After a hard battle, East San Jose wins a seat on the planning commission

San José Spotlight

A drawn-out, months long battle over racial representation on San Jose's Planning Commission came to an end Tuesday, Oct. 1 after two new appointees were chosen by the City Council, following hours of intense debate from both sides of the political aisle.

After a lengthy interview process, Rolando Bonilla and Mariel Caballero were appointed to one of the city's most powerful commissions. Caballero had the most votes, securing 10 from the City Council, while Bonilla secured 6.

The four candidates competing for two seats on the commission were Caballero, a Santa Clara County deputy director at the probation department; Louis Barocio, vice principal at the East Side Union High School District; Bonilla, a business owner; and real estate attorney George Casey.

Two new appointees were chosen by the City Council on Oct. 1, ending a drawn-out, months long battle over racial representation on San Jose's Planning Commission.

dalena Carrasco, Dev Davis, Lan Diep, Maya Esparza, Pam Foley, Sergio Jimenez and Raul Perez voted for Caballero.

Arenas, Carrasco, Esparza, Jimenez, Khamis, and Perez voted for Bonilla.

Khamis was the sole councilmember who voted for Casey, while Davis, Diep, Foley, Jones and Liccardo voted for Barocio. Candidates needed to receive six votes to be appointed.

The vote Tuesday came after demands from East San Jose community leaders for representation on the commission, as well as concerns about adding a fourth candidate to the finalist pool at the last minute. Bonilla's appointment now makes him the only representative from East San Jose — a lower-income, community of color on the 7-person commission.

"I'm left with huge concerns the way this process was handled," said Carrasco, who rallied for equal representation last week as the community faces growing rates of displacement due to a spike in new development. "The concerns really arise from what feels like a real lack of transparency."

The East Side councilwoman, along with SOMOS Mayfair, called

Big turnout for California Coastal Cleanup Day in Santa Clara County

“We’re proud of the big turnout by our volunteers for today’s Coastal Cleanup Day,” said Valley Water Board Chair Linda J. LeZotte.

“The volunteers in the South Bay demonstrated that people can come together to keep Santa Clara County’s streams clear of harmful pollutants, which in addition to contaminating water, and harming birds and wildlife, can block our creeks and cause flooding,” said LeZotte.

Cleanup at 47 Santa Clara County sites on September 21 was organized by the Creek Connections Actions Group, a consortium of public agencies and non-profit organizations, chaired by Valley Water.

Valley Water said that this year’s event was a huge success. In Santa Clara County, a record-breaking 2,131 volunteers participated in the cleanup at 47 different sites. They collected more than 51,000 pounds of trash and cleaned 53 miles of creeks. Overall, 60,000 volunteers responded to the call to action, gathering 469,100 pounds of trash from California’s waterways. The cleanup event attracted scores of high school students.

The group, formed in 1995, includes Valley Water, Santa Clara County Parks and Recreation, and the City of San Jose. Since the group’s inception, thousands of volunteers have participated in hundreds of clean-ups, removing thousands of pounds of trash each year from creeks, rivers, and lakes in Santa Clara County.

“I’m thrilled with the many volunteers who took the time to help beautify our city this morning and am grateful for our partnership with Valley Water and their efforts to help keep our waterways clean!”, said San Jose Mayor Sam Liccardo.

The Mayor, along with members of the Valley Water Directors, joined hundreds of volunteers to participate in the cleanup at several Santa Clara County sites.

Live animals and reptiles come to Matsumoto Elementary School

By Frank Shortt
Times staff writer

WildMind Science Learning, presented the students at Tom Masumoto Elementary School in the Evergreen School District, with a very informative live animal school assembly recently.

This assembly was due to one student’s vision, Jash Parekh, a junior at Evergreen Valley High School.

Readers of the Evergreen Times may remember Jash as having started the Green Heroes Environmental Club at Laurelwood Elementary School. As leader of the club he conducted a weekly workshop for elementary school students. Jash organized fun activities that taught the adverse effects of climate change and discussed various opportunities for students to take care of and improve the current environmental situation. As a result of these various activities, Jash spread awareness about the harmful effects of climate change on endangered species.

Under the auspices of Dr. Hong Nguyen, second year principal at Tom Matsumoto, Jash invited the WildMind Science Learning Team to conduct an assembly at Tom Matsumoto Elementary School.

Josh raises $1000 for assembly

In order to pay for the WildMind assembly, he organized a fundraiser where community members participated in an engaging Paint Nite event, hosted by Vaidehi Creative Arts. The fundraiser was a huge success, and it ended up bringing in more than $1000.

The WildMind Science Learning Team brought animals such as American alligators, boa constrictors, lizards, tarantulas, and tortoises to teach the young students of Tom Matsumoto how to take care of and coexist with endangered wildlife species. This was a fun learning experience for students from Transitional Kindergarten through 6th grade. The assembly was informative and engaging for the Tom Matsumoto students.

Evergreen resident Tiffany Ta returns following research project

Tiffany Ta of Evergreen Valley, a member of the class of 2021 majoring in mechanical engineering at Worcester Polytechnic Institute (WPI), was a member of a student team that recently completed an intense, hands-on research through the WPI project center in London. The project was titled Evaluating Kensington Palace.

“The WPI project-based curriculum’s focus on global studies brings students out of the classroom and their comfort zones and into the global community to apply their knowledge and to solve problems,” said

Professor Kent Rissmiller, interim dean of the WPI Interdisciplinary and Global Studies Division. “Students are immersed in all aspects of a different culture, from the way people live and work to the values they hold to the foods they eat - all valuable perspectives for surviving and thriving in today’s global marketplace. They also learn the meaning and magic of teamwork; make a real and meaningful difference in their host community; and gain a competitive edge for any resume, or graduate or professional school application.”

William Cooley, Yingbing Lu, Philip Lund, and Tiffany Ta joined to complete the research project.

for more equity, transparency and racial representation on the commission after a fourth finalist – Attorney George Casey – was added to the pool after three other finalists were already chosen.

The move raised eyebrows in the Latino community, who criticized city leaders for including Casey when City Clerk Toni Taber had previously said no new contenders would be added. Taber said she was directed to include a fourth applicant during a council committee meeting at the suggestion of Khamis.

Taber confirmed that up to five candidates can be considered for the two vacancies. There were originally 26 applicants.

At the meeting Tuesday, Carrasco made a motion — which failed — to exclude Casey from the pool of existing applicants, citing concerns that he was not vetted by the entire City Council, unlike the other three candidates.

“I mean no disrespect to the fourth candidate, but it’s the process that I’m having an issue with,” said Carrasco. “We already have three well qualified candidates that have moved forward to the final process.”

Carrasco and Liccardo faced off over the decision to include Casey. She questioned why there was a need for a last-minute applicant, but Liccardo fired back, denying a lack of transparency and saying it’s within the work of a city committee to make those decisions.

“There was no nefarious conspiracy,” said Liccardo. “This was in a public hearing and the city clerk suggested rather than go through an entirely new process — we already have a pool of candidates. Let’s simply add to the pool so that we can choose among them.”

Khamis said he initially wanted to avoid the conflict of adding the fourth finalist by reopening the second vacancy to a new set of applicants. But to expedite the process, Khamis expressed support to include Casey, calling it a “compromise” given the time constraint.

“My original intent was to only appoint one person and then open it up all over again to have a whole new vetting process for this new opening,” said Khamis. “I was hoping to avoid this exact discussion we’re having. I don’t want to be accused of doing something unethical. It was a compromise we thought would be well appreciated.”

The appointments of the new commissioners tempered fears from East San Jose that the community’s voice won’t be heard on the influential decision-making panel.

Barocio is also from East San Jose’s District 5 and Caballero is from District 3 in downtown. Casey is from affluent District 10, much like former San Jose Councilmember Pierluigi Oliverio, whose appointment initiated the highly-politicized fight in April. East Side leaders denounced Oliverio’s appointment as they were hopeful that former commissioner Ada Márquez’s newly-vacant seat would be filled by a person of color.

Oliverio became the fourth commissioner on the 7-person panel from affluent District 6. Since then, the resignations of two more commissioners — Namrata Vora and John Leyba — followed soon after. Now, both former commissioners were effectively replaced by Caballero and Bonilla.

Before the vote, each candidate pled their case to the lawmakers, answering questions on solving the region’s housing crisis, while also acknowledging the need for more jobs, curbing the effects of displacement and gentrification to protect those communities that are most vulnerable, building affordable housing and preventing the use of discriminatory practices such as redlining to mitigate the effects of inequity and poverty.

“The best ideas come from the people who are impacted,” said Caballero, acknowledging how displacement is affecting residents throughout the city.

“The best ways to mitigate come from those folks. I spend a lot of time in meetings listening to what people have to say and trying to figure out and find a way to come to a reasonable resolution where all of the stakeholders can benefit.”

Bonilla also expressed support for more development while also tapping into the need for more equitable representation.

“Decisions get made in the background which is why representation matters,” Bonilla said. “Conversations are only enriched, decisions are only better when all perspectives are taken into account. You have to understand the vision of that community before you say, ‘yes that’s great.’”

Caballero will be appointed to a term ending in June 2020, while Bonilla’s term ends in June 2023.

The Fall Family Festival will also feature interactive games and activities along with food booths/trucks, a beer garden, and entertainment to celebrate the community.

“It’s an honor to invite everyone to District 8’s Annual Fall Family Festival - Day in the Park,” Arenas said. “The Family Festival is made possible with the support of Lake Cunningham Park, city departments, local organizations, local businesses and community volunteers.”

The event features an informational resource fair where the community can gain beneficial services and learn about valuable opportunities offered by local non-profit, government and community-based organizations. Stop by the resource fair’s tent to get local information, support a PTA, or find amazing promotional give-aways.

Performers will entertain all ages and bring joy with dance, song and insights. The entertainment this year features cultural performers and local favorites including San José State University Vietnamese Student Association, Jayendra Kalakendra, Bytes & Notes, San Los Panaderos, Mondinga and Perez Puppet Show, Magic by Gerald, Evergreen Community Center Ballet, Grupo Folklorico Los Laureles, Daniel Ordonez and Family, and Son de Kali.

The National Anthem will be performed by the Evergreen Studio of Music & the Arts.

Family fun activities include a climbing wall, zorbs, extreme air jumpers, inflatable slide, sumo wrestling, obstacle course, trackless train, a zipline, a photo booth, classic car display, and more. The San Jose Public Library’s Marker[Space]Ship innovative mobile workshop will also be on-site with maker equipment and robotics, including a 3D printer, laser & vinyl cutter, a robot petting zoo, and a full suite of laptops and tablets, the Maker[Space]Ship provides the perfect way to blast off into STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) orbit!

Rose Herrera not running for San Jose City Council; drops out of supervisorial race

Former Vice Mayor Rose Herrera says she has dropped out of the supervisorial race and is not running for her old seat on the San Jose City Council.

"This was not a decision I came to lightly, but it is the right one to make for my family at this time," said Herrera. "Thank you so much to those who offered their support to my candidacy whether financial or personal endorsement. I am grateful and humbled."

The announcement came as a disappointment for her longtime supporters and business leaders. However, Herrera said she won't rule out a run for public office in the future. "I won't completely close the door on elected office in the future, but this is not the right time," Herrera said.

Herrera said she was approached to run for San Jose City Council many months ago before she announced she was running election and has scheduled a campaign kick-off event on Thursday, Oct. 17 in Evergreen. She recently announced endorsements from California Sen. Jim Beall, Santa Clara County Supervisor Dave Cortese and Evergreen School Board President Bonnie Mace. "I have their support because I stand up for Evergreen," Arenas said.

Herrera said she will continue her work on veterans issues and serving as vice president of the United Veterans Council of Santa Clara County and president of the neighborhood group Involved Evergreen.

"I will continue to be an active and vocal advocate for affordable housing, expanded public transportation and public safety. These are the issues I centered my campaign around and will continue to fight for. As always I will continue to be an advocate for Veterans and Veterans' causes and a booster for our Evergreen area."

Here is Omar earnestly studying, which models for the current Omar Dream Foundation Logo.

All welcome to participate (run, watch or walk)

The annual Omar's Dream Run 5K/10K fundraiser for children will be held at Hellyer Park, Sunday, October 20 at 10 a.m. All ages welcome!

If you choose to walk or run the race, all funds in registering go to the charity and you get a special cap, shirt, race number and more.

Everyone revels in the success young children and adults have gained in fighting cancer and in supporting the unique program that allows hospitalized children to connect with their teachers and friends in school by way of the internet. This charity helps them attend class on computers. Smiles on the screen are sent both directions from their classroom school buddies to the hospital bed.

The purpose

It can all happen very unexpectedly. When a child or young adult gets sick sometimes they need to stay for extended times in special hospitals that are far away from the school they attend. Omar's Dream Foundation enables medically supervised children to attend school with a computer remotely while they recuperate. This fantastic use of technology combined with love allows children to stay connected with their teachers and classmates. Services are free of charge for all qualified students and their educators.

Giving flight to dreams

We all have qualities of leadership and some can effortlessly educate by example in ways that emanate inspiration to transform our world. Such people elevate and nurture thoughts to build hope and give flight and deeper meaning to our dreams. This harnessed power doesn't diminish over time. Omar reminds us all of this and today hundreds of Omars' take the baton and inspirationally lead us to create positive change in fighting cancer and related challenges that tag along with it. The gallant struggle many face is reflected in the meaning of the words, "Dream Run."

Why do people wear Omar Dream Run shirts and caps

When you look around at the event you'll see shirts and caps. It's a way all join up together to empower and become one big family. There's no strata of prominence or social status. Everyone's equal! You might see the Mayor of San Jose or the leader of a Silicon Valley tech giant running or sitting next to you. They may not stand out because they and everyone else including those who do battle with cancer all dawn the same shirt and share the same soft spoken conversations composed of lots of listening.

Special Leaders of the Omar Dream Foundation

Ohh, one can get goosebumps watching the videos on the Omar Dream Foundation website of the kids talking about fighting cancer. Here are brief comments from some testimonials.

- Angela: "When I was first diagnosed I thought I wasn't going to complete school. I thought I was going to be held back and held away from my classes," said Angela. The Omar Dream Foundation kindly connected her to computers and acted as a bridge between the school and the hospital to make it possible for Angela to attend school via the hospital setting.

- Nate: "I was having a hard time staying connected with my classes," states Nate. With the I-Pad I was able to stay connected with my teachers, stay connected with my classmates and make sure I didn't miss anything. When I made it back to school it was like I never left."

- Daniel: "It's nice to hear lectures, I have really good professors at Stanford and I like the way they (Omar Dream Foundation) set up the iPad," states Daniel. As a student attending Stanford he needed to come in for regularly scheduled chemo therapy. The Omar Dream Foundation assisted in helping him connect to be at his lectures via the internet and flow along to complete his college classes.

- Ashley: "I was so happy about Omar's Dream because it allows me to finish high school. It brings a lot of help to kids in different situations and by the sound of Omar he was a sweet person and this is going to help me because I can write my paper and get everything in."

Editor's Note: To registrar for the Omar's Dream Run go to the Omar Dream Run Foundation website: www.omarsdream.org Also, one can just show up for the event at 10 a.m. and register on site to get the hat, race number, and other goodies and walk or run the race course or one can just watch the beautiful event and cheer on the participants.

Pets and dementia

Dementia in pets is basically a disease similar to Alzheimer's in humans which affects basic functions like memory, learning or grasp of daily things.

Older dogs sometimes have behavior changes like disorientation, confusion, or irritability. Dementia in pets is called "canine cognitive dysfunction" and affects most of the senior pets. Aging pets have these symptoms which have slow onset and lead to senility and dementia.

Signs of dementia

Your pet may seem confused and disoriented. Sometimes senile pets forget the place where they sleep or eat while others may walk up to the wrong door. Staring at nothing or into space is another very common sign of dementia. This all in turn affects a pet's sleep pattern. Senior pets may be restless at night and might vocalize more than usual. There is change in personality, temperament, enthusiasm and less affection for their owner. Symptoms start slowly and gradually get worse over time. This can also be made worse by other medical issues like deafness, blindness, kidney problems etc.

What causes dementia?

No known causes of dementia have been identified but it might be associated with decreased production of a neurotransmitter (dopamine), a chemical which helps in proper functioning of nerves and brain.

Treatment for dementia

Any senior pet having any symptoms of dementia should be seen by your regular vet for an exam. Your family vet will thoroughly examine your pet after discussing your pet's health history. Your vet might recommend doing diagnostics such as blood, urine test, x-rays, etc. to check for any underlying health issues. After doing all the tests, it can be determined if a pet has health issues or dementia or both. Most of the senile pets can live happy, healthy lives with proper care and attention.

Keep in mind there is no cure for dementia; it's a progressively degenerative disease. There are things you can do to make your pet happier, and more comfortable. Make a daily routine for activities like feeding and exercise. Your senior pet should be exercised daily which helps to manage anxiety and hence sleep better.

Music therapy and good aroma works well for some pets. Don't leave your senile pet home alone for long periods of time. Avoid changing or moving your pet's belongings or rearranging your house hold items like furniture. Keep the living environment the same. Senior pets can be given some dietary supplements such as fish oil, vitamin e, melatonin or herbal supplements like CBD oil which improves cognitive dysfunction. Some holistic vets practice traditional Chinese veterinary medicine and acupuncture which can help in dementia.

Can dementia be prevented?

Sadly, there is no way to prevent dementia in pets but try to keep your pet active, healthy and mentally sharp. Try to teach your pet tricks and brain challenging games. Feed your pet high quality food with a good exercise routine.

Evergreen Presbyterian Church addresses pool safety

Sometimes the gravity of an issue isn't felt until you see the statistics; at least, that's how it felt for us at Evergreen Presbyterian Church when we started talking with the East Valley Family YMCA about pool safety and the leading causes of death among children.

Evergreen Presbyterian Church has been a part of the East San Jose community for over thirty years. We're a Christian church whose members have raised our families together, and we are now in the empty-nest stage of life or enjoying retirement and grandchildren. We may be small (15+ active members), but we love spending time with each other. For the past few years, we've been meeting in the Inspiration Room at the East Valley Family YMCA on Sunday mornings for worship services. We've developed relationships with the Y staff and love being in the heart of the community as we use space in the building. Occasionally, we'll find a way to help support the Y through donations; typically, it's a tangible item that's needed for one of the community classes.

Recently, we were made aware that the Y needed swimsuits for their children participating in the SAW Program; Safety Around Water. The Program is designed to build confidence and self-esteem, while teaching swim strokes and safety skills. If you know how to stay safe in and around water, swimming can be a lifelong source of fun and exercise.

So at first, donating swimsuits seemed like just a nice gesture to enable more children to fully participate in the SAW Program. However, as the Y talked with us further, we realized the benefits of the partnership went much deeper than that. In children four years and younger, drownings are the number one cause of death. Every day, about 10 people die of drowning in the U.S. Drowning is the leading cause of death for children 1 to 4 years of age and is the second leading cause of death for children from 5 to 14 years old. Drowning can occur anywhere. The familiarity of a backyard or neighborhood pool can often provide a false sense of security. It's an upsetting statistic to think about, and something that in many cases is preventable with water safety training. The Y has taken the issue to heart and is providing these water safety classes to try and bring that statistic down in our East Valley neighborhood. Evergreen Presbyterian Church was able to donate 166 swimsuits to help support this endeavor. Being able to partner with the Y in this opportunity was fun and meaningful for us, as well as deeply appreciated by the Y.

If you're not yet a member of the Y, I would encourage you to take a look at the classes and the facility they have to offer. They have great programs for children, families, and individuals to incorporate exercise and activity into their lives. Also, if you're looking for a place to worship that will encourage your faith, we hope you come visit Evergreen Presbyterian Church on Sunday mornings at 9:45 am in the Inspiration Room.

We're a church with a heart for mission work and outreach. We'd love to have you join us!

If you would like to Save lives and continue to teach youth how to be safe around water, you can donate directly through the Y link: us.commitchange.com/ca/santa-clara/ymca-of-silicon-valley/campaigns/east-valley-family-ymca---annual-campaign---summer-swim-amanda-morrill_000

The invisible epidemic in the Bay Area

By Raeena Lari

Special to the Times

May was Lyme Awareness Month. Yet, for my family – like hundreds of thousands of families across the country – every waking minute is a constant painful reminder.

Bay Area Lyme Foundation, a national non-profit organization that focuses on funding medical research to “make Lyme disease easy to diagnose and simple to cure,” provides some astounding information: Lyme disease has been detected in 42 of 58 California counties, tick season is year-round in California, the greatest incidence of Lyme disease is among school age children, and a single tick bite can transmit many other diseases besides Lyme, commonly referred to as coinfections.

In recent years, media coverage of Lyme disease has expanded because of the growing number of people affected, but, sadly, funding for research lags significantly behind this growth. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), there are over 400,000 new Lyme disease cases every year in the U.S., 232,570 new breast cancer cases, and 50,000 new HIV cases in the U.S. annually. Yet in 2018, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) awarded $30 million to Lyme research, while awarding $721 million to breast cancer research and $3 billion to HIV research.

Everything about this disease is complicated, making patients feel like they live in an alternate, unreal, and surrealistic universe. It can take many different doctor visits over many years to obtain a diagnosis, mainly because not everyone gets the tell-tale “bull’s-eye” rash, or even recalls being bitten by a tick.

In a survey of more than 12,000 patients, lymedisease.org, a national advocacy group, reported that over 51 percent of respondents waited more than three years for a diagnosis, and 72 percent were misdiagnosed before receiving the Lyme diagnosis.

Lyme can be caused by the bite of infected ticks, tiny arachnids that can be the size of a poppy seed and are almost impossible to detect. Some people get immediate acute symptoms, while others have a gradual slow deterioration in health. In addition, the myriad symptoms may often mimic many different diseases, earning Lyme the moniker “the Great Imitator.”

Anecdotal evidence suggests that doctors and others involved in helping patients recover are primarily those that have been personally impacted. U.S. Rep. Chris Smith of New Jersey introduced legislation in January (H.R. 220 - “National Tick-Borne Disease and Accountability Act”) to create a new national strategy on Lyme disease and is an outspoken supporter. His own family has apparently been affected.

Lyme is a disease that is unfathomable to people who are untouched by it. Mothers have been accused of Munchausen by Proxy syndrome because they are the ones who tend to advocate the most vociferously for their children. Families have been torn apart at a time when they most need to be united, because of a lack of awareness and understanding caused in most part by an abysmal failure of the medical system.

So how do we correct this egregious medical failure and reverse a disease that has all the manifestations of becoming a pandemic? Please begin by visiting the website bayarealyne.org for education, and by calling and/or writing your U.S. House Representative to support HR 220, which includes the creation of a national

Financial aid tip from KHEAA

As high school seniors and their parents begin the college financial aid process, they may find themselves faced with unfamiliar terms.

Here's a short glossary from Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA).

Conversion scholarship/loan. This type of scholarship requires students to provide certain services. If they don't provide the service, the scholarship becomes a loan.

Cost of attendance. The total cost of one year of college: tuition, fees, room, meals, supplies, transportation and personal items.

Expected family contribution (EFC). This is the amount the student and family are expected to pay for the student's education. It is based on a formula set by Congress.

FAFSA. The Free Application for Federal Student Aid must be submitted by students applying for federal and state aid. The best way to do so is at www.fafsa.gov.

Financial need. The difference between the cost of attendance and the EFC.

Institutional aid. The scholarships, grants and other financial aid programs provided by the college.

Verification. The process of making sure the information submitted on the FAFSA is correct. The federal government requires colleges to have certain students' FAFSA information verified.

KHEAA is a public, non-profit agency established in 1966 to improve students' access to college. It provides information about financial aid and financial literacy at no cost to students and parents. For more information, visit www.kheaa.com.

Times Community*BACKPACS offers alternative to privatization of education

By Frank Shortt

Times staff writer

As more and more public education is being taken over by private concerns, a new group in the bay area is pushing back.

This group is called: BACKPACS. They are comprised of members from the local school districts. They are bringing together advocates from across the Bay Area to promote the values of our public schools and defend them from the privatization industry. This collective was created because the founders were concerned about all public school children being used for corporate profits.

The founding members of this group are: Lori LoBue, Board of Directors BACKPACS, Brian LoBue, Trustee Oak Grove SD, Board of Directors BACKPACS, Nick Cortez, Vice-President CHSTA, Co-Chair SBPA, Board of Directors BACKPACS, Claudia Rossi, Trustee Santa Clara County Board of Education, Brian Wheatley, President Evergreen Teachers Assn. Trustee San Jose Unified SD, and Rosie Zepeda, Education Co-Chair SBPA, Communications Director BACKPACS.

Their mission Statement: The Bay Area Collective Keeping Privatizers Away from Community Schools, BACKPACS, is an organization dedicated to strengthening and protecting public education. We believe students are best served in publicly funded schools that are overseen by elected members of a public school board. We want ALL students to receive an excellent and equitable education. We shall defend these values from the attacks of the school privatization industry.

The GOALS presented by the organization include:

Educate:

Actively promote the values of publicly governed schools in support of children, parents, and communities.

Support:

Identify, endorse, and support candidates for public office whose values and actions truly empower public educational communities.

Activate:

BACKPACS is the voice in the community revealing the misleading claims of school privatizers and standing against the systemic inequities and injustices promoted by the charter school system.

Grow:

Identify and join with allies in the Bay Area and beyond. We bring together organizations and individuals to further our goals and together we work to end the destructive practices of the privatization industry.

Anyone wishing to connect or support this group can visit: www.backpacs.org or on facebook at Facebook@Backpacseducation

SOS AUTO REPAIR'S "Quick Tip"

"I'm leaving on a trip tomorrow, can you perform an inspection and any repairs needed TODAY?"

I can't tell you how many times we've been asked this question. The easiest way to safeguard your road trip is to let us perform a full safety inspection on your car at least two weeks or so before your trip. Having us take a look at your car the day before your trip is not a good idea!

If there's a problem, it could take some time to fix. A big, last-minute repair could really throw a wrench into your vacation plans or force you to delay your trip. Or you may even have to rent a car at the last minute, and that can get expensive! So let us give your car the once-over at least two weeks before your trip. In a safety inspection, we will check everything from fluid levels, belts, and hoses to lights, tires, and brakes (just to name a few) to make sure your car is ready for the road.

No matter how much maintenance you do on a car before a trip, there's no guarantee that you won't have auto troubles out on the road. Having a roadside survival kit at hand and a Roadside Assistance Plan will make an unexpected breakdown a lot less stressful. Make sure your kit includes (at a minimum) a blanket, a flashlight with fresh batteries, extra batteries and some extra food and water.

Keep a copy of your car's warranty, insurance and contact information for your emergency roadside assistance service in the glove box. Whether you have roadside assistance through your car's warranty or insurance or you belong to an auto care club, make sure you have the emergency contact number with you at all times. We recommend keeping these documents in a poly project jacket or travel organizer for extra protection from accidental spills and damage.

Lastly, bring along a spare set of keys to your car and put that spare key in a magnetic car key hider somewhere on your vehicle in case you lose your keys.

Few things spoil a family vacation more quickly than car trouble far from home. Following these pre-trip maintenance tips will ensure that your car is ready for the long road-trip ahead!

If you're concerned about your vehicle for whatever reason, stop by at: 3519 San Felipe Rd, in Evergreen. We'll be happy to assist you. If you have a question regarding your vehicle email us at sosautorepair2004@gmail.com, if your question is published you'll receive a free oil change!
