as more lawsuits from their acts are filed.

Crosby is about to begin an era of policing they have not seen in a decade.

Congratulations to the new chief of police, your time to lead has finally arrived, show Crosby the difference of true leadership they have missed.

Invested in the power of renewables.

We've been building our renewable energy portfolio since 2002. To date, we've invested more than $6 billion in renewable energy and power transmission projects either in operation or under construction.

Our green energy investments include wind farms, solar farms, geothermal facilities and waste heat recovery plants across North America and Europe—which, collectively, produce enough zero-emission energy to power 700,000 homes.

In Minnesota, our Bemidji office is powered by a solar energy system, through a partnership with local Native American-owned businesses.

All forms of energy sources—crude oil, natural gas and renewables—are needed to meet rising global energy demand.

At Enbridge, we are working towards the future of energy and sustainability, and our portfolio of renewable energy assets is a prime example.
