Christmas in the Country

LEIGHTON—For many Tennessee Valley residents, the holiday season begins the third weekend of November atop LaGrange Mountain in Colbert County. The LaGrange Living Historical Association’s annual Christmas in the Country celebration attracts people from throughout the Tennessee Valley to the tiny mountaintop community south of Leighton. It’s the first holiday festival of the season for many. This year’s celebration is Friday, Nov. 20 – Sunday, Nov. 22 from 10am-4pm at the LaGrange College Site. Admission is free. Donations

Addressing Shoals Litter

SHOALS—Those who have a litter problem in their neighborhood, along their county road, or in areas around a place of business now have a positive solution.

Keep the Shoals Beautiful, an affiliate of Keep America Beautiful, is now providing free “Thank You for Not Littering” signs to help reduce debris in high traffic locations.

Sharing Hope for the Holidays

FLORENCE—Shoals Sav-A-Life has provided pregnancy related services to the residents of Franklin, Colbert, and Lauderdale counties for 21 years. They quickly learned that no two clients’ needs are exactly the same, and that’s why they are prepared to help in a variety of situations. “It is common for us to encounter women who’ve experienced miscarriage or have had a previous abortion and are grieving the loss,” said Beth Grisham, Executive Director.

One resource for comforting those experiencing the loss of a child, whether during pregnancy or even after the child is grown, is the Hope Memorial Statue, a life-size bronze sculpture of Jesus seated with a mother and her child. It was purchased in 2006. It was brought to the Shoals and placed in Tri Cities Memorial Gardens in Florence thanks to many individual contributions as well as nice a contribution from Center Star will be accepted. While the time-honored tradition of decorating the historical buildings at the site to resemble and old-time Christmas continues this year, the celebration will include several changes. According to organizer Louise Lenz, the changes include new vendors and artists along with a program to commemorate the LaGrange Observatory reopening. There will also be hayrides and tours of the recently renovated LaGrange Cemetery.

Lenz revealed that this year's decorations will include a dozen Christmas trees, each adorned with ornaments reflecting a unique theme.

"One of the trees will be decorated with bird nests. Another will be decorated with vintage tobacco tins and ribbons," Lenz said. "We decorate several of our trees like the early settlers would have decorated theirs."

There also will be plenty of cakes, pies, cookies and other treats at the ever popular Christmas in the Country Bake Sale.

Both Santa and Mrs. Claus will attend and be available for photographs. "A lot of people like to come out and take pictures with Santa and Mrs. Claus, using the photos for making their Christmas cards every year."

Students from throughout north Alabama will attend the first day of the event.

LaGrange College was Alabama's first chartered college and the forerunner of the University of North Alabama. It was burned by Union forces during the Civil War. LaGrange College Site Park is located off Alabama 157, eight miles southeast of Muscle Shoals.

Susann Hamlin, executive director of Colbert County Tourism and Convention Bureau, said Christmas in the Country is great to start the holiday season. For more details about the festival, call 256-446-9324 or the Colbert County Tourism and Convention Bureau at 256-383-0783.

A Meal for Thanksgiving

added, "If anybody is alone on Thanksgiving or can't make arrangements for a traditional dinner, come down and have dinner with us. There's no reason for anyone to be alone or hungry."

Dinner will consist of turkey, dressing, green beans, mashed potatoes, and more.

Robinson is partnering with Sweet Water Venue owners, Seda and Tony Averhart, who will be hosting their first event at the newly remodeled venue. "My wife and I thought, 'what better way to start our business than with an event that gives back to the community?'" Tony said. "We wanted to be part of such a great endeavor ensuring those without access to a Thanksgiving meal get a helping of hospitality along with turkey and trimmings on this holiday," Seda added.

As successful entrepreneurs, Robinson and the Averharts are thankful to give back to a community that has blessed them so much. Those in need of transportation are encouraged to call 256-810-8426 for more information. Volunteers to help serve and donations to help offset expenses are also welcomed.

ceremonies Saturday, December 12 at 10am and 2pm in Flowers Hall. Hood will speak at both events.

Hood was born and raised in Florence and is a writer of essays, columns, and short stories. His band, Drive-By Truckers, has released 12 albums and played more than 2,000 shows in the past 19 years. They also recently released a 35 song career-spanning box set earlier this year that was recorded live at The Fillmore in San Francisco.

Additionally, Hood has spoken and/or conducted classes at Princeton, the University of Indiana, the University of Georgia, and the University of Alabama.

Hood attended the University of North Alabama before he moved to Athens, Georgia. He lived there for 21 years until earlier this year when he relocated with his family to Portland, Oregon.

Barnett's Work at K-D Center

FLORENCE—Works by Samuel W. Barnett will be on exhibit at Kennedy-Douglass Center for the Arts in Florence through December 31. The exhibition includes still lifes depicting common objects often in humorous ways and landscape paintings of North Alabama rural architecture in oil and acrylic.

Barnett is a landscape architect in Decatur, Alabama, and describes his work as contemporary realism. His subject matter is usually taken from everyday objects and places that evoke a unique contrast of light and form. He is inspired by the works of American artists such as John Singer Sargent and Andrew Wyeth and the Dutch painters Vermeer and Rembrandt. Their handling of light and shadow and keen eye for detail are aspects he strives for in his work.

Hood Speaks to UNA Grads

FLORENCE – Patterson Hood, best known as the front man, singer, songwriter, and guitar player for the critically acclaimed rock-and-roll band, Drive-By Truckers, will be the featured speaker at UNA's fall graduation ceremonies. UNA will host two commencement

Baptist church. Several years later, more contributions allowed the site to be nicely landscaped. Honorariums have also been placed at the site in honor of children adopted. "We realized the Hope sculpture would be a comfort to someone who has walked through the journey of adoption as well—either on the placement OR receiving side of the experience," Grisham added. "While adoption is a wonderful option that we share with all of our clients, it is chosen by very few. We understand that for the birth mother, there is a grieving process that she will likely experience as she walks through the adoption journey. We encourage her to look beyond her needs to the best interests of the child she is carrying and to consider whether she can offer her child the care, love, and stability it will need to thrive in life. Our goal is to help her see that adoption may be the BEST way for her to show her child love. And on the other side of the equation awaits a family who will receive the gift of life through her selfless act."

Shoals Sav-A-Life wants to make sure the communities they serve are aware that the Memorial Site is available to as a resource. Whether it becomes a private place to take a lunch or just to stop by for a moment and reflect, it is their hope that it will become a place of comfort and encouragement.

"Hope for The Holidays" is an annual celebration at the site. Shoals Sav-A-Life invites you to come by Tuesday, November 24 between 5-7pm to light a candle in honor of your child lost or to celebrate a child placed or received through adoption. Live music, cider, and an ornament will be provided for those attending. This is a free event and is open to everyone. A memorial at the site is not necessary to participate, but information about how to place a memorial can be obtained by calling 256-740-0640.

Ask Dr. Webb

Dr. Robert Webb

Q Dad's been diagnosed with lung cancer, stage IV, and the doctors want him to take chemotherapy, hoping to prolong his life. He is worried it will only make him feel worse. How much benefit is there for him?

A A study published July this year in JAMA Oncology found that patients with any end-stage cancer who received chemotherapy, hoping to improve their quality of life and survival, actually were made to feel worse and didn't live any longer!

661 patients with stage 4 [metastatic] cancer were followed: half received at least one dose of chemotherapy, and the other half were the 'control' group, meaning they received only comfort care to control symptoms (pain, shortness of breath, nausea). All the patients entered the study feeling 'well' and without any significant symptoms. The accompanying editorial stated, "It is disturbing that this trial demonstrated no benefits of chemotherapy... and... that oncologists still recommend and use systemic therapy so close to patient death." The authors speculate that chemotherapy was given to patients already functioning well and without symptoms in an attempt to just reduce the cancer's spread.

Based on this study, it unfortunately appears that once you have metastatic cancer, your chances of living longer and better by taking chemotherapy is not very good. A person may be better served by informing themselves and making a choice that is right for them—which could still be a trial of chemotherapy; or could be, eat and drink what you like, enjoying your family without the nausea and other problems that frequently accompany cancer treatment.

Try not to give in to others' false hopes. Know that usually a comfort- focused approach helps you to live more comfortably and longer—which means, ask your doctor if hospice might be a better choice!

Ask Dr. Webb is a bi-weekly article sponsored by Hospice of the Shoals as a community service to answer questions about hospice care and end of life issues. Please submit questions to ssimpson@hofs.org or call 256-767-6699.
 Dr. Robert Webb has focused his practice on geriatrics and palliative care since 2003. He is the Medical Director at Hospice of the Shoals.

DAVE Says

A HIRING PREDICAMENT

Dear Dave,
I work as the executive director of a nonprofit charitable organization. Lately, I've been wondering if I should hire an employee as a development person. I don't want to damage the work we do, and I can't help but look at bringing in someone new as a gamble. Do you have any suggestions? How do you handle situations like this?
Denise

Dear Denise,
Over the years, I've found that you can reduce a lot of the fear when it comes to hiring simply by doing your due diligence - and then some - during the hiring process. I get what you're saying, though. It's kind of a gamble anytime you hire someone. But if you do your job during the hiring process, I've found that in most cases it turns into an investment rather than a gamble. Even then, some investments are better than others.

In your line of work, you need a lot more than a warm body in a chair. You need someone who really cares about your cause and is really gifted when it comes to physically, mentally and spiritually involving people in the community. In a sense, a development person is kind of like a salesperson. A good one is worth their weight in gold, while a bad one will only cost you a ridiculous amount of time and money, while potentially tarnishing your good name.

Look for the best of the best, and don't rely on résumés to tell you the whole story. At my office, we always have numerous interviews, and the process can go on for months. We're also okay with not hiring someone and putting the position on hold for a while if we can't find the person who is an exact fit professionally and personally. And remember, Denise. Like with all things, it never hurts to ask God for a little guidance!

—Dave

Dear Dave,
My husband and I are about to relocate to another part of the country. We'd like to sell our house, but we're thinking about taking out a small loan to have some work done first. We could get in the $180,000 range selling it "as-is" but closer to $200,000 if we installed new roof, carpeting, exterior paint and concrete work. I know how you feel about debt, but what are your thoughts in this scenario?
Kim

Dear Kim,
From what you just described, and assuming the concrete work wouldn't be too extensive, you looking at going into debt probably $12,000 to $15,000 in order to get $20,000 more out of the deal. I'd just sell it. I wouldn't go to all that trouble for $5,000.

Every piece of debt you take on compromises your financial security and robs you of your largest wealth-building tool—your income. Even if you guys are in good shape, you've got a lot of uncertainty and the potential for unexpected expenses in the months ahead. Just sell the house and get on with your lives. It's not worth the hassle.

Quit Listening to Yourself and Start Talking to Yourself

All of us have that tiny inner voice that builds to a crescendo when we are about to try something new. A voice that whispers at first and builds to a scream. It sounds like that warning in A Christmas Story, "You don't need a Red Rider BB Gun, You'll shoot your eye out!" How do you do battle with your inner commentary? How do you launch out into deep water when it is shouting "Stay near the shore!"?

The answer is to Quit Listening To Yourself and Start Talking To Yourself.

School your inner voice on all the reasons why you need to be brave and adventurous. Tell yourself about all of the wonderful things that can happen if you quit holding back your potential. Get out a pen and paper and talk out loud as you list all the fabulous things that could be accomplished by a willing "you". Listening to the inner voice of fear and doubt has kept many a man and woman from fulfilling their life's purpose. Quit listening to that voice. Set the course of your life by sounding out - in a clear voice - the direction that is most beneficial for you and those you love. Lead with your voice. Talk to yourself.

Dig deep into your library, a mentor's encouraging words, a class you took, an example you saw or your own past successes and drown out that voice. You can probably remember that great feeling you got from stepping out and taking a chance. Even if you take small steps in the right direction, it is much better than letting your inner voice freeze you in your tracks. Talk to yourself.

We might all do well to adopt a habit of verbally schooling ourselves. It seems we are always ready to give advice to others. When is the last time you gave yourself some good, sound advice?

If we were honest with ourselves, we would realize that no one knows what we need better than we do. However, we let our inner voice talk us out of doing it. Are we ready to take our dose of medicine? Wouldn't you rather give it to yourself.

I remember once walking up and down the hall of our office building talking to myself. (No one was there) I'm glad I was alone because I was being pretty rough on me. I had been letting my inner voice keep me from taking some steps I knew were necessary to my success. Every once in a while we have to read ourselves the riot act. I walked away from my meeting with myself a more determined, courageous individual. Sometimes we just need to tell ourselves "I CAN DO IT".

So, when is the last time you shut up the mouth of your inner "nay sayer" and talked to yourself like nobody else can? Go on, try it. Quit Listening To Yourself and Start Talking To Yourself.

Missouri Shows Us the Real Injustices

Can we find any truth in the state of Missouri? American media has once again been made the useful idiot as the third sham of half-truths in recent memory was foisted on a sympathetic and unsuspecting public. This once-respected group of news professionals apparently now sees no need to substantiate claims and determine potential for ulterior motive. If it sounds plausible and will draw readers or viewers, they'll get it out ASAP. Why waste the time verifying in this age of instant news?

Less than two years ago, we had the Michael Sam sham where we spent weeks fawning over the University of Missouri player who was going to be the first openly gay football player drafted by an NFL team. He was lauded beforehand with accolades that far surpassed those of high first round draft picks, yet he was taken almost dead last in the final round. It was PC on parade and a mercy pick that had nothing to do with sport of football. Sam never played a regular season down in the NFL and then walked out on the Canadian Football League's Montreal Alouettes during training camp for undisclosed personal reasons.

Then we had the Ferguson, MO police brutality sham. You remember, the "Hands up, Don't Shoot" lie that the media still refuses to admit they were snowed on. The cop, Darren

Shoals Quilts

FLORENCE—Entries in the Shoals Piecemakers Quilt Guild's Quilt Challenge for 2015 are on exhibit at Kennedy-Douglass Center for the Arts in Florence through December 11. This year's exhibit marks the 27th year of the Challenge.

The Guild members have new rules for the Challenge each year; the creative way the rules are followed by each member makes this exhibit an exciting adventure. This year the challenge is called "Monochromatic or Duo-chromatic" and quilters must choose one or two colors with related shades, tones, and tints. Quilts must be no smaller than 30" x 30" with no maximum limit. Guild members and Alabama Music Hall of Fame inductee, Bobby Denton, will sign copies of his book, "Love Lifted Me" from 2-4pm Sunday, November 22 in the lobby of the Alabama Music Hall of Fame on U.S. 72 W., in Tuscumbia. The book chronicles how Denton, an accomplished pop singer and politician, overcame hardships through faith. He will perform several of his favorite songs at the book signing. Denton was one of the first artists to bring attention to the Muscle Shoals music scene when he recorded, "A Fallen Star" at the WLAY radio station. He has since recorded more than 80 songs at recording studios throughout the South. Denton served as an Alabama state senator for 32 years. He is a former businessman and worked as director of development for Northwest-Shoals Community College in Muscle Shoals. Denton's recordings and his book are available at www.bobbydenton.com.

will return to the Florence/Lauderdale Visitor Center in McFarland Park to play dulcimer music in the Gallery on Friday, November 20 from 2:30-4:30pm. The dulcimer, which means "sweet sound," is a four-stringed instrument developed in the 1700s in the southern Appalachian Mountains. The featured players use a tablature system of playing based on fret numbers. This enables them to play with others even if they have never met before. Visitors are encouraged to come out and listen to the music and tour the Center. Admission is free. For more information call 256-740-4141.

I Am Offended!

Editor:

I was stopped at a traffic light the other day on Florence Blvd and a man pulled up beside me with his rap "music" blasting. My windows were closed, yet I was forced to listen to such provocative, angry filth against women coming from his car.

I felt violated and I wondered how the driver could possibly not be influenced by such hateful rhetoric. This has to promote vicious behavior.

I sincerely hope the man is not in a relationship where someone is being abused because...Women's Lives Matter Too!

New Government Scam

Editor:

I find it hard to imagine that people would actually buy into and invest in this new government "scam" to take tax payers money.

In 1930 congress voted Social security into existence. Since then Americans have been paying into an account that has become all but bankrupt. This is not because of a lack of participation; if you are working you pay half for your retirement and your employer pays the other half. It comes out whether you want it to or not, but it is "not a tax"; it is your money. It is not a government-funded program; you paid it in all your working life so you can retire with some kind of pension.

Congress has "borrowed" from the fund many times and has never paid back a dime. Every time some politician wants to scare the public into believing some new tax or tax cut they are selling, they threaten us with losing it all. But why? We pay it in, they have no right to ever threaten us with that. The government does not contribute to social security; but they routinely bring up the scare of losing it. And we as citizens should take a good hard look at the politicians that do that to us. Do we really need someone to represent us when it appears they are only pushing their own political agenda or that of some special interest group?

I think only a fool would invest in this MYRA scam. All the government will do is get a big cash till so they can steal it from the poor Americans under the guise of needing it to help support some poor group too lazy to work and support themselves. Wait, what? Gee, that sounds familiar doesn't it...?

Injustices...

Wilson, was clearly doing his job and defending himself against Michael Brown, and he still had his life ruined. We eagerly watched as tens of millions in damage was done by looting punks and rioters over the course of the following week that further hurt the local economy. Now, the same community requires taxpayer assistance for its recovery.

Several weeks ago racial tensions increased at the University of Missouri when the student body president, Peyton Head, lamented about there being a KKK chapter on the campus. The story festered as did tensions. Head was named homecoming king this year at UM which served to quell some tensions.

That may have been orchestrated. It turns out that Head recently did an internship with Obama's former Chief of Staff and current Chicago mayor, Rahm Emanuel. He also had a recent 'meet and greet' photo taken with the President. Incidentally, there is not KKK chapter on the Missouri campus. The media never questioned Head about his claims. Sounds like a top-flight community organizer in the making.

Now we have the case of more alleged inaction against racism and social injustices by the UM president. There has been one isolated accusation of a racial epithet - hurled by a drunk in an old pick-up truck - and an as-yet unsubstantiated claim of a swastika drawn with feces on a wall.

Jonathan Butler took up the cause at the university and was a central figure in the protests at UM last week. He was claiming to represent those fighting against racism, inequality, and social injustice with his two-day hunger strike that garnered the sympathy of millions and added to the pressure on the university officials.

The UM football team joined in the protest as over 30 black players claimed they would not play in another game unless the university's less-than-responsive president was fired or resigned. UM is mediocre at best this year. Had they been 9-0 entering the week, many players admitted they would not have become involved. All this caused the president's resignation and the chancellor's reassignment.

What went underreported is that Butler is now in this eighth-year doing post graduate work at Missouri and his father is a long-time railroad executive who earned over $8 million last year. And Butler is fighting for social justice and inequality? It sounds like the drunk really needs the justice and equality.

Butler's initial outrage may also have been centered on the fact that he lost his health insurance benefits when he became a graduate student. He was mad at the university, its president, the chancellor, trustees, any establishment whites that he could blame. He never considered it was Obamacare that threw him into his racially retaliatory hunger strike.

Why do we concern ourselves AT ALL when someone goes on a hunger strike? That is as juvenile as someone holding his breath in protest. Let him starve or asphyxiate to his heart's content.

One would never imagine that UM is supposed to have one of the nation's premier journalism programs. Then again, if reliability, and modern-day corroboration methods are considered, maybe that makes perfect sense.

The real injustice is that taxpayers fund this modern-day charade of higher ed.

IN MY BUSINESS, THE OLD saying, "the customer is always right" simply doesn't apply much of the time. I asked our technicians to recall some of the more, shall we say, "interesting" people that we have dealt with over the years. I've changed some details to protect the not-so-innocent.

Fisher

We deal with overly paranoid clients all the time. We recently had a client who insisted that their printer was spying on them somehow. She refused to accept our explanation that her printer could not spy on her and insisted that we delete all her printer information from

by "The Computer Skeptic"

her computer. We warned her that would disable her ability to print but she insisted. When she got her computer home, she called us wondering why her computer would not print.

A potential client called me and was VERY upset that his computer would not work after he completed the free Windows 10 Upgrade offered by Microsoft. I gave him a few pointers of how to potentially fix the issue over the phone but they didn't work so I suggested he bring it in to us. When I informed him that we would charge him for this service, he used some very bad and very loud words to convey that he did not appreciate what we had done to his computer. I guess he thought we were part of Microsoft so we should fix his stuff for free? I'm not really sure what his point was but I gave him a number to Microsoft and suggested he call them instead.

One of my best technicians happens to be a woman. I can't tell you how many times we have had male and female clients request that "a man" work on their computer.

Then there was the guy who asked me how fast his computer was in "miles per hour." Then we had the little old lady who called us to complain that she could not get her cordless mouse to work properly. When she moved the mouse up, her pointer went down and vice versa. It took us entirely too long to figure out that she was using the mouse upside down. Then there was the client who asked us to take remote control of his computer to diagnose why he didn't have internet service.

Think about that one for a second.

Finally, I had a client who called me to ask a question about how to access a file on his computer. I told him what to do then asked him if that worked. He said, "Oh, I'll have to try that later. I'm in surgery at the moment." I wished him good luck and hoped for a speedy recovery. He said, "Oh not me. I'm closing up the chest now. Thanks for the help! <click>"

With Wyatt conveniently out of town and a storm rolling in, Thomas tried to seduce Ivy. Even though deep down he was concerned about Ivy being under the same roof as Thomas, Wyatt refused to admit it. Liam turned down Bill's offer to travel internationally.

Steffy didn't want to spoil her romantic evening with Liam by telling him what Thomas was doing. Quinn took advantage of being alone with her son to tell him what she really thought about his relationship with Ivy. As the storm passing through Los Angeles intensified, so did the chemistry between Ivy and Thomas. Wait to See: Eric, Brooke and Rick share a fond memory of Stephanie.

ASK THE ATTORNEY

Thomas McCutcheon

Ask the Attorney is sponsored by local attorneys, McCutcheon & Hamner, PC, as a service to the residents of NW Alabama.

Q My daughter and her boyfriend were riding with another couple to the movies. They were sitting in the backseat. The driver of the car pulled out in front of another car and my daughter was injured very badly. Is there anything my daughter can do? Can my daughter sue the driver of the car in which she was a passenger?

- Charles, Athens, AL

A Charles, I am very sorry to hear about your daughter and hope she makes a quick and complete recovery. In Alabama, we have what is called the "guest passenger" statute. The guest passenger statute basically states that a passenger in a vehicle who is injured due to the fault of the driver of the vehicle cannot sue the driver for negligence. There are, however some exceptions to this rule. First, a passenger can sue the driver if the driver is guilty of wanton conduct. Our courts have defined wanton conduct as driving under the influence of either alcohol or drugs or excessive speeding and reckless driving. Therefore if the driver of the automobile in which your daughter was a passenger was DUI or was speeding, your daughter may have a case. If on the other hand, the driver simply was not paying attention and was not speeding, then your daughter doesn't have a case.

Secondly, if your daughter or your daughter's boyfriend paid the driver to take them to the movies or, for example, gave the driver gas money, then the driver is considered a "driver for hire" and the "guest passenger" statute does not apply. In this situation, your daughter could file suit against the driver.

Recently, I settled a client's case where my client, who was a passenger, was injured on his way to work when the driver fell asleep at the wheel and crashed. I successfully argued that my client and the driver did not fall under the guest passenger statute because they took turns driving to work and therefore their relationship was a business relationship and for their mutual benefit.

Buckle up and drive safely.

NEW LIFE IN CHRIST

No matter who you are or where you are in life, you can be assured that God loves you and has a purpose for your life.

Because of sin (falling short of God's righteous standard), we are separated from God and are spiritually dead (Romans 3:23). However, because God loves us, He provided a way for us to connect with Him by sending His Son, Jesus, who never sinned, to die in our place as payment for our sin. John 3:16 says, "God loved the world in this way: He gave His One and Only Son, so that everyone who believes in Him will not perish but have eternal life."

To begin a personal relationship with God, agree with Him about your sin and your need for forgiveness. If you are ready to make this choice, as an affirmation of your belief, you may wish to pray a prayer like this one: Dear God, I understand I am a sinner, but I believe Jesus died for my sins, and I now accept His gift of eternal life. Thank You for forgiving my sins. Thank You for my new life. From this day on, I choose to follow You and Your will for my life.

If you choose to begin a personal relationship with God through His Son, Jesus, please share this with the person of church that gave you this. To learn more, visit sbc.net/knowjesus.

Cut The Costs Of Your Prescriptions

THE COSTS OF FILLING prescriptions is simply too big to bear for many people, even now that the Affordable Care Act has greatly reduced the amount of people who are uninsured. A survey from the Commonwealth Fund found that 35 million people in America failed to fill a prescription in 2014 because of the cost of the medication. That figure represents an improvement from 2010, when 48 million people did not fill their prescriptions due to the costs of those medications, but it still serves to highlight a need many people have to cut the costs of their medicine.

Though people who cannot afford to fill their prescriptions often feel helpless, there are a handful of ways they can cut the costs of their medications and start feeling better.

- Discuss changes with your physician. Perhaps the simplest way to cut prescription costs is to discuss medication options with your physician. Brand-name drugs are typically more expensive than generic alternatives, so speak with your physician about generic drugs or less costly brand-name drugs that may treat your condition as well as expensive brand-name drugs do.
- Consider Patient Assistance Programs. Sometimes referred to as "Pharmaceutical Assistance Programs," Patient Assistance Programs, or PAPs, can greatly reduce the burden of prescription drug costs. Sponsored by pharmaceutical companies, PAPs distribute billions of dollars to patients who otherwise could not afford their medications. Eligibility criteria varies depending on the program, but men and women struggling to pay for their prescriptions can speak with their physicians about PAPs.

- Consult your member organizations. If you are a member of the AAA automotive group or the American Association of Retired Persons, you might be eligible for medication discount cards free of charge. These cards provide discounts on your medications, but some come with expensive fees upfront. Look for no-fee cards, such as those offered to AAA and AARP members or others offered by nonprofit organizations, before considering options offered by pharmaceutical companies or other for-profit businesses.

- Contact charitable organizations. Some charitable organizations, such as the National Organization for Rare Disorders and maybe even some local nonprofits, offer prescription assistance to people in need. Visit NORD online at www.rarediseases.org.

Simple Ways To Maintain Your Mental Acuity

Many people know that a combination of a healthy diet and routine exercise is the best way to maintain their physical health. But what about mental well-being? Memory lapses are often assumed to be an accepted side effect of aging, but such an assumption is incorrect. Men and women can take many steps to maintain their mental acuity well into their golden years.

- Find time for cardiovascular exercise. Exercise can help men and women maintain healthy weights and reduce their risk for potentially deadly ailments like heart disease and diabetes. Cardiovascular exercise pumps oxygen- and glucose-rich blood to the brain that can fuel brain cells. It also strengthens blood vessels, which can help prevent potentially devastating diseases, such as stroke.

- Find time for friends and family. Routine socialization can boost brain function, keeping a brain sharp by reducing its levels of cortisol, a potentially destructive "stress" hormone. It is also believed that routine interaction with others stimulates structures in the brain that are likely responsible for planning, decision making and response control.

- Squeeze in a nap every so often. Naps can have a reenergizing effect on men and women, and can also improve memory, whether you sleep for six minutes or for 30 to 45 minutes. When people were given a word recall test after napping, those who had slept performed better on the test than those who hadn't.

- Include fish in your diet. A study from Chicago's Rush University Medical Center found that people who eat fish once per week have a much lower risk of developing Alzheimer's disease than those who don't. Researchers credit this lower risk to DHA, an omega-3 fatty acid that is found in salmon and tuna.

Destructive Actions

Editor:

Although I am glad the Missouri football team and students received attention to their demands about discrimination in a peaceful constructive manner, I don't approve of the additional demands they are making of the college that gave them scholarships.

It is destructive action to put unreasonable demands on the college just as a show of force that makes the students look like they can dictate college procedures.

If they despise the University of Missouri that much, maybe they should go to another college.

He's Still The Best Medicine

The greatest fear that grips the world today is the uncertainty of tomorrow. The feeble excuses that we all use for doing right or doing wrong have no bearing at all on the fact that one day we are going to drop dead. The things that we set in front of us that cause us to do right or wrong only prove that these things are bigger than we are. Anything that controls you is bigger than you. Truth always does more damage to those who continually offend it. Spiritually, the Bible always has an answer. But the Bible has been side-lined in favor of the desires of the flesh.

Still the flesh fears death, but sin prevents each one of us from dealing with it, today. We always think we have tomorrow. Statistics don't lie. Heart disease and cancer are the greatest killers in America today. We see in Luke 21:26 "Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken." And in Romans 3:18 "There is no fear of God before their eyes." Again in Hebrews 2:15 "And deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage." What we have today is the wrong fear.

What is the best medicine? The truth! Don't reject and hate the truth. What folks are trying to shove down our throats today is how to live longer and healthier on this planet with no emphasis on how to live forever in eternity. The facts are we have an appointment with death and judgment. Face it now! Sin is a killer and it will eventually get you. The flesh loves sin and doesn't know how to satisfy its appetite for it. Jesus Christ is still the best medicine for sin. Hebrews 9:27 "And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment:" Acts 17:31 "Because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man (Jesus Christ) whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him (Jesus Christ) from the dead." Its not works that you need when you stand in front of Christ. You must have Him and His righteousness. Ask Christ for His righteousness today. He is the best medicine.
