Out and About with Rachel Morin: Wreaths Across America

This section of the cemetery had Remembrance Wreaths placed at the gravestones in short order.

Story by Rahcel Morin and photos by Joanne Sabourin and Adriann Tucker

Our Sixth Annual Trek to the Togus National Cemetery began with an overnight heavy, pouring rain and a blustery wind that never stopped. It was December 14, the Annual Wreaths Across America Day and the team of volunteers, led by Patricia Vampatella and Cindy Boyd, was not about to quit and go home. These hardy folks were members of The Outdoor Adventure

Club of Lewiston Auburn Senior College, also cochaired by Pat and Cindy who participated yearly in this venture.

Six years ago, Pat, who was Chair of the Senior College Board of Directors, initiated this Laying of the Remembrance Wreaths at the graves of our Veterans at the Togus National Cemetery and has been its champion ever since. She has worked closely from the beginning with Kaye Bouchard, who is the Wreaths Across America Coordinator at To-

gus. They have shared many memories over their six year friendship.

Each year we remember the poem, The Bivouac of the Dead, written by Theodore O'Hara, a poet and an officer in the United States Army in the Mexican-American War and a Confederate Colonel in the American Civil War. O'Hara wrote the poem to honor fellow soldiers from Kentucky who died in the Mexican-American War. The poem increased in pop-See Wreaths, page 8

Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings become divisions of Maine Community Bank

The Maine Community Bank Family

On January 1, Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings Bank merged under a single banking charter becoming Maine Community Bank. Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings will retain their names as divisions of the new Maine Community Bank. The merger of these two community banks creates an almost $1 billion bank, providing strength for future growth, while retaining their established bank identities and ties to their communities.

The creation of Maine Community Bank combines the strengths and rich histories of two banks that share the same mission and core values. "Bringing these two great banks together under one banking charter is the next logical step for the relationship between Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings," said Jeanne Hulit, President and CEO of Maine Community Bank. "Both banks are already vibrant and strong. Officially unifying these two longstanding community banks enables us to grow stronger together for the benefit of our customers, our colleagues and our communities."

This merger gives Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings the ability to increase lending capacity and introduce expanded product offerings. All bank branches will remain open and customers will have access to full-service banking at all branch locations from Auburn to Kennebunk later in 2020.

Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings are updating their visual identities, bringing the look and feel of each division in line with the parent brand, Maine Community Bank. "We're thrilled to unveil our Maine Community Bank brand family identity," said Hulit. "Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings share the same values and integrity, which our new Maine Community Bank logo represents. We are proud of our heritage and excited about our shared future as Maine Community Bank.'

Biddeford Savings and Mechanics Savings have been financial partners to the people of Central and Southern Maine for the past 150 years. To help carry their commitment to the communities they serve, the two banks merged on January 1, 2020, becoming divisions of Maine Community Bank. The merger expands the lending capacity, product offerings, and branch service area, while keeping all decision making at the local level. They have branches in Auburn, Biddeford, Brunswick, Kennebunk, Lewiston, Scarborough, Waterboro, and Windham.

With a generous gift of $10,000, Carbonite, Inc. is sponsoring the Esports athletic program at Central Maine Community College (CMCC) for the current academic year.

"Carbonite's Lewiston office has a culture of dedicated gamers and great respect for the value that CMCC offers our community," said Tom Neal, senior manager of recruiting at Carbonite. "So, when we heard CMCC was creating a new Esports team we jumped at the opportunity to be involved," Neal added.

Carbonite provides cloud-based, online backup service and data protection strategies for individuals and small businesses. The company offers flexible deployment options and multi-platform support, plus powerful high-availability plans to protect systems from disruptions of any kind.

Esports (short for electronic sports), refers to the popular and rapidly growing field of competitive video gaming. The CMCC Esports teams compete in the National Association of Collegiate Esports (NACE). Andrew Morong, director of admissions and high school relations, notes that CMCC competes largely against four-year colleges, since they comprise 90 percent of NACE membership. "We are currently the only community college north of Virginia to offer competitive Esports," Morong added.

Students who participate have to meet the same requirements as other athletes at the college. CMCC Esports teams are competing in Hearthstone, Rocket League, Overwatch, Fortnite, and Rainbow 6 Siege. The college has a new, 1,600 square-foot arena located in Kirk Hall equipped with Alienware Area-51 Threadrippers: five console stations with Xbox One, PS4 Pro, and Nintendo Switch; and a Twitch broadcast booth for live streaming matches.

Esports is a fantastic way for Carbonite to engage with a technically oriented audience, Neal added. "We are proud to sponsor the Esports team and enjoy cheering on the Mustangs this season!"

Quintessentially tall, ary movie star Rock Hudson

Lewiston biographer tells vital Hollywood tale epitomized all-American manhood at the pinnacle of his fame. The country's favorite leading man in the '50s and '60s, he oozed charm, virility, and charisma in classics like Magnificent Obsession, Giant, and Pillow Talk. His mainstream appeal translated into box office success during the last hurrah of Hollywood's Golden Age. And yet, this Oscar-nominated talent's greatest performance came in real life, as for decades he kept his authentic self and his sexuality hidden in an extremely homophobic society.

Governor's Address: Thank you for the privilege of being your Governor

Commemorating a new day, at the beginning of a new year and a new decade, I stood the other day on a hilltop of a popular hiking spot and I surveyed the Atlantic Ocean to the east—I could almost see the Appalachian Trail far to the west and the lights of the cities to the south—and I thought about the past and the future of our great state.

You know, taking stock of the past at the turn of the year often lets us see the future more clearly.

I recall vividly, a year ago, standing before the people of Maine and becoming your 75th Governor. I talked then about our history, about "the unsung" people of Maine as poet Wes McNair called them, and about health care, the opioid epidemic, climate change, education and the economy.

That same week, by executive order, Maine expanded Medicaid. Now, more than 56,000 people have accessed life-saving health care coverage.

Then with the passage of LD 1, we made sure that Maine people would not lose their health insurance due to pre-existing conditions and that their families would have necessary mental health, pediatric care, substance abuse treatment and the like. And we began the hard work of reducing health insurance costs for small businesses and self-employed individuals.

We commenced a battle to undo the ravages of the terrible opioid epidemic, providing life-saving naloxone across the state, creating more recovery centers, providing medication assisted treatment, beefing up prevention efforts and training dozens of recovery coaches to turn people's lives around.

Governor Janet Mills

We issued the long-delayed voter-approved housing bonds to build 200 new homes and weatherize another 100 for seniors.

We revived the Children's Cabinet and the public health nursing program, we hired dozens of child protection workers, beefed up prenatal care and commenced a Safe Sleep campaign to prevent the needless deaths of so many infants

In June I signed a budget that had broad bipartisan support in the legislature—one that was negotiated and debated with civility and collaboration. That budget provided property tax relief — sent money back to the taxpayers — and it invested another $115 million in pre-K-12 public education and adult ed and it set us on the path to a $40,000 minimum teacher salary.

Working with the legislature, we enacted significant measures to tackle the high cost of prescription drugs. We passed ground-breaking legislation to require dangerous people to relinquish their firearms and we created incentives for residential and community solar projects, for offshore wind, for heat pumps and for the purchase of electric vehicles and charging stations through nontax dollars.

We created the bipartisan Maine Climate Council and Maine joined the US Climate Alliance.

In September I stood before the United Nations and represented you and told the delegates of 193 countries about the things our state is doing to combat climate change.

In November we announced a ten-year economic development plan — the first in decades — that'll stimulate growth and personal income and workforce availability in the coming years, with results that are concrete and measurable.

So today I want to give thanks to the thousands of people across Maine who offered their help citizens, businesses and legislators from every corner of the state — who gave us their suggestions about the economy, health care, public safety, taxation, climate change and children's issues; who told us they want to see the state move forward with a civil tone and in a spirit of cooperation to become a place of innovation and excellence.

I especially thank the fifteen people who stepped up to serve in the new cabinet — including three people who served in the previous administration, four veterans, eight women and seven men. Perhaps the most qualified cabinet in recent history.

A year ago, I invited the people of Maine to "rise before the dawn like the new mist over the Sandy River — and seek adventure, with hope in our hearts and love in our soul for the brand-new day."

Today, in this new year, a year later, in our bicentennial year, in a brand-new decade, I want to thank you for the privilege of being your Governor, and I invite the people of Maine again to join me in an adventure of change, progress and prosperity.

Thank You, Janet Mills Governor

Maine warden service urges caution before heading out on the ice

Last week's cold snap covered many lakes and ponds in ice, but with the warming temperatures this week, The Maine Warden Service is urging people to use caution before venturing out onto any ice covering Maine's waterways.

Many of Maine's lakes and ponds only have a thin ice cover and ice conditions vary greatly throughout the state. While ice conditions may be safe in some spots, it can be very dangerous in others. The Maine Warden Service is recommending that people check the thickness of any ice before venturing out for any activity on frozen water.

If you must go on the ice, the Maine Warden Service offers these tips for ice safety:

Never guess the thickness of the ice - Check it! Check the ice in several different places using an auger or some other means to make a test hole and determine the thickness. Make several, beginning at the shore, and continuing as you go out.

Check the ice with a partner, so if something does happen, someone is there to help you. If you are doing it alone, wear a lifejacket.

If ice at the shoreline is cracked or squishy, stay off! Watch out for thin, clear or honeycombed ice. Dark snow and dark ice are other signs of weak spots.

Avoid areas with currents, around bridges and pressure ridges. Wind and currents can break ice.

Parents should alert children of unsafe ice in their area, and make sure that they stay off the ice. If they insist on using their new skates, suggest an indoor skating rink.

If you break through the ice, remember:

Don't panic.

Don't try to climb out immediately - you will probably break the ice again. Reach for solid ice.

Lay both arms on the unbroken ice and kick hard. This will help lift your body onto the ice. Once on the ice, roll, DON'T WALK, to safety.

To help someone who has fallen through the ice, lie down flat and reach with a branch, plank or rope or form a human chain. Don't stand. After securing the victim, wiggle backwards to the solid ice.

A New Year's message from Bishop Deeley

Happy New Year! A new year is an opportunity for a fresh start. In the spirit of this beautiful season of Christmas, we are filled with hope. On January 1, the Church honors Mary, the Mother of God, who is a model for us as we begin to fill the blank slate of 2020. Without knowledge of what would lie ahead, Mary refused to despair or give up on God being present to her and her family. With the trust of the Blessed Mother as our guide, let us resolve to seek the hand of God in our everyday life and respond to God's presence and grace each day. This is the foundation of all discipleship. Commit to embracing this resolution as you enjoy the beauty and wonder of the Christmas season. God is with us, and there can be no greater gift than that. Be assured of my prayers that 2020 will be a year full of blessing and joy for you and your loved ones.

Guest Column:Continuing the fight for patients' rights

On Jan. 8, the second regular session of the 129th Legislature officially began. With the new session comes new goals to accomplish for the people of Maine, as well as continuing some of the same work we began last year. We'll be quickly picking up where we left off last June, looking to tackle the challenges that far too many Mainers face. Finding ways to continue lowering property taxes, expanding access to good, affordable health care and lowering the cost of prescription medications are just some of our top priorities in the coming session.

As a retired family physician, issues related to health care have touched me personally throughout my career. Seeing folks struggle to afford the medicines I prescribed for them was painful. That's why lowering the cost of prescriptions was a top priority for me, even before I was elected to the Maine Senate. I was heartened to be greeted by colleagues, both Democrat and Republican, who were just as eager to lower these costs as I was. The result of our efforts was the bipartisan passage of four billsaimed at lowering the costs of prescriptions. I was honored to be a part of this effort. It was a great start.

We laid a solid foundation to build off of in making sure everyone can afford their medications. Together, the new laws created a Drug Affordability Board; increased price transparency; laid the groundwork for a drug importation program from Canada to get access to safe, more affordable medication; and regulated pharmacy benefits managers, who act as middlemen between producers and pharmacies. This year, I'm excited to continue this great work and introduce legislation to ensure patients aren't being taken advantage of through unfair medical billing practices.

Cost should not get in the way of folks getting the health care they need, period. What's infuriating to me is that right now, something as simple as switching from one doctor to another could become a barrier to affording care. My new bill would prohibit some unnecessary and useless practices, which only stand to make it even more difficult for Mainers to get access to the care they need.

LR 2889, "An Act To Establish Patient Protections in Billing for Health Care," will address some of the medical billing practices that serve no purpose but to take more money out of patients' pockets. The bill would prohibit extra charges for the transfer of patients' records, prohibit "new patient fees" for switching to a new doctor, ensure patients are aware when they're being referred to an out-of-network provider, and require that health care providers inform patients of the cost for the care they're receiving.

These unfair practices and hidden costs are just one part of why health care in our state can cost so much. They must be eliminated. I look forward to introducing this bill to the Legislature and continuing the work to break down the barriers that get between Mainers and high-quality health care.

If you have a question, comment, or just want to make your voice heard, don't hesitate to reach out to me. I can be reached by email atNed.Claxton@legislature.maine.gov, or by phone at (207) 287-1515.

Gallway, who has released over 25 albums and produced more than 50 for Warner/Reprise and various independent labels, was a popular fixture in the Maine music scene in the 1980's and 90's. The group features Gallway on guitar and vocals, along with Mark Wainer also on guitar and vocals, and Andrea Re (who has performed with the likes of Jackson Browne and Garland Jeffreys) on percussion and vocals. The group's music spans styles from 60's rock and roll, to Americana.

Called "a master of free verse" by the Boston Globe, Peter Gallway was a founding member of the influential Greenwich Village-based group, The Fifth Avenue Band, whose self-titled album was produced by Zal Yanovsky and Jerry Yester of The Lovin' Spoonful. Gallway has also worked with ac-

Maine added to large-scale art flag commemorating women's right to vote

In one of the more creative and unusual events commemorating the 100th anniversary of women's right to vote, Oklahoma-based artist Marilyn Artus visits the Maine State Museum on Saturday, January 11 at 1 p.m. as part of her nationwide "Her Flag" project. The event will also include a performance by Maine songwriter Jenny Lou Drew and appearance by Maine artist Amie Kennedy. The museum will be open free of charge all day. The performances and appearances are also free.

Marilyn Artus will arrive at the museum with her sewing machine, as she has at sites in 18 other state capitals since June 2019. Once inside the museum, she will sew a stripe that represents Maine, the 19th of 36 states that ratified the 19th amendment, on a large art flag. The stripe signifying Maine has been created by Maine artist Amie Kennedy, who will also appear at the event. While Artus is sewing on the Maine stripe, acclaimed singer-songwriter Jenny Lou Drew will perform.

Artus is travelling to each of the 36 states in the order that they ratified the 19th amendment. She began in Wisconsin on June 10, 2019. Her visit to Maine is the eighth of seventeen road trips that will end in Tennessee on August 18, 2020. "I am on a mission to make sure that every woman I come in contact with over this 14-month adventure is registered to vote and gets out in 2020 to put that registration to use," says Artus. "Her Flag" is not a political piece of work, rather a powerful, positive symbol used to educate and celebrate this truly momentous American anniversary." When it is complete in November 2020, "Her Flag" will measure 18 feet tall and 26 feet wide and will include the work of 36 women artists across the nation ularity after the Civil War. Its verses have been featured on many memorials to fallen Confederate soldiers in the Southern United States and is found on many memorials in Arlington National Cemetery.

We recall the proud history of the Togus National Cemetery, the only national cemetery in Maine. It has two sections (East and West) comprised of 31.2 acres. It calls for another column as its history is a long and proud one.

Pat Vampatella's thoughts and reflections on this year's event: "For the sixth year in a row, members of the LA Senior College Outdoor Adventure Club participated in the Annual Wreaths Across America Ceremony at Togus National Cemetery.

A Hammond Lumber Company truck pulled up to the Maine gate of the cemetery at precisely 11 a.m. Kaye Bouchard, WAA Coordinator, gave the order to open the doors and unload the hundreds of boxes containing the Remembrance Wreaths. Approximately 70 volunteers (including our seven volunteers) were on hand to lay the Remembrance

Wreaths.

It was heartwarming to see the families, young individuals, as well as older folks, who turned out. Some of the families had small children who carried tiny umbrellas. One little girl, approximately 4 years old, tried to balance her bright pink umbrella while very carefully laying her Wreath at the grave site. You could tell that she was taking her task very seriously. A couple of Civil War Union Reenactment soldiers looked sharp in their Blue & Gray Dress Uniforms. It is always a privilege to see the Graves of the two Medal of Honor Recipients laid to rest at Togus.

Then, at the stroke of noon, the noon ceremony began in coordination with the noontime Ceremony at Arlington National Cemetery and cemeteries across the nation and overseas, conducted by Kaye Bouchard, WAA Coordinator for Togus. Representatives of all Military branches: Army, Navy, Marines, Air Force, Coast Guard, Merchant Marines, POWs and MIAs, laid Remembrance Wreaths around the Flagpole. An abbreviated version of the ceremony was conducted due to the continuing, pelting rain. We left with a feeling of gratitude for those who gave their lives for our freedoms, and consider this yearly event a privilege to participate in."

Kaye Bouchard's thoughts on this year's laying of the Remembrance Wreaths: "It has been my pleasure to have the honor of being the WAA Location Coordinator for the Togus National Cemetery for 5 years, maybe longer. I am so grateful for the dedicated volunteers who take part each year to make the event run smoothly.

It is a beautiful, peaceful location with so much history to offer. Each year brings different planning and duties to ensure things run smoothly. You hope the love of our country and the pride of our flag will be stronger for some and passed on by many. The children have received some understanding of why we are able to enjoy our freedoms. They have learned that the freedoms and rights they enjoy had to be fought for and defended and must be maintained.

I, and so many others, look forward to the laying of the Remembrance Wreaths to honor and show our respect by speaking their names that we will never forget those who have served so that we may enjoy all this country offers. Each year as we prepare for the wreath

Kaye Bouchard, Togus Wreath Coordinator, welcomes and thanks the volunteers for their persistence as the heavy rain is now coming down harder. The Passing of the Colors and the three gun salute were not held due to the weather.\

laying, I look forward to seeing and visiting with the wonderful people I have met over the years, especially my ladies from Auburn.

I am a member of the Patriot Guard Riders since 2005 honoring our veterans at funerals and welcoming them home from deployments along with many other missions. "Standing for those who have Stood for us" is the Patriot Guard Rider slogan. It has been and is my pleasure to be involved in numerous groups that do wonderful things for our communities, veterans and children.

I was raised to have a great respect for our country and flag. My parents were in the U.S. Air Force and I hope to pass that love and respect on to my son and my granddaughters. God Bless America!"

The day concluded with a lovely lunch at Rebecca's Place in Augusta.

The Harlow kicks off 2020 with Keri Kimura solo show: Potluck of Both Worlds

The Harlow is excited to kick off 2020 with "Potluck of Both Worlds", a solo exhibition of paintings by Keri Kimura of Southwest Harbor. The exhibit showcases a dynamic range rich textures and vibrant colors and is on view January 10 through February 8, at 100 Water Street in Hallowell. "When I moved to Maine, I became interested in the way nature has a kind of handwriting that combines pattern and chaos. The way the veins of leaves are mirrors of one another and the anarchy with which they are carried and laid down in a breeze. The way it is obvious when this handwriting has been disturbed, when humans have changed the balance. Around the same time, I also began learning to sew. I have memories of my mother and grandmother making quilts when I was a small girl and I wanted to tap into that history of hand work. Painting for me has always been as much about process as anything else. These paintings came out of both these worlds. The landscape here, the serenity and strangeness and patterns and magic of the natural world. And also playing with textiles and layering color and weavings and the way things are intertwined. These are paintings about connectedness and exploration and mysteries and trees."

In conjunction with this exhibition, The Harlow is hosting an introductory workshop on abstract art. Learn more and register here: harlowgallery.org/intro-to-abstract-art-workshop/.

The Harlow is a membership based 501(c)3 non-profit dedicated to connecting and celebrating art, artists and community in down-town historic Hallowell since 1963. For more information please visit harlowgallery.org or call 207-622-3813.

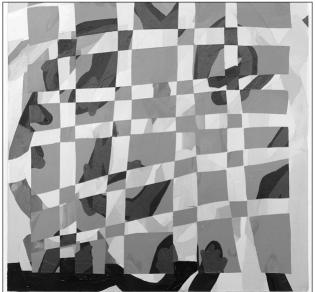

The Harlow is supported by the City of Hallowell, Dirigo Capital Advisors, Kennebec Savings Bank, the Roxanne Quimby Foundation and by our members. 2020 Season Sponsors are Camden National Bank, Capitol Dental Care, Chris Walters Productions, Great Gatherings, Eaton Peabody Attorneys at Law and Scrummv Afters Candy Shoppe. Provision supported by Collins, Shaheen to help reduce insulin costs for diabetes patients signed into law

U.S. Senators Susan Collins (R-ME) and Jeanne Shaheen (D-NH), the cochairs of the Senate Diabetes Caucus, announced that a provision they advocated for to help increase competition in the insulin market and reduce costs for diabetes patients has been signed into law as part of the appropriations package.

The new law incorporates a component of the Lower Health Care Costs Act—which Senator Collins voted to advance at a Health Committee hearing in June—that clarifies that insulin manufacturers cannot receive new exclusivities to block competitors from coming to market as products transition from the drugs pathway to the biological pathway in March 2020. In addition, the law will help lower costs by improving and streamlining the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) approval process for new forms of insulin.

"Millions of Americans rely on insulin as part of their daily treatment, and virtually all of those with Type I diabetes rely on it for survival," said Senator Collins. "Senator Shaheen and I work very closely together as co-chairs of the Senate Diabetes Caucus to advance policies that will improve the lives of those with diabetes, and one of our highest priorities is to combat the skyrocketing price of insulin.

This provision will build on our bipartisan efforts to make this vital medication more affordable for patients."

"Diabetes is a chronic condition and access to insulin can mean the difference between life and death for the millions of Americans living with the disease. Lowering insulin prices and increasing access to this life-saving drug has been a top priority for both Senator Collins and me, which is why I'm very relieved this provision to make progress toward that goal is now law," said Senator Shaheen. "I'll continue to work across the aisle to build on this progress and will keep fighting for more federal investments to treat and ultimately cure this disease."

Senators Collins and Shaheen have worked together to increase awareness of the threats posed by diabetes, invest in research, and improve access to treatment options. In response to the Senators' bipartisan effort, CMS first approved the use of continuous glucose monitors (CGMs) in January 2017 and allowed Medicare beneficiaries to use smartphone apps in conjunction with continuous glucose monitors (CGMs) in June

In November, the Senators introduced legislation to expand the availability of innovative diabetes technologies for seniors. In July, the Senators introduced a bill to roll back more than a decade of insulin prices hikes, and they have consistently pressed to hold insulin manufacturers, insurers, and PBMs accountable for the skyrocketing cost of life-saving insulin.

In March, Senators

Collins and Shaheen introduced a bill to expand access to diabetes self-management training, and in June they led the bipartisan push in the Senate to ensure continued support for the Special Diabetes Program.

Senators Collins and Shaheen have championed greater investments in biomedical research for diabetes and strongly supported $2.1 billion—an $81.8 million increase—for the National Institute for Diabetes and Digestive Kidney Disorders that was signed into law in December as part of the appropriations package.

Property tax relief payment to mailed

State Treasurer Henry E.M. Beck, Esq. announced his office will be mailing the first batch of checks to eligible Property Tax Relief Fund recipients. "An Act to Return Funds to Maine Property Taxpayers" requires the Maine Office of the State Treasurer (OST) to provide tax relief payments of no less than $100 to qualifying homesteads, when the Property Tax Relief Fund reaches a threshold of funding to support the payments. Municipal Tax Assessors and the State Tax Assessors reported approximately 310,000 eligible recipients who will receive payments for $104.

Payments will be processed and mailed beginning January 8. Due to the large volume, approximately 20,000 checks will be processed each day through February or until all payments have been made. OST will report on its Facebook account (https://www.

facebook.com/MaineOST/) when payments for each municipality have been sent.

A hotline will be in operation beginning January 7 to answer questions and to receive information on necessary updates to a payment. Please contact the Office of the State Treasurer at 207-624-7477 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. and select option 3. OST staff will work with municipalities to confirm any payee changes before a check can be reissued.

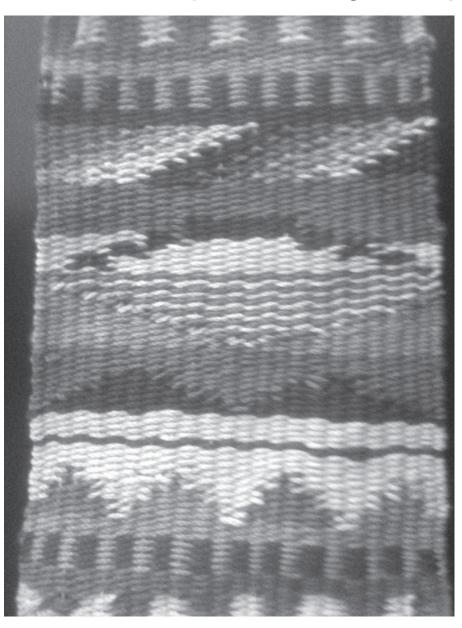

For more information on the program and how the payments will be sent, please visit https://www.maine.gov/treasurer/property_tax_relief/index.html.

About OST: The Office of the State Treasurer provides state agencies with efficient banking and financial services, which include revenue collection, payment issuance, reconciliation, and trust management. The Office also manages state investments and debt payments and issuance, ensuring that bonds authorized by voters are efficiently sold in the marketplace to provide funding for capital projects statewide. In addition, over $200 million in unclaimed funds for Maine residents are managed by the Office of the Treasurer. For more information visit www.maine. gov/treasurer.

Auburn Public Library to hold weaving workshop

The Auburn Public Library is offering a three-session beginning tapestry weaving workshop taught by Sara Karam, an exhibitor at the Library's Fiber Arts Day this past October. In this workshop, Sara will share the basics of tapestry weaving including setting up the loom, basic techniques, creating pictures, evoking emotions through weaving, and finishing a piece. The classes will be held in the Library's Androscoggin Community Room on Mondays January 27, February 10, and February 24 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. There is a $60 fee that includes your own handheld tapestry loom, yarn, and warp to complete one or two projects, as well as instruction and hands on assistance.

Tapestry weaving is about creating pictures through weaving. Sara began her journey in weaving 13 years ago when she first moved to the area, taking a class though adult education. Moved by the rich history of weaving in the Lewiston/Auburn area, Sara's inspirations are the natural world, a desire to play with color, and Native American blankets.

Class is limited to 10 people. To register please contact Mamie Ney at the Auburn Public Library at 207.333.6640 x 2020 or director@auburnpubliclibrary.org. Registration closes on January 17.

New exhibit at WHA rotating art gallery

Barn in Snow - photograph by Marian Marks

The Woman's Hospital Association (WHA) Rotating Art Gallery at Central Maine Medical Center in Lewiston is now displaying the paintings of Michael Everett and the photography of Marian Marks.

Michael Everett took up oil painting to depict his impressions of remote areas of northern Maine. Many of his paintings are scenes of the Allagash and Saint John Rivers. As his interest and skill have progressed, he has become more intrigued with the simple enjoyment of painting, especially in finding vitality in colors. He paints (mostly) landscapes of familiar places. He lives in Auburn and is a member of the Western Maine Art Group.

Marian Marks is a nature and landscape photographer. When not capturing the beauty of the world around her, Marks is the pastor of the Grace Lutheran Church in Auburn.

The works on display may be purchased through the WHA Gift Shop located adjacent to the main lobby at Central Maine Medical Center. A percentage of sale proceeds benefits patients of CMMC.
