When restaurants and bars were first shutdown in Michigan under gubernatorial orders to Stay Home and Stay Safe, notable Southwest Michigan Chef & Restaurateur Tim Sizer knew immediately what he had to do. He didn't hesitate for one minute. That's what 19-years in business will do for you when you've seen it all. Sizer, who owns and operates Timothy's Restaurant at 16409 Red Arrow Highway in the Harbor Country community of Union Pier, tells me, "One of the first steps we took when this evolved in the middle of March, is on day one I called Taylor Rental and had them erect a tent out front, then had the gas expert put in a hard line for gas to operate a full kitchen outside, so we could cook right on the spot. I thought that would grab the attention of passers by, and eliminated the need for people to have to come inside to physically pick up their take-out orders." Tim knew instinctively what to do because in the nearly two decades of roller coaster highs and lows precipitated by several disasters he's seen an uncanny degree of adversity side-by-side with exceptional traffic volumes and rave reviews for cuisine that has been pleasing palates across the region since his early days at the Gordon Beach Inn, a stone's throw from his current enterprise on Red Arrow. Tim says, "Having been in this business for 19 years, you'd be amazed at what we've gone through. We've had fire, floods, cars crashing into the building, road closures, and just a lot of adversity. It's not all glamour and big money that lots of people see when they visit a successful restaurant." It has been a rocky road at times. Timothy's original restaurant in the Gordon Beach Inn was only into their second year of operation when on the first day of August, his busiest month of the year, his entire kitchen burned down. He's apparently always had a remarkable resiliency because he says he immediately thought, "Okay, let's pick ourselves up and get through it." Amazingly, he had a contractor step in and do a spectacular job allowing them to get back open in just three weeks time. Tim goes on, "Four or five years later we had a major summer storm, and in that neighborhood anytime you had any kind of a big storm you were down for a day or two or maybe three, but we ended up being down for 10 days at that time." Then, just a couple years after that the restaurant suffered such intense structural floor damage to the point that the health department came in and said you have to fix your floors, because it was just not safe. Tim says, "They

Stay Safe, Stay Open

Business owners across Michigan were able to breathe a sigh of relief this week as Gov. Gretchen Whitmer announced the simultaneous lifting of her coronavirus "stay-at-home" order and the re-opening of restaurants, bars, and retailers across the state.

Per Executive Order 2020-110, the entire state has now been ushered into phase four of the MI Safe Start Plan. This allowed retailers to reopen on June 4 and restaurants on June 8, subject to capacity restrictions. Gyms and fitness centers may now conduct outdoor classes and groups of 100 or less will be allowed to gather outdoors, as long as social distancing efforts are maintained.

While most of the state got the greenlight to resume operations, many businesses are still under strict orders to remain closed. Such businesses include indoor theaters and performance venues; indoor gyms, fitness centers and recreation areas; hair, nail and tanning salons; tattoo parlors and spas; and, casinos licensed by the Michigan Gaming Control Board.

The Southwest Michigan Regional Chamber has been a vocal advocate for safely re-engaging Michigan's economy, and we are encouraged that many of our members will now be able to return to work. Given the news, we can think of no better time to launch our brand-new initiative called Southwest Michigan Safe.

Southwest Michigan Safe seeks to encourage public, private, and nonprofit entities throughout Southwest Michigan to voluntarily pledge to uphold a basic set of health and safety recommendations. Entities that take the pledge are entitled to Southwest Michigan Safe window decals and other visual reinforcement that signifies their commitment to protecting public health.

Studies indicate the retailers who emphasize safety, offer convenience, and show a sense of purpose are in the best position to succeed now and post-pandemic. Our Southwest Michigan Safe campaign seeks to help business owners achieve those goals by providing them with a pre-made, consistent brand that will be immediately recognizable to the consumer.

The more businesses and entities that participate, the stronger the campaign will be. The stronger the campaign, the better chance we have of keeping people safe and increasing consumer confidence throughout our region.

The three-step instructions for taking the pledge are as follows:

- Visit the Site
- Visit www.swmisafe.org and review the SMS Pledge.

- Sign the Pledge
- Affirm your commitment to keeping your employees and customers safe by signing the pledge.
- Display your commitment
- Once you've taken the pledge, print and share it with your employees. We also recommend displaying it in your store.
- You can also opt to purchase SMS window decals, stickers, and other collateral to display as visual reinforcement of your pledge.

As a benefit of membership with the Southwest Michigan Regional Chamber, we are offering our members that sign the pledge one free window decal. Cost to non-members is $5.00/decal. Additional items for purchase are coming soon.

If you are a business that would like to take the Southwest Michigan Safe pledge, or a consumer interested in who has taken the pledge already, visit www.swmisafe.com. The list of participating businesses grows by the day.

I've had countless conversations with business owners since the shutdown began. They are committed to protecting the health and safety of our communities because they live here, and love it here, too. They know better than anyone they must stay safe to stay open. As you venture out into this new normal, remember, you must also be smart and do your part.

After all, the coronavirus is still among us and we all have a role to play in preventing further spread.

The Veterans Voice – Agent Orange Claims Part 1

Lull

Agent Orange (A/O) claims are probably one of the most frequently filed claims that we process in Veteran Services. Today we'll discuss dioxin herbicide exposure in the Republic of Vietnam (RVN) and the new Blue Water Navy Vietnam Veterans Act that went into law on January 1, 2020. In the following weeks we'll discuss A/O usage outside of Vietnam in other locations around the world, including the United States, and then about children of Vietnam Veterans with birth defects and health conditions who can file claims as a result of their veteran parent(s) presumed A/O dioxin herbicide exposure. You can take a virtual tour regarding the background and history on the "How and Why" A/O was used at the National Museum of the United States Air Force in Dayton, Ohio at www.nmusafvirtualtour.com by selecting the SEA War 6/15 Tour. You can learn all about "Operation Ranch Hand" from 1962 to 1971. A/O claims are what we call presumptive claims. You don't need to prove you were directly exposed to a dioxin herbicide agent, it's presumed based on the time and location. The current threshold for a Vietnam Veteran to prevail with an A/O claim requires two hurdles. For on ground RVN Veterans, they must have put one foot on ground for one minute or navigated or docked in the coastal brown waters of the RVN. For Blue Water Navy/Coast Guard Veterans, they have also been extended the presumption of herbicide exposure on Navy or Coast Guard vessels operating within 12 nautical miles offshore in the RVN blue waters between January 9, 1962 and May 7, 1975 (see www.benefits.va.gov/benefits/blue-water-navy.

asp). Next you need to have one of the current 14 conditions or diseases associated with A/O exposure. Sometimes we will have veterans who come to our office and tell us that they served in Vietnam or within 12 nautical miles off the coast of Vietnam and want to file a claim for A/O. The first question we ask them is if they have any health problems or one of the current 14 conditions or diseases presumed to be associated with A/O herbicide dioxin exposure? If we receive a "No" response we then explain how A/O claims work. A veteran does not necessarily have to have one of the conditions or diseases on the current list. In fact, we have prevailed on other diagnoses (see www.va.gov/disability/eligibility/hazardous-materials-exposure/agent-orange/related-diseases for the current list). In those instances we need a nexus letter from a specialist in their field and/or some reputable medical articles from sources on the Internet (e.g. Mayo Clinic, John Hopkins University, National Institutes of Health, etc.) to accompany the claim. We have been successful with COPD and Bladder Cancer in the past even though these two diseases are not on the presumptive list. In both of those instances the veterans had to go to the Board of Veterans Appeals (a very lengthy process) and the VA will consider approval on a case-by-case basis.

Dave Says

Combine finances?

Dear Dave, Is it okay to combine finances with someone and start working on a budget before you marry them? I just got engaged, and we've been talking about the idea of getting a head start on our finances together.

Autumn Dear Autumn, First, congratulations! I hope you two will have long and happy lives together. Now comes the hard part. But you asked for my opinion, so here goes.

No, it's not a good idea to combine finances with anyone you're not married to. Don't get me wrong, I'm glad you two are thinking about your finances and your future—and I'd never wish anything bad for you—but all kinds of things can happen before you become husband and wife. What if you spend time paying off his debt, or vice versa, then the relationship doesn't work out?

However, this doesn't mean you can't begin working together on budgets for the future, and planning and dreaming about the goals you have together. The thing to keep in mind is you'll both need to be operating in full transparency mode to make it happen. He should know all about your income and debts, and you should know all about his. Along the way, you two need to have serious, regular discussions about saving, spending, and debt to ensure you're completely on the same page with your finances before the big day.

There you go. My advice is both of you should pay only your own bills until after you're married. And remember, once that happens there's no yours and his anymore—it all becomes ours.

-Dave

A Not-So-Cheesy Way to Social Distance

Someone asked me the other day what I'm looking forward to most when we all start to gradually return to our normal routines.

I was, like, what the heck are you talking about? Who's changed their routines? Has something been going on?

Haha! I kid of course! This COVID-19 pandemic has called for quite a lot of new behaviors in my household. For example, I don't spend as much time as I used to wandering around the house trying to remember where I put down my glasses, or my cell phone, or the Roku remote control. Now, I spend FIVE times longer doing that! I tell ya, it's a great way to while away the hours!

One possibly not-so-great idea during stay-at-home time was trying a new diet. But we did, and it worked out okay in the end. It was the "Whole 30" diet. It's what dietary experts call an "elimination diet." That's what I meant by "it worked out okay in the end."

Haha! I kid again! It's not about accelerating that kind of elimination. Well, not completely anyway. The elimination aspect involves ceasing and desisting from the consumption of a wide range of foods for 30 entire days – consecutively, not, as I'd hoped, for a couple days a month over 15 months. The big no-no's include . . . ah, the list is too long. But for me, the toughest thing to stop eating was cheese.

Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego! -- I loooooovvvvve cheese!

What you are allowed to eat needs to be "whole," as in not processed, not adulterated, and ideally direct, or nearly direct, from nature. At the end of the 30 days you can resume eating the stuff you eliminated – beans, nuts, grains without gluten, grains with gluten, and -- Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego! -- cheeeeee!

However! -- you must first "test" the reintroduction of each group by itself! It's not a free-for-all of reintroduction.

From start to finish, all of this requires a lot of planning. For example, you're supposed to totally avoid added sugars in your foodstuffs during the 30 days. Yowser, this is hard! There's added sugar in EVERYTHING!

I count myself very lucky that one part of the guidance from the official Whole 30 website was so mystifying – the things they warn you to "look out for" when you start reintroducing forbidden foods. When you start reintro'ing, you're supposed to self-check for symptoms of at least 15 potential negative effects, from messed-up sleep patterns, to bloating, to mood swings, to bloated self-confidence. I won't make any wisecracks about this; food isn't always our friend, and lots of people must be super-cautious about what they eat. I only hope that my system continues to tolerate what I put into it, especially all the delectables from the Shadrach-Meshach-Abednego category.

The ultimate goal of Whole 30 is that you will have thoroughly cleansed your bod – and your veins will contain healthier and more potent "Tiger Blood."

When I first learned about "Tiger Blood," I was also simultaneously binge-watching "Tiger King." Oy, oy oy!! – the dreams I had! There was a fiery furnace! Joe Exotic was goading us into it -- Abednego, Shag O'Neal, and Me! But we came through the fire okay! And bonus!! -- I dug a yummy snack from my pocket, where I'd hidden some crackers and – now-lusciously-melted – cheeeeee!!

No Surprise

Dear friends, do not be surprised at the fiery ordeal that has come on you to test you, as though something strange were happening to you. But rejoice inasmuch as you participate in the sufferings of Christ, so that you may be overjoyed when his glory is revealed.

1 Peter 4:12,13

Many things can surprise us in this life. An unexpected home or car repair bill may surprise us. The underdog coming back to win the game may surprise us. A phone call or message from a friend we have not spoken to in a very long time may surprise us.

One thing that should never surprise us, though, is that Christians will suffer in this life.

Many people don't understand this. They think that Christians shouldn't suffer if God is watching out for them. But, the Bible makes it clear that Christians will indeed suffer in this life.

Christians suffer because they participate with Christ. They belong to him and want to be like him. They follow where he goes and where Christ went, he found suffering. He was ridiculed, ostracized, tortured, and even killed.

However, this isn't where Christ's story ends. He rose from the grave, ascended into heaven, and is with God the Father in perfection forever. And he promises the same to every one of his followers. So, just as Christians should not be surprised that they sometimes suffer in this life just as Christ suffered in this life, Christians shouldn't be surprised that they will one day be glorified just as Christ's glory will one day be revealed.

Do not be surprised when suffering comes your way, dear Christian. Take comfort and look forward to the day when you will experience the glory that will be yours through your Savior.

Prayer: Holy Father, while I know suffering will come in this life, help me to see it as a participation in the life of Christ. Amen wear down the ears' delicate mechanics. Your genes are also part of the mix.

Noise wears down hearing if it's loud or continuous. The Centers for Disease Control (CDC) reports that about 22 million American workers are exposed to dangerous noise levels on the job. This includes many carpenters, construction workers, factory workers, farmers, the military, miners, musicians, Certain medications can impair hearing or balance. More than 200 drugs and chemicals have a track record of triggering hearing and balance side effects in addition to their disease-fighting abilities.

Illnesses such as heart disease, high blood pressure, and diabetes put ears at risk by interfering with the ears' blood supply. Otosclerosis is a bone disease of the middle ear, and Ménière's disease affects the inner ear. Both can cause hearing loss.

Infection or ear wax can block ear canals and lessen hearing.

We are following CDC guidelines and are open for full services! If you think you might have hearing loss, call Dr. Kasewurm's Professional Hearing Services at (888) 675-9480 before June 20th for your FREE hearing screening!

Don't take your ears for granted. Hearing loss is the third most common health problem in the U.S, and it can affect the quality of your life and relationships. About 48 million Americans have lost some hearing.

Certain conditions, including age, illness, and genetics, may play a role in hearing loss. Modern life has added a host of ear-damaging elements to the list, including some medications and plenty of sources of loud, ongoing noise.

With so many untreatable cases of hearing loss, prevention is the best way to keep hearing long-term. If you've already lost some hearing, there are ways to stay connected and communicate with friends and family.

So what causes hearing loss?

Advanced age is the most common cause of hearing loss. Researchers don't fully understand why hearing declines with age. It could be that lifetime exposure to noise and other damaging factors slowly

Should You Be Doing More Than Taking OTC Medications For Your Seasonal Allergies?

Allergy Answers by
Dr. Paul Judge M.D.
Board Certified Allergist/Immunologist

Every year like clockwork many suffer from their seasonal allergies. In fact, more than 3 million people report nasal and eye allergies every year. Many head to the drug store and purchase one of the multitudes of over-the-counter (OTC) medications. Many OTC medications are safe for long term use, but not all. Some, if used longer than they are meant to be used can make things worse.

There are several reasons that you should definitely consider seeing an allergist:

- If your symptoms last for several months out of the year.
- If you experience trouble breathing, or have frequent sinus infections that don't get better.
- If symptoms affect your day-to-day activity or decrease your quality of life.
- If you've tried OTC medicines that don't work or cause unpleasant side effects

If you don't have these issues and using OTC medicines do work, knowing what you are allergic to can still help you to take control of your disease. Allergies can be a sign of future more serious problems such as asthma. While OTC meds may control your current symptoms, with allergy testing your risk of developing additional allergic disease can be determined and prevention strategies can be implemented.

Many allergens are impossible to avoid while others have proven avoidance strategies. Identifying your personal allergy profile with allergy testing can determine if avoidance strategies are a useful option. This can be shown in an example of both tree and dust mites allergy. If you only have allergies in the spring due to trees, but allergy testing shows that you're also allergic to dust mites (a year round allergy with proven avoidance strategies), implementing avoidance to reduce dust mite allergy could reduce or eliminate your seasonal symptoms, thus minimizing your need for medicines.

Lastly, while OTC meds, (and prescription meds - for that matter) can help to ease symptoms, they don't cure the underlying allergic disease. The only current disease modifying treatment is allergy immunotherapy, or allergy shots. With this treatment, you are exposed to a tiny amount of your own allergy triggers so that over time, your body learns to handle it better. For over 70% of allergy sufferers, this treatment will control their symptoms even after they complete the treatment. It can also prevent other allergic diseases. This treatment could be ideal for those people that are looking for a more natural option of allergy treatment that reduces the need for medications.

closed us down for three weeks until we had another construction company come in and the landlord put in all new flooring." But wait, there's more. Tim says, "Then there was the time I got a phone call from somebody that said they heard on a police scanner that somebody had just rammed their car through the front of the building on Red Arrow Highway." Dumbfounded, Tim says, "You just end up in disbelief, and it's time and time again, but the only way you get to 19 years or longer in this business is when tragedy strikes, you just get up, dust yourself off, and you either have it in you to continue on or you don't." By way of explanation, he turns to those he admires the most, "If you look at the top restaurant people over the years, Emil Tosi, Marge Wiatrowski at Tosi's, Pete Racine at Grand Mere Inn, the Camp family at the Mark III...they've all faced adversity and issues to contend with over the years, but they are the kind of people that persevere, because the restaurant is in their blood. They survive and thrive when the average person would just throw their hands up and give in." So, when the current coronavirus pandemic hit, Tim decided instantaneously, "I just couldn't stay closed. First of all, I'm not that financially stable, but it's not in my nature to close at all. That's why I called a tent company the next day and said I need a tent and I need it now, and we dragged our equipment out, fired up shop and marched forward." He adds, "I didn't want our clientele to have to face these hard times without our service as an option for them." A fighter with great pride and dedication to his trade, Tim says, "I base my decisions on the fact that every day I have to get out of bed and go to work to figure out how to keep moving forward, because it's not in my nature to just give up. In fact, we're in a never-ending process of refinement, always working to make the business stronger, better, more attractive to the customer." Timothy's Restaurant has become a very popular stop on many diner's "must go" list in Michigan's Great Southwest, and Tim was once again firing on all cylinders, hitting a great stride, finding the groove and operating optimally, only to have the pandemic hit. Not only has he maintained a steady trade through curbside service at Timothy's, his visionary talents made him realize that even when they are allowed to re-open for dine-in business, the "next normal" is going to look a lot different than days gone by. He admits that he has ended up using much of the money he had saved up over the years in order to dramatically retrofit his restaurant and innovate his planning in order to re-open. He says, "We have to essentially start all over again to get people to come back." Tim says, "Retrofitting everything for safety considerations was a lot of money for me, but it's always been a gut question of how can I not do this! I think our automatic doors alone will be highly appreciated. These are the types of amenities that you find in first-class airports, but not necessarily a lot of hometown restaurants." Tim expects that a lot more will be opting to sit outside for their own peace of mind. "Fortunately," he says, "Our outside is really beautiful...but we've never done structured seating outdoors, having used groupings and benches, and the like. So, we're putting all of that and more like it that we ordered, all along the tree line in the grassy area out back." Architect Chris Brooks did a schematic of Tim's backyard pad, called Jake's Backyard & Pizza Shack, and he's put traditional umbrella 2-top, 4-top, and 6-top tables spaced six feet apart for when they are allowed to reopen. Tim says, "That will be traditional seating where you would look out and see a dining room pattern layout. We have 52 seats out there, and we have space for an additional 50 guests or so, with social distancing, in the grassy area." Sadly for Tim Sizer and restaurateurs all over the region, they're essentially flying blind, with no firm guidance on what will be expected and mandated by state law. He says, "To try to prepare for this, we're sort of blind. We don't know what the rules will be. So, we're streamlining all of our menus, for what's coming. It just won't be practical to maintain the full menu that we had come to offer. We don't know the capacity we'll be allowed. Plus, even though most of our people are ready to come back, we still don't know when to tell them to come back." Nevertheless, he's been anything but idle. He says, "We're very close to being totally ready. I've actually spent more money getting ready to re-open than I did before we opened here on Red Arrow Highway. Anybody who is ahead of the curve for safety will draw more customers than those who are doing less for a safe experience, regardless of the quality of their product, so we want to make certain we are ready on every front." Sizer had Brown's Locksmiths come in and install automated, hands-free, doors. He contracted with City Plumbing to retrofit all of his faucets, toilets, and urinals converting them to hands-free, automatic operations, which was a substantial cost to undertake. He has re-paved the entire parking lot, painted inside, replaced all carpeting in the upper dining area, redone the bathrooms, and while little of that wasn't mandated for safety reasons, he says, "I just want people to know that we care and we're bringing them a first-rate, ultra-fresh, experience inside and out. I want people to say, 'Man, this place looks brand new!'" He ordered all new porch furniture for the back, so it is all a synergistic, designed plan and layout pattern, rather than a haphazard approach. At the outside bar there are three large screen TVs, and — best of all — lots of room to help in social distancing. Timothy's Restaurant has utilized their fish-logo to craft floor pattern graphics for traffic flows, with designated indoor and outdoor only areas. Once operations are allowed to resume beyond curbside takeout, you will just wait in your car for your table to be called and the staff will text you when ready. Tim adds, "We'll have online ordering, online reservations, options for hands-free menus using a QR Code on your smartphone, and one-time menus as well. We'll no longer have traditional menus that you look over and return to your server. All of our employees will be wearing gloves and masks." Going above and beyond, Timothy's will feature at every table, a fresh, small white bag for the storage of your own mask while you dine. Included in those bags will be a 1-oz bottle of personal hand sanitizer for your use, and to take home, and the restaurant's mission statement explaining what they're doing, what they've been doing all along, and what they'll continue to do going forward to keep everyone safe because it isn't new to them. Tim says, "We've always had exacting standards, but we're actually adding a full time Risk Management Manager whose sole job will be to wipe down touch surfaces, computers, bathrooms, around the bar, tables, everywhere. They will not bus tables, or take orders, or carry food, just risk management cleanliness. Finally, in that bag, we'll even have a blank protective sleeve for your credit card for the payment process to hand it off to your server to minimize contact." Inside the popular restaurant, Michiana Supply in Benton Harbor has manufactured plexiglass dividers for all of the booths, because, as Tim notes, "Most folks gravitate toward booth dining as a preference, and we wanted to make sure that we could seat all of those, but in a safe manner. They designed them so that separate each party in the dining area. They also crafted a plexiglass surround for the hostess station, and around one end of the bar in case somebody comes up to communicate with a bartender." As if the pandemic's impact wasn't already a struggle, Tim says, "We're even further hamstrung by a three-phase road reconstruction project on Red Arrow Highway right in front of us, that will run a year with all of the work that needs to be done, but you can still get to us throughout the process." The decision to immediately convert to curbside service has worked out very well, according to Tim, "But," he notes, "with no alcohol sales, and the simplistic design of a $12-menu, you have to do a lot of meals to be able to pay the regular bills." Timothy's crafted the $12-menu to streamline everything and make it as easy as possible for the cooks and for what they already had in-house. They adapted it around their traditional $12-winter menu, and it worked very well as a speedy, simple enterprise with things that were very popular comfort foods including chicken, ribs, burgers and the like. As they get closer to re-engaging, Tim says, "Starting last week we've begun gravitating toward all of our appetizers from our regular menu going out there, too. We're also adding a little more complex offering like a fish entrée, soft-shell crabs which are in season now, and then we started up our pizza kitchen about three weeks ago." The pizza kitchen is in Jake's Backyard behind the restaurant building. In closing, Tim says, "What we're going to do this summer is we'll still keep the curbside as a big deal, because we know that not everybody is going to be ready to go back to on-site dining, especially older, more vulnerable people. We'll keep that going all summer long, and we'll have our pizza kitchen, and then we'll have the outside dining that will be actually changed from just pizza to our entire menu from the inside." It has been a memorable time for sure, but Tim Sizer and his team plan to be ready for whatever comes next, because that's the only way they know now to do it. They are definitely in it to win it, and head into their third decade of serving the region. As he has long told us, "Eating should be one of the great joys in life. At Timothy's, our goal is to fulfill that promise. We want you to leave having had a wonderful dining experience...and wanting to come back."
