THE CHRISTMAS STOCKING

If you celebrate Christmas then at one time or another you have had the special treat of hanging up your Stocking on Christmas Eve "In hopes that Saint Nicholas soon would be there". This Stocking was mine throughout my entire childhood. It is made of felt and glue and stitched on the ends. For 20 years I put it out with the anticipation of what Santa might put in it. It got me thinking about how this tradition started. Legend has it, there was a father who was concerned that his daughters would never marry because he had no dowry to offer husbands. So one Christmas Eve, St. Nick knowing that the Father was too proud to accept charity, threw gold down the chimney and it landed in their Stockings drying by the fire. This charitable act by St. Nick provided the young ladies with the money they needed to wed and find happiness. Since then children and adults have been putting their Stockings out on Christmas Eve with the anticipation of what Santa will bring them. The Christmas Stocking is a symbol of Holiday traditions. You don't have to be young in age to participate, just young in spirit! When you enter a home that has Stockings present, it makes you smile because you feel traditions are being carried on and you know it will bring laughter and joy. Although the stocking is meant to receive gifts, it also is a way to give gifts. I hope every child can hold the joy of the Christmas Stocking. Several years back Santa entrusted me to help him place some Stocking gifts on the front porch of a little boy on Christmas Eve. His family, like the father of the 3 daughters, did not have much money. Christmas morning I watched out my window as he wandered down the street, wearing a new t-shirt tossing a little nerf football that This Elf left. And in the words of the Grinch... My old heart grew 3 sizes that morning, because I knew the spirit of St. Nick did it again. He helped facilitate warm feelings of hope and love that Christmas Morning for one special little boy. Perhaps if you know of someone who needs hope and joy this holiday, you can grow your heart too. Take a lesson from St. Nick and sprinkle a bit of cheer on Christmas Eve. Help to make sure all children can experience the treat of The Stocking. Although there is much received during the holidays, it truly is about the giving that is the Magic of the Season. It is not the tangible items in the Stocking that make it a treasure... it is the unseen...the traditions, the hope, the joy, the smiles on young faces.

Happy Perks to Everyone! To view My Blog live online and share any of your holiday traditions just go to https://www.positiveperksposts.com were you can also Join in, Like and Share Your

3 highway superintendents retiring after century of service

By Tom Rivers, Editor Posted 12 December 2019 on www.OrleansHub.com

Swanger, Fuller and Mannella led their towns through major waterline expansions

GAINES – Three town highways superintendents in Orleans County are retiring, with the trio serving 106 years combined as highway workers, including 70 years as the highway superintendents.

Larry Swanger of Clarendon, Ron Mannella of Gaines and Mike Fuller of Shelby have each put in many new miles of water districts, in addition to leading their departments in maintaining and plowing roads.

Wednesday at the Orleans County Town Highway

The superintendents were honored on

Superintendents Association. They received citations from State Assemblyman Steve Hawley and the New York State Association of Town Superintendents of Highways. That group's president, Joel Kie of the Town of Dickinson near Binghamton, attended the meeting and praised the three local highway chiefs for their service.

Swanger is retiring after 30 years as Clarendon's highway superintendent. When he started, there was one water district in Clarendon, and it was privately owned and served Thomas Estates. Now, Clarendon has 13 water districts spread over 50 miles with 830 customers. About two decades ago, the town built a water tower. Swanger is the water superintendent, in addition to the highway leader. Mannella and Fuller also serve in both roles. "I've liked the people and the other highway superintendents," Swanger said. "It's the people that you get involved with." Swanger said the job is more complicated than people realize.

"People don't see the behind-the-scenes paperwork, the contracts you have to deal with," he said. Swanger didn't seek re-election in November. Tracy Bruce Chalker was elected to the position and starts Jan. 1. Ron Mannella is retiring after 26 years as the Gaines highway superintendent. Before working in Gaines, Mannella was a motor equipment operator for six years with the Town of Albion Highway Department. When he started with Gaines, the town had 8 miles of waterlines. Now there are more than 50 miles with 750 to 800 water customers. The expansion of public water is a big accomplishment for the town, Mannella said.

Gaines also used a grant to cover most of the costs of a salt storage shed. In 1999, the town highway garage collapsed after a heavy snow storm. A rebuilt garage opened in 2001. Although Mannella is retiring as the highway superintendent, he will stay in public service as a new member of the Gaines Town Board. He received the most votes in November among four candidates. Mark Radzinski was elected in November to succeed Mannella as the highway superintendent. "It was a good run," Mannella said about the 26 years as highway superintendent. "The people of Gaines are really nice." Mike Fuller has worked 44 years with the Town of Shelby Highway Department, starting as a motor

The town built its first water district in 1972 with 125 customers in the hamlet and on South Gravel Road. During Fuller's career, the town expanded to 12 water districts serving 800 customers. Shelby also built a salt storage shed. "We put in a lot of waterlines," Fuller said. "Those are big projects."

property on Salt Works Road. The town used a bio-cell where micro-organisms improved the soil, which was cleared by the Department of Environmental Conservation. Fuller said that project was an interesting challenge for the Highway Department.

Business Park. Shelby teamed with the Medina Department of Public Works and Orleans County Highway Department for projects at the Business Park. Fuller lost a close election last month to Dale Root for highway superintendent. Fuller said he will remain active in the community. He is past chief and current president of the East Shelby Volunteer Fire Company. He also equipment operator when he was 21. The past 14 years he has been highway superintendent.

Shelby used to have its town building on Maple Ridge Road, where ALDI is located today. That site had contaminated soil from fuel. Fuller led the effort to have the soil removed from the site and relocated to the town

He also is pleased with the town's efforts in helping to put in infrastructure and clear land for the Medina

Mike Neidert, president of the Orleans County Town Highway Superintendents Association, is finishing his first four-year term as Albion's superintendent. He said the local highway leaders embraced him when he started. He urged the group to continue that approach with the three new highway superintendents. "Everyone took me people," he said.

Donna Mae (Martin) Beyer, 85, of Medina entered peacefully into eternal rest on Dec. 4, 2019 at the Medina Memorial Hospital following a long illness. She was born on July 19, 1934 in Buffalo, the fourth of Thomas and Gerda (Maier) Martin's nine children. The family eventually moved to Oakfield where Donna graduated from high school in 1952. She then worked as a secretary and a telephone operator. On Sept. 14, 1957 Donna married Robert Beyer, Sr. Soon after, they settled in Medina in the house where Donna lived for the rest of her life, even after Bob's passing in 2000. It is here that they raised their four children and where family and friends gathered throughout the many years. Family was always most important to Donna. From her earliest days with her brothers and sisters playing in their rural neighborhood and working on the Elba mucklands, to the countless gatherings and reunions with her large extended family. Spending time with her loved ones was her greatest joy. Active in the Medina community, Donna was a parishioner of Holy Trinity Catholic Parish, St. Mary's Church and was a member of the Catholic Daughters of the Americas, Court Santa Maria #295. She was a Twig volunteer at Medina Memorial Hospital's gift shop, the MAAC clothing depot and food pantry and at numerous blood drives. She also volunteered on many election days at the Town of Shelby's polling site. While Donna's children were young, and later with her granddaughter and greatnieces and nephews, she was an active member of the Medina High School Parents Athletic Club, attending many sports games and other school events. Besides her parents and her beloved husband, Donna was predeceased by her brothers: Thomas Martin, Jr., Ronald Martin; and sister, Gerda "Sunny" Watts. THE

BY NATHAN D. PACE ATTORNEY AT LAW

EXECUTIVE DECISION

One crucial aspect of drawing up a will is naming an executor who is reliable, cares about your beneficiaries, is reasonably sophisticated about finances, lives in-state, and is willing to carry out the details involved in probating an estate. A relative is often the best choice, in that he or she may be more responsive to other family members' requests to handle matters expeditiously. Additionally, if the executor is also a beneficiary, there is a stronger reason to complete duties quickly. A relative is also likely to be more attuned to a beneficiary's urgent need for early distribution. However, it is a good idea to look beyond family members if you suspect there will be feuding among your heirs.

Estate planning is a smart step for everyone, regardless of income, wealth or the size of your estate. I help individuals and families craft estate plans that suit their needs and provide stability and security for the future. To schedule a consultation, please call the Law Office of MACK & PACE at (585)798-1000. Our areas of specialization include living wills and trusts, small business, mortgages and foreclosures, powers of attorney, probate and estate law, and vehicle and traffic law.

(585) 798-1000 534 Main St., Suite 6 Medina, NY 14103

HINT: If an estate is complex, an estate attorney should be consulted.

FFA Students Attend Empire Alpaca Association Showtacular

Medina Central School District FFA advisor Todd Eick took a group of twelve students to the Empire Alpaca Association Showtacular at the New York State Fairgrounds Nov. 7-10, 2019.

The event is hosted by the Empire Alpaca Association and the New England Alpaca Owners and Breeders Association. "It is the first time we have participated as part of an education piece," says Mr. Eick. "We had the students set up a display. Every day the kids were engaged in learning and were able to talk to breeders, professional artists and retailers who were vending. They got a good perspective on the fiber industry."

The students got a lot of encouragement from the people passing by. "One of the women said to them, "Nothing warms my heart more than seeing a bunch of little people doing what I love doing the most It was a good experience for them," said Eick. "The students even though they are seventeen and towered over her, were really pleased by her comment."

Two teams also took part in the Fleece to Finished Product competition. They used yarn that was at least 80% alpaca and used a triangle loom that was five feet. Third and fourth place ribbons were awarded to the teams for the shawls they wove. "The third place team lost to a woman who does this for a living and lost by a point and a half," says Mr. Eick with pride. "For them to be rookies and perform as well as they did, I was very impressed by them. They did a really good job. It was a good experience for them and hopefully that will translate into different things the kids can be making, marketing and selling."

Advice for a Successful Career Change

Individuals change jobs for many reasons, including greater professional satisfaction, money or a change of location. The financial experts at The Balance say that people change jobs more frequently than many people may think, noting today's average worker changes jobs 12 times during his or her career.

It is not uncommon for workers to change careers several times in a lifetime. The notion that the job a person starts out in directly after graduation is the one that he or she will have for the rest of his or her life - or at the very least, several years - is no longer the norm. Many younger workers migrate between jobs for greater compensation and fulfillment. Older workers, too, are faced with career stagnation. A survey from the University of Phoenix School of Business found 59 percent of working adults say they're interested in taking the leap of a midlife career change.

Once the idea for a career change has been planted in a person's mind, he or she may be anxious to jump right in. However, career coaches and other experts say that it is better to take the transition slowly and confirm that changing careers is truly the path to take. Finding the right time for the transition is equally important. These steps can help professionals as they decide if the time is right to change careers.

- Research the job market. Look into the industries for the field you are considering. Is it the right time for success in this field? Industries tend to ebb and flow. Do not leave a job only to find the next career has few, if any, openings. Job growth projections are available through resources like the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.
- · Assess your likes and dislikes. Another area of consideration is what you like to do. Leaving a job may be based around finding a career that caters to your interests. Make a list of the types of careers you find appealing. To get help, take a career assessment quiz online.
- · Don't choose a career based on salary alone. Monster.com says that being financially strategic when choosing a new career is important, but shouldn't be the only factor. Your personal values, experience and other factors such as family should weigh heavily into your decision as well.
- · Use your network. The notion that "it's not what you know, but who you know" has some truth to it. Successful job-seekers continually expand their professional contacts. This is achieved by going to informational interviews, attending trade association meetings and reviewing trade publications. Target people who work at the companies where you see yourself, so you can get the inside track about job openings.
- · Get new skills. Learn which skills you have that are transferrable to a new career and which ones you may need to acquire. Take a course or two or sign up for training seminars. Don't immediately assume you need to return to school before investigating other, less costly avenues.

Changing jobs and careers takes effort, but the results can be worth it in the long run. ■
