Moody on The Market

Moody Pat

Sobering news this past week from the U.S. Census Bureau makes it increasingly crystal clear why we all need to get after the task of returning our census survey in a timely manner across Michigan's Great Southwest. While we are sequestered in the current shelter-in-place order it is more critical than ever that we return the census survey for 2020 because our population is sagging once again. The U.S. Census Bureau has released the 2019 Population Estimates for counties and CBSAs, and of the 15 major labor markets in Michigan, only three fared worse than Berrien County, which is called for federal purposes the Niles-Benton Harbor Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area, or MSA. Last week the U.S. Census Bureau released the "vintage 2019 county and metropolitan population estimates." Those estimates add 2019 to the estimate series and recalculate the previous estimates released since the most recent decennial census in 2010. Berrien County has a new official population count of 153,401 people. That's a decrease in population of 2.2-percent since 2010. That's down an additional 730 from last year's estimated 154,131. Berrien's population has drifted lower every year since 2011, which saw a slight increase from the official 2010 census. Neighboring Cass County has seen small increases each year for the last three, but the 2019 total was not available. Van Buren County saw slight increases each year since 2015, but 2019 data was not available today. Cornerstone Alliance President & CEO Rob Cleveland, whose team established the ambitious goal to increase the population of Berrien County by 10-percent over the next 10 years says, "The recent population estimates released this week are the perfect time to remind everyone how important it is to be counted – and to fill out your census form." He makes that appeal not just so they can attain the goal, reminding everyone, "There are so many Federal and State programs that are based on population, and I encourage everyone to go online and fill out your census." He also reminds us, "The population estimates are also the driving force behind programs like Vacay Every Day." That is the Cornerstone Alliance community-based initiative that has become a full-frontal assault to stem the tide of population decline. Cleveland says, "We need more people in Berrien County, and we need more people in the State of Michigan. We have some of the most successful companies in the world, right here in Berrien

Lakeland Medical Practices Remain Open

To help limit potential spread of COVID-19, many medical offices are conducting appointments using video visits or phone calls. Patients are being given user-friendly technology options for care.

All Lakeland medical offices are following strict building access guidelines, including visitor restrictions. However, individuals with essential or serious health needs continue to be seen safely in person.

People who are experiencing acute upper respiratory symptoms or a fever over 100 should call their doctor's office and remain home for seven days after illness onset or 72 hours after resolution of fever and improvement of respiratory symptoms, whichever is longer.

Emergency Departments and Walk-in Clinics

Spectrum Health Lakeland emergency departments in Niles, St. Joseph, and Watervliet remain open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Local walk-in clinics in Niles, Stevensville, and Watervliet are also open. Visitor restrictions are in place.

Your Chamber Update - Federal Response

Across our beloved country, the strain of the coronavirus on our healthcare system has worsened by the day. As confirmed cases continue to rise, many of us may now personally know someone who has gotten sick, or worse, someone whose life has been claimed.

Yet, above the coronavirus health crisis looms the specter of another; an economic crisis that we've all already begun to feel. With the implementation of social distancing and "stay at home" orders, most of us now know someone whose livelihood has been claimed.

It is undeniable that taking the necessary precautions to slow the spread has also put us on the path towards an economic meltdown. The lost productivity, sales, and revenue from millions of small businesses standing idle are more than just financial and accounting figures — they are serious threats to the jobs and careers of our friends, family, and neighbors.

Right now, our government is doing everything it can to save the lives and the livelihoods of our fellow Americans. At the federal level, Congress has pushed through three rounds of bipartisan legislation to combat the pandemic and subsequent economic crisis. This week, I'd like to briefly summarize how those efforts affect small businesses.

Round 1: Coronavirus Preparedness and Response Supplemental Appropriations Act

This $8.3 billion package focused primarily on funding the country's healthcare response to coronavirus. It did, however, include $20 million that went to the Small Business Administration (SBA) disaster loans program. These funds support the SBA's administration of loan subsidies, which are now available to entities financially impacted as a result of the coronavirus. The bill was signed into law on March 6.

Round 2: Families First Coronavirus Response Act

The Families First package provides new employee leave benefits, including paid sick leave for employees who work for employers with fewer than 500 employees and an expansion of the Family Medical Leave Act (FMLA). Businesses will be able to take advantage of new tax credits to offset new costs associated with these changes, as well as utilize a credit for health plan expenses affiliated with emergency and sick leave wages. Signed into law on March 18, it is estimated the Families First Act will cost over $105 billion when fully implemented.

Round 3: The Coronavirus Aid, Relief, and Economic Security Act (CARES Act)

The third and most recent round is a $2 trillion package that includes significant expansions in small business lending and unemployment insurance, direct cash payments for individuals, targeted tax relief for employers, $500 billion in economic stabilization funds, and $274 billion in emergency appropriations. Notably, the bill creates a new, temporary Pandemic Unemployment Assistance program through the end of this year to help self-employed people, freelancers, and contractors who otherwise would not be eligible to collect unemployment. This legislation was signed into law on March 27, 2020.

Unfortunately, these three rounds may still prove insufficient to solve the economic problems before us. In fact, Congress is already discussing what potential fourth, fifth, and even sixth rounds of legislation would look like.

As the Voice for Business in Southwest Michigan, our Chamber will continue fighting for meaningful reforms and connecting our Members with the information and resources they need.

Our God Goes Before and With Us

"Be strong and courageous.... The Lord himself goes before you and will be with you; he will never leave you nor forsake you. Do not be afraid; do not be discouraged." (Deuteronomy 31:7,8)

"How long will this last?" "When will my children go back to school?"

"When can I shop and will the meat and milk shelves be stocked when I get there? When will it be safe to return to work?"

These types of questions are being asked by young and old alike, the working and the retired, the healthy and the sick as we anxiously await the lifting of the governmental bans and the ceasing of the restrictions due to the COVID-19 outbreak. These types of questions are being asked out of curiosity, out of frustration and out of fear.

Are you fearful during this time? Are you wondering about the ongoing education of your children? Are you worried about the amount of your next paycheck...or if there will even be one?

Old Testament Joshua may have had similar fears and worries and anxieties. He was taking over the leadership reins from Moses to guide more than tens of thousands of people and their possessions across the Jordan River and into the Promised Land of Canaan. This was new to him, just like this pandemic is new to us. This was going to consume every aspect of his life, just like this crisis is doing with us. Unknown enemies, tense situations and huge decisions lie ahead of him, just like they do for us today.

God knew Joshua's concerns and fears and worries and reminded him he had nothing to fear because his God would go before him into those unknowns and be with him in every situation. The God who had promised Joshua his forgiveness and salvation through a coming Savior was also promising him his protection, guidance and strength.

In this time of crisis, and always, trust God who goes before and with us. He knows when this will end. He knows what will happen to us in the meantime. He will be right here with us through it all to strengthen us with his promises and to encourage us with his love. Trust him because this is the God who has given you your forgiveness and salvation through Jesus!

Prayer: Savior God, remove our fears and bring us increased trust in you. As it is your will, bring a decreased spread and complete end to this pandemic, be with the medical and emergency personnel who put themselves in harm's way every day, give patience and civility to all to work together to overcome this crisis. Amen.

Remember back in the old days, when you could leave your house? Ahhhhh, we had some fun then. Like that time I helped No. 2 son drive from Michigan to California. Although even then, there were a few anxiety-inducing moments, such as:

Somewhere in New Mexico, I was listening to an episode of the fabulous National Public Radio show "Wait, Wait! Don't Tell Me!" Host Peter Sagal leads a panel of players through a question and answer roundup of the week's news, trivia, and trivial news, all handled with wit, silliness, and the occasional fart joke.

At one point in the show, Peter made a reference to "slankets." And then moved on to the next bit, with zero context about what they are! I spent the rest of the day wondering what the heck a "slanket" is?! And as I write this paragraph, I still don't know, because I forgot to research it! So I will do that now; please bear with me a moment....

Ok, I'm back, sorry, that took longer than I thought, because I got distracted by roughly 19 other things while researching slankets, including a tidbit about someone named Tana Mongeau, who has selflessly helped fill the nation's dire need for more celebrities by having sort of, I guess, become one.

Anyway, back to slankets. First, it turns out Slanket should be capitalized. Next, it turns out that it's a "blanket with sleeves." It was "invented" in 1997 by a guy at the University of Maine who was desperate to warm up in his freezing dorm room one June morning. Blah, blah, blah, the rest is history, and Slankets are being mentioned on "Wait, Wait! Don't Tell Me!" and confusing one very out-of-touch listener who is so lame he doesn't even know who Tana Mongeau is.

On the Road Again Still

Ok, more travel tidbits along the highways of the west. . . .

There are places in New Mexico called Cuervo and Wagon Wheel. Well, they aren't really places any more, there are only signs suggesting they're there. But they aren't. They're both referred to as "ghost towns" by multiple internet sources. Still, I like to mention them to people who ask me to recount our trip, mainly because I enjoy smoothly seguing from talking about Wagon Wheel, the town, to loudly singing "Wagon Wheel," the Darius Rucker song. (Full disclosure: I only know the parts of the song from the ads preceding the Ken Burns "Country Music" documentary.)

Wait, wait, before we finish, here's another anxiety-producing anecdote, also from a "Wait, Wait" episode. It concerns a song snippet played between segments of the show. This one was a nice jazzy tune, with a female vocalist who, as I heard it, sang the lyrics, "Shake off your shoes/ Toss 'em over the moon." Exhaustive interweb research lasting at least 43 seconds has NOT been able to identify this song, or even a lyric remotely like this.

So, readers! - can you PLEASE HELP ME find out what the heck "Wait, Wait!" was playing! I'll print the intelligence you share, and credit you by name if you'll permit. Or if you prefer, I'll disguise your identity, and refer to you as "Tana Mongeau."

Is it an emergency?

Dear Dave,
My husband and I just completed Baby Step 3, and we have six months of expenses saved for an emergency fund. How should we determine when something is actually an emergency?

Riley
Dear Riley,
Congratulations on doing the work, being disciplined, and saving like crazy! Now you've got peace of mind, and a pile of cash, that will help turn an emergency into nothing more than an inconvenience. There's no shame in using your emergency fund if you really need to. That's what it's there for. Just remember to ask yourself a few questions anytime something pops up to make sure you've got a real reason to use it.

Is the expense really unexpected? Christmas happens on December 25th every single year. You know your semi-annual car insurance payment is coming, too. Make sure things like this are part of your regular, monthly budgets. Some examples of unexpected expenses might be a job loss or pay cut. Emergency medical expenses and car accident repairs might fall into this category, as well.

Is it absolutely necessary? Most people say they know the difference between a want and a need, but that's not always the case. Replacing your only mode of transportation would be a need. Upgrading to a newer, fancier car is not. If your car goes down for the count, you need transportation. Use your emergency fund to buy something affordable and reliable you can pay cash for. But don't dip into it just to upgrade your decent car for one with a million bells and whistles.

Is it urgent? Practice the art of patience whenever possible. If your home's air conditioning unit goes out in the middle of summer, that's probably an urgent fix. But hearing about the "sale of the century" at your favorite retail store? Grabbing the newest, hottest cell phone when yours works just fine? Nope!

Your emergency fund is all about long-term security, not instant gratification. Don't blow it impulsively, but don't be afraid to use it when it's really needed. Be wise, and ask those three questions. Check yourself so you don't wreck yourself—or your budget!

County, but if those companies are unable to recruit the high-skill, high-wage talent they need in order to be successful, it makes it more likely that they will leave. That's why we are taking a holistic approach to our work, and partnering with others in the community to make Southwest Michigan the preferred place to live, work and relax." Since 2010 the populations of only thirteen counties in Michigan have grown by at least three percent. Only two of those counties were not in southern Michigan, Grand Traverse and Kalamazoo. The counties with the largest percent increase in population were: Ottawa with a 10.6-percent increase...Kent with a 9.0-percent increase...and Grand Traverse with a 7.0-percent increase. Those counties all experienced natural increase (i.e., more births than deaths), particularly Kent and Ottawa, and large gains in population through migration as well. On the other hand, most of the thirty counties experiencing population declines of at least 3-percent were in the Thumb area or Northern Michigan. Exceptions were Wayne and Genesee counties, which experienced losses of population due to migration. By percent, the three counties with the sharpest downturns in population were all in the western Upper Peninsula. The populations of Ontonagon, Gogebic, and Baraga counties were reduced by 15.6, 14.9, and 7.4-percent from 2010-2019, respectively. Those counties have all had long-term negative natural change and net out-migration. The Grand Rapids, Ann Arbor, and Kalamazoo regions experienced the largest population expansion since 2010 among Michigan metro areas. Those areas all had two things in common: positive natural population change and positive net migration. Whereas the Detroit metro area is still by far the largest metropolitan area in the state, it experienced a very modest 0.5-percent growth in population. While the Detroit metro area saw more births than deaths, on net it suffered about a 61,000-person population loss due to migration, which limited overall population growth. Metro areas suffering the sharpest percentage decline in their population base were the Saginaw, Bay City, and Flint regions. Although the Saginaw and Flint metro areas had small natural increases, their net negative migration overwhelmed those gains. Bay City had both negative natural population change and net out-migration. These estimates are available through the U.S. Census Bureau and are available on their population estimates page. Data on a wide variety of topics are also linked directly from the state's website at www.milmi.org/population.

The amazingly philanthropic nature of Michigan's Great Southwest is alive and well during one of the toughest times in recent memory, as we learn about the new Southwest Michigan Cares Fund. As the community works through the impact of the COVID-19 crisis, local funders and businesses have come together to create the new Southwest Michigan Cares Fund, a fund which will aid non-profit partners that are working to support the emergent basic human needs of local residents during this time and the resulting ongoing financial impact on local nonprofit organizations. Berrien Community Foundation, Hanson Family Foundation, Lakeland Health Spectrum, United Way of Southwest Michigan, and Whirlpool Corporation have each pledged $50,000 to address community needs associated with the outbreak. Other major funders at this time include the AEP Foundation, the Frederick S. Upton Foundation, Meijer, Horizon Bank, and individual donors. The fund had pledges of more than $350,000 even as it was just getting underway. United Way of Southwest Michigan President Anna Murphy says, "We do not know the full scope of how COVID-19 will impact families in our community," and adds, "The generosity of these donors and the willingness of community funders to work together is crucial to the overall health and well-being of our area." The funders continue to meet remotely with nonprofit organizations to assess this rapidly changing situation and quickly make funding available to address emergent needs. The initial focus areas of the Southwest Michigan Cares Fund is immediate response for non-profits providing emergent basic human needs. The fund will then consider grants addressing the ongoing impact of the COVID-19 outbreak. Berrien Community Foundation President Lisa Cripps-Downey notes, "It is our top priority to take care of the members of our community and to help find the best way for resources to meet needs," adding, "During this unprecedented time in our history, it is crucial for us to work together to ensure that families are supported and organizations remain solvent and able to continue to serve." Berrien Community Foundation and United Way of Southwest Michigan are teaming together to provide information and resources through this website: www.southwestmichigancares.org. Help for Families: For individuals needing assistance with basic needs during this time, you are asked to call 211 for referrals or visit one of these links: www.help4her.org or www.uwsm.org/2-1-1. Information is also available on the Southwest Michigan Cares Website the Berrien Community Foundation website at www.berriencommunity.org or the United Way of Southwest Michigan website at www.uwsm.org. Nonprofits Seeking Funding: To apply for funding visit southwestmichigancares.org. If you have questions about the application or the funding process, contact Amanda Drew at Amanda.drew@uwsm.org or Susan Matheny at susanmatheny@berriencommunity.org. How You Can Help: So many people are seeking ways to help beyond staying at home and washing their hands. We all want to find a way to volunteer or give back. Berrien Community Foundation and United Way of Southwest Michigan are working together to try and meet needs in the community and will communicate through their websites and social media with opportunities for individuals to give back with the www.southwestmichigancares.org. For individuals who would like to donate to the Southwest Michigan Cares Fund, visit www.southwestmichigancares.org. Donations can be directed to Berrien County, Cass County, Van Buren County or all of Southwest Michigan. In addition to online donations, you can also text to give by texting SWMICARES to 41444, or send checks to: Berrien Community Foundation, Southwest Michigan Cares Fund, 2900 S. State Street, Ste 2E, St. Joseph, MI 49085. If somebody calls or emails asking for your banking information in order to get your federal stimulus check...it's a scam! Michigan Attorney General Dana Nessel has issued an urgent consumer alert urging Michiganders to be on high alert for bad actors aiming to coerce them out of their personal information in a new federal stimulus payment scam. Scammers are using the news that the federal government will send one-time payments to millions of people across the country as part of the federal economic relief response to COVID-19 to steal personal information. The Michigan Department of Attorney General has already received reports that residents are getting emails from websites appearing to be official demanding that they provide PayPal, bank account or other financial information to receive the $1,200 federal stimulus payment immediately. The Attorney General's office is reminding anyone who receives a text, email or phone call from someone claiming to be from the government with a check for them — DO NOT FALL FOR IT. These fake phishing scams will likely ask for a person's bank account information and insist $1,000 or more will be deposited directly into his or her bank account. Personal information should not be given to anyone unless the provider of that information is What had been planned as a short-term closure will be extended indefinitely for all four of the Four Winds Casino properties in Michigan's Great Southwest and Northern Indiana. Here is the message released by the Pokagon Band: "In consideration of requests from both Michigan and Indiana state governments for residents to stay home to help prevent the spread and minimize the potential impact of the Coronavirus (COVID-19), the Pokagon Gaming Authority has decided to extend the closure of all of its Four Winds Casino locations until further notice. The Pokagon Gaming Authority is reviewing options to assist employees during this difficult time. Previously the Pokagon Gaming Authority announced its Four Winds Casinos would close on Tuesday, March 17th."

One of the newest banks in St. Joseph is announcing postponement of their 2020 annual shareholders meeting due to the pandemic. Sturgis Bancorp, Inc., which opened a loan production office in downtown St. Joseph at the end of last year, has announced that it will not hold its 2020 annual meeting of shareholders on April 28, 2020, as originally scheduled. That decision was taken based upon the rapid spread of Coronavirus (COVID-19) infections and Governor Whitmer's Executive Order to stay-at-home because "there is an increased risk of rapid spread of COVID-19 among persons in close proximity to one another." Bank officials say, "The health of the shareholders, the Sturgis Bancorp employees, and others involved with the shareholders' meeting is of utmost importance." In postponing the event, Sturgis Bancorp is contributing towards the objective of slowing down the spread of Coronavirus (COVID-19) by avoiding highly attended events. The meeting will be held at a later date to be determined. Once a new date is chosen by the board of directors, Sturgis Bancorp will announce the record date and the new date, the time and location of the annual meeting, and send the 2020 Proxy Statement and related materials. Sturgis Bancorp's Annual Report will be distributed in the near future when printing is completed, although it is already available online this link: www.sturgis.bank.

Southwest Michigan's housing market in January started the year off with higher sales and lower prices when compared to January 2019. At the end of February, the opposite happened. The number of house sales dropped significantly, and selling prices set new record prices when compared to February 2019.

The number of houses sold in February dropped to 181 from 235, sold in February 2019 for a 23 percent decrease. Year-to-date, February fell 10 percent over February 2019 (371 vs. 410). In the year-over-year comparison back to 2006, February 2019 remains the highest number of sales overall.

Selling prices leaped double digits this February compared to a year ago.

The average selling price in February 2020 was $222,938 compared to $199,433 in February 2019 up 12 percent. Year-to-date, the average selling price was up 11 percent ($221,885 vs. $199,304). The average selling price and year-to-date average selling price set new record prices in the month of February in the year-over-year comparison.

The median selling price in February 2020 soared 30 percent to $182,500 from $140,000 in February 2019. Year-to-date, the median selling price climbed 24 percent ($173,000 vs. $139,450). The median selling price and year-to-date median selling price also set new record prices in the month of February in the year-over-year comparison.

The median price is the price at which 50% of the homes sold were above that price, and 50% were below.

With fewer houses sold, the total dollar volume, even with higher selling prices, was down 14 percent in February 2020 ($40,351,946 vs. $46,866,871). However, with January's input, the total dollar volume year-to-date was up 12 percent ($82,319,414 vs. $81,714,888) and set a new record in the year-over-year comparison.

The inventory of houses for sale dropped just 2 percent from February 2019 (1201 vs. 1229). This level gave the market a 4.9-months supply of houses for buyers. For comparison, in February 2009, there were 3099 houses for sale.

The number of bank-owned or foreclosed homes as a percentage of all transactions remained the same as January at 7 percent. The previous low percentage was 6 percent in February 2019. The highest percentage in February was 75 percent in 2009.

When Selling a Home...

You just listed your house, and you're excited that you will get the full asking price just like your neighbor did. Why shouldn't you be excited? After all, selling prices are increasing in Southwest Michigan. You are expecting potential buyers to see the value of your house just as you do. But are you prepared for a buyer who might make a low ball offer or an offer with lots of contingencies? This is a good discussion point to cover with your REALTOR. No home is perfect, so develop a strategy for reacting to a less than an ideal offer. While it may be hard to channel your insulted feelings, make a counteroffer, rather than ignoring, a low offer. After all, you are negotiating with someone who wants to buy your house. If you are not getting your asking price, you and your REALTOR may need to review the comps used to determine your original price. While getting your price is important, ask yourself what else is important to you. Your REALTOR is a trusted advisor and should be able to give you useful insights.

When Buying a Home...

After the homeowner accepts your offer, your lender will require an appraisal to assure that the home is valued at, or above, the agreed-upon purchase price, before closing. An appraisal is an assessment of the property's value by an unbiased third party: the appraiser. They don't represent you or the seller; instead, this person is a contractor chosen by your lender through an appraisal management company. The home buyer is responsible for paying for the appraisal, and the fee is typically included in your closing costs and ranges from $500-$600. When the appraisal is finished, the appraiser issues a written report with his or her opinion of the value of the home. Whatever the outcome of the appraisal, your REALTOR® will be there to offer recommendations about how to proceed.

The Southwestern Michigan Association of REALTORS®, Inc. is a professional trade association for real estate professionals who are members of the National Association of REALTORS®, and ancillary service providers for the real estate industry in Allegan, Berrien, Cass, and Van Buren Counties. The Association can be contacted at 269-983-6375 or through their website at www.swmar.com.
