"The last major remodel in our Deerwood office took place in 1974. We're all very excited to showcase the new upgrades," said Rachel Carpenter, Vice President of Retail Banking at Deerwood Bank.

The 1974 remodel was state-of-the-art for its time, including carpeting on the walls and other 1974 touches.

The new space, recently reopened, marries old and new, with wide open spaces in wood tones with brown and gray accents. The bank was established in 1910 and the exterior has been restored with the original 1910 windows. The rectangular sign will be hung again soon. Brick work and limestone arches highlight the historical facade on Deerwood's main street.

Inside, it boasts a completely redesigned and updated lobby with custom office and teller furnishings, along with new paint, carpet and windows.

Hy-Tech Construction of Brainerd was the lead contractor for the remodel. There is still time to come in and view some history. "We were able to bring a lot of things out of the basement, including ledgars and various memorabilia," said Carpenter. Historical items are displayed in a wall case and newspaper clippings and other items are out on a table.

Vern Smith has a $10 bill framed that bears the name of Deerwood Bank on it. Carpenter explained that in the 1920's, National Banks Notes were a form of United States currency that could be issued in all denominations. The bank has archived a few of the original issue notes.

On December 20, pre-Christmas festivity was in the air as customer mingled, looked around and sampled some treats at the Grand Opening. Santa and Mrs. Claus were to make an appearance later.

The final phase of the renovation is wrapping up this month, which includes modernizing the technology that serves the existing driveup lanes. A pneumatic tube system was installed to both drive-up lanes and includes interactive LCD monitors. The monitors allow drive-Be su teract with Deerwood Bank staff who process drive-up transactions from the front lobby of the bank. "Centrally locating our drive-up staff in the main teller area allows us to have more staff available to assist our customers, whether they are needed in the lobby or the drive-up," said Carpenter.

askdrsmith.com featuring Dr. Murray Smith Right Resolutions

Yes, it's that time of year. We're all rolling out the master plans for "getting in shape" and living the amazing life that we were thinking about all last year. Thankfully, the magical January 1st has arrived and this year it's going to work... until January 14th, that is.

OK, so maybe that doesn't happen to you. I have, however, seen it consistently over the past 25 years when patients show up February 1st looking for a little help. I'm always interested in their resolutions and goals because it tells me the target they're looking to hit. Here are few top tips that can help you to maximize your success that we do with our patients.

1. Choose wisely. We usually spend time reviewing their goals and crafting a game plan that makes it doable, healthy, and sustaining. Weight loss is a pretty consistent topic, and some mention our Zerona laser that can take off inches in weeks. We'll discuss it, but I let them know that it's the first part of our "Take it off, Keep it off, Get healthy™ program. The other parts are designed to help you keep it off and go for the real goal of getting healthy. I like them to have a clear idea on why they want a particular goal, what it will feel like, and what it will do for them. This actually activates a variety of areas in the brain that heighten their chances for success. The more specific, the better.

2. Build for the long-haul. This means that if a goal is important enough to make the resolution list, it is probably something that would be great for your overall well-being well into the future. Don't feel like you need to get it all done in the first month. In fact, spend the first month building a good habit and erasing the

in a couple weeks.

3. Write your goals down. Just this one step increases the chance of success by almost 50%. This helps you gain clarity in what you a setting out to do and how you're going to do it. Remember, be specific. Post them on your mirror, on the fridge, a discrete place at work. Anywhere you will see them and be reminded by them.

4. Get up, dust off, and start again. I have fallen off the cart and blown my resolutions. It happens all the time with goals. The part that helps in being successful anyway is to get up, dust off, and start again. Perseverance will go a long way in achieving your goal.

5. Find a friend to tell about your goal. They can be a great support and hold you accountable during the tough times. Sometimes this is the reason they are showing up February 1st.

Setting healthy goals that have steps that are written down and doable will add up over time to the massive success you are seeking. Make the SHIFT today!

December 28, 2019 www.NewsHopper.net Bipartisan Youth Workforce Readiness Act introduced in Senate

U.S. Senators Tina Smith (D-Minn.) and David Perdue (R-Ga.)—along with Sens. Ron Wyden (D-Ore.) and Lindsey Graham (R-S.C.)introduced a bipartisan bill to promote partnerships between afterschool providers and businesses so young people can explore career paths and opportunities that help them land their first jobs and thrive in the workforce.

Right now, communities in Minnesota, Georgia, and across America face significant challenges in ensuring youth gain the skills needed to be adequately prepared to enter the workforce. Many young people share concerns about whether they have the skills necessary to secure a job. This lack of adequate workforce readiness also leads to negative economic impacts for employers, who often say they struggle to find workers with the right skills for open jobs. The Youth Workforce Readiness Act would support high-quality programs that help youth gain skills and connect these skills to critical real-life work experiences and learning opportunities. It would set up a grant program for national, youth-serving, out-of-school time organizations like the Boys & Girls Club to fund workforce preparation programs while also increasing coordination between local workforce boards and experts in youth policy.

"I hear from young people about their hopes for the future, which include contributing to their communities and getting good jobs," said Sen. Smith, a member of the Senate Education Committee. "And I hear from employers that they need help getting connected to great employees. That's where afterschool and out-of-school time providers can play a role in helping young people gain skills and make connections to mentors, opportunities and local employers. Our bipartisan bill would help support youth success for years to come by exposing young people to the varied ways they can participate in the workforce."

"Currently, there are 7.3 million job openings and only 5.8 million people looking for work," said Sen. Perdue. "It is important that we invest in the future of America's workforce by giving children the skills they need to succeed. This bipartisan effort with the Boys & Girls Club and other youth organizations will support the development of out-of-school programs that are focused on preparing our youth to pursue the career of their choice. I'm proud the Boys & Girls Clubs of America calls Georgia home, and I share their commitment to helping kids and teens reach their full potential."

"Making sure young people are equipped with the skills they need for a successful future is a win for everyone, especially as more employers have jobs that America's youth are eager to fill," said Sen. Wyden. "This bill puts workforce readiness front and center to set our young people on the fast track to earning a living wage."

"A well-educated, welltrained workforce is a key component to future economic development," said Sen. Graham. "This legislation is great news for South Carolina and an important investment in the future of our nation."

"We can see what the future looks like by how we set up our kids and teens for success today. But to solve these challenges as a nation, we must start by investing in young people early. The Youth Workforce Readiness Act recognizes the time kids spend after-school and during ganizations, we can close the opportunity gap that exists for so many kids and teens

today." "The Boys & Girls Clubs of the Twin Cities thanks Senator Smith for her commitment to changing the lives and future opportunities for the youth in our state and around the country," said Terryl Brumm, CEO Boys & Girls Clubs of

"This bill is an investment in a transformational and effective program model that will support achievement of essential skill-building starting at an early age when we at Boys & Girls Clubs know we can make a difference. We've seen firsthand that providing a safe environment where young people are engaged and challenged to build and practice essential skills ensures that they can reach their full potential and are well prepared to enter the workforce strengthening the economy today and into the future.

The Youth Workforce Readiness Act of 2019 will support programs that provide youth with:

Essential-skill development by embedding social-emotional through formal and informal learning experiences;

Career exploration through community-based business partnerships, including discovery opportunities, career assessments and planning into a variety of career paths;

Employability skills including interviewing, resume writing, financial literacy and credential/certification opportunities that help youth find their first job; and

Work-based learning opportunities to practice and apply skills in hands-on work environments through local community business partnerships.

READER-RIBBE No good viewpoints

cer, it's not about them either. the summer, to develop these That done, shouldn't supporters skills, as critical for ensuring be concerned the former police chief chose to lie, distort the truth, alter documents, make three ring binders disappear, conduct biased, prejudiced, flawed investigations, twice, when it's menial, not important? Are supporters exposing a huge lack of character, integrity, and honesty in the former police chief? Their viewpoint doesn't add up unless they are. Crosby played a significant role in choosing the arbitrator in both wrongful termination lawsuits, which is why the findings are so important. They chose to deceive, and undermine the arbitrators and the process, it can be surmised the arbitrators weren't biased, they weren't going to stand for what Crosby represented and documented it.

Recently, the former police chief confirmed they collaborated with the city administrator to get an officer on paid administrative leave, undermining the current chief. They also collaborated in early Feb 2019 to willingly and maliciously break data privacy laws, undermining the lawsuits. The city administrator stiffed the sewer district for $120,000 shortfall of reserve funds, has created a hostile workplace environment where employees, residents, surrounding communities are at risk. The former police chief was found to lie, judges found them not credible, ruled they arbitrarily and discriminately enforced laws and policies, and failed eight times to criminally prosecute two former mayors, consistent with what supporters are eluding to and what arbitrators and judges have documented.

The relentless pursuit of justice continues, the residents have been served the second of many potential lawsuits and the Crosby council and mayor's failure to act is negligent, period. The situation in Crosby can be looked at from multiple viewpoints, none of them are good, tragically, Crosby residents will pay the consequences.

Lions Soup Kitchen Christmas Party

The Deerwood Lakes Lions served 28 hungry guests on December 17. The meal consisted of ham, cheesy potatoes, California mixed vegetable, dinner roll, fruit filled Jello with whipped cream and green sprinkles on top. Costco supplied The Deerwood Lakes Lions with four pumpkin pies and Target donated money for table decorations (pictured right), candy for the guests and presents for the children showing up. Unfortunately no children attended, so the gifts went to the toy drive at the Crosby Fire Department.

towards individuals living and working in Crosby is beyond comprehension. Near as I can tell, Observer wanted the Crosby PD gutted, starting with the chief of police. I think the council also had to go. The chief retired along with at least one officer. Was that enough? Apparently not.

A couple months ago Observer was upset that those retired folks were hanging around the police station, as private citizens I would guess, which was also deemed inappropriate. I'm not sure these despicable individuals can move far enough away for Observer to be placated. I'm not sure exactly what we're hoping to accomplish here.

And on what may or may not be related as it pertains to the criminal charges, lawsuits, countersuits, and whatever else, concerning the ex-mayor and the city, I found it quite amusing when the attorney representing the ex-mayor wanted it known he didn't want this whole thing played out and tried in the newspaper, vet scheduled a news conference to air out their side of the situation. I'll bet that was well attended. Also, Observer made it known that the City of Crosby was nothing short of vindictive www.NewsHopper.net DNR officials stress snowmobile safety as fatal crashes trend up

make safety their priority as the number of fatal crashes around the state has trended upward the past few years.

Three riders have died so far this winter and there have been other close calls, including snowmobiles that have gone through the ice and an instance in which a person was hit while walking on the ice. Last winter, 10 riders lost their lives in snowmobile-related crashes, five died the year before and three people died in 2015-16.

"We want people enjoying the Minnesota winter, but we want them to do it safely," said Bruce Lawrence, recreational vehicle coordinator with the DNR's Enforcement Division.

Snow cover throughout Minnesota, including on many of the 22,000 miles of trails that traverse the state (varying local conditions mean not all are vet groomed), have led to a surge in the number of people taking advantage of a fun and unique way to enjoy Minnesota's outdoors.

"Passing along your passion for the outdoors is one of the greatest gifts you can give another person," he said. "By modeling safe behavior, you can ensure that passion lives on in youngsters and new snowmobile riders."

Lawrence offers the following tips to ensure a safe ride:

• Stay on marked trails. The state's snowmobile clubs work hard to keep trails in good riding condition. Riders who stay on groomed trails are less likely to strike an obstacle or trespass onto private property. In parts of the state, wet conditions where trails go through low areas or across lakes mean trails aren't yet groomed. Riders should plan ahead and check trail conditions before heading out.

• Leave the booze at home. Drinking and riding is one of two main factors in crashes, and plays a role in about 60 percent of those that are fatal.

• Watch the speed. Going too fast is the other main factor in crashes. Many serious and fatal crashes occur when a speeding snowmobiler loses control or strikes an object.

• Be careful on the ice. During the past two winters, every through-the-ice fatality but one has involved people who were riding a snowmobile or all-terrain vehicle when they fell through. There must be at least 5 to 7 inches of new, clear ice to support the weight of a snowmobile and rider.

• Take a snowmobile safety course. It's required of anyone born after 1976 and recommended for everyone. People with snowmobile safety certification are less likely to be involved in serious or fatal crashes.

Wild deer protected with temporary ban on movement of farmed deer

Agency takes emergency action in response to discovery of chronic wasting disease in farmed deer in Douglas County

The Department of Natural Resources today issued an emergency rule that temporarily prohibits the movement of all farmed white-tailed deer within the state.

The rule, which goes into effect today, is a temporary, emergency action to reduce further spread of chronic wasting disease and protect Minnesota's wild deer. The action is in response to the recent discovery of CWD in a farmed white-tailed deer in Douglas County in western Minnesota. The emergency rule is in effect for 30 days.

The Minnesota Board of Animal Health earlier this month confirmed an 8-yearold white-tailed doe tested positive for the fatal deer disease in a small, two-deer hobbyist herd.

The new discovery in Douglas County has connections to other Minnesota deer farms and the state needs time to investigate locations that either provided deer to, or received deer from, the hobby farm.

"We don't take this action lightly," said DNR Commissioner Sarah Strommen. "The DNR is committed to proactively addressing CWD and doing everything we can do to protect Minnesota's deer herd. The Douglas County positive, with its connections to other farms in the state, poses a risk to wild deer that requires emergency action."

The temporary prohibition on all movement of farmed white-tailed deer in Minnesota would help control and contain the current spread of CWD, while allowing the state time to evaluate the outbreak, generate potential solutions to containing and eliminating the disease, and protect the wild deer herd. The DNR is working closely with BAH on investigating the Douglas County discovery and tracing the farm's connections to other locations in the state. The DNR is already monitoring for CWD in disease management zones in southeastern and north-central Minnesota where the disease has been detected in both captive and wild deer, as well as in a CWD surveillance area in central Minnesota where it has been found in the DNR website at mndnr. captive deer.

Prions, the infectious agent causing the disease, are found in urine, saliva, blood, feces, muscle and antler velvet of infected deer. Disease transmission can occur via direct animal-to-animal contact.

Since CWD was first detected in Minnesota in 2002, the DNR has tested more than 90,000 wild deer in the state. To date, 73 wild deer have been confirmed positive for CWD in Minnesota. Test results, including locations of confirmed positive test results and statistics, are available on gov/cwdcheck.

Green Card Voices exhibit

Community members are invited to visit the Green Card Voices of Central Minnesota Exhibit at Central Lakes College. The exhibit, hosted by the CLC Diversity Committee, will be on display at the Brainerd campus from Jan. 6 - 24 and on the Staples campus from Jan. 7 - Feb. 3. The exhibit is free and open to the public during regular building hours.

The exhibit features eight first-generation immigrant and refugee stories from 12 different countries. Each incredible and unique story is told through full color banners displaying biographies, a personal quote and a QR code that viewers can scan with a smart device and watch a first-person video story.

The stories that make up this exhibit are central Minnesota stories, told by community members who live, work, and serve in central Minnesota.

This exhibit honors International Migrant Day, which took place on December 18, 2019.
