Timothy Sizer's artisanal talents are renowned throughout Harbor Country and all of Michigan's Great

Southwest, but dining in his popular Timothy's Restaurant along Red Arrow Highway at Union Pier is increasingly like touring a fine art museum at the same time. A palette for your palate, if you will. The recent unveiling of his amazing new "Odyssey of the Sea" hanging glass sculpture at the center of the main dining room at Timothy's is just the newest entry in his colorful palette of art spread throughout the restaurant at 16409 Red Arrow Highway in Union Pier. Odyssey of the Sea is the latest creation by O'Hearn & Fielding Glass, and features 64-square feet of swirling waves and whimsical fish. Timothy says of the new installation, "That was my vision, and they created exactly what I asked them to create. I couldn't be more happy. I wanted it to look like you were kind of looking into a big aquarium or the ocean, and the waves kind of represent the water looking through with the fish in the middle." The new art is not the first of its kind at Timothy's. In fact, six years ago in 2014, Timothy asked Cindy Fielding if she could create some small receipt boards to be used when people charge meals on a credit card. He found out quickly how successful they were as in less than 90-days all of them had disappeared. So, Carolyn O'Hearn crafted several large fish boards for the walls of his restaurant which was at that point still at a nearby Inn. In January of 2017, they were again busy making large scale wall pieces to surround Timothy's main dining room at his new location on Red Arrow. Later that summer, Tim asked the creative duo to develop a chandelier for the center of the main dining room, and it originally featured 52 hanging fish, drawing rave reviews from diners. In the ensuing years, Carolyn & Cindy have treasured Timothy's support of their work, and he was always handing out their business cards to promote them. That simple exchange led to many guests later commissioning works of their own and drew visits to their Fusion Gallery & Studio in Bridgman. The two say, "We are thrilled to have had this opportunity and hope all Tim's guests enjoy this fun sculpture," adding, "We feel honored that our artwork is on display at such a prestigious restaurant." While the installation itself is now complete, Timothy plans more, saying, "I'm going to get a lighting specialist to figure out how to light it properly, so it almost glows." He explains his love for the glass art, noth-

Your Chamber Update

Continuing off of last weeks article, there are more local organizations that are continuing to adjust how they operate as COVID cases continue to rise. While we can argue that all businesses have been impacted in some way, there are a few that were faced with the task of fully reinventing how they operate. One of those such organizations is The Mendel Center at Lake Michigan College. At the very beginning of all of this, there were a whopping 50 upcoming events that The Mendel Center was forced to cancel or postpone, and that number has continued to grow exponentially.

When faced with the “what do we do now” question, the staff, led by Executive Director Mike Nadolski, transitioned to an online platform to allow for national, regional, and local talent to continue being showcased in Southwest Michigan. In April, Mike and Grace Kelmer, Director of Mendel Center Mainstage, launched Remotely Interested: Live to Your Living Room, as series which was broadcasted over Facebook. Since then, they’ve launched the Mendel Center Connections, which is a fully online series that connects and builds on current relationships that the Mendel Center has with those in the community, live stream and micro weddings packages for those who still want to get married at The Mendel, as well as this summer’s successful Drive-in Live! Concert Series. Their plan for the fall is already underway, which includes an exclusive Mendel Center only event that brings some of the biggest names on Broadway to your home with the Broadway Talkback Series & BroadwayHD.

While traditional Broadway shows and performance venues continue to be dark due to on-going COVID cases and the latest mandates, this doesn’t stop audiences from continuing to see highly-regarded Broadway plays and musicals. For $25 you can get access to the 5 remaining Talkback Series events, plus you get a 3-month subscription to BroadwayHD which has over 300 Broadway performances that you can watch. The Talkback Series provides time for you to join in on a watch party of the featured Broadway performance, then connects you to the talkback session which gives you unprecedented access to award-winning Broadway directors, writers, choreographers, and actors in a 40-minute live Zoom talk with the last 20-minutes reserved as a Q&A session where YOU ask the questions!

Upcoming Broadway Talkback Series includes shows that are for more mature audiences as well as family friendly performances that everyone can enjoy, such as:

Saturday, November 7th: The King and I
Sunday, November 15th: The Wind in the Willows

Saturday, November 21st: Into the Woods
Sunday, December 6th: Peter Pan
Saturday, December 12th: Kinky Boots

To purchase tickets, get additional details on the series, and to see upcoming 2021 events visit themendelcenter.com/events. In the meantime, grab your comfy pj’s, some snacks, and prepared to be transported to Broadway all from the comfort of your couch.

Dave Ramsey

Refinance in Baby Step 2?

Dear Dave,

My husband and I are on Baby Step 2, and we've paid off about $30,000 in consumer debt since March. We were wondering if we should refinance our mortgage. Our current rate is 4.875%, with 28 years remaining on the loan. We found a 15-year refinance at 2.5%, which would raise our monthly payments about $200, but we can handle that. We have $150,000 in equity in our home and about $207,000 left on the loan. What do you think we should do?

Raye

Dear Raye,

You two have done a great job this year! I'm so proud of what you've accomplished and that you're looking to the future.

Baby Step 2 wouldn't be affected, except that your monthly mortgage payment will go up a little. I wouldn't pay the refinance costs out of pocket, though. I'd roll them into the loan. You'd be saving more than 2% by locking in this crazy-low interest rate, and you're knocking the whole thing down to a 15-year loan. I love all that. It's definitely worth the extra $200 a month to make it happen.

Think about it this way. You're going to be saving more than $4,000 a year with the interest rate reduction. You're not going to see it in cash flow because of the $200 increase in monthly payments, but over the scope of the loan, you're going to be charged between $4,000 and $4,500 less per year for interest. All that money is going toward paying back the closing costs and reducing the principal built into the move from 28 years to 15 years.

Yes, you should do this!

-Dave

Dave Says Which comes first?

Dear Dave,

I just saved up my $1,000 beginner emergency fund, and I'm looking at paying off my car and credit card debt - a total of $3,400 - by the end of January. Before I started your plan, I took out a $7,500 student loan to pay for my fall and spring semesters. I still have a year of school left, which will cost about $10,000. Should I save up the money for my final year before attacking my student loan debt, so I don't have to take out another one, or go ahead and begin paying it off?

Emma

Dear Emma,

Well, it doesn't make much sense to pay off the current student loan, then turn around and take out another one. Your first goal - after you get the credit cards and car paid off - should be saving cash to finish school. Once you've done that, start paying off the student loan.

Long story short, you've got to stop borrowing money. The idea of saving up to pay for things should be the default setting in your brain, Emma. Otherwise, you're going to spend the rest of your life with car payments and other debt hanging around your neck. That's not being responsible with your money, and it will keep you from saving for stuff that matters and becoming wealthy.

Stop. Borrowing. Money. I hope I haven't been unclear.

- Run generator through a test cycle and get it tuned up.

DonA Couple of Sure Vets*Stuart

I've been thinking about how many Veterans Days my dad observed as a veteran. Technically, since November 11 became officially named "Veterans Day" in June, 1954, it would be 56 days. But weren't there thousands of ordinary days that he, not to mention my mom, siblings, and me, celebrated in some little way that he was simply here among us? I guess I don't really know the answer, but I do know that being in the limelight of this annual column always made him feel a little embarrassed.

When I think of Veteran's Day, I mentally snap to 'ten-HUT for my mom and dad.

They're vets of "The Big One," World War II. My dad had enlisted in the summer of 1941, so he was already in uniform when America got involved, and he stayed in it throughout. (Well, he changed into clean uniforms once in while. I hope.)

While my dad was cultivating a taste for army food, my mom helped in all the ways that a teenage schoolgirl could. She assisted my grandpa with his duties as a block warden, finished her compulsory education, conserved and rationed. And prayed.

Dad spent almost two years on the island of New Caledonia in the South Pacific. A couple years ago, I finally memorized the dates that he was overseas. He reached New Caledonia on April 21, 1942, the day after his 20th birthday. I figure the other end of the equation is one of the most important days of my life, even though it was 4,860 days before I was born: he headed home – all in one piece – on April 1, 1944.

Something tells me that on the voyage home, he didn't foresee a future that would bring him a degree from Wabash College (on the GI Bill), marriage to a DePauw University co-ed (58 years and counting), and long careers for both of them in elementary and high-school education - including their own "continuing education" at the hands of their five brilliant children.

I come from a family of readers, and at one time my parents owned scores of books about WWII. I was very fond of one of them when I was a kid. It's called "Up Front." It's a book of wartime cartoons by a guy named Bill Mauldin, who honored the fortitude of ordinary GI's through two foot soldiers named "Willie and Joe."

Mauldin's drawings of Willie and Joe are wonderful - a couple of regular guys always balancing their weariness against their determination. They always need a shave, and a change of uniform. (Willie and Joe won a Pulitzer Prize for Mauldin, but I once read that General George Patton just HATED the way they looked.)

As a kid, I'd draw my own versions of Willie and Joe. They were about what you'd expect from a 10-year old, although I did do a pretty nice job with their stubbly whiskers. Of course, I could observe and touch the occasionally unshaven face of a real-live vet.

Lucky me.

PS - Thanks dad (we miss you), thanks mom, and thanks to every vet of the front lines or the home front.

PastorRosenbaum*Continuing Debt

*Let no debt remain outstanding, except the continuing debt to love one another.
Romans 13:8*

It's World War II. It's nighttime. A paratrooper is about to jump out of a plane. Just before he does, he looks down from the plane's open door. He sees that he is about to jump into an air space that is alive with explosions, bullets, and flak. "Lord," he prays, "if you get me through this night, I'll never have a bad day again."

The Lord got him through that night. And, as the old veteran loved to say for the rest of his life, "I've never had a bad day again."

Think about that. So profound was the man's gratitude for the Lord's deliverance from death, that for the rest of his life he happily obligated himself to look upon the remainder of his days as all good days—every single one.

It's the same kind of grateful spirit that the good news of Jesus works within Christians. In Romans chapter 13, Paul speaks of what he calls, "the continuing debt to love one another."

This turn of phrase describes something unique. This is not a debt in the sense that I need to pay something off to God before I get something good in return. Jesus has already paid the debt of my sin in full. On my behalf, he has already lived a life of perfect love. In my place, he has already carried away the guilt of my every sin at the cross. And now, through faith in my risen Savior, I live. I stand forgiven. I am at peace. Heaven awaits.

In light of all this, something wonderful happens. The more this good news sinks in, the greater the gratitude grows. As it does, the Christian soul searches for some way, any way, to show thankfulness to Jesus. And one immediate way to do it is to demonstrate love toward others.

And so there it is. Just as a grateful survivor of war happily obligated himself never to have a bad day again, Jesus' free gift of forgiveness empowers you and me to obligate ourselves in love to others. We do it not to get something, but to thank God for what we already have.

Prayer: Lord Jesus, thank you. Give me opportunities to thank you more every day. Amen.

ing, "I always loved the Dale Chihuly piece at the Krasl, and I could never afford to do anything like that, but that was my vision, something like that, and it will truly create a wow factor when you walk in the door to Timothy's and even at a sideways glance you'll see it out of the corner of your eye without even really looking." Timothy says of the artists, "They spent the better part of a year doing it, and they are supremely organized with their studio in Bridgman and their home studio in St. Joe where they create things like this, and each piece is individually hand-crafted. They cut it, they put it into the kiln, and then bring it here for installation, and they did a truly wonderful job." Odyssey of the Sea is not alone in the house at Timothy's when it comes to regional excellence in art. While that centerpiece is well over 400 individual pieces, there is also another major art piece in the main dining room that was obtained during the Krasl Art Fair on the Bluff, and Tim says, "We have some glass pieces designed by an artist who was at the Art Fair who does all the custom-made pieces of China for the Wrigley family in Chicago and their homes all over the world." In the bar there is a series of cow art pieces created by Joe Hindley from Sawyer. Hindley was born in 1949 in Neptune, New Jersey, and grew up on the Jersey Shore. He attended the Newark School of Fine and Industrial Art graduating in 1970. Drafted into the army after college in 1970, he was trained and worked as a photographer when not engaged to paint historical murals at Fort Riley in Kansas. During his service he was also selected to the Combat Artist Team, a select group of four artists working for the Department of Military History in Washington D.C., and his work from that program hangs in the Pentagon and earned him a distinguished service medal. Hindley moved to Chicago in 1980 and had considerable success with a series of works in the Chicago Imagist style, before moving to Sawyer. Of Hindley, Timothy says, "I love his cows." Roger Harvey from New Buffalo is showcased in the back dining room and can be seen before venturing out onto the patio. Timothy says, "He does barns and trees and lots of color. I like art that pops with color." Roger Harvey is a painter of Midwestern scenes of farms, dunes, woodlands and Lake Michigan. Large in scale and colorful in detail the paintings range from beautiful realism to daring abstracts, often within the same painting. Harvey has his own gallery at 33 N. Barton in New Buffalo. Pure Michigan describes his work by saying, "His paintings employ a bold palate with a dynamic play of light and shadow. As Harbor Country's pre-eminent colorist, Roger creates works that have been described as 'vibrant, joyful, elegant portrayals of nature, certain to stir even the most urban soul.'" As Timothy proudly declares, "We don't just slap anything on the walls, we actively watch out for things that fit our motif and blend well with the rest of the collection. We even routinely change the color of the glow of the in-wall fireplace in the main dining room to keep things fresh." O'Hearn & Fielding give Timothy great props for his support of the arts, saying, "His support of local arts organizations spans throughout all of Berrien County. The arts community is so lucky to have him." While Odyssey of the Sea largely represents Timothy's vision, he readily gives over accolades for the majority of the Timothy's Restaurant vibe to his wife, saying, "I have to give my wife Amy most of the credit for the décor. There are a few of my ideas here, but she's done a spectacular job. We started out with a fireplace in one room and now we have several key fireplaces including a ski-lodge style one in the front room bar area, and we even have two fireplaces outside. We're continuing to do great things. If you remember Pee Wee's Playhouse, we're having two similar very colorful chairs made that will be delivered soon for the front entry way. Multiple colors to set the stage for your visit." While the art in the house makes for an exciting, colorful and even educational visit, Timothy readily declares, "Obviously, the food is first and foremost, and I think we do a good job of that, but this is such a cool building with all of the windows and all the great things that the Miller's did years ago when they first established a dining opportunity here. We just keep adding to it, and it's easy to do. It's not like it's rocket science or anything, we just want people to continually come and join us to find out what else is new and happening all the time." He certainly makes it easy to enjoy on all counts as a first-class destination for both culinary and cultural excellence on the shores of Lake Michigan.

The meteoric rise of Molino Tortilleria continues unabated...even in a pandemic. The Sawyer-based maker of Heirloom Mexican Corn Tortillas, produced the way the ancestors made them, can now have them delivered right to your door anywhere in the United States. They literally debuted on the local food scene last summer selling tortillas and Mexican inspired pastries from their booth at the downtown St. Joseph Farmers Market, but Molino Tortilleria quickly became a market favorite and began expanding their reach by working with local restaurants and chefs to showcase their unique products. Aaron & Christie Harris, the husband and wife team behind Molino, began their journey as people just trying to make a good taco. Little did they know what would be ahead of them. Aaron says, "We never had any intention of starting a business, we just wanted to make good tacos for ourselves." When tortilla options where they lived fell short, the couple took it upon themselves to try their hand at making them from scratch. As Aaron says, "We just kind of got hooked on the process when we dug into what it took to create our own corn tortillas." Molino Tortilleria insists they are not reinventing the wheel or blazing a trail, it's quite the opposite actually. The process they use to cook the corn and create masa, the corn dough used to make tortillas, is called Nixtamalization, and evidence of its use in Mesoamerican cultures can be traced back thousands of years— and for good reason. Nixtamalized corn has many health benefits when compared to untreated corn. It removes toxins, imparts calcium, activates amino acids, and vitamin B3 while also freeing trapped niacin found naturally in the corn, allowing the body to absorb the nutrients more readily. The process has remained almost completely unchanged. In fact, Aaron says, "We're just going back to the way it's always been done, simple ingredients, stone-ground, and made fresh." Before the rise of commercially processed corn flour, that is how tortillas were made. Dried corn cooked in lime-treated water, allowed to soak overnight, washed, and ground in a mill using real volcanic stone to create fresh masa. Opening its doors in February of 2020 Molino has had to adapt almost from the very beginning to navigate operating a new business during COVID-19 lockdowns. Aaron notes, "As a brand new business, we knew we were going to have to adapt quickly to stay afloat but we were able to get creative and find ways to make ourselves useful to our customers during these strange times," and adds, "In a way, the pandemic and restrictions forced us to think outside the box. We had always intended to mostly supply restaurants but when many of those clients slowed at the beginning of COVID we turned our attention to our retail customers and tried to find ways we could serve them and remain relevant." Molino began experimenting with Do-It-Yourself taco kits, grocery delivery and even started a small weekend Mexican street food menu available for carryout. After navigating through the summer Molino has changed quite a bit, but they feel that they are better for it. One of the biggest changes has been the addition of Molino's online marketplace which can be found here: www.molinomarket.com/. Molino's co-founder Christie Harris has thoughtfully curated an online marketplace to complement their core offerings of tortillas, masa & pan dulce by sourcing unique ingredients for Mexican cuisine like spices, dried chiles & salsas as well other locally made goods like artisan chocolate and sauces. What started off as just a one-page ordering site for their products has transformed into a beautiful online marketplace that customers have really come to enjoy shopping weekly. Until now Molino has only offered curbside pick up to their local customers, but has now added a shipping program to deliver tortillas, pan dulce, and other market goods right to customer's front doors. Christie says, "We're really excited to begin shipping," and adds, "Our business is located in a sort of vacation town so over the summer we had many out-of-state customers discover us and have asked us when they get back home if we'll ship them products." The answer is: Yes! Molino will now ship weekly to customers all over the U.S. and they have garnered a lot of interest already, as Aaron says, "This is really going to help us spread awareness about the company and serve a lot of people who sadly don't have access to quality tortillas." You can view their entire list of offerings including fresh-made tortillas now available for shipping at www.MolinoMarket.com.

Mosaic CCDA is hosting a community coat drive throughout the month of November. Anyone willing to help out is encouraged to drop off coats, hats, and gloves at one of their participating locations including Wanderlust Outfitters in downtown St. Joseph and Urban Garage Market on Main Street in downtown Benton Harbor, among others. You can also drop them off at the Mosaic Resale facility in downtown Benton Harbor during regular store hours. They sincerely appreciate everyone's help.

The St. Joe Lions Club has issued a note of thanks to everyone in the community for their generous support of the club's White Cane Drive that the club conducted during the month of October. Pandemic restrictions caused them to cancel their primary fundraiser, the Holiday Arts and Craft Show normally held in November, causing the club to explore alternatives in fund raising. The generous people of the community contributed over $6,200 to the drive, allowing the club to continue their service activities in the community. Contributions can still be sent to the St. Joseph Lions Club, PO Box 352, St. Joseph, MI 49084, or you may contribute through the club's White Cane Go Fund Me account at www.sites.google.com/site/sjlions/.

That's it for this week, folks. Have a great week, and we'll see you Saturday right here in MailMax!
