Gathering Place Hosts Fall Festival

Event Begins with Rotary Club of Tulsa Saturday Brunch

Gathering Place will host the Tulsa Beer & Wine Festival, sponsored by Hard Rock Hotel & Casino, Saturday, Nov. 2, 2 - 8 p.m. The festival will be preceded by a brunch, "Rhythm & Brews," presented by and benefitting the Rota-ry Club of Tulsa, from 11 a.m. – 1 p.m. at the ONEOK Boathouse. Tickets for both events are available to purchase.

On Sept. 17, Executive Park Director Tony Moore was joined by Hard Rock Senior Director of Marketing Martin Madewell, Rotary Club of Tulsa Rhythm & Brews co-chairs Becky Fields and Monica Martin, Chef Justin Thompson, Restaurant Director of Catering and Events Heather Dusenberry and Boardwalk Distribution Prestige Sales Special-ist Trevin Hoffman at Gathering Place to preview the event and announce the opening of ticket sales.

"This has been one of our most anticipated events and we think the Tulsa food community will really enjoy it," Moore said. "The investment by Hard Rock Hotel & Casino and the alignment of events with Rotary Club of Tulsa will help further our mission to bring world-class events to Tulsa and the surrounding area.'

The inaugural signature event, Tulsa Beer & Wine Festival, will be held throughout the Park, centering around the QuikTrip Great Lawn on Saturday, Nov. 2, 2-8 p.m. Guests can stroll through themed realms to enjoy exquisite food pairings with local and national craft beers and unique wine. Master Chefs and expert Wine Vintners and Master Brewers will be onsite to provide educational enhancements to the experience. Nonstop live entertainment and exotic cars throughout the Park will bring a special twist to this event. Individual tickets for are

About Gathering Place

A project of George Kaiser Family Foundation, Gathering Place, with a first phase of 66.5 acres, will ultimately transform nearly 100 acres of Tulsa's waterfront along the Arkansas River into a dynamic and active space when lic-private partnership, GKFF and numerous corporate and community philanthropists gave ownership of the $465 million park to River Parks Authority who in turn signed a long-term operational and management lease back to an entity of the foundation.

The Tulsa Area United Way unveiled a goal of $26,028,494 for its 2019 campaign on Friday, Sept. 6, at the Jenks – Bixby High School football game.

The goal is three percent higher than last year's goal of $25,254,166.

"This year's goal is based on the real needs of our community as determined by 170 highly trained community investment volun-teers," said Alison Anthony, President and CEO of the Tulsa Area United Way. "It's an ambitious goal – almost $800,000 above last year – but we believe the generosity of Tulsans will help us reach it."

KUDOS of the MONTH: Tulsa Area United Way

2019 CAMPAIGN GOAL: Jenks Trojan cheerleaders hold up the 2019 United Way goal before the Jenks-Bixby football game on Sept. 6.

The local United Way provides funding to 59 Tulsa-area non-profit organizations in the areas of education, health/safety and financial stability.

Kirk Hays, president and CEO of Arvest Bank-Tulsa, is serving as chair of this year's campaign, and will be assisted by 15 campaign fellows, 30 United Way staff members and 40 community leaders who serve on the United Way's campaign cabinet.

Last year, more than 30,000 individuals and 1,000 companies and businesses supported the United Way campaign. In addition, more than 7,600 people volunteered for agency projects and activities, including the Day of Caring, one of the nation's largest days of community service.

Area residents are encouraged to support the campaign through their workplace or online at www. tauw.org. Businesses or companies that wish to conduct workplace campaigns on behalf of the United Way can get started by contacting the United Way at 918-583-7171 or campaign@tauw.org.

The United Way campaign will conclude and the total amount raised will be revealed on Nov. 7 at the annual Unite celebration to be held at the Tulsa Club Hotel.

Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa Presents 2019 Commemorative Poster

Linde Oktoberfest commissioned Tulsan Josh Stout to create the commemorative festival poster for 2019.

Each year, Oktoberfest selects a local artist to create a festival inspired poster. Stout received the honor of creating the poster for the 41st year of the event.

Born in Tulsa, Stout has a unique way of expressing all that he loves about the city. Painting primarily oil on canvas, he seeks inspiration from Oklahoma's past, present and future. His colorful pieces harken back to Oklahoma's history, especially that of its Native American ancestors, and he is excited to be bringing his unique outlook on the world and artwork to this year's Oktoberfest. A world-wide exhibiting artist, Stout's permanent home is in Jenks. He joins the community at Oktoberfest as the official poster artist, and will feature his works at the Official Oktoberfest Poster Tent near the Arts and Crafts Markthaus.

The commemorative poster is sponsored by the German American Society of Tulsa (GAST). GAST has partnered with Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa for many years. The nonprofit organization hosts the annual Poster Party reveal event at its facility and also sells traditional German food at the festival as a fundraiser. Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa is celebrating its 41st year as one of northeastern Oklahoma's favorite fall festivals. The festival consistently receives not only local recognition, but has been named one of the top Oktoberfests in the U.S. by USA Today and Conde Nast Traveler magazine. It is also recognized as one of the most authentic, largest and longest running Oktoberfest celebrations in America.

Oktoberfest has long been dedicated to fostering true German authenticity at the festival, with performers traveling from Germany, imported German steins, hats and collectibles for sale, costumed hosts and hostesses, and, of course, outstanding German foods and beers.

The festival's ties to Germany were drawn even closer when Linde, a world leader in gases and engineering with headquarters in Munich, Germany and over 200 employees in Tulsa, signed on as Oktoberfest's title sponsor in 2014. Christened "Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa," the partnership has allowed the festival to expand its size and entertainment offerings and raise its visibility even further both locally and across the nation.

From humble beginnings, Oktoberfest grew and was incorporated in 1982 with the purpose of Tulsa and its River Parks system. The non-profit Tulsa Oktoberfest, Inc. has met both goals head on and with great success.

About Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa

Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa will be held October 17-20 at River West Festival Park in Tulsa, OK. The four-day festival features traditional German foods, drinks and entertainment, as well as friendly competitions and games, carnival rides, arts and crafts, children's activities, and competitions including a 5k race, beer barrel race, Dachshund Dash and more. Linde Oktoberfest Tulsa is the signature event of Oktoberfest, Inc., a 501(c) (3) corporation based in Tulsa, and is produced by River Parks Authority. The festival's mission is to promote German culture and benefit Tulsa's River Parks. More information is available at www. tulsaoktoberfest.org.

Dress for Success Tulsa Hosts Gala

Dress for Success Tulsa has announced its 18th Annual Fashion Show and Fundraising Event, "An Evening of Empowerment Gala." The event will be held at the Mike Fretz Event Center located at 11545 East 43rd Street in Tulsa on Thursday, October 17. Doors open at 6 p.m. for a silent auction and cocktails. Dinner and fashion show begin at 7 p.m.

Beth Rengel, former news anchor, speaker and author of the book "Anchored in Illusion," will be the evening's emcee. Empowered women representing Tulsa-area companies and businesses, including Dress for Success Tulsa clients, will model the latest fashions and accessories from Dillard's in Woodland Hills Mall. Kim Freeman and her colleagues from Ihloff Salon will be providing the models with hair styling and makeup. The event will feature a silent auction with a variety of enticing packages.

"This year's 'Evening of Empowerment Gala' features an incredible line-up that you will not want to miss," said Katherine Skorvaga, executive director of Dress for Success Tulsa. "It also allows us the opportunity to showcase, celebrate, and most importantly, to further the many ways that Dress for Success Tulsa is positively impacting our community,"

All proceeds from the gala will benefit Dress for Success Tulsa, a not-for-profit organization dedicated to empowering women to achieve economic independence by providing a network of support, professional attire and the development tools to help women thrive in work and in life. Since opening in 2001, Dress for Success Tulsa has helped over 15,000 women make the transition into self-sufficiency.

Current corporate sponsors for the 2019 event include Simmons Homes, ARVEST, Indian Health Care Resource Center and United Tech.

Castle of Muskogee Hosts Halloween Festival in October

The Halloween Festival at the Castle of Muskogee is alive again this year and runs Fridays and Saturdays through Oct. 26. The Castle of Muskogee is located at 3400 W. Fern Mountain Rd. in Muskogee.

The Ghost Hosts of Oklahoma's 60-acre park invite visitors to join them for the event where they will find a collection of culinary creations and more than 30 shops for crafts, décor, clothing and entertainment for the entire family.

More than a haunted house, the Castle provides an array of thrills between 11 different attractions. The goal of the Castle is to create one-of-a-kind memories of fun and adventure for everyone.

Over the years, with the addition of new haunts, the Castle attracts more and more guests and it has implemented a new ticketing system, created by QLESS. Guests now sign in and then go about their evening freely. When it is the guests turn, they will receive a text for instructions. In stepping up the tech game, the aim is to optimize guests entertainment and fun at the Halloween Festival.

Families with young children are encouraged to plan a trip to Halloween Land, a carnival themed area ideal for kids eight and under. Activities include kid-friendly games, face painting, and prizes with absolutely no scares.

The Castle's Halloween village also features live entertainment on the Chessboard Stage with the comedy of the Jester Rejects and Mark Logsdon: Escapologist. New this year is David Smith the Hypnotist and Topsy Turvy Acrobats. Looking for a bone-chilling scare? Guests can venture into

Iron Gate's New Facility Serves 30% More Meals

Dozens of volunteers, supporters, board members and staff were on hand to officially open Iron Gate's new facility on west Archer with a ribbon cutting ceremony recently. The new facility began serving guests at the end of August and the daily meal has seen a 30 percent increase in demand in the first 30 days.

"All of our programs are up," said Iron Gate Executive Director Carrie Vesely Henderson. "We're providing more individuals and families with groceries, offering more variety in our pantry and distributing more kid's packs. But we've seen the most growth in our community meal.' Iron Gate on Archer has served 21,838 meals in its first 30 days, averaging about 728 plates per day.

the depths of the Castle grounds and test for fear factor on the Trail of Blood.

As a staple of the Castle's Halloween Festival, the Castle has redefined the possibilities and added new menacing creatures to this wooded walk. Guests may gather courage before entrance or count survivors afterwards at the trail's pub, The Rack.

The hideaway's host, Elvira, may not offer sanctuary from the trail's ghouls, but she'll be there to serve up drinks and entertaining tales before guests return to Castle Village.

Guests are encouraged to use the Castle's Skull Rating as a guide when choosing haunts. For example, the Haunted Hayride provides guests with eerie excitement without the residual nightmares

Within the Castle walls, guests can stroll through Casa Morte, a labyrinth that provides horror and menacing spirits around every corner.

Parking and admission to the Halloween Village is free. Tickets must be purchased for each attraction and prices range from $3.00 to $15.00 with combo specials available. Advance tickets may be purchased on-line. Go to okcastle.com to check out pricing, combo packages and details on attractions.

Unaccompanied minors (Under 18) must have a photo ID to enter. Minors (under 16) must be in attendance with a responsible adult.

YOUNG FUNDRAISER: Young Jane Eller, who has been raising money for Iron Gate for two years, with her aunt and Iron Gate Board Chair Mindy Morrison Taylor. Jane won a Spirit of Philanthropy Award for Youth in Philanthropy for her work with Iron Gate.

Making Tulsa Transit the Method of Choice In Tulsa, we want to foster a sive to all residents. Last year, generation of residents who utilize the greatest network of public transportation this city has ever seen. By having world-class transportation options, all Tulsans will have improved access to health care, education and job opportunities. Doing this ensures a better quality of life for all residents and breaks down the silos that have historically divided this city and created barriers to opportunity.

Though our bus routes now run seven days a week, a lot of Tulsans still don't utilize them as their transportation method of choice. That's why we decided to make our transit system faster, more easily accessible, more sustainable and more inclustations, creating a more renewable future for our public transit system.

Tulsa will also be one of the first 12 cities to get Aero Bus Rapid Transit, a fast and modern bus route that will connect downtown to north Tulsa, midtown and south Tulsa through Peoria Avenue. Peoria was chosen after careful traffic studies were conducted to look at where the jobs and people were most concentrated in Tulsa. The study found one-fifth of Tulsa's jobs were within a 10-minute walk of Peoria and one-in-seven residents lived within a 10-minute walk of the corridor. The decision to put Bus Rapid transit on Peoria will connect more residents to life-changing opportunities and services

Bus Rapid Transit won't be your typical bus route. It will be faster than traditional bus routes, with 15-minute peak waiting times and real-time bus information at every station. Accessibility will be prominent, with bus stops that have platforms level with boarding entrances. Stations will have covered platforms and buses will have on board Wi-Fi. Tulsa County Family Justice Center is Under Budget It has been 69 years since the Thankfully, the voters of Tulsa

Tulsa County Juvenile Court first occupied its current facility. In 1968 a center was built to house the courts and the programs for the juvenile justice system. For all those years, the mission has been to improve the lives and futures of the youth and families it serves through prevention, diversion, intervention and empowerment ..

Even as the population of Tulsa County has grown and the demands upon the juvenile justice system have increased, the facilities remained virtually the same for almost five decades. Meeting this challenge began in 2014 when the Board of County Commissioners and Juvenile Court Presiding Judge Doris Fransein presented to the voters of Tulsa County a visionary plan for a new facility.

The new detention facility is a 24-hour-a-day secure custody operation for temporarily holding youth pending court hearings or other placements. Youth are required to attend school classes offered by Tulsa Public Schools while in detention. The detention center has a full time Registered Nurse and a part time physician to attend to the capacity of 55 youth.

There is a very important reason why the new facility is named the Family Justice Center and not the Juvenile Court Center. Inside the walls of the new FJC aren't just children who may have caused trouble but who may be the victims. Children, who through no fault of their own, are in a dysfunctional and sometimes dangerous family that can cause abuse and neglect. Children who need protection and families that need support, help, and the intervention of the professional staff at the FJC. At the end of 2018 there were approximately 1,050 active deprived cases involving more than 1,800 children. Ninety-four percent were removed from the home due to abuse or neglect. The average age is six years old. At the new FJC there will be a Family Treatment Court (FTC) which is a partnership with the Dept. of Mental Health, Centers for Therapeutic Interventions, and DHS. FTC is a non-adversarial, parallel specialty court that combines judiciary aspects with treatment, social services and education.

The opening of the new Family Justice Center is just another example of the citizens of Tulsa showing their support for the youngest and most vulnerable of our citizens when they need us. So, thank you Tulsa County voters for making this possible.

GREATER TULSA PERSONALITIES Spencer Tillman, Susan Savage, James D. Miller Named to First Edison Preparatory Hall of Fame

One of Tulsa's oldest and most prestigious high schools has launched a new program to recognize the many successful alumni. Edison Preparatory High School's foundation launched a "Hall of Fame" and hosted its First Annual Edison Prep Distinguished Alumni Awards in September in the Edison High School auditorium.

The Foundation honored three Edison High School graduates with its highest honor.

Spencer Tillman: Former OU and NFL football star and current football TV analyst

Susan Savage: Former Tulsa mayor, former Secretary of State and current CEO of Morton Comprehensive Health Services

James D. Miller: retired managing partner with Arthur Anderson, civic and community leader and Distinguished Graduate of the University of Tulsa.

"Edison High School has so many wonderful alumni who are successful both locally and statewide as well as nationally. We have wanted to do this for many years now and are happy we are able to officially begin recognizing our distinguished alumni," said Brian Pingleton, chair of the Edison Alumni Association.

The Edison Foundation provides educational opportunities for the Edison Preparatory community by supporting innovative and inspiring ideas and people. In the past, it has offered financial assistance and resources to dozens of students and teachers to allow them to participate in various learning activities and events that otherwise would not have been possible.

This support has led to many successful outcomes for Edison Prep, from arts and sports to academia. Many individuals and groups have attended conferences, competitions, and received other valuable resources to excel in their chosen field.

With Edison Preparatory continuing to produce excellent student graduates, the Edison Foundation is excited to launch the Distinguished Alumni award program to begin recognizing those individuals with outstanding achievements of a local, statewide, national or international basis," Pingleton said.

"Edison Distinguished Alumni are a great credit to Tulsa and the Edison community. We believe that all alumni share in the celebration of their collective achievements," added Raymon Simpson, President of the Edison Foundation.

About Thomas Edison Preparatory Middle and High School

Since 1954, Edison Prep has been an important part of the Tulsa educational community. Designated as a college preparatory school, Edison is committed to preparing students for the greatest success in college, careers, and life through comprehensive a liberal arts program and pre- and Advanced Placement curricula. Edison covers 6th through 12th grade and offers all students a wide range of courses, activities, athletics, and performing and visual arts programs.

A reader of this column recently took issue with a claim I made in the September installment of Searching for the Sound in which I called the Church Studio ground zero for the Tulsa Sound.

"I respectfully disagree," is how I'll paraphrase the reader's objection. "How can Cain's Ballroom not be ground zero for the Tulsa Sound?"

This led to a spirited discussion about Western Swing versus Tulsa Sound and how both institutions, Cain's and the Church, were instrumental in adding something truly unique to the American musical landscape and in the end, I was just happy that someone reads my column.

The discussion also prompted me to revisit Tulsa's timeless honkeytonk on Easton & Main, both for its historical significance, and simply for the sake of nostalgia.

If you're a music fan who has lived in Tulsa for more than a year or two, you have no doubt spent some time on the famous spring-loaded maple wood dance floor under the neon star and disco ball.

The 95-year-old ballroom has welcomed myriad genres since

The seven-year run at Cain's was a golden era for Wills and Western Swing, and established Cain's Ballroom as the "Home of Bob Wills."

Wills, whose catalog includes upward of 470 songs including the T-town crowd pleaser, "Take Me Back to Tulsa," was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1978, and into the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame in 1999. Cain's Ballroom was added to the National Registry of Historic Places in 2003.

Western Swing is not the Tulsa Sound, but the two genres are cut from the same cloth. Both emerged from the primordial soup of American music, combining elements of blues, jazz, country and gospel to create something original.

Western Swing is still alive, and occassionally fills the old dance hall with Bob Wills inspired tunes from bands like Asleep at the Wheel and Hot Club of Cowtown. The Tulsa Sound is also alive and well, and will be on display at Cain's Ballroom on Nov. 9.

Rock N' Folk N' Chili Cook-Off

This is a great event every year, and this might be the best year yet. Horton Records' 6th annual fundraiser features a solid lineup that includes Ken Pomeroy, Dan Martin, Erik Oftedahl, the Golden Ones, Freak Juice and Pilgrim, but it's the Tribute to Tulsa Music set that has me fired up.

The Tribute to Tulsa Music has become a recurring and popular act at the chili cook-off. This year, an all-star ensemble featuring Chris Combs, Paul Benjaman, Jesse Ayock, John Fullbright and more join forces to pay tribute to our city's rich musical history.

Tickets are $15 in advance, or $20 a the door. Admission includes all-you-can-eat chili from some of Tulsa's finest restaurants and musicians (including vegetarian and gluten-free options). Funds raised will help with operating costs for Horton Records, non-profit 501(c)(3) organization that provides support to local musicians. Horton Records is a volunteer-based organization and has no paid staff positions.

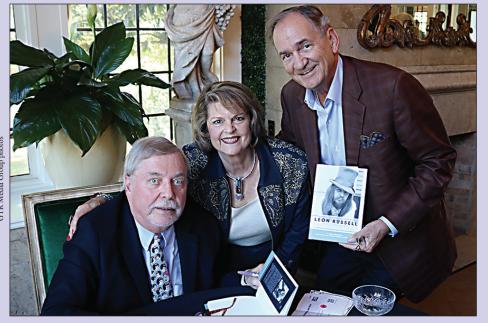

This is a family-friendly event, with children under 12 admitted free of charge. As every year, Horton Records will be collecting donations of non-perishable food, winter coats and children's books at the door.

The show starts at 5:30 p.m., so get the family together, grab a coat and/or a few cans of food, come to the historic landmark on North Main Street and fill that legendary dance floor like generations of Tulsans before us have.

As long as that Tulsa institution sits at Easton and Main Streets, it will be at the top of my list of places to frequent as I continue my quest to keep searching, keep listening.

HEALTH & WELLNESS Jill Donovan to be Honored by National MS Society

Courtesy Brandi Davidson Moore

On Friday, Nov. 8, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society will host the 18th annual Uncorking the Cure for MS at the Hyatt Regency Downtown Tulsa Hotel. This annual dinner and auction raises funds to fuel progress in MS research and supports much needed programs and services that help each person living with MS live their best life.

Tulsa's Jill Donovan, founder and CEO of Rustic Cuff and author of the Kindness Effect, will be presented with the 2019 MS Hope Award. Event Chairs are Cheryl and Craig Beers. Honorary Chairs are Patricia and Newton Box, who are also presenters of the event with WPX Energy.

The MS Hope Award is the highest award presented by the Society for community and humanitarian efforts. It is given to those who strive to improve the quality of life today and create a better world to-morrow for people living with MS. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society is honored to recognize Jill for her many years of outstanding public and community service. The MS Hope Award is given to those who have had a distinguished career, who are involved and committed to community affairs, who are leaders among their peers and whose personal lives are exemplary. Honorees are selected because of their leadership and community service and for their continued support of programs and improving the quality of life for people living with MS. Uncorking the Cure for MS attendees will enjoy a delicious dinner along with a fabulous live auction and live entertainment by the MidLife Crisis Band. Cocktail attire is requested. Event information and ticket purchase are available at www.uncorkingthecureforMSok.org or by contacting Brent Patterson at brent. patterson@nmss.org or (405) 463-4861.

Multiple Sclerosis, an unpredictable, often disabling disease of the central nervous system, interrupts the flow of information within the brain, and between the brain and body. Symptoms range from numbness and tingling to blindness and paralysis. The progress, severity and specific symptoms of MS in any one person cannot yet be predicted, but advances in research and treatment are moving us closer to a world free of MS. Most people with MS are diagnosed between the ages of 20 and 50, with at least two to three times more women than men being diagnosed with the disease. MS affects more than 2.3 million people worldwide.

The Society mobilizes people and resources so that everyone affected by MS can live their best lives as we stop MS in its tracks, restore what has been lost and end MS forever. Last year alone, through the comprehensive na-

Aspen Health and Rehab Holds Ribbon Cutting for Facility in B.A.

Aspen Health and Rehab, a nursing home in Broken Arrow, recently held a ribbon cutting for its new facility located at 1251 W. Houston St. According to Director Debbie Inks, the facility offers a unique alternative to Rehab. She says, "We have listened to what the community wants and that is what we are offering. It is a very upscale rehab experience with privacy and healing in mind."

Inks says that resident privacy was a major factor in the design and layout of the facility. Aspen Health and Rehab offers 110 private rooms with high-end furnishings and modern amenities, including high ceilings, flat-screen TV's, private bathrooms, free Wi-Fi and multiple common areas for family visits and parties.

The rehab gym is large and open with state-of-the-art equipment to focus on the resident's rehabilitation to develop a program of therapy, including physical, occupational and speech therapy – to focus on assisting residents to their prior level of function.

The Aspen Health and Rehab ribbon cutting was held Sept. 24 with the Broken Arrow Chamber of Commerce and leaders from the community. Tours of the new facility followed.

OPENING DAY: Holding the scissors during the ribbon cutting are Director Debbie Inks and developer Michael Morton. They were joined by members of the Broken Arrow Chamber of Commerce in addition to members of the Aspen Health and Rehab staff.

IMPRESSIVE FACILITY: The recently constructed Aspen Health and Rehab facility is a state-of-the-art health and rehab project.

This year's Tulsa Pop Culture Expo will be loaded with famous celebrities and will be held on Nov. 2 and 3 at the vacated Sears location at Woodland Hills Mall. The hours of operation will be Saturday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. As part of its ongoing mission, on Friday, Nov. 1, celebrity guests who are scheduled to appear at Tulsa Pop Culture Expo will make appearances at local schools, The Children's Hospital and other organization within the community.

Tulsa Pop Kids and OKPop are excited to announce Lindsay Wagner will be among the celebrities at Tulsa Pop Culture Expo (TPCE) 2019. Wagner is best known for her role as The Bionic Woman. In addition to her talent as an actor, she has long been acknowl-edged as one of the top leading spokespersons in the United States, a role she took very seriously with regard to the impact it would have on the public, which in turn reinforced her position as a respected voice in the community. She was given a Genii Award as "Performer of the Year" in 1985. Wagner has co-authored a bestselling vegetarian cookbook, "The High Road to Health" (1990) and "Lindsay Wagner's New Beauty: The Acupressure Facelift" (1986). She has recently released a meditation CD, "Open to Oneness."

Off-screen, Wagner is passionate about the study and sharing of holistic healing modalities, integrating mind, body and spirit. For 25 years, she has been the Honorary Chair of ICAN (Inter-Agency Council on Child Abuse and Neglect). She has also been heavily involved in human rights, domestic violence, animal welfare and the environment. From 2003-2006, in collaboration with the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, Wagner co-facilitated a counseling group for convicted batterers and their families. Her work utilized a range of psychological and spiritual techniques. For the public, Wagner facilitates experiential "Quiet the Mind and Open the Heart" workshops and retreats. These programs are designed to help overcome our own personal challenges, while accessing the peace and joy that is naturally within us. Lindsay offers these programs to the public as well as special interest groups as a way of sharing, that which has greatly impacted her life.

Tulsa Pop Culture Expo is an outreach event/comic con for Tulsa Pop Kids, a nonprofit whose primary focus is to advance literacy, inspiration, and aspiration to the children of the community through pop culture and entertainment. This platform is an amazing way to capture a child's focus and touch those who otherwise would not be exposed to a positive literacy environment. Tickets are available now at www.tulsapopcultureexpo.com.

Wagner will be joining additional guests Asher Angel, best known for his roles as Billy Batson in Shazam and Jonah Beck on the Disney Channel, Andi Mack, Summer Glau best known for her role in Firefly, Kevin Sussman of Big Bang Theo-ry, Bill Goldberg, WWE wrestler, actor, and Tulsa native, Dean Cain best known for Superman in Lois and Clark, Jennifer Marshall of Stranger Things, YODA and his creator, Nick Maley, along with Cesar Garcia from Fast & Furious and Breaking Bad.

Tulsa Pop Kids also announced the newest prop build will be ready for TPCE, a working batmobile. Organizers are excited to add this to the growing inventory of excellent props such as Lego Men (12 different five-foot Lego Men built to represent various characters and historic Oklahoman pop culture), Hulkbuster, Toothless (lifesize and puppet), Sponge Bob Squarepants, Stay Puff Marshmallow Man, Tulsa Tiny Tardis, Spiderman and Flash.

Tulsa Pop Kids Inc. was created to advance literacy and education through pop culture and entertainment. Tulsa Pop Kids Inc. uses a variety of resources to further the mission from donations of comic books to volunteers who dress up in cosplay to visit children in hospitals and elementary schools as well as local events that partner with other organizations in the community.

Iron Gate to Open New Facility

Iron Gate is Tulsa's largest stand-alone soup kitchen and grocery pantry. The organization broke ground on its new 17,000 square foot facility in August of 2018, after a three-year search to secure a new home. The organization signed a lease with Tulsa County for the property, which was a vacant lot. The $6 million project doubled the organization's capacity. Iron Gate was previously located in the basement of Trinity Episcopal Church. The new dining room expanded the number of seats from 88 to 217, with an additional 48 seats on the covered patio. The new building also dramatically increased the organization's cool and dry storage. Iron Gate on Archer also features a dedicated grocery pantry. building.

About Iron Gate: Iron Gate is Tulsa's largest stand-alone soup kitchen and grocery pantry. It serves a hot community meal every day from 8:30 am until 10:30 am (weekends and holidays included). Iron Gate also offers a grocery pantry three times a week and provides kid's packs, which are quartsized bags filled with nutritious snacks, to every child who visits the organization. In 2018, it served 204,922 meals, provided emergency groceries to 11,102 Tulsa households, and distributed 11,102 kid's packs. UCATION FCC 2019 Vision Dinner Reaches Historic Goal

The 2019 Vision in Education Leadership Award Dinner hit a historic goal, raising $405,325 for the Tulsa Community College Foundation at its annual event on Thursday, Sept. 19. Visionary sponsors, the Charles and Lynn Schusterman Family Foundation, Cox Communications, ONEOK, TTCU Federal Credit Union and an anonymous donor, helped to make this the single largest Vision Dinner in its 19-year history.

Tulsa County Commissioner Karen Keith was presented with the 2019 Vision in Education Leadership Award for her work as a public servant to move our community forward and commitment to improve the lives of Oklahomans. Roger Ramseyer served as the 2019 Foundation Vision Dinner chair. John and Lesa Smaligo served as the honorary co-chairs.

"Karen Keith is able to build consensus to create real and meaningful change," said TCC President and CEO Leigh B. Goodson. "She is passionate and sincere whether advocating for levee funding, championing the creation of a new Family Center for Juvenile Justice which opens next month, or serving on the Future of Higher Education statewide task force." As a Tulsa County Commissioner, she has served the people of District 2 since November 2008. She served on the board and was the 100th president of the Rotary Club of Tulsa, where she is a Paul Harris Fellow. Keith also serves on the Oklahoma Historical Society board of directors. She is a member of Leadership Oklahoma Class XX, the Oklahoma Academy, and the chambers of commerce in Tulsa, Jenks, Sand Springs and Southwest Tulsa. Funds raised from the annual Vision Dinner support students by providing funds for scholarships, leadership development and mentoring opportunities, technology and equipment necessary to prepare today's work force.

The TCC Foundation was founded in 1970, the same time as the College, and has a long tradition of providing financial resources to support the College's mission of building success through education," said Kari Shults, interim vice president of advancement and TCC Foundation president. "We are able to do this work because of the strong support we receive from the community and individual donors who help us create a better community one per-

Cyber Security Spook House Reveals Potential Internet Danger

News From

It is one of the scariest headlines the Spook House can keep themyou can see in the news, "Data

An article in Forbes earlier this summer showed 2019 was the worst year on record. with more than four billion records stolen, and this is just the large breaches. Not included in that number are the little ways you can be victimized without even realizing it.

October is Cy-Security ber Awareness Month and for nearly a decade, our Cyber Security/Forensics students have hosted a scary Cyber Security Spook House at the Riverside Campus to showcase the dangers that lurk on the internet.

"In the past we have looked at your car key fobs," Don Pipkin, Instructor of Cyber Security/Forensics said. "We were able to show with certain software you can capture the signal and then use a hacking system to unlock your car. No doubt this is more frightening than any other spook house."

Each year, students develop the topics and displays that interest them, and present how patrons of everything from trusting the cloud to data loss prevention. "This year we will have eight different booths open to the public," Pipkin said. "The Spook House is open the last week of the month from 8 to 10:30 am, noon to 2:30 pm, as well as 5 - 7 pm on Thursday inside Building A. We are excited to have people stop by and see what our students have put together." For Knight and Nathan Frazer, the opportunity to help educate people while having fun was a unique challenge. They took part in last year's Spook House. Knight showed people how to stay safe on their mobile devices, while Frazer focused on wireless security, especially the free Wi-Fi available at coffee shops and other establishments.

"Everywhere we go there are wireless access points," said Frazer, a second-year Cyber Security/Forensics student. "I learned on open networks it is really easy to intercept traffic, and anyone with malicious intent can take advantage of innocent bystanders.'

The cyber security industry is growing rapidly across the United States. According to a recent survey by the U.S. Department of Labor, the number of jobs is expected to grow by 20 percent over the next 10 years in Oklahoma, and more than 30 percent nationwide. With such a bright future, many people are turning to computer-based careers. The Spook House is also about helping students share ideas with people who may not understand internet jargon.

"Students have to do presentations to people and be able to explain and solve a complex problem," Pipkin said. "This teaches them to shorten topics to things that they can explain in five minutes.'

Helping students get the skills they need to enter the workforce is at the heart of Tulsa Tech's vision for the last 54 years. Offering five industry-recognized certificates upon graduation, the Cyber Security/Forensics program is open to both high school and adult students.

"My one piece of advice to anyone thinking about getting into the I.T. industry would be don't get intimidated," Frazier said. "Feed your curiosity, dive into things and don't get overwhelmed. Those are the keys to dealing with technology." If you're currently looking for exciting classes to expand your computer knowledge, or want to learn a new skill, Tulsa Tech invites you to visit today. For more

The following information is courtesy of Owasso Public Schools.

Owasso Public Schools is one of the largest school districts in the State of Oklahoma. The OPS School System incorporates 72 square miles, including territory in Tulsa and Rogers Counties.

Enrollment has grown to 9,720, served by 14 instructional sites, including eight elementary schools, 6th Grade Center, 7th Grade Center, 8th Grade Center, Owasso High School and the Owasso Ram Academy. With continuing improvements at the school sites, Owasso Public Schools is working to meet the needs and provide for the safety of the growing student population.

The Owasso School District provides excellent physical facilities and equipment to support a quality program that meets the educational requirements of the students. School buildings and auxiliary facilities afford maximum safety, protection of health, and accommodations to the physical conditions of those who use them.

In addition to an excellent teaching staff, every school has a qualified counselor and a media specialist. Owasso Public Schools also has seven full-time registered nurses to provide health services and accommodate the needs of the students in the system. Owasso's proximity to Tulsa provides its citizens with employment in a major metropolitan area, yet retains the benefits of small town living. The community has experienced tremendous growth in the last ten years. Owasso continues to grow towards the north and east with many new subdivisions being developed.

Owasso residents believe that education is the key to their children's future. The schools and community are working together to provide the children with quality educational opportunities that will prepare them for a prosperous future.

OWASSO SPORTS Senior Tight End/H-Back a Key Weapon In No. 1 Owasso's High-Octain Offense

Mario Kirby Continues to Find the End Zone

By MIKE MOGUIN GTR Sports Writer

Mario Kirby is among many weapons in Owasso's offensive firepower and has definitely impacted the Rams in their 3-0 start and takeover of the No. 1 spot in Class 6AI.

Kirby, a 6'2', 225-pound senior who alternates between halfback and tight end, scored a touchdown in each game during the non-district season.

In the season opener at Bentonville (Ark.), he caught a 27-yard TD pass from quarterback Cole Duggar that brought the Rams to within one point in the first half. Owasso went on to win that game, 47-34, as he finished with 136 yards receiving on six catches.

At home one week later against Fayetteville (Ark.), he caught a 54-yard TD that helped the Rams regain momentum, giving them a 34-16 lead.

"I acted like I was blocking so they wouldn't come down on me," Kirby said. "It popped up for me to catch the ball and take off."

Needless to say, both scores were his most memorable moments of each game, he said.

They went on to win over Fayetteville, 51-19. "It's great compared to last year where we lost this game," Kirby said. Owasso lost to the Bulldogs 45-31 last season. "Coming in and winning this has really shown that we changed a lot.

"It makes it more special because that's where (Owasso coach Bill Blankenship) came from to coach us," he added. Blankenship coached Fayetteville to Class 7A state title in Arkansas in 2016 before coming to Owasso, leading the Rams to the 6AI title in Oklahoma one year later.

Then came the game that moved Owasso from No. 2 to No. 1, as they stunned the 2018 state champion Broken Arrow 42-19 in the Tigers' den.

The week before, which was after the Fayetteville game, Kirby pointed out how the team still had pain from losing twice to B.A. last year – both in regular season and in the state semifinals.

"We're definitely going to compete against B.A., especially after last year. It sticks in our mind," he said.

And they proved more than that. Kirby caught a 49-yard TD pass against the Tigers that put Owasso on top 21-17, and for good in the third quarter. That was the beginning of the Rams turning a close game into a rout.

What Kirby likes about his positions is pretty simple. "At h-back, I get to smash people inside and at wide receiver, I get to catch the ball and act fast," he said.

What does he like about the game of football?

"Being competitive. I like to compete," Kirby said.

Also a member of the Rams' lacrosse team, he sees himself as an aggressive athlete.

When it comes to having a favorite tight end, Kirby likes Rob Gronkowski, the New England Patriots standout, a three-time Super Bowl champion who recently retired.

"He is just aggressive and nobody expects him to run fast because they think he is too big,"

' Kirby said.

Kirby has plans to play college football, but is still deciding where he will play. He has offers from Abilene

He has offers from Abilene Christian, Arkansas-Pine Bluff, UCO and East Central.

In the meantime, he and the rest of his Ram teammates are seeking to win a state championship for the second time in three years.

four TDs in a 35-9 win over Broken Bow at home.

But, the senior standout with a 6-1, 197-pound frame who has been offered by Air Force, gives credit to those who do their part as well.

my line up front. They do a really great job of executing the game plan that we've been practicing all week and going in on Friday night focused and ready to go.'

Link has been in the MCA school system since seventh grade. His experience as a Patriot has been fun, he said.

"We're a very competitive team every season and football has always been my favorite sport," he said. "When I transferred over, I wanted to come here and enjoy it, have a great time playing high school football. I really wanted to come here and participate in the tradition that they have here. Obviously, they have really high expectations, especially on the quarterback. But, I feel like as a team, we've done that pretty well the past few years. I'm looking forward to the rest of this year and hopefully making it to the state championship game.'

What Link likes about playing behind center is that it is a position where you are leading your team.

Obviously that can be a pretty big weight to carry sometimes," Link said. "But, I really enjoy leading my offense out on the field. I feel like there are a lot of guys that look up to me in what I do and so I want to lead the team the best way I can."

When it comes to favorite role model quarterbacks, Link likes former OU stars Kyler Murray and Baker Mayfield, as well Super Bowl winning quarterbacks Drew Brees and Russell Wilson, "because I'm not super tall and I really enjoy watching them compete at a high level even though they were told they were too small," he said.

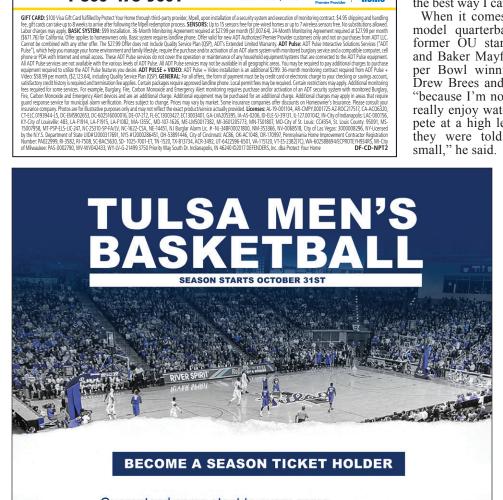

AIMING FOR STATE: Metro OB Asher Link and his teammates are aiming for a bid at the state championship.

The Dallas Cowboys are his favorite NFL team.

Metro had a bye week following the opener, then picked up wins against Oklahoma Christian (54-14) and Holland Hall (35-13). The Patriots were preparing to play at Adair (Sept. 27) as of submission of this story.

"I think we have a lot of poten-tial," Link said. "We made a lot of mistakes on Friday night (Aug. 30 vs. Broken Bow). I think we still have a lot of room for improvement, which is really exciting for this season because Broken Bow is a great football team and we came out and took care of business. I think we have a lot of potential through the rest of this season, so we should make the playoffs again this year.'

The remainder of Metro's schedule consists of meetings against Chouteau-Mazie (Oct. 4), at Wyandotte (Oct. 11), Chelsea (Oct. 17), at Nowata (Oct. 25), Kansas (Nov. 1) and at Salina (Nov. 8).

Oilers Hope for Continued Success Under Rob Murray

By GLENN HIBDON GTR Sports Writer

Coming off its greatest season since the rebirth of hockey in Tulsa 27 years ago, the Oilers will have a familiar look during the 2019-20 ECHL season. Heading into training camp, Head Coach and Director of Hockey Operations Rob Murray had signed 12 players from last season's team that won the franchise's first Mountain Division and Western Conference championships.

"On paper, I've got us equal to last year," said Murray, winner of the ECHL's General Manager of the Year award. "But that could change quickly depending on who we get from our affiliates. You never know how it will shape up, but from top to bottom, I think we're equal."

Murray agreed that the farm system can be volatile, especially around playoff time. Two years ago, call-ups decimated the Oilers' roster heading into postseason. Last season, a plethora of talent arrived due to parent club injuries and other factors. After winning a team record 42 regular season games, Tulsa made a serious push in reaching the semifinal round last season before losing to Toledo in seven games.

Murray said team character was a major difference between his first and second seasons in Tulsa. With much of the same personnel returning, he expects quality behavior again.

"There were no cliques in the locker room. We were a team with a dedication to being professional," Murray said. "Every guy wants to get to the next level and we showed that last year. We had no problems that I had to take care of and that spoke volumes. My first season there was some pouting going on, but our guys now won't stand for anybody who won't toe the line."

Murray praised his players for knowing and accepting their roles in his system. He said there are no prima donnas, no glory hounds.

"Tanner Kaspick came down last year and knew his role was as a third-line center," said the coach. "His bread and butter at our level was working hard. Last year we were better from top to bottom. There were no weak links. We had three strong lines and the guys understood their roles."

Perhaps no one grasped his situation better than team captain and ECHL first-teamer Adam Pleskach. The veteran finished second in league scoring with 75 points, first in goals with 38, first in power play goals with 14 and first in shots attempted. Left winger Jared Thomas added 65 points and was first among rookies with 44 assists.

Despite the return of many mainstays, others have moved on. Chris Forney signed elsewhere, Dylan Bredo and Scott Heneger retired, Stephen Perfetto was unsure of his hockey future and Alex Dostie was looking at the AHL. However, Murray is still confident in his roster heading into the season.

"From the first year to the second year, we had a pretty brand new team," he said. "I'm obviously more familiar with our guys this season and they are more familiar with me and my systems and expectations. We'll have a straight jump into training camp and there shouldn't be any question marks going into game one." Two years ago, Murray got a late start

Two years ago, Murray got a late start after taking the Tulsa job in June and the Oilers finished just two games above .500. Some fans were concerned after he came to town from Alaska with a glowing resume. The 2018-19 campaign more than lived up to Murray's billing.

"I didn't feel like I had anything to prove to anybody," he said. "I wanted to put together a good team for the fan base and provide an entertainment level they can really enjoy. Going as deep into the playoffs as we did goes a long way for the players because if you've never done it, you don't know how to do it.

"We had a fantastic season winning the regular season championship. We were neck and neck with Idaho and Utah and we gutted it out. We got the wins we needed and ended up winning the division (90 points to 88 for Idaho). At times we had a team, looking at the roster, that should have won the championship. We overachieved at times and that's what you want your team to do."

If there is one word to describe Tulsa's season, Murray said it's "consistency." The Oilers led the ECHL in average shots per game at 36.04 and also in shots allowed at 26.08. Returning goalie Devin Williams ranked No. 1 in the league, giving up just 2.12 goals a game while recording a .916 save percentage.

"Our goaltending was strong and on defense, Bredo and (Eric) Drapluk didn't start strong, but they got better and better every game,' said Murray. "Dostie and Perfetto made a huge difference late in the season. They were as good as it gets at this level. It was the luck of the draw. We were lucky to get those guys from our affiliates. They made a difference in our season."

Perhaps the major improvement Murray seeks this season is more overall muscle. He's counting on several newcomers to help.

"We might have been a little small and in the playoffs it was hard for our smaller guys to compete. We need to be more physical," Murray said. "Cam Knight (6-1, 195) is a bigger guy and John Teets (6-3, 205) is back and we're not sacrificing skill or speed in getting bigger overall."

Also adding beef for Tulsa is enforcer Mike McGee (6-5, 235), Connor Moynihan (6-4, 209), Arizona State rookie Jake Clifford (6-1, 198) and Steven Kaunisto (6-0, 200). Murray said he has "high expectations" for forward Danny Moynihan whom he tutored in Alaska and he mentioned the hoped for offensive contributions of rookies Craig Puff (Vermont), Canon Pieper (Maine) and Darius McDonald (American International).

Now all Murray has to do is mesh all his talent into a winning unit, just like he did last year.

"We had consistency with a great work ethic all year long. There weren't too many games where we were not in it," said Murray. "Every game last season, win or lose, we battled hard and had a chance to win. Regardless of the guys we've got coming back, we've got to continue getting better and better. One of the things I've heard from other coaches is that we play the same way every night. They (players) know that regardless of what game it is, it all goes back to our work ethic.

"Our goal last year was making the playoffs and we'll start with that goal again. With our team, nothing is guaranteed. Idaho and Utah will be good again, Allen will be better, Rapid City has an affiliate this season and Wichita has a new coach. We've just got to go out and play and go from there."

For Murray and the Oilers, consistency remains the name of the game.

Former Downtown Tulsa YMCA Leaves Memories

1951 Building Being Repurposed for Urban Apartment Complex

For those of us who have lived east corner of Sixth Street and in the same city for many years, Denver Avenue. Well-known ar-it is not unusual to have more than one connection with the same building. So it is for my life in Tulsa and the downtown YMCA.

In the pre World War I years when oil strikes like Glenpool were happening, there were hundreds of oil field workers, migrant roustabouts who needed a place to live. Tulsa, with a population that was less than 30,000. under the leadership of YMCA secretary C. E. Buchner, raised $100,000 to build the first permanent YMCA building at Fourth

Street and Cincinnati Avenue. It was a solid masonry structure, which included a cafeteria, meeting rooms, a health facility and a dormitory for a membership of 500 men. The original YMCA board of directors was composed of early Tulsa business leaders including my grandfather, C. C.

By 1951, the original building had reached its life expectancy and with 6,500 members had outgrown its space capacity. John

E. Mabee headed a new building fund drive for the site at the north-

1953. From its entrances on Denver Avenue and Sixth Street to the main lobby, extensive athletic facilities were accessed. These included a regulation indoor pool, a large basketball gym, locker rooms and hand ball/racquetball courts. The large lobby also served as a lounge with a reception desk and at one end, elevators that accessed six floors of resident rooms above. Each floor had eight to 10 single person rooms on either side of a center corridor with one shared bathroom facility per floor.

The exterior street level was sheathed in a maroon/rust glazed ceramic material with entrances

In 1953 as a young boy. I developed a fear of swimming in water over my head. My parents immediately enrolled me in a YMCA youth swimming class. Thanks to the Y, I lost my fear of deep water and in my teenage years even worked one summer as a lifeguard.

The Y building was used heavily for many years and by the 1990s was looking shabby. A shared lobby for access to transient and low-income housing combined with athletic facilities which tried to be upscale for downtown office workers was a continuous problem. With the aid of various grants, my architectural firm upgraded the lobby reception desk and some of the upper floors. But eventually, the building closed and has been replaced downtown by a smaller facility at 415 S. Main St.

and elsewhere such as the Tandy Family YMCA, located on East 51st Street across from LaFortune Park. The Tandy Family YMCA, which opened in 2017, houses more than 110,000 square feet. It was built on the grounds of the 50year old Thornton Family YMCA. Fortunately, the John Snyder family has come to the rescue of the former downtown YMCA and repurposed the building for small urban apartments soon after securing its listing on the National Register in 2016. Another piece of Tulsa's history has been saved for future generations.

THE ECONOMY = Tulsa American Marketing Association Chapter Fosters P.R., Research, Advertising and More

By KRISTY WHITE Propeller Communications

Marketing is all about relationships. Building, creating, and maintaining them is the key to success. Marketing tends to be an umbrella for public relations, marketing research, advertising and many more. Lucky for Tulsans, there is a local American Marketing Association (AMA)

AMA of Tulsa is gaining momentum with its group of marketing professionals as it revamps its brand, mission, and programming. With more than 50 members, AMA members are meeting and greeting other marketing professionals in the metro area.

AMA is a place where professionals can "geek" out over marketing together. The group encourages members to share experiences, knowledge, tips and motivation. The Tulsa chapter organizes monthly luncheons with incredible keynote speakers and happy hour socials.

"Our industries are constantly changing and meeting with local colleagues and peers is a great way to stay up-to-date with what is happening," said Van Webb, AMA president. "With so many talented professionals in all realms of marketing and business in one group, it's amazing to see the ideas that are shared and created."

To increase awareness of the group and do something fun for current members, members recently hosted an AMA Summer Soiree at ONEOK Field, home of the Tulsa Drillers and Tulsa Roughnecks. They invited colleagues, clients, media friends and new guests to enjoy food, drinks and networking. Not to mention some great door prizes.

AMA hosts monthly luncheons with keynote speakers on a variety of topics. Caron Davis, vice president of programming, has put together a rock star lineup of speakers for upcoming meetings.

"We're bringing the change of technology and social media into our programming,' said Davis. "From start to finish we promote speakers through social media, email campaigns, do survey marketing afterward, create podcasts to then share after the luncheons and much more. It's fun to take all these new tactics for businesses and incorporate them into our group.

The events are held at Tulsa Country Club. Upcoming speakers include:

Friday, Oct. 25 with Charlie Noel with SEO ghostwriters talking about the "Art and Science of SEO"

Thursday, Feb. 20 with Jen Kerchkoff, "Influencer Marketing"

• Thursday, March 26 with Tamatha Goad,

Sweet Adeline's "Global Marketing" • Thursday, April 16 with Joy Toburn, Mc-Nellie's Group "Loyalty Marketing"

• Thursday, May 21 with Justin Gorski, The Tulsa Drillers "Sports Marketing"

The board continues to grow and identify new members to add to the mix. That group is a combination of branding, video, community development, media relations, public relations, CPAs, strategic marketers, business owners that take control of their marketing, and many more professionals.

The Tulsa AMA board includes Van Webb, CEO Webb Branding, (President); Stephen Tackett, Founder, creative director of The Audio Planet (President-Elect); Nathan Groves, producer of Retrospec Films (VP of Sponsorship); Whitney Emerick, director, corporate communications of Public Service Company of Oklahoma (VP of Membership); Caron Davis, director of regional development for Cancer Treatment Centers of America in Tulsa (VP of Programming); Justin Gorski, vice president of marketing for Tulsa Drillers Baseball (VP of Communications); Kristy White, Propeller Communications (VP of Community Relations); Cynthia Hügli, marketing strategist for Byers Creative (Secretary); Toni

MARKETING PROFESSIONALS: The Tulsa Chapter of the American Marketing Association recently held a social function at ONEOK Field during a Tulsa Roughnecks game. Among the attendees, from left, were Stephen Tackett, The Audio Planet; Jourdan Srouji, National Brand Marketer new to Tulsa; Whitney Emerick, AEP/PSO; Kristy White, Propeller Communications; and Michelle Singer, STIR.

Griffey, Owner, Blue Sky CPAs, PLLC (Treasurer); and Michelle Singer, VP for marketing strategy, STIR, LLC (Board Member at Large).

For more information about AMA visit amatulsa.org/ or facebook.com/amatulsa.

PSO Lowering Fuel Costs

Lower costs for the fuel used to generate electricity means customers of Public Service Company of Oklahoma (PSO) will soon see lower electric bills.

Beginning with the October billing cycle, PSO is lowering the fuel cost adjustment on customer bills, which will result in decreases between 2.9 percent and 19.2 percent, depending on customer class and usage. A residential customer who uses 1,100 kilowatt-hours a month will see a reduction of $3.68 due to this change.

For larger commercial and industrial customers, for whom fuel costs make up a significantly larger portion of their bill, the new prices will add up to thousands of dollars in savings.

For energy saving tips and information about PSO's energy efficiency programs, visit www.PSOklahoma.com.

OU to Host Entrepreneurs

The OU Entrepreneurship Expo will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 21, at the Tom Love Innovation Hub, 201 David L. Boren Blvd., on OU's Research Campus in Norman.

The event is a trade show for OU students, Sooner Innovation Fund winners, local business owners and entrepreneurs to exhibit their goods, services and concepts in an open forum, with opportunities to meet with potential investors, generate leads and sales and build new business relationships.

"Bringing together the entrepreneurial community by hosting the Entrepreneurship Expo last year sparked innovation, relationships, pivots, sales, and invest-ment conversations," said Denise Parris, assistant professor of entrepreneurship. For more information, visit price. ou.edu/ouexpo.

Cox Business Center Announces Two Significant Multi-Year, Multi-Million Dollar Event Contracts

Cox Business Center held a press conference recently announcing two multi-year contracts contributing millions of dollars in economic impact for Tulsa over the next three years. Both Sene-Gence International and Usborne Books & More have signed threeyear agreements with the downtown Tulsa venue contributing $11,792,000 in economic impact for the city.

The events will also bring 12,000 attendees to Tulsa and contribute to the venue's goal of hosting more national conferences as it nears completion on its $55 million Vision Tulsa renovation. "By expanding partnerships with existing clients, Cox Business Center continues to contribute to the success and economic growth in Tulsa's downtown development," said Assistant General Manager Angie Teel, CMP. "We have had great experiences with both companies and look forward to further cultivating these relationships and show attendees how Tulsa does it better."

Mark Lawson, Director of Public Affairs, SeneGence International, and Randall White, CEO and Founder, Usborne Books & More, spoke on choosing to host national events in Tulsa moving forward, while Ray Hoyt, president of Tulsa Regional Tourism, spoke on the venue's importance in the economic growth and development of downtown. Angie Teel, CMP, assistant general manager, and Jennifer Thornton, director of sales, represented Cox Business Center and spoke on how proud the convention center is to participate in the city's growth and grateful for international companies like Sene-Gence International and Usborne Books & More for supporting the city.

T. Boone Pickens' Impact and Vision Remembered

Twenty-five years ago, Boone Pickens sent me a letter describing his passion for natural gas and America's energy future. I share with you a portion of the letter, dated October 7, 1994:

There is a lot of focus these days, as there should be, on the tremendous costs facing business and local governments as a result of the 1990 Clean Air Act.

Many of the proposed solutions are so ridiculous or technologically far-fetched that they deservedly short shrift in the environmental debate.

It seems a great public service can be done by advocating realistic pollution alternatives and when it comes to transportation, that solution is natural gas and natural gas vehicles.

Natural gas is the cleanest fossil fuel in the world, burning 80-90 percent cleaner than gasoline at two-thirds the cost. Natural gas is a superior fuel, with an octane rating of 130 compared to 90 or so for gasoline. It's also an abundant, domestic fuel that can cut federal trade deficit in half and help reclaim many of the half-million U.S. oil and gas industry jobs lost in the past 10 years. If 20 percent of America's 200 million vehicles operated on natural gas rather than foregin oil/gasoline, we could cut foreign crude oil imports by 50 percent.

There are other environmental benefits of natural gas besides dramatic reduction in tailpipe emissions...Seems to me the case for natural gas is pretty clear.'

The first time mv wife Nancy and I met Boone was in Western Oklahoma at a reception. Boone's energy vision was shared then and was infectious. Throughout the years, I would follow his many initiatives including natural gas vehicles, higher education support, fitness initiatives, his energy plan and the list goes on.

In my 2012 book, America Needs America's Energy, I quot-ed Boone: "We are now spending half a trillion dollars on foreign oil, importing 62 percent of the oil we use, and we haven't had the leadership in DC to do anything about it. We've got to move to other sources of energy. But gotten we've behind. wav and will continue to pay the fiddler. It's not a good future." In the last seven years, Boone was able to see a great deal of his vision of energy independence come to fruition.

I not only followed Boone and his many By MARK A. STANSBERRY initiatives, but I took on several of his challenges including support of natural gas, his energy vision and higher education support. Boone was instrumental in supporting a documentary film, released in 2012, of which I was one of the producers. He not only helped financially support, but was interviewed in the film. He shared his views on natural gas and his strong belief in America.

T. Boone Pickens

May 22, 1928 - September 11, 2019

As I stated in my book, "Future generations are depending on us to keep the American dream alive.' Boone's challenges are still at the forefront: having passion for an effective energy policy/plan, supporting higher education, looking ahead. It is up to all of us to make the difference!

erial Solutions Awarded $1.1 Mil at Oklahoma startup company, MITO Material Solutions, has been awarded $1.1 million from federal and state agencies to perform research and product development and grow Oklahoma's technology economy. MITO Material Solutions manufactures hybrid nanoadditives that enable composite manufacturers to create lighter, tougher, and more durable products.

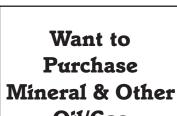

Kevin and Haley Marie Keith started MITO as students at Oklahoma State University, where the technology was originally developed by Dr. Ranji Vaidyanathan at the Helmerich Research Lab in Tulsa. Since 2016, the Keith's have raised huge sums for their various projects. Vice President of R&D, Dr. Bhishma Sedai, was MITO's first employee. The infusion of capital into small companies from federal and state organizations has big effects on the state economy.

Tulsans Honored for Outstanding Service To Legal Profession

Law firm Hall Estill, with offices in Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Denver and Northwest Arkansas, announces that the Tulsa County Association Bar (TCBA) presented awards to two Tulsa attorneys for outstanding con-tributions to the legal profession: shareholders Mark Blongewicz and James Milton. In addition, D.K. "Ken"

Williams Jr., was recognized by the Tulsa County Bar Foundation (TCBF). The awards luncheon took place Aug. 22.

Outgoing TCBA President, Ann Keele, awarded Mark Blongewicz the TCBA Neil E. Bogan Award for Professionalism. The award honors a Tulsa County lawyer who is known for his or her conduct, honesty, integrity and courtesy and who faithfully adheres to the highest standards within the legal profession. Blongewicz focuses his practice in the litigation arena with an emphasis on tort and insurance defense and other insurance issues. He was previously selected as a Best Lawyer in America in both Commercial Litigation and Insurance Law and named the 2020 Best Lawyers' Lawyer of the Year - Insurance Law for Tulsa. He received his J.D. from Duke University School of Law.

Jim Milton was a recipient of the TCBA Presidents' Award for the second consecutive year, in recognition of his dedication to and the volunteer work he provides on behalf of the TCBA. Milton also accepted the gavel to become the next TCBA President, effective immediately. An experienced trial and appellate attorney, Milton practices in the areas of commercial litigation, water law, and trust and estate litigation. He has been recognized as an Oklahoma Super Lawyer in Estate and Trust Litigation, as well as a Band 1 attorney by Chambers USA in General Commercial Litigation. He received his J.D. from University of Texas School of Law.

Ken Williams was a recipient of the TCBF Presidents' Award for his work related to finding an effective and economic method of removing graffiti from the Tulsa Bar Center. Williams is a 40-year business defense attorney with expertise in environmental, municipal law, natural resources, real estate and renewable energy law. He was previously named 2017's Best Lawyers Litigation-Environmental, a Local Litigation Star by Benchmark Litigation, and an Oklahoma Super Lawyer in Energy & Natural Resources. He received his J.D. from University of Tulsa College of Law.

BUSINESS & PEOPLE NOTES

Gateway First Bank announcesthe appointment of Melissa Bogle as director of corporate communications. In her new role, Bogle will be responsible for defining and executing the corporate communications strategy, including internal and external communications across traditional, digital, and social media platforms. Working closely with senior management and other company leaders, she will be responsible for the execution of the company's public relations function to position the team as strategic partners. She will represent the company to a variety of audiences, including the company's board of directors, news media, legislators, internal personnel, the business community and community organizations.

"Melissa will play a major role on the executive team leading our corporate communications and public relations efforts in telling the story of Gateway First's development and growth," Stephen Curry, CEO of Gateway said.

Bogle has been a community leader serving in executive roles, primarily in the healthcare and legal sectors. She is an experienced leader specializing in business development, strategic planning, marketing, public relations, media relations and special project leadership.

"I am thrilled for the opportunity to work with a national team who are strengthening families across the country through homeownership and financial services," Bogle said. "There is such positive momentum with the recent merger and acquisition that created Gateway First Bank. I can't wait to be part of the company's transformation and witness all of the future successes at Gateway."

Bogle brings a diverse array of strengths and successes to the Gateway First Bank team. She has generated several million dollars in free publicity during her career by working with local, national and international media outlets. She has also spearheaded corporate strategic planning efforts for the past 15 years. Active in the community, Bogle is the current chair of Women United, a 2,000-member affinity group of the Tulsa Area United Way, and a graduate of Leadership Tulsa Class 18. She received her Bachelor of Science in mass communications with a marketing minor from Phillips University in Enid, Oklahoma.

success launching innovative education programs and developing leaders in communities across the country

LIGGINS

Most recently, Liggins served as an executive director with Enriched Schools, an education startup company and community talent hub in ten cities nationwide. Prior to joining Enriched Schools, she led a national strategy to build an alumni program to support students in college and career at college-access organization Peer Forward. In this capacity, she supported 11 regions across 10 states with engaging over 50,000 alumni programming through the development of regional advisory boards, a national alumni council and online communities Her career started off as a Teach For America teacher in New Orleans and Washington, D.C. where she taught third-, fourth- and fifthgrade English and social studies.

Liggins received The EnVest Foundation's 40under40 Award, Millennial Week's Award for Social Good and numerous other accolades for her public service contributions.

Curcio Smith is the collaborative action network coordinator at ImpactTulsa. He has an extensive background in human services, including residential, public housing, vocational and workforce de al, and workforce development.

While serving as the outreach and admission counselor at Tulsa Job Corps, Smith had the opportunity to establish relationships with the community, schools, and various social organizations to promote educational and vocational training.

SMITH

Most recently, he has worked as business service liaison for Workforce Tulsa, where he was able to train, mentor, and establish partnerships with local businesses in Tulsa and surrounding areas to connect job-ready talent with in-demand occupations.

Curcio received his BA in Human Services at Ottawa University, with an emphasis in Children and Family Services. He continues to dedicate most of his time serving at-risk youth and adults residing in lower socioeconomic communities. Allison Walden, Tulsa Regional Chamber's senior vice president of resource development, was recently named to the Association of Chamber of Commerce Executives (ACCE) 40 utives (ACCE) 40 Under 40 list. This annual recognition showcases 40 of the industry's best emerging leaders who have demonstrated success in their careers and made significant contributions in the communities they serve. The list includes CEOs and staff professionals from a wide variety of roles and chamber sizes.

ACCE serves more than 7,500 chamber of commerce professionals, 1,300 chambers of commerce, and hundreds of other businesses and organizations. The Tulsa Regional Chamber has been named "Chamber of the Year" by ACCE three times in the last 15 years.

Walden joined the Chamber staff in 2010 and leads the organization's fundraising and membership engagement efforts.

The Tulsa County Board of County Commissioners (BOCC) announces that Alex Mills, formerly the director of engineering and construction with the City of Broken Arrow, has been named the incoming Tulsa County Engineer. Mills replaces retiring County Engineer Tom Rains.

With more than 25 years of engineering and construction experience, Mills brings an extensive technical background that has been centered in and around Tulsa throughout his career. In his most recent role with the City of Broken Arrow, Mills was responsible for all public engineering and construction projects within the city, including transportation, water and sewer, parks, public safety, and other special projects.

"Mr. Mills will be a fantastic addition to the Tulsa County Engineering Department," said District 2 County Commissioner and BOCC Chair Karen Keith. "We are thrilled to have him on board and look forward to what he will implement."

Mills is a professional engineer and certified floodplain manager, obtaining both his bachelor's and master's degrees in Civil Engineering from Oklahoma State University.

Accident Opens Door to Growth For Doggie D'Tails by Karen

By BOB LEWIS Contributing Editor

Doggie D'Tails by Karen is a Broken Arrow landmark because of the skill of its employees and the commitment to outstanding customer service of its owners, David and Karen Green. To meet customer demand, the operation has grown from one small pet grooming and boarding shop into an 11,600-square foot complex at 407 N. Aspen that has 5,000 square feet of dog and cat boarding space and 2,500 square feet of indoor and outdoor play yards devoted to its Doggie Daycare along with a 1,000-squarefoot salon where five professional groomers expand upon the level of excellence that continues to earn them rave reviews and professional dog show awards.

David Green manages the boarding and daycare aspects of the business. Karen is responsible for the front desk and all grooming activities.

To call this a true family-owned operation would be an understatement. Over the years, the Greens' five children and 18 grandchildren have all held various positions in the business. Carrying on this tradition, son, Chris, operates two grooming shops in Roanoke, Virginia. A son-in-law has his own construction company and has been responsible for the building and extensive remodeling required to make Doggie D'Tails what it is today.

In many ways, this is a classic American success story. But the event that made it all possible is a story in itself.

A longtime resident of Broken Arrow, Karen learned to groom animals while working in her mother's business. Going out on her own, she opened her first shop at 1417 E. Kenosha in September of 2007. The North Aspen location began accepting customers in November 2013. Less than a year after that opening, a client accidently drove through the Kenosha store, damaging its retail and bathing areas. That incident coupled with the desire of a neighboring restaurant to expand convinced the Greens the time had come to consolidate their operations a few miles to the west.

In addition to first-class people and facilities, the owners say one of the biggest reasons for their success is the attention paid to all of their two-legged and four-legged clients.

"We focus on what is best for the safety and comfort of pets as well as what their owners are looking for in an ultimate pet care experience," Karen says. The fact the shop has very little groomer turnover adds a level of consistency that is rare in this industry.

Over the years, Doggie D'Tails personnel have clipped and quaffed just about every size, shape, color and breed of canine imaginable. Holding the record for the shop's largest client to date is a dog rescued by an employee of the Tulsa Zoo. Despite its "terrible physical condition when it first came in," it weighed in at close to 200 pounds. The smallest was a Miniature Yorkie that tipped the scales at not quite three pounds.

As to the future, Karen says she and David have a dream of someday adding a professional veterinary clinic to their environment.

"It is a step toward the one-stop shopping advantage we would like to be able to offer our customers. God has blessed us in so many ways beyond our wildest dreams," she said. "If it is meant to be, He will let it happen."

SAME-DAY APPOINTMENTS AVAILABLE

Arvest Bank in Owasso to Host Tailgate-Style Grand Opening

Arvest Bank associates will host a tailgate-style grand opening event at the bank's newest branch in Owasso on Friday, Nov. 1, from 4-6 p.m. The new, roughly 4,200-square-foot facility will be located at 13716 E. 106th St. North and will open on Oct. 14.

In addition to a ribbon-cutting ceremony, games and a bounce house, Arvest associates will be on hand to visit with customers and serve hamburgers, hot dogs, chips, drinks and dessert.

The new branch will feature nine offices, four drive-thru lanes, a drive-up ATM lane and safety deposit boxes. All traditional Arvest services, including consumer lending, deposit services, commercial and small business lending, mortgage loans, mortgage servicing, Arvest Wealth Management and Private Banking will be offered.

"We are thrilled to open our third location in Owasso and look forward to extending our reach there to help Arvest customers," said Kim Adams, executive vice president for Arvest Bank in Tulsa. "Our award-winning service allows us to continue meeting the needs of our customers in the communities that we serve."

Customers are encouraged to stop by Oct. 28-Nov. 1 to register for prizes to be given away at the grand opening event. Prizes include an Oklahoma Joe's Highland Cooker/Smoker, a $150 Academy gift card and more.

The contest is open to the public. Alternate entry is available; no purchase is necessary. To submit an alternate entry, call (918) 382-4010 with your name, address, daytime and evening telephone numbers, and/or a valid email address, to be received no later than 5 p.m. on Oct. 31. You do not have to be present to win, but must be 18 years or older to register. In-person entries will be accepted at the branch, and winners will be determined by random draw at 6 p.m. on Nov. 1. Arvest associates and their immediate family members are not eligible to win. Immediate family is defined as spouse, parent, child, sibling or any other family member living in the associate's home.

Manhattan Construction was the general contractor and McFarland Architects the architect for the project.

Owasso Teachers Participate in Fund for Teachers Fellowships

Fund for Teachers fellowships are open to Oklahoma pre-K through 12th-grade teachers in public, private, parochial and charter schools. Applicants must have at least three years of teaching experience, be full-time employees and spend 50 percent or more of their time in a classroom setting. In addition, applicants must have the intention of returning to their school and/or district following their summer professional development. School administrators are not eligible for the grants.

This summer, 28 teachers from Oklahoma schools returned from learning odysseys in Europe, Japan, South America and North America. Fellows ignited new passions for learning as they adventured through diverse ecosystems, toured historical locations, observed industry professionals, experimented with new technology, and more.

Chelsea Archie and teammate Shanna Eicher, science teachers from Owasso 7th Grade Center, ventured to eastern Australia to investigate the effects of climate change on the country's ocean and land ecosystems to develop an inquiry-based unit that engages students in local and global conservation efforts. While in Australia, the team met with conservationists and research scientists to discuss the current state of local ecosystems and to strategize about conservation. Their learning adventure included guided tours of rain forests and animal sanctuaries, behind-the scenes research at the Cairns Aquarium, underwater research at the Great Barrier Reef, observing conservation efforts at the Australia Zoo and visiting local research colleges.

"I would describe this fellowship as a game-changing event in my education career," Archie said. "As educators, it is our duty to learn as much as we can so we can be the best teachers for our students. I can now infuse more real-world problem-solving and critical thinking into my classroom, talk with colleagues about complex world issues and encourage others to stretch outside of their comfort zones."

For more information about Fund for Teachers, or to apply for a grant, visit www.fundforteachers.org, contact Sara Wilson at swilson@ofe.org or call 405-236-0006, ext. 12.
