Bass singer, Harold Reid, of the Statler Brothers passed away last week. He was fun on stage and told this story on TV as a "true" story!

Three men were traveling and came upon a farm, they went to the door and inquired if they could stay the night at this place. The farmer said "Yes, two of you can stay in the house but one would have to sleep in the barn." The men, one was a rabbi, one a Hindu holy man and the third a lawyer. The rabbi volunteered to stay in the barn. He went to the barn and saw a pig there and came back to the house and said "I cannot sleep with a pig." The Hindu holy man said "I will sleep in the barn." So he left and went to the barn and saw a cow there and returned to the house and said "there is a cow there, I cannot sleep with a cow". Then the lawyer said "Okay, I will go to the barn and sleep with the cow and pig." A few minutes later, a knock on the door and there stood the cow and pig!! Harold told a true story???

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A seemingly stalled romantic situation could benefit from your reassurance that you want this relationship to work. And if you do, use a tad more of that irresistible Aries charm.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're attracted to a situation that appeals to your Bovine intellect. And that's good. But don't neglect your passionate side when romance comes calling later in the week.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) That career-change opportunity that didn't work out when you first considered it could come up again. But this time, remember that you have more to offer and should act accordingly.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) There could be some tensions in relationships -- domestic or workaday. But a calm approach that doesn't raise the anger levels and a frank discussion soon will resolve the problem.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's a good idea to begin preparing for that career change you've been thinking about for a while. Start to sharpen your skills and expand your background to be ready when it calls.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Bless that Virgo skepticism that has kept you from falling into traps others seem to rush into. But you might want to give a new possibility the benefit of the doubt, at least on a trial basis.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A legal matter you hoped could finally be settled could be a pesky problem for a while, until all the parties agree to stop disagreeing with each other. Be patient.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone might use deception to try to push you into making a decision you're not fully comfortable with. But those keen Scorpio senses should keep you alert to any such attempt.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Romance dominates this week when Cupid spears the Archer, for a change. Positive things also are happening in the workplace. Expect important news to arrive by the week's end.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Anyone trying to bully the Sea Goat -- whether it involves a personal or a professional matter -- will learn a painful lesson. Others also will benefit from the Goat's strong example.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Congratulations. With things going the way they are, you should be able to spare some time and take a break from your hectic schedule for some well-earned fun and games.

PISCES (February 19 to March 21) Your sharp Piscean intuition should be able to uncover the true agendas of those who might be trying to catch the Fish in one of their schemes.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your flair for innovative art and design keeps you at least a step ahead of most everyone else.

PIEDMONT PETS
 May 7, 2020
 By Paulette Dean

On Sunday, we will celebrate Mother's Day. The very word "mother" brings to mind safety, warmth, care, and love. There are bad mothers, to be sure, but the vast majority offer unconditional love. In fact, all nature values mothers. There is a reason our planet is called Mother Earth. Many of the same traits that are seen in human mothers can also be seen in animal mothers.

Puppies and kittens adjust easily and quickly to shelter life if they come in with their mother. As long as they have her, all is right with their world. It is always heartbreaking to see little kittens and puppies come to the shelter without their mother. When put into a cage with another nursing mother to see if they will be accepted by that mother, they immediately try to nurse, and then quickly cuddle with her. Most animals in nature crave their mother.

Occasionally throughout the years, a mother cat or dog has been brought to the shelter first, and then the babies have been found and brought to us a couple of days later. It is heartwarming to see the joy of that reunion. Sometimes, the babies are captured first, and then the mother. The reunion is just as joyous.

The situation that we hate to see the most is to have a nursing animal put in our drop-off cage; we always worry about where the babies are. If we have been told the general area where the mother has been caught, we have been able, in some cases, to put a leash on the mother dog, take her to that area, and let her lead us to her babies.

People know to exercise caution approaching a mother animal who has her babies with her. Even some very trusting dogs and cats become nervous when a human picks up their young.

996 South Boston Rd.,
 Danville, VA 24540
 Phone: (434) 799-0843

In the wild, most fights with a female are caused by a protective mother. Wild animal poachers and collectors know that in order to capture a baby or a young animal, the mother first has to be killed.

There are many documented stories about the care animal mothers give. Cows are very maternal. One witness saw a newborn calf sliding down a slope. Six cows answered the mother's cry for help, and stood in line to keep the calf from sliding. They even stayed to lick the calf clean. Dairy cows become agitated when they hear the bleating of the calves that have been taken from them.

Mother chickens can recognize their chicks' peeps, and sheep and goat mothers make sure their offspring play with others in their own age group.

Even some species of insects are raised by their mothers!

How grateful the earth and its creatures should be for the institution of motherhood. I know I am grateful for my mother!

DCC Student Selected for Prestigious NASA Internship

Danville, VA --- NASA Langley Research Center has officially accepted second-year Danville Community College (DCC) student Tyler Tharpe for a prestigious internship at their facility in Hampton, VA.

According to NASA, The Langley Internship program is "a paid educational, hands-on experience that creates opportunities for students to come to NASA Langley Research Center in Hampton, Virginia to conduct robust research and work on exciting projects while working side-by-side with NASA's finest scientists, researchers, engineers and mission support teams. The program is specifically open to undergraduate and graduate students year-round for the Fall, Spring and Summer sessions. This program provides real research experiences in the fields of Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics as well as in business, communication, marketing, and other areas that support NASA's mission."

As a student in the Precision Machining and Technology (PMT) program at DCC, Tharpe was made aware of the internship program by his professor, Josh McDowell.

"He (McDowell) received an email from NASA asking for capable students to apply for an internship," said Tharpe. "I filled out an application and sent in my resume."

The program has stringent requirements that must be met in order to be selected, including:

- U.S. citizenship,
- Cumulative 3.0 GPA on a 4.0 scale,
- Minimum of 16 years of age and at least a high school sophomore when the internship begins
- A letter of recommendation, electronically submitted by the writer directly,
- Student full-time enrollment in high school, undergraduate or graduate programs at an accredited college or university.

Tharpe applied for the internship because aerospace has always been of interest to him.

"I have been considering the aerospace field after graduation and there is no name more distinguished than NASA in this field," said Tharpe.

Tharpe believes that his experience in the PMT program at DCC has prepared him for this exciting opportunity and opened the door into a career field that he loves.

"I believe PMT program is a one-of-a-kind program with instructors that push you to learn as much as possible," said Tharpe. "The machine shop is a state-of-the-art facility, which allows students to learn on latest equipment that is used in the workforce."

HERE COMES SPIDERMAN

Fear not the coronavirus pandemic; your favorite superheroes -- and a few lovable villains -- may be able to come to your rescue. At least, that seems to be the thinking in Southeast Asia and its environs, reports the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. Actors dressed as Spiderman and Superman showed up recently at the request of Indonesian authorities to urge residents and their kids to wash your hands, wear your masks and stay at home. Meanwhile, in the Philippines Darth Vader, himself, and a few of his Stormtroopers recently visited communities on the outskirts of Manila delivering similar instructive messages as well as supplies. As Spiderman was wont to say: "With great power, comes great responsibility."

A FRY BY ANOTHER OTHER NAME?

Did you know that Belgium is the world's largest exporter of potato products -- including its famous Belgian Fries. The worldwide coronavirus pandemic has caused havoc for the industry in that country as potato exports have plummeted by as much as 40%. And with the precautionary closures of eateries throughout the country, local consumption of spuds is down by 80%, says the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. As a result, the Belgian potato industry's trade group is now asking the nation's citizenry to come to the rescue and start eating more Belgian Fries. Meanwhile, here's an interesting footnote to this story. It seems that it was, indeed, the Belgians who came up with what is arguably the most popular side dish in the world -- especially when served with a hamburger. But, it seems that American soldiers stationed in Belgium during World War I took a liking to the tasty side dish cooked up by Belgian soldiers and because French was the official language of the Belgian army they came up with the moniker, French Fries.

WINE A LITTLE; LAUGH A LOT

Most people have hot and cold running water in their kitchens but in the Italian hamlet of Setteciani recently villagers woke one morning recently and it was red wine that came out of their taps, not only in their kitchens but in their bathrooms, as well, reports the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. It seems that a high pressure leak in the storage tower of a local winery allowed the vino to seep into the town's water pipes. Many of the residents managed to bottle the beverage before the leak was fixed. After all it was Lambrusco Grasparossa, a very tasty sparkling red wine, and it would have been a shame to let it dribble down the drain.

PUT YOUR CLOTHES ON

And then there was the case of the man who decided that as long as he was confined to his home during the coronavirus crisis, he needn't get dressed -- even when he went out to check his mailbox. The Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC] reports that the Taneytown, Maryland Police Department discreetly posted a "reminder" for the unnamed offender on its

Facebook page. It reads: "Please remember to put pants on before leaving the house to check your mailbox. You know who you are. This is your final warning."

A SUDSY PLEA

The coronavirus crisis has most of the nation housebound causing hardships as many of us as we begin to run out of necessities such as toilet paper. But Olive Veronesi wasn't seeking toilet tissue when she went to a front window of her home and held up a sign for all to see that read: "I need more beer." The 93-year-old Seminole, PA nonagenarian was seeking the aid of her neighbors to help her replenish her dwindling stash of the beverage, according to the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. A photo of her displaying her sign went viral on social media and more than 2.5 million people who viewed it. So, it looks like she'll be well supplied as she shelters in place for the duration.

HOW SWEET IT IS

And then there is the tale of the bakery in Finland that nearly had to shut down due to the pandemic. But, owner, Sanna Lampinen, saved the day when she baked a cake in the shape of a roll of toilet paper, according to the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC]. The media found out about her clever spoof and published stories about it, resulting in so many orders for her naughty confection that she was able to not only keep all of her employees on the payroll but to create two new jobs as well.

Are We Bored Yet?

Being bored isn't good, especially for seniors. We need to keep our brain cells active, even if we can't get out of the house for any mental stimulation due to the coronavirus. And we need to find ways to move each day, even if it's just for 10 minutes at a time, to keep our muscles strong. Look at YouTube.com for mild in-place exercises for seniors. Go online to find a kids' basketball hoop and soft ball you can hang over the door. Look for a dartboard with magnetic darts. If you have an old Nintendo Wii console, hook it up and get some exercise with the bowling and tennis. If you have an indoor hobby, call your closest store and ask if they have curbside pickup or can mail supplies to you. Put "online craft tutorials" in your internet browser for new ideas. Tune up your guitar and order new strings. Find your old piano books if you have a piano. To keep your brain stretched, if you get a newspaper, do the puzzles, even the ones you normally don't try. Go online for other puzzles you can print out or complete online. Go to puzzles.usatoday.com for a wide variety of online games. With the crossword puzzles you can choose your skill level (hints versus no hints). Use your keyboard to type in each letter. Try jigsaw puzzles, spelling games, backgammon (play against an opponent or the computer) or mahjong. Also look at Boatload Puzzles (www.boatloadpuzzles.com) for 40,000 crossword puzzles. For real brain stretchers look to Merriam-Webster (www.merriam-webster.com/word-games) or AARP (games.aarp.org). For short-term memory games, look at BrainCurls.com.

Do Pneumonia Vaccines Protect Seniors from Coronavirus?

Dear Savvy Senior,

Do currently offered vaccines against pneumonia provide seniors any protection against the coronavirus disease? I've always been bad about getting vaccinated, but this coronavirus pandemic is causing me to change my thinking.

Pro-Vax Patty

Dear Patty,

This is a great question. Because the coronavirus (COVID-19) attacks the lungs and respiratory system, many readers have asked whether the pneumonia vaccines, which are administered to millions of patients each year, might protect someone if they contract the coronavirus.

But unfortunately, the answer is no. Vaccines against pneumonia, such as pneumococcal vaccine and Haemophilus influenza type B vaccine, do not provide protection against the new coronavirus.

This virus is so new and different that it needs its own vaccine. Researchers are in the process of rapidly developing a vaccine against COVID-19, but it is expected to take at least a year before it's ready.

Having said that, you should also know that there are several other important vaccines the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends that all seniors should get up to date on after the coronavirus pandemic dies down. Here's a rundown of what they are, when you should get them, and how they're covered by Medicare.

Flu vaccine: While annual flu shots are recommended each fall to everyone, they are very important for older adults to get because seniors have a much greater risk of developing dangerous flu complications. According to the CDC, last year up to 647,000 people were hospitalized and 61,200 died because of the flu – most of whom were age 65 and older.

To improve your chances of escaping the seasonal flu, this September or October consider a vaccine specifically designed for people 65 and older. The Fluzone High Dose or FLUAD are the two options that provide extra protection beyond what a standard flu shot offers. And all flu shots are covered under Medicare Part B.

Pneumococcal vaccine: As previously stated, this vaccine protects against pneumonia, which hospitalizes around 250,000 Americans and kills about 50,000 each year. It's recommended that all seniors, 65 or older, get two separate vaccines – PCV13 (Pneumovax 13) and PPSV23 (Pneumovax 23). Both vaccines, which are administered one year apart, protect against different strains of the bacteria to provide maximum protection. Medicare Part B covers both shots if they are taken at least a year apart.

Shingles vaccine: Caused by the same virus that causes chicken pox, shingles is a painful, blistering skin rash that affects more than 1 million Americans every year. All people over age 50 should get the new Shingrix vaccine, which is given in two doses, two to six months apart. Even if you've already had shingles, you should still get this vaccination because reoccurring cases are possible. The CDC also recommends that anyone previously vaccinated with Zostavax be revaccinated with Shingrix because it's significantly more effective.

All Medicare Part D prescription drug plans cover shingles vaccinations, but coverage amounts, and reimbursement rules vary depending on where the shot is given. Check your plan.

Tdap vaccine: A one-time dose of the Tdap vaccine, which covers tetanus, diphtheria and pertussis (whooping cough) is recommended to all adults. If you've already had a Tdap shot, you should get a tetanus-diphtheria (Td) booster shot every 10 years. All Medicare Part D prescription drug plans cover these vaccinations.

Other Vaccinations

Depending on your health conditions, preferences, age and future travel schedule, the CDC offers a "What Vaccines Do You Need?" quiz at www2.cdc.gov/nip/adultimmsched to help you determine what additional vaccines may be appropriate for you. You should also talk to your doctor during your next visit about which vaccinations you should get.

To locate a site that offers any of these vaccines, visit VaccineFinder.org and type in your location.

Strawberry Shortcake Cake

Cake:

- 2 cups cake flour*
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk preferably whole or 2%
- 4 tablespoons unsalted butter cut into pieces
- 1 tablespoon vanilla extract
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract optional, but highly recommended
- 4 large eggs
- 1 2/3 cups granulated sugar

Filling and Topping:

- 8 ounces cream cheese softened
- 3/4 cup powdered sugar
- 3/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 2 1/4 cups heavy whipping cream chilled
- 3 cups sliced or diced strawberries divided
- 2 tablespoons strawberry jam
- additional fresh strawberries for garnish (optional)

INSTRUCTIONS

Cake:
Preheat oven to 350°F.
In a large bowl, whisk the flour, baking powder and salt together.
In a small saucepan, bring the milk and butter to a boil. Once boiling, immediately remove from the heat and add the vanilla extract and almond extract.
In a separate bowl, using a hand mixer or stand mixer, beat the eggs and sugar on medium-high speed until pale yellow, fluffy, and doubled in volume. This takes about 5 minutes - do not skip this step, this helps to make the cake fluffy. While still beating, slowly drizzle in the hot milk mixture. Beat in the flour mixture.

Line the bottoms of three 8-inch round cake pans with a circle of parchment paper, and spray the pans with nonstick spray. Divide the batter between the prepared pans (I use a generous 2 cups of batter per pan). Bake for 14-18 minutes, or until the edges are light golden, the center springs back when lightly pressed, and a cake tester comes out clean. I recommend rotating the baking pans at least once during cook time. Set the pans on a rack to cool. Run the tip of a sharp knife around the edges of the cakes to loosen them, and turn them out of the pans (the layers will be fairly thin, about 1-inch high).

Filling and topping:

Combine the strawberries and jam and set aside (these will be used for the filling and topping).
Note: I sliced the strawberries for the filling (about 2 1/2 cups), and I diced the strawberries for the top of the cake (about 1/2 cup). Do both, or one or the other - your choice. You'll need about 3 cups total.

For the whipped cream frosting: Combine the cream cheese, powdered sugar, and vanilla extract in a large mixing bowl or the bowl of a stand mixer. Fit the mixer with the whisk attachment and mix on medium speed until smooth. While the mixture is still whipping, slowly pour in the heavy cream down the side of the bowl. Stop and scrape the bottom and sides of the bowl periodically. Increase the speed and continue whipping until the cream can hold a stiff peak.

Assembly: Place one layer of cake on a platter. Top with whipped cream frosting, then top with about 1 1/4 cups of sliced/diced strawberries. Place another layer of cake on top and repeat. For the third/top of layer of cake, top with whipped cream frosting, then place the remaining diced/sliced strawberries in the center. Decorate the outside with whole strawberries, if desired. I like to store this cake in the fridge to keep the frosting stable.

2. going to nonessential businesses
3. touching my face
