ASK THE ATTORNEY

Thomas McCutcheon

Ask the Attorney is sponsored by local attorneys, McCutcheon & Hamner, PC, as a service to the residents of NW Alabama.

Q I sold a car and over the weekend the engine failed. I never had any problems with the car and I don't believe the person that bought it did anything to the engine that made it fail. Now the person wants their money back. I sold the car "as is". What can I do?

Owen, Moulton, AL

A Between an ordinary buyer and ordinary seller as opposed to people in the business of buying and selling cars, I would advise people to be very specific about what representations are made during the sale of a car. As I have said before, if it is not in writing it is not worth the paper it is not written on. If a "try out" period is given by the seller it should be specific as to time and miles. If a warranty is given it should be specific as to what is warranted and what is not.

In normal business usage the phrase included in the sale of a used car "as is, where is" means and is intended to mean that there is no warranty at all. The courts of this state have consistently held that absent special circumstances a car purchased "as is, where is" has no warranty and the seller has no duty to repair any problem once the transaction has been made.

A specific exception is made for the sale of a car with a salvage title. There is a statutory duty to provide the buyer with the following information in no smaller than 10 point type: "This vehicle's title contains the designation "salvage" or "rebuilt". Other exceptions could include specific misrepresentations as to the car's condition that were known to the seller and made fraudulently or willfully suppressed. Misrepresentations as to the odometer are covered under federal law and each title contains an odometer statement. Those misrepresentations have a minimum and maximum monetary penalty as compensatory damages and a jury could award punitive damages as well.

Including the phrase "as is, where is" in any bill of sale is good business unless otherwise agreed upon and in this case the result is that you do not have to give the money back.

Buckle up and drive safely.

Cane Creek...

time to hike here, but we will definitely be coming back."

Mark and Sonya Zarembo of Killen have hiked on trails throughout the United States and in other countries. However, they said Cane Creek Canyon Nature Preserve is as spectacular as any state or national park they have visited. "It's a real gem," Sonya said.

More than 15 miles of hiking trails crisscross the preserve, which is owned by Jim and Faye Lacefield. The preserve is open sunrise to sunset daily. Admission is free.

With more than 100 species of native trees, the preserve has one of the most diverse forests in Alabama. Numerous wildflowers, including rare species, also grow at the preserve.

Jacqueline Gray Miller, Alabama marketing manager for the Nature Conservancy, said it is unusual to find so much forest diversity in one area.

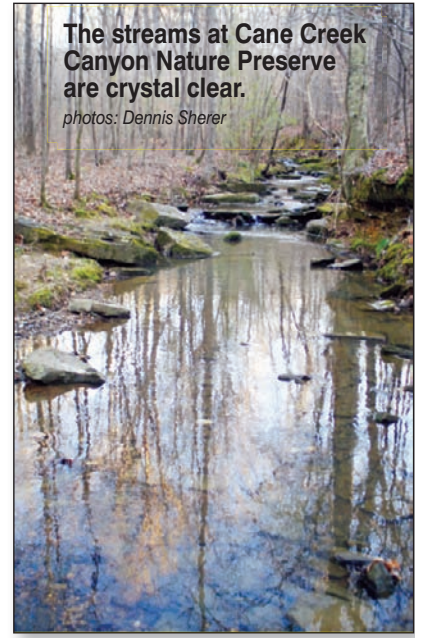

During the fall, the preserve is one of the best places in north Alabama to see colorful foliage.

The canyon is about 350 feet deep in places and was carved by Cane Creek flowing over sandstone.

Waterfalls and stone overhangs are located along the canyon walls. The streams and creeks at the preserve are crystal clear.

Wildlife, including deer, bobcats and otters, can be found at the preserve.

The Lacefields enjoy sharing their land with others to provide a place for exploring nature, and they enjoy meeting the many visitors.

Miller said it is the only privately owned nature preserve with free admission in Alabama.

Susann Hamlin, president and CEO of Colbert County Tourism and Convention Bureau, considers Cane Creek Canyon Nature Preserve to be the perfect place for a leisurely walk or an all-day hike.

"It's a great place for families to spend time in the outdoors, discovering nature," Hamlin said.

The preserve is pet friendly. Many hikers take their dogs and let them run free along the trails.

Directions to Cane Creek Canyon Nature Preserve from Tusculumbia: Turn onto the service road at Colbert County Farmers Cooperative, 1417 U.S. Highway 72. At the end of the service road, turn left onto Frankfort Road, turn left onto Frankfort Road for 8 1/4 miles to Loop Road. Turn right onto Loop Road and travel about 150 feet. Loop Road will curve right, but go straight onto the gravel road and continue to 1/2-mile to the Lacefield's home.

For more information, please call 256-256-381-6301 or Colbert County Tourism at 256-383-0783.

SHOULD RETIREES MOVE INVESTMENTS TO A CD?

Dear Dave,
My wife and I are in our early 70s, and we're retired. We have about $136,000 in corporate bonds and $200,000 in mutual funds. Considering our age, should we move the investments into a CD?

Kurt

Dear Kurt,
There's always a chance you'll lose money if you leave it in mutual funds and bonds. That's the nature of the market. But there's another kind of risk based on what you're proposing, and that's risk of value due to inflation.

Assuming you two are in good health, you could expect to live another 10 to 20 years. Most current CD rates are less than 1 percent. Even if they rise to 2 or 3 percent in the future, do you really want to see that kind of return when inflation is likely to rise 4 percent annually? That's in itself a type of risk, so I would urge you to keep that in mind.

No, I wouldn't advise moving all of your money to CDs. If I were in your shoes, I'd live off the income generated by my mutual fund investments. As for the corporate bonds, I'm not a big fan of those. They entail almost as much risk as mutual funds without the good returns (on average) over a long period of time.

If you're concerned about stability, I'm okay with you taking a little money from your bonds and putting it into a CD right now. But I wouldn't touch the mutual funds.

HER BIRTHDAY MONEY IS SYMBOLIC

Dear Dave,

My wife received $100 from her parents for her birthday. When I asked what she planned to do with it, she said she was going to add it to her spending money. I think she should put it toward us paying off debt, but I bit my tongue and didn't say anything. We're in pretty good shape financially, so should I mention it or just let it go?

Charles

Dear Charles,
I'm sure you're a smart man, so you'll understand when I tell you — for the sake of your marriage and mental health — to let this one go. Seriously, is $100 going to move the needle that much? It's her birthday, and it was a gift designed to let her do something nice for herself. There's absolutely nothing wrong with her spending a little bit on herself on her special day.

If she had asked me about this, I would have told her it was fine. If she had asked me about putting it toward debt, I would have said that's fine, too. It's not a big deal for someone to have a little fun once in a while. But it's a bad plan for you to try to get at her gift. Just let it go, and do your part to make sure she knows that you love her and that she has a great birthday!

So, is it Hypocrisy, Dementia, or Both?

The recent death of Supreme Court Justice, Antonin Scalia, coupled with the Presidential election later this year sets up a tumultuous eight months for the nation. It will likely determine whether we enter 2017 as Amerika or if that socialist moniker will get to wait another few terms. Eventually, either party will have us there, one just much quicker than the other.

The Constitution provides for the President to nominate Supreme Court Justices. It also provides for the Senate body to approve or reject nominees. A nominee can even be refused a floor vote.

An election year tug-of-war has surfaced along party lines. Democrats think President Obama's nominee deserves rightful and fair consideration. Republicans think that the lame duck president in an election year should forgo that opportunity / duty and let the next president decide the nominee, creating even greater election-day ramifications affecting a court that often returns 5-4 decisions.

The President has already nominated Sonia Sotomayor and Elena Kagan during his two terms. It seems probable that he will do his best to place yet another judicial activist on the Court, one who lives under the fallacy that the Constitution is a living breathing document, akin to a variable-rate mortgage.

The current turmoil over Obama's right and

A Wall of Champions?

Editor:

It's another year and another "STATE" championship for another Deshler High School wrestler.

Tyler Williams will join an elite group of DHS wrestlers who have won three or more championships. This has not happened since 1999 when Ben Lewis completed his three consecutive wins streak. Once again, Mr. Williams will have his name added to the famed wall of champions.

Wall of Champions? Where is that? It is in a secluded back storage room (wrestling room) on the back side of the famed Deshler Dome! Never seen it? Probably won't. For nearly fifteen years, I have asked, begged, pleaded with boosters, sports editors, coaches, principals, and athletic directors to display these champions' names in a prominent place. These champions earned their right of praise just as basketball, football or volleyball teams. They deserve to be recognized.

It is time to credit and display their accomplishments for all to see, not just next year's wrestlers and their parents.

father of Ben Lewis

Get it Right, KAHLBERT

Dear Editor:

More and more I notice people mispronouncing the name of Colbert County. Radio and TV announcers are particularly notorious for this.

Trust me, Colbert is pronounced like, college, comet, and collards (KAHL). It is not pronounced like coal, coke, or Kohl's Department Store (KOHL) nor like Stephen Colbert nor the great actress of the 1930s and 40s, Claudette Colbert. In fact, the bert part of their last name has the French pronunciation bear. The bert part of Colbert County is just plain bert. Hence, KAHLBERT.

On a recent Saturday in Florence-Lauderdale Public Library, I polled a few patrons. Forty-five of them pronounced it KAHL; five of them pronounced it KOHL. Four of these were young girls, about twenty years old. The one man,

He later clarified this, "Why do I have to ask for forgiveness if I'm not making mistakes." "I am good." ”

fortyish, grinned and said, "I'm from Arizona; I'm not from around here."

Further strengthening my contention, library director Nancy Sanford, whose husband is Ian Sanford, mayor of Sheffield, and who grew up there, says KAHLBERT. I rest my case. Now Chief Colbert (KAHLBERT) can rest in peace.

Don't Be Shut Down, Silenced

Editor:

I know every generation that has come and gone thought they were the ones who could see the end of the world.

We are Christians. Baptist, Church of Christ, Catholic, too many to name. But all Christians. We all have basically the same beliefs. So why do we feel we must speak quietly about our God?

People, it's the Christians in this country who are being targeted. We must stand up and defend our right to believe in our God, the Lord Almighty and His son, Jesus Christ.

If we keep silent we will become the ones in the Old Testament who could only draw a fish in the dust and then wipe it away to identify themselves.

Almost every church has missionaries, Bible studies, and other church activities. But, do you speak of God in your daily lives?

Do you say 'God Bless' when someone says, 'Have a nice day'? Do you pray before a meal when you are eating out? We're not even supposed to say 'Merry Christmas' now.

Maybe we just don't really think about it, but I think we should be praising God everywhere we go. I believe the quieter we stay the more rights that we now have will be taken away.

We as Christians need to pray for each other, pray for the ones who haven't joined us, and pray for this country.

We are being shut down, silenced, and most of us won't notice until it's too late.

Every other religion there is in this country is protected. Christians, we all have a target on our backs. So make some noise. Don't let political correctness quiet you. If you go to church on Sunday or not put God in your life on Monday!

We talked about children we love, so talk about the God we love. Bring Him back into the open. Make sure He is talked about, NOT preached, but talked about in daily open conversations. Make sure we don't lose our right to pray, to worship, love, and de-

Making It Without God

Proverbs 13:15b... "but the way of transgressors is hard".
1 Samuel 24:13b "Wickedness proceedeth from the wicked."
Job 4:8 "Even as I have seen, they that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness, reap the same."
Job 5:8 "I would seek unto God, and unto God would I commit my cause."
Proverbs 1:25 "But ye have set at naught all my counsel, and would none of my reproof."
Jeremiah 17:5 "Thus saith the LORD; Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the LORD."
Isaiah 55:6 "Seek ye the LORD while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near."
Zephaniah 2:3 "Seek ye the LORD, all ye meek of the earth, which have wrought his judgment; seek righteousness, seek meekness: it may be ye shall be hid in the day of the LORD'S anger."
Psalms 50:15 "And call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me." Israel failed.

In these days of confusion, worry, doubt, despair, distress and discontentment, there is hope. Psalms 46:1 "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." Psalms 37:39 "But the salvation of the righteous is of the LORD: he is their strength in the time of trouble." God controls righteousness, salvation, and our safety. Titus 2:13 "Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ;" When have you heard any great one of the earth call on "that blessed hope" for help? Our Nation's leaders have been so occupied with separation of church and state, that they have alienated most of us from the great God and Savior that has made this country great. In so doing God has removed the protection and blessings from us and now America has lost her way. Look around.

The answer is 2 Chronicles 7:14 "If my people, which are called by my name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." Jeremiah 18:8 "If that nation, against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent of the evil that I thought to do unto them." We can't make it without God. Will we fail?

BBB A+ Rating, Owens Corning Preferred Contractor

Rainwater collection is a way to conserve water that can be adopted by both private homeowners and businesses. Harvesting water during peak times of precipitation ensures water will be on hand during drought or when water restrictions are implemented. Making use of rainwater reduces reliance on underground wells or municipal water systems. Harvesting rainwater also can help prevent flooding and soil erosion.

The average homeowner can collect thousands of gallons of rainwater each year. To learn just how much water can be harvested, as well as how many natural resources can be produced from that rain, visit www.save-the-rain.com, where men and women can calculate their rain collection potential by geographic location and average rainfall. Afterward, homeowners may be inclined to establish their own rainwater harvesting systems. Here is how to get started.

- Determine your roofing material. Potable water can be harvested from homes with sheet metal or slate roofing. Clay or adobe tiles also may be acceptable. Asphalt, wood shingles and tar roofs may leach toxic chemicals into the water, making it unsafe for drinking. This rainwater may only be collected to use for irrigation methods or washing cars and outdoor items.

- Check gutter materials. Some gutters are made with lead soldering components. A commercial lead swab test can help you determine if there is lead present in your gutters. At a later time you can choose to replace the gutters if you desire a potable supply of water.

- Invest in a collection tank or barrel. A number of manufacturers offer prefabricated rain collection systems complete with collection barrels. Otherwise, you can use your own barrel or tank to house the collected water. Ensure it is large enough to handle the volume of water collected.

- Purchase and install leaf guards. If your home is surrounded by many trees, you probably accumulate leaf and tree debris in your home gutters and downspouts. Leaf guards will help keep the gutters clear and increase water flow through the water collection system.

- Create a water collection area. A portion of the gutter system should be removed so that it connects to the collection barrel or tank. As the rain falls, it will run down the roof and into the gutters before it streams into the downspouts. The downspout connected to the tank will deposit the water directly inside. Filters can be installed to help block the flow of debris.

- Outfit the tank for overflow and water usage. A spigot and hose connection makes it easy to use the collected water for outdoor purposes. Many rainwater collection systems are designed with an overflow safeguard that will prevent the water from backing up through the system. It will divert the rainwater back out of the downspout when the barrel or tank is full.

A rainwater collection system harnesses a natural source of water to be used for gardens and other outdoor purposes. This water doesn't contain chlorine or other additives, making it relatively clean and safe to use. Homeowners should check to see if a permit is necessary to install a rainwater collection system and then begin gathering water for various uses.

authority to nominate is not a new scenario. Harry Reid, John Kerry, Joe Biden, Barack Obama, and Hillary Clinton were among the democrat ring-leaders who in 2006 filibustered G. W. Bush's election-year nomination of Samuel Alito to the Supreme Court. Those five squirrels are now in concert for senate republicans to blindly approve the president's nominee referring to it as their constitutional duty. If you'll recall, with G. W. as president and democrats controlling the senate, Bush nominated 32 judges from 2001-2003. Not one of them even made it to the Judiciary Committee for a hearing. More than a year and a half before President G. W. Bush was scheduled to leave office, Chuck Schumer said publicly in mid-2007, "The Supreme Court is dangerously out of balance. Given the track record of this president... I will recommend to my colleagues that we should not confirm a Supreme Court nominee except in extraordinary circumstances." Schumer is now using the term "obstructionists" to describe republicans in favor of the next president making the nomination. A much younger Joe Biden suggested in 1992 that President George H.W. Bush should refrain from nominating a replacement to the court if a seat came open during that election year. He is not of the same opinion with the current president. Are their minds going bad or are they just political hypocrites? Obama could present a so-called "moderate" nominee which could be a bait and switch tactic, enticing the Senate into thinking that person would be acceptable. The White House has said Obama values diversity on the court. It's no surprise that accusations of Republican racism against the President were brought up even before speculation of a possible nominee. Some quarters want him to consider Attorney General Loretta Lynch because of her efforts to improve (Translate: mitigate) policing in urban black communities. She is an absolute joke as AG. Her department (Department of Justice) has decided NOT to defend states that require proof of citizenship for voter registration. In other words, she is for any and all people voting in U.S. elections, maybe more than once. If Obama views Lynch as candidate qualified for the Supreme Court, he is equally a joke.

There have been several cases where a year and even closer to two years have elapsed between the death of a justice and seating of his replacement. It's not common, but it has happened. President Obama can also make a recess appointment to fill the seat temporarily. If the Senate goes into recess for ten days or more, count on that happening with a rush of Supreme Court decisions to follow... before a permanent replacement to the Court can be seated.

"In Her Name"

It's Ruby's birthday!!! What a day to celebrate! A year ago today was an amazing day. We birthed a baby without the aid of drugs. I say "We" because earlier today my daughter, Lora, thanked me for helping her with the birth. She said that she had just been thinking about how that she had all the right people in place for the birth. I called her early this morning and sang, "Happy Birthday" to Ruby, but I called her back tonight to congratulate her and her husband for making it through the first year. I told her that they had been great parents so far and I was proud that she had never dropped Ruby on her head. To which Lora responded, "Yes, but I have dropped her on her face a couple of times - luckily the second time was on carpet." O... kay. Bless Ruby's heart with such a crazy mama - that I love!

Ruby has been such a joy, especially since she started out so sick - "all of her systems were in a quiver" - I wrote a year ago. But now all her systems are in constant motion. She is walking about on short, little bow-legs with her hands outward for balance, exploring and speaking her own language and signing when she is hungry. She giggles, waves bye-bye and blows kisses to her gran and grandad. She actually knows us even though we only see each other about once a month. She squeals when she hears our voices on the phone and her face lights up when we are in the box, as we call our Skype sessions. (There is so much more for little people to figure out these days. "What are they doing in this box?" and "Why can't I touch them?") When we get to come out of the box and hug in person, the pleasure is full of kisses and loudness and presents.

But all you grans out there know what I am talking about. It's completeness - loving the child that the child that you gave birth to gave birth to. It's second-generation powerful, inexplicable love. It's so sweet and so real. This relationship has taken me by surprise in many ways. We have turned out to be as goofy as all of the other grandparents. But the biggest surprise is that there is another Ruby. Our granddaughter is named after my Mom, Ruby Rivers. After mom died I never imagined that I would be calling anyone else in my life "Ruby". But Lora had a different idea. Her grandmother died when she was thirteen and she had saved the name for last year's birth. I must admit it has been an adjustment saying that name all the time. I had put it away. But the small, smiling face with the full little afro that now wears that name brings joy back to that name. Ruby heals and rejuvenates a spirit of hope. I once wrote "I can say [this] about Ruby Rivers, my mom. She didn't try to be positive and encouraging. She just was positive and encouraging. She was always young in her enthusiasm and in the center of her heart was hope and cheer. She was wonderful." Little Ruby's innocence and joy honors her name. She too is wonderful. She reminds me that there is hope. She encourages my heart. My mom would be crazy about her!

Happy birthday, Ruby! I am simply glad that you are with us on this day - that is a miraculous blessing - like every first birthday on earth. Stay sweet. Stay full of hope and cheer and, in your lifetime, give - like your namesake.

Constitutionalist and Man of God

This election is pivotal to the future of America.

The next President will very likely have to appoint two Supreme Court justices. Therefore, it is critical that the American voter elect someone who is a strict Constitutionalist as well as a man of God. This election is not about who talks the loudest, but who gets the job done. I read one of Barack Obama's books before his first election, and I knew he was saying exactly what the American people wanted to hear to get elected. I knew he would do what he wanted to do in an effort to destroy America. Now in 2016 it seems like most of the candidates have all their lines down pat, and many are following Obama's game plan! I realize there is no PERFECT candidate, but I want to vote for one who will restore a Constitutional focus to our republic, a man who is fiscally conservative, a man who believes in honoring and obeying the rule of law. As a listener of Fox News, I have just about given up on their "We Report, You Decide" philosophy. Fox has done its best lately to try to influence those who haven't voted by speaking against certain candidates in an attempt to hurt their chances of getting votes while talking other candidates up in an attempt to get people to vote for him. This is just wrong. I hope the American voters will be smart enough to see through this.

I don't think there are any candidates who are PERFECT. However, after studying all the GOP candidates, I have come to the conclusion that I will vote for Ted Cruz. When Cruz was asked why he was running, he said this election was pivotal and it could be our last chance to restore America to the greatness we have known in the past! Vote for America - not because the media has their favorites, but for the candidate who after prayer and thoughtful consideration you make your vote count. God Bless America.

Philip Goodale
Florence

I Know Where He Will Lead

Editor:
I just read the letter by Rodney Osbirm (Feb. 10 - He Got Something Done) Talk about a laughable letter. It would be funny if it weren't so sad.

What you need to do is go to church and get saved. Then you would be able to tell the devil when you see him. Obama called Jesus a liar and he made fun of the Bible. He hates Jesus and Christians. He calls himself a Christian. Boy, talk about fun for the whole family," said First Fridays co-chairwoman Jennifer Smith. "We believe the best way to do that is to bring out the Easter bunny and refresh some of our favorite spring time traditions."

Fridays...

Participants are invited to wear Easter bonnets and march down Court Street with the Easter Bunny and his friends as part of the first Bunny March at 5:30pm. From 6-7pm children can take their turn meeting the Easter Bunny, or they can play Bunny Bingo for a chance to win a gift certificate to a downtown restaurant.

Music will kick off on the Big River Broadcasting stage at 5pm with Leah Rose. Her performance will be followed at 6pm by Lillian Glanton, a local woman who has appeared on the hit television show, "American Idol." Jacob Stiefel will take the stage at 7pm.

First Fridays wouldn't be complete without the dozens of vendors lining Court Street. In March expect to find a wide variety of artisans and crafters, from wood workers to jewelry makers to potters.

"The music and the vendors are what First Fridays has come to be known for," said Belinda Duke, First Fridays co-chairwoman. "They set the tone for the event and help us create memorable experiences for those who participate."

First Fridays is sponsored by Listerhill Credit Union. It is a committee of Downtown Florence Unlimited and takes place the first Friday of every month during March through December. First Fridays is a rain-or-shine event.

News & Tips on the Shoals Market

Rent To Own

Several weeks ago I promised you a column about Contract for Deed vs. Lease with Option to Buy (sometimes referred to as "rent to own"). Before I get started, let me just say that I am not an attorney. I am going to share with you some of my own opinions and what I have learned from my years in the real estate business, but ultimately you must consult your attorney about matters like this.

I only have room this week to look at one side of this equation, so we're going to go with the Seller side first. If you have a property that isn't selling, sometimes one of these options may be a great way to open up avenues to otherwise unavailable buyers. Let's look at both.

The way that a standard Contract for Deed is usually of no advantage to the Seller. This contract gives the Buyer an equitable interest in the property. It can also be an extremely costly and lengthy process to remove the Buyer from the property, should they breach the contract. On the other hand, the standard process for a Lease with Option to Buy is much more to the Seller's advantage. With a Lease with Option, the Seller retains ownership of the property without losing equitable interest. In the event of a breach of contract, the Seller can usually pursue the case without the aid of an attorney, and can pursue it in district rather than circuit court. In cases of breach of contract, it is also less costly and far less time consuming to remove the tenant from the property.

A wise attorney once told me that any contract is only as good as the parties executing it. Whichever option you choose to go with, know that if both parties adhere to the terms of the contract, neither should have any problems. A common misconception is that a Contract for Deed involves a much smaller down payment, when that is actually not always the case. The down payment, along with all of the other terms, is negotiable. If you're a Buyer and all of this seems to be negative information, take heart! We will discuss things from a Buyer's point of view next time. Whether you're a Buyer or a Seller, remember that it is important to consult an attorney before entering into a contract. - mr

Editor:

Donald Trump proudly waves his Bible and states he is a "good Christian" and has "a great relationship with God." The Lord Jesus Christ said, "The tree is known by his fruit" (Mat 12:33 KJV). During his first marriage, Trump lived in open, unashamed adultery with his future second wife, fathering a child out of wedlock. His third wife, the potential "First Lady", has done nude modeling photo shoots. Trump's fortune comes largely from the vices of casinos and gambling. Trump uses the vilest profanity and exhibits child-like outbursts of anger. He supports funding Planned Parenthood and pledges to further LGBT rights if elected. The Bible says, "Adulterers...shall [not] inherit the kingdom of God" (1 Cor 6:9,10). "If we say that we have fellowship with him [God], and walk in darkness, we lie" (1 John 1:6).

Trump has said he is not sure he has ever asked God for forgiveness. He later clarified this, "Why do I have to ask for forgiveness if I'm not making mistakes." "I am good." The Bible says, "If we say we have not sinned, we make him [God] a liar...the truth is not in us" (1 John 1:8-10). "Thou shalt not commit adultery" (Exod 20:14). "An angry...furious man aboundeth in transgression" (Prov 29:22). "Except ye repent, ye shall...perish" (Luke 13:3). Repentance is acknowledging sin to God with sorrow and shame and turning from it. It is not pridefully boasting of numerous adulteries with married women (Trump's book, The Art of the Comeback).

Today America's gods are money, sex, and entertainment. America deserves such a president, but it is a tragic commentary on America's Christian Church that evangelicals and their leaders—such as Robert Jeffrees (First Baptist, Dallas) and Jerry Falwell, Jr. (Liberty University)—back Donald Trump for the highest office in our land.

Please join us for our first Sunday worship in the new building

Sunday, March 6

Sunday: Bible Classes 9am • Worship 10am & 6pm
A covered dish meal will follow AM Worship.

We appreciate so much the support of our community, businesses, sister congregations, and individuals – without solicitation; your kindness in contributions of time, money, material and labor have helped so much in making this day possible. As we all give God the glory, He through your helping hands and generous hearts, has blessed our congregation.

We invite you along with your families, sincerely hoping you will join us in praise and worship of our Lord on Sunday, March 6, for our first time to worship in the new building.

If you did not even know about the new building, know this; it was built for you as much as anyone. So please come, let us, "Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: be thankful unto Him, and bless His name. For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations."
