A TANGLED HOLIDAY INSPIRATION

The Ward Ball. It's story is about a dash of Holiday Inspiration given to us by our old Neighbor Chuck Ward, some of you may have known him. He gifted us this Ball of lights during the Holidays but the inspiration given to us by this gentle man started way before the Ball was given to us. It started in 1993 when we purchased our home on West Park Street, across the road from his. I grew up on this street about 10 houses down the road and lived there for nearly 18 years before going to college. So my Adult Self became the recipient of Mr. Ward's inspiration when we became the owners of our Diamond In The Ruff. Truth be told I was not enthusiastic about purchasing a house on the same street I grew up on, especially a major fix me upper. But my Husband's heart was there the moment we looked at it, so I gave in. We worked tirelessly remodeling and doing our best to make this old house, buried in the bushes and trees a home. Many times Mr. Ward walked over, just for a moment so as not to interrupt, to say "You guys are doing a nice job, it's looking good". High praise to us and it inspired us to forge on. During planting season we ripped out bushes and did a major yard overhaul. Mr. Ward came over and offered up sections of flowering plants and bushes that he had in his yard. He was one heck of a gardener and we always admired his yard. So we were grateful for his generosity and gladly accepted. It inspired us to forge on. He became great pals with my Cat who he gladly let into his home to visit once in a while. A good man to not only the two legged but the four legged as well. The Holidays were especially fun to watch from across the street as he staked up trees to string lights on and hung lights on his home as well. It inspired us to make our home special for others as well. Many a time Santa enlisted the help of my Husband to put on the Santa Suit and venture across the street to Ho-Ho It Up with Mr. Ward's grandchildren. But the way we all knew it was truly Christmas Eve was when Mr. Ward carefully began to line the edge of his sidewalk with paper bags and light a candle in each one. They illuminated the way for his family to come together. It inspired us to do the same. His last Christmas he came to us with a tangled mess of Christmas lights. He thought we could use them. We took one look at that mess of lights and decided we were not up to the task of untangling them and just named it "The Ward Ball". Each Christmas we hang that Ball on our porch and it continues to inspire us and remind us of the Magic of the Holiday Season. Mr. Ward passed away many years ago but he taught us about generosity and the power of a kind word or gesture. The truest of Holiday gifts and blessing. This Holiday give the gift of inspiration and be someone's Mr. Ward. It truly can make a difference is someone's life.

THE LAW AND YOU
 BY NATHAN D. PACE
 ATTORNEY AT LAW

ALTERNATIVE TO A MARRIAGE LICENSE
 Living together before marriage has become the norm over the last few decades, and some couples even choose to purchase property together before getting married. These couples may want to consider creating and signing a "living together property agreement" to establish agreements such as how much each person pays towards mortgages, car payments, utilities, and other expenses. This can offer protection if the relationship ends, but it can also alleviate stress and arguments about money and property during the partnership because it is all spelled out clearly in the document. This type of agreement should be limited to financial issues as a court is less likely to enforce a document that includes personal issues like sex or household chores.

Unlike married couples, the property rights for unmarried couples are not afforded the same legal protections. It is in each person's best interest to write out a property agreement that spells out who owns what and how the property will be distributed should the couple separate. Without an agreement, you could face expensive and time consuming legal battles, defending your property rights. To schedule a free consultation, please call the Law Office of MACK & PACE at (585)798-1000. We emphasize family law, estate planning, criminal law, and business law.

Travel Thoughts By Kim

Let's go on an adventure together...across the big pond!

I can't believe I've been writing these articles once-twice a month for a year, now! When I was first approached about doing them beginning in January, I was sure I'd run out of things to write about pretty quickly. But, here I am in my twelfth month and I am just as excited about what I might write about next as I was that first month.

I'd like to finish off 2020 with an adventure that was really special to me in many ways. I've said many times - I don't have "favorite" adventures or places or experiences because I find something to love and to say "this is the best thing ever" everywhere I go. But, I can honestly say this one was pretty darned special. So, let me take you across the pond as I write about my 2019 Transatlantic Cruise.

I've always wanted to sail across the Atlantic Ocean...or even the Pacific. Other big items on my Bucket List were visiting Ireland and seeing where it all started for the Beatles. So, when I found a great deal on a cruise that checked all three items off my list, I jumped at it! The cruise sailed from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, across the ocean with stops in the Azores, Cork Ireland, Liverpool England, and ended in Dublin Ireland, taking fifteen days.

I had a lot of friends ask me what I would do to keep from being bored trapped on a boat for seven days. First - I love being on the water, so it was never a question of whether or not it would bother me to be out in the middle of the ocean for so long. But, the real answer to their question was - everything or nothing at all! You have to remember that a cruise ship is a floating resort with tons of activities and entertainment and food going on all day and night - if you can't find something to keep yourself occupied, you're not looking. Also, the beauty of being on a cruise ship is the ability to just do nothing at all and sit back and enjoy the sun, read a book, take a nap...whatever. I loved that I had seven days to take full advantage of all the ship had to offer. Usually, there are only one or two full "sea days" on a cruise, so that really was a luxury, this time.

My favorite way to kill the time while sailing for seven days across the ocean

This transatlantic cruise was on the Celebrity Reflection April 22 - May 7, 2019. The weather was amazing and the ocean was smooth. Once we got further north in our cruise, it did get chilly, but it was still great weather for the trip. It took seven days to sail across the ocean and then we spent another week in ports before flying back home from Dublin through Lisbon and JFK in NYC.

First stop was two days in Ponta Delgada, Azores off the coast of Portugal, where I went whale watching, enjoyed a Portuguese dinner and traditional folk song/dance show at a local venue, and took a bus tour around the island that included a botanical garden, a pineapple plantation, and twin crater lakes inside an inactive volcano. It was fantastic. The Azores are so beautiful and peaceful.

Then, we spent another two days at sea before stopping in Cork, Ireland. What a thrill! It was even more beautiful than I ever imagined it to be. We spent two days there - the first day I took a tour of County Cork and the Tipperary areas. I saw a lot of the stunning country side, several castles, and had a wonderful lunch that included a pint of Guinness with our meal. The second day, I went to Blarney Village. We were docked at Cobh, which was the last port of the Titanic before it began its journey to America. I loved Cork / Cobh - it was simply incredible, rich in history, and exactly what you think of when you imagine Ireland.

Our next stop was the highlight of the trip, for me - Liverpool, England. It was very emotional for me to visit all the places that told the story of the Beatles - Penny Lane, Strawberry Fields, The Cavern Club, Mathew Street, the childhood homes of John and Paul, and so much more. I still want to go to London, someday, and see even more of their story.

That's me standing by one of several signs around the Penny Lane district in Liverpool, England. The cruise ended in Dublin. I had a reservation at the lovely Castle Hotel so that I could spend another day exploring Dublin and see as much of that city as I could. I took a bus tour and then explored on my own a bit. I saw a lot of wonderful historic sites, including St. Patrick's Cathedral that dates back to 890 AD - WOW! I would so love to go back to Ireland and see more of the country. Cork and Dublin were so different and I'm curious as to how the rest of the country compares.

I left for home the next day, flying from Dublin to Lisbon to JFK to Buffalo. It was a long trip home and I was so tired and happy to be home. But, it was so worth it for the trip of a lifetime. I really want to do another Transatlantic Cruise and maybe even a Transpacific Cruise. I thought it would be a once-in-a-lifetime thing, but I enjoyed it so much I would do it, again, in a heartbeat if I got the right deal for the right combination of stops.

Cobh, Ireland - memorial statue to Annie Moore. Annie was just 15 when she got on a ship in Cobh to travel to America with her two younger brothers in 1892 and became the very first person to be processed through Ellis Island. This photo shows her memorial with our modern cruise ship behind her.

College majors that can lead to higher earnings

Choosing a college major is an important decision that many students delay making until their sophomore or even junior years. Only after taking a few courses and uncovering one's interests do some college students figure out what they want to do with their lives.

While men often lean toward majors like engineering and computer science that have traditionally been linked to high earnings, women have historically gravitated to lower-paying specialties like education and social sciences. But in recent years a shift has occurred, and more women have begun to choose majors associated with higher post-graduate salaries.

- Architecture
- Pharmaceutical sciences
- Information sciences
- Chemical engineering
- Computer science
- Electrical engineering
- Mechanical engineering
- Computer engineering
- Business economics
- Civil engineering
- Sports management

Despite these findings, the college resource CollegeFactual and the U.S. Department of Education says that women remain likely to pursue education, design and applied arts, health services, and social work as career options.

Female students unsure of which major they want to pursue can take career assessments to help narrow down their options. Working with mentors or engaging in internships also can present a first-hand idea of high-paying career paths. ■
