Moody on The Market

Moody

A dream that was launched a year ago over the Valentine's Day holiday is taking shape in the community of New Buffalo and when Memorial Day rolls around, the dream will achieve the crowning moment for Sidnee Bancroft of Stevensville. She's drawing closer by the day to the opening of The Golden Rule Jewelry & Boutique on Whittaker Street in that Harbor Country community. Let's let Sidnee tell the story: "It was Valentine's Day weekend of last year. Drew, my husband, went fishing so I decided to just take myself out to dinner. It was the day after Valentine's Day and I went to Grand Mere and sat at the bar and I ended up sitting next to one of Drew's best friend's parents. They were telling me how they had been in New Buffalo all day and they kept telling me about this cute little store that was for sale. Then we all just kind of realized what a good spot it would be for me to establish my shop, so, I went and checked it out a few days later and then we decided to go for it. But, then COVID came along like two weeks later which kind of made us wonder if we should do this. It took a while to solidify everything, but we thought it was still a good choice despite the circumstances so the rest is history." That history is developing rapidly as the perfect little home for the boutique continues to take shape through the renovation process to showcase Sidnee's custom jewelry alongside a few other unique, custom made items from other local artists. The Golden Rule Jewelry & Boutique will be anchored at 24 North Whittaker Street in New Buffalo, as Sidnee says, "It's a pretty small little shop, but it's the perfect size for what I'm trying to do and it'll have mostly my jewelry, but we'll also have some ceramics from my friend Noelle Malevitis Ringer and some macrame from her sister Carlee and then we'll also have some woodworking creations from our friend Mike Bartels, who will have cutting boards and coasters in the shop and Noelle does vases but she's also working on large dining sets, which I think will be really awesome." Sidnee brings a strong pedigree to her trade. She graduated in May of 2019 from the Kendall College of Art & Design in Grand Rapids at the very top of her class, having earned several distinguished awards for her work. She garnered a scholarship from the Women's

Your Community Update

A month and a half into the new year and many businesses and communities are beginning to regain the forward momentum from pre-COVID days. While the recovery is slow, we are seeing positive numbers emerge, inquiries about new businesses that would like to open in our communities, and places hiring new employees. One such community has been Bridgman, partly due to already being poised to be the next for growth prior to COVID, but also because of the people who live and work there. Today I would like to share a few of the people, places, and things that make-up this unique lakeside community in hopes that you will go there to explore, shop, and fall in love, like myself and many others have.

Small Town Weddings has officially expanded to the storefront next to Small Town Grounds by the train tracks on Lake Street. While owner Cheri Heward and her team are still putting the finishing touches on the new space, such as adding a potting bar, you can already find beautiful floral arrangements, hilarious greeting cards for all occasions, and a selection of gifts to go with your flowers.

On the other side of the train tracks, you will find dining, drinking, and shopping options. Fans of Lazy Ballerina Winery in St Joe can now visit the Bridgman Tasting Room on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday to sip, shop, and enjoy. I recommend their Weko Beach White, not only is it perfect on a summer day, but it helps transport you to the warmth that awaits us in a few months. Next door to Lazy Ballerina Winery, you'll find The Sandpiper and Hoof-to-Hanger Fiber Mill. Once inside The Sandpiper, you'll find gifts for yourself and others and a rainbow-colored assortment of yarn, including that of Hoof-to-Hanger which is dyed and spun on-site!

If you have always wanted to splurge on a hand knotted Tibetan rug, Accents at Himalaya Textiles has you covered! Inside you'll not only find these beautiful pieces of work, but you'll also discover Pashmina shawls, jewelry and other treasures for yourself, a friend, or loved one.

While currently closed due to restrictions on restaurant capacities, Lake Street Eats has reassured us that they will be back with something exciting in the works. They haven't announced what it is yet, but knowing the crew behind LSE, I have a feeling it will be a fantastic addition to Bridgman. A few doors down at Tapistry Brewing the official card game of Michigan, Euchre, takes places on Thursday nights with half off apps and food specials for those playing. You can enjoy food, drinks, games, and more inside their tap room or beer garden – don't worry, it's heated!

If you happen to be a fan of sour farmhouse ales, Transient Artisan Ales is your place! In 2019 they began the process of expanding and growing and have a lot of amazing plans for 2021! Speaking of 2021, they still have a limited number of memberships available for the year!

One of my personal favorite outdoor spaces in Bridgman happens to be at Haymarket Brewery & Taproom on Red Arrow Highway. Not only is it a popular destination in the summer, but Mike, John, Pete, and the entire Haymarket team have it set up to be a wonderful winter cabin fever escape!

Finally, we wrap up our brief tour with Lake Side Fit. In addition to being a 24-hour gym, they also offer a wide variety of group classes and a wellness center with red light therapy, full spectrum infrared sauna, massage therapy, and tanning.

While I'd love to share a little bit about every businesses and organization in Bridgman, I will put the ball in your court to not just take my word for it but go explore and experience it on your own. Don't forget many of these places are also part of the Buy Local Bridgman Community Gift Card Program. You can learn more and purchase these e-gift cards at our website smrchamber.com/bridgman.

Have questions, or need recommendations? Reach out to me at sspoonholtz@smrchamber.com or 269-932-4040. I look forward to seeing and connecting with you soon!

Time for a Choc Talk

Stuart

Seventy-eight million, nine hundred thousand. Can you believe that many links came back when I Googled the phrase "I hate chocolate"? 78,900,000?!

This seemed unbelievable, so I investigated further, and came upon these passionate expressions of choco-hate:

"I hate chocolate. I don't like the taste, the smell, or the texture. I'll eat a Snickers bar, or some other candy bars with chocolate in them. I'll also eat M&M's if they have peanuts in them. I like those!"

"I hate chocolate. But I love chocolate chip cookies, brownies, and chocolate milk."

"I hate chocolate. It's just that when you eat some that's really good, it's a real bummer when there's no more and your mouth is saying 'Please please I need more!'"

See what I mean by unbelievable?! These people DON'T hate chocolate. They like-it, love-it, crave-it. As most everyone does this time of year, when St. Valentine's Day inspires people to exchange chocolate boxes the size of freight cars. Nationwide, chocolate is the second most popular gift of the holiday, just after lovingly hand-crafted scrapbooks of my columns.

Since we're all time-warped these days, it's possible that you, like me, sort of slightly overlooked Valentine's Day, and are frantically looking for just the right chocolate to bail yourself out. If so, here are some things to keep in mind:

Chocolate Science and Arts:

A study from the "Journal of Proteome Research" says chocoholics have different gut bacteria than people who don't crave chocolate. I'd explain more about this, but it requires words like "plasma metabolic profiles," "urine samples" and "intestinal flora," and I don't want to be blamed if those things come to mind when you munch your chocolate.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology has a student club called The Laboratory of Chocolate Science, which aims to "spread the appreciation of chocolate all over campus." They screen movies with chocolate themes ("Psycho" is a big favorite - in that famous shower scene, the yummy Janet Leigh is covered in fake blood made of chocolate), hold lectures, and host a chocolate tasting around Valentine's Day. In accordance with MIT regulations, the club promises on its website to "not discriminate based on any characteristic, including a preference for dark, milk, or white chocolate."

Chocolate Events:

• At the annual Chocolate Lovers Festival in Fairfax, Virginia, the most popular event is the Taste of Chocolate. Admission is free, but every taste will cost you a $1-apiece exchange medium called a "POG," which stands for "Please!!! One Godiva!!!"

Chocolate History:

Here's my Mother Goose-ian version of how the Peter Paul candy company was founded:

Peter Paul Halajian and Calvin K. Kazanjian Joined Calvin's brother Harry and two Jakes: Hagop- and Choulj- ian.

But then their friend George Shamlan Realized none of them knew candyin'.

So they hired Harry Tatigian And his "Mounds" made them Richie Rich-ian!

Chocolate Gifts:

If you're in your sweetie's doghouse, try giving a Chocopologie. It's but a mere trifle of creamy ganache with truffle oil. Oh, and it costs $250. Which equates to $2,600 per pound. Amazingly, you can buy it with only one POG (Pot of Gold).

Incidentally, Chocopologies are sinfully good, which they have to be to overshadow the maker's name: "Knipschildt," which is Danish for "intestinal flora."

Jewelry Association and several merit-based scholarships for her grades, but the pinnacle for her personally came in her senior year at Kendall when she was awarded a $15,000 fellowship from the Windgate-Lamar Fellowship for her specialization in Jewelry & Metalsmithing. She says that her instructor informed her not only is that fellowship one of the most prestigious awards granted to a college-level art student, she is only the second Kendall student in history to win that high honor. Out of 200 student nominations nationwide, Sidnee was one of just 10 selected for the fellowship. I asked Sidnee to talk a little bit about the type of jewelry she is personally crafting. She tells us, "Right now it's mainly sterling silver and I use a lot of colorful stones. I don't really use diamonds yet, although I want to in the future but I use a lot of really vibrant, colorful stones." She adds that while she likes to use cut stones, she also likes to use stones that are just in their raw natural form. She says, "The essential style I intend to create is a blend between traditional elegance and modern design and aesthetic," and adds, "I always think of my work as being quite Bohemian and experimental, yet still very sophisticated." Sidnee describes many of her creations as "pretty simple in design," but she also employs a technique called "granulation," wherein you make tiny little balls of silver and then solder those in place, and says, "I'd say that's probably one of my more popular design styles." In fact, she did a workshop with the famous jeweler, Kent Raible in Washington last summer who specializes in 18 karat gold granulation. She says, "One day that's where I'd like to be, but for now, I'm just practicing with silver and getting that skillset dialed in for when I do invest in the fancier models." Sidnee came up with the idea of establishing her own shop when she first graduated, but admits, "I never thought that I'd have a store this soon. I've been envisioning this for a long time but didn't think it would happen quite as fast as it did so that's all really exciting, but also, very unexpected especially in the middle of a pandemic." She was born in Georgia and then her family relocated to Colorado when she was in the third grade and that's where she grew up. That's also where she met the man who would become her husband, Drew Bancroft. She moved to Michigan's Great Southwest in January of 2014, and she and Drew were married in July of 2019. Sidnee's mother-in-law, Stevensville's Joy Bancroft of Red Coach Donuts fame, says, "She has been working in her home studio, making a variety of custom rings, earrings, pendants as well as taking custom orders for several individuals," and the entire family is excited for her Grand Opening on May 28th in New Buffalo. Formal operating hours for The Golden Rule Jewelry & Boutique will be established as opening day approaches, but Sidnee plans to close on Mondays and Tuesdays to allow for her jewelry-making to be created uninterrupted, and she will likely be open on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays from around 10am until somewhere between 6 and 8pm. She has consulted with other boutique owners in the community and will likely follow their leads based on the time of year, and volume of traffic

the shop sees. So, just one year removed from the exciting decision to launch her new venture, the excitement is palpable as Memorial Day weekend draws closer with every passing day. In the meantime, you can see more of Sidnee's work at her website and on Facebook: www.thegoldenrulejewelry.bigcartel.com/ & <https://tinyurl.com/ldvgqaaq>

Kinexus Group executives in Benton Harbor recently sounded the alarm over the deeply concerning recent trend in the size of the labor force in Southwest Michigan which they say has now reached the lowest level in the past 20 years since they began tracking the data. Kinexus Vice President of Public Relations & Government Affairs Al Pscholka says that while the Tri-County area of Berrien, Cass and Van Buren Counties "held our own" over the first nine months of the pandemic, despite wildly swinging unemployment rates that ranged to more than 20-percent and under 5-percent, the most recent quarter has brought startling news of a loss of 4,200 people from the market's labor force. That was in December alone. Overall, year-over-year, the labor market has lost 6,000 people and now stands at 125,000 workers. That's the lowest labor market workforce in the region in 20 years and stands in sharp contrast to when it was as high as 138,000 workers. While the manufacturing sector has actually managed to grow year over year, health care continues to slip, agribusiness is down about 5-percent, and the hospitality & leisure sector has experienced a pronounced 37-percent decline driven by extended state mandated shutdowns and other restrictions on indoor dining and the like. Kinexus Chief Operating Officer Jake Gustafson says, "We use a lot of data and we collect and process that data as we try to be purposeful" in translating that data. While the current unemployment rate has bounced up about half a percent to 5.2-percent in December from November, Michigan stands at 7.3-percent and the national rate is at 6.7-percent. On the surface those numbers look okay, but it's the huge drops in the labor force that are keeping the Kinexus Group execs up at night. On a tactical level, the rapid decline in the labor force only exacerbates what Pscholka routinely refers to as The Big Three issues facing the region every day: We're getting smaller, as population declines... We're getting older, as the population continues to age... We're being less educated, with fewer college degrees or technical training. Gustafson says, "It's not just pandemic-driven change, but a startling change that has sparked a demographic shift that is not good for the region on multiple fronts." Kinexus CEO Todd Gustafson, who is no relation to Jake, says that the trend of a declining workforce impacts all other economic and social arenas and the pronounced impact on the hospitality and leisure sector is most concerning. Typically, the Kinexus team refers to our proximity to the state border with Indiana in a positive light, but with the recent extended shutdown on indoor dining all across Michigan leaving hungry patrons headed over the state line to restaurants with zero restrictions, that border has exacerbated not only the impact on restaurants and bars and their workers in our region, it also runs the risk of sacking the workforce who, when out of a job, can migrate to new opportunities in Northern Indiana. With unprecedented unemployment benefits having been shared for the better part of a year, the market is also facing issues related to what Gustafson calls, "the long-term disengaged population" which has been sidelined for 52-weeks, making it more difficult to get them re-engaged. The irony stems, too, from the fact that the Tri-County region currently has a record number of job postings in the regional job bank with 1,400 open jobs in search of workers to fill the gaps. On its face that sounds great, but Gustafson warns that "While that's a record, you also have to step back and realize that 58-percent of those postings require little to no educational requirements, meaning they tend to be low-wage, entry-level positions," adding, "The opportunities there are heavily skewed to the lower end of the labor spectrum." Conversely, Todd Gustafson says, "That makes this one of the best times to be entering the job market as a new worker, especially among the manufacturing jobs wherein the sector actually powered through the pandemic adding 1.5-percent to the manufacturing workforce at a time when the state as a whole actually lost manufacturing jobs." The fact that the healthcare sector has been "consistently down all year," also concerns the Kinexus execs who worry that the sector could see a structural rather than temporary shift, creating a new normal where some of those jobs go away permanently to be reabsorbed in another region of the state or nation. Jake Gustafson returned to the hospitality and leisure sector saying, "They have taken it on the chin all year long, and they are the ones we are most concerned about here in the first quarter of 2021, because we know the seasonality of the sector and watched the hit they took in the back half of the fourth quarter through state-ordered restrictions on indoor dining. The first quarter is traditionally a lean quarter anyway, but we're concerned about those who exit the market completely," and not survive to be around for when the seasonal boom returns. Citing the Michigan Restaurant Association's concerns about the situation this quarter and worries about surviving into the next quarter, Gustafson says, "The job numbers are abysmal, and while the normal seasonality is tough enough, the impact is being heavily compounded by the effects of the pandemic and related state orders." Despite all of that, the team at Kinexus points out, "We're a strong region and we have a tendency to get back up again." Gustafson points to the 'Great Midwestern Road Trips' that provided a robust summer season in 2020 following earlier month-long shutdowns. Plus, manufacturing has a solid backbone in the region. Yet, he warns, "We can't overstate how concerned we are with the labor force data, especially when you combine it with the fact that 58-percent of the current open jobs require less-educated talent, because now is the time when those Big Three Concerns of a region that is getting smaller, older and less educated are being impacted even more than before." Todd Gustafson points out that as a result of the situation, and in light of the Michigan Reconnect program, GoPro training and more, "This is a good time to take advantage of those programs, and get engaged." The Kinexus team helped 55 local manufacturers and other businesses obtain some $2-million in GoPro training and re-training dollars in recent weeks to help bolster the local workforce going forward and aid in companies poised for growth and expansion in the region. A major concern stemming from this area's proximity to the state line and a more open economy in Indiana is that, as Pscholka suggests, "Michigan needs to ditch the one-size-fits-all mentality of state orders and look at the regions they themselves established," to allow for a more customized approach to solutions. More importantly he suggests, "We need key things like a consistent plan and policy, we need to continue to remove barriers like transportation and childcare issues and return a focus on driving education and career and technical education to fill the skilled trades jobs gaps. Then we can move the needle on this."

That's it for this week. See you Saturday, right here in MailMax!

Jesus Knows What It Is Like

Rosenbaum

Because [Jesus] himself suffered when he was tempted, he is able to help those who are being tempted.
Hebrews 2:18

Of all the temptations that hit you on a regular basis, which one is the most powerful? Give yourself a moment to come up with a specific answer. After all, in your heart of hearts, you probably know what the answer is. Here's another question: When that specific temptation shows up wanting to claim you for the day (or for the night), what kind of battle do you give it? Do you consistently give it stiff opposition? Or are there times when you simply throw up your hands and not even try to combat it?

Let's be honest and candid about this. You and I have to admit that there are all kinds of times when we don't even put up a decent fight in the face of a strong temptation. Satan knows that. In fact, he loves to remind us of it to wear us down and make us feel defeated and hollow even before the battle starts. On our own, of course, that's how this movie of our life would end—we'd be cowering and crushed, while Satan and his temptations cackled in conquest.

But with Jesus, everything is different. Everything! On our behalf, he resisted every temptation that Satan could invent. On our behalf, he shed his blood to make all our defeats disappear.

And that's not all. For now, when Satan tries to send a temptation our way, you and I can run immediately to the One who knows exactly what battling temptations is like. In him, we don't just have a sympathetic ear. In him, we have someone who understands. And because he does, he will help us in our battle against the temptation to sin. Satan hopes you will forget this. Therefore, don't.

Prayer: Lord Jesus Christ, you know exactly what it's like to battle temptations in this fallen world. You promise to answer my calls for help. Empower me by your Spirit never to forget that. Amen.

Considering the weather we've had the past two weeks, we can all be thankful February is a short month. Not that winter will magically disappear on March 1st, nor even on the first day of spring, but at least we know the promise of warmer days with no snow isn't too far off. Since we are still in the depths of winter, here are a few tips from the ASPCA and the American Veterinary Medical Association for keeping our pets safe this time of year.

When going for a walk, rubbing a little petroleum jelly or other paw protectant into your dog's paws can help protect them from road salt. Wiping their paws with a cloth when you get home is also a good idea. Use pet-friendly ice melt whenever possible. Clean up anti-freeze spills as soon as they happen, as it is highly toxic to pets. Better yet, choose to use product with propylene glycol rather than ethylene glycol (but still clean up spills). Make sure all pets have a warm, dry place to sleep, and all pets really do need to come inside when the temperature dips, as it has recently. In spite of their fur coats, they are susceptible to frostbite and hypothermia. While some thick-coated breeds can tolerate the cold better, even they need protection from below freezing weather. If you park outside, tap on the hood of your car or honk the horn before starting the motor, in case some stray cat or other critter has taken refuge near the warm motor. A danger from inside your home that has recently come to light is the use of essential oils in diffusers. Inhaling the air while a diffuser is running may cause a variety of symptoms in pets, so it's best to keep them out of the room where it's used or at least do some research on which oils are not toxic to pets. Tea tree oil is one that you will want to avoid, as it is dangerous to pets. For more in-depth information on keeping pets safe in winter, check out the <https://avma.org> website.

It's that time of year to make sure dog licenses and rabies vaccinations are up to date. We have until March 1 to purchase a license at a lower price, and in Berrien County a three-year license with proof of a three-year rabies shot will give you a price break. While it might cost a little more at the time, it will save you down the road and you won't have to worry about it for three years. Of course, the license for a spayed or neutered pet will cost you less, too. Ace just went for his yearly check-up and vaccinations, and while he probably thought we had deserted him (as only pets are still allowed inside the clinic), it's a relief to know he is protected from a variety of diseases.

Here's a fun fact from the Berrien County Animal Control Shelter. Thanks to the efforts of their staff, many adoptions took place, and at one point during the pandemic the dog kennels were cleared. It was a brief success but still quite an accomplishment.

For the month of February, Honor Credit Union is matching donations made to the Humane Society of Southwestern Michigan, up to a total amount of $7,500. The Paw it Forward campaign hopes to make up for the fund-raising opportunities that are still canceled due to COVID-19.

Mortgages and Baby Steps

Dear Dave,
We'd like to own a home someday, but we know we're not ready for that kind of financial commitment yet. Where does buying a house fit in your Baby Steps plan?

Heather

Dear Heather,

Buying a home when you're broke is the easiest way I know to become a foreclosure statistic. I'm glad you two are being thoughtful and sensible about taking such a big step.

If you remember, in Baby Step 1 I advise people to save up a beginner emergency fund of $1,000. Baby Step 2 is paying off all consumer debt from smallest to largest using the debt snowball method. Then, Baby Step 3 is where you go back and grow your emergency fund to a full three to six months of living expenses.

With all this in mind, let's call getting ready to buy a home Baby Step 3b. Save up for a down payment of at least 20 percent to avoid PMI (private mortgage insurance). Also, make sure any mortgage loan is a 15-year, fixed rate loan, where the payments are no more than 25 percent of your monthly take-home pay.

Doing it this way may delay your dream of being a homeowner for a while, but it will help ensure your new home is a blessing and not a financial curse!

-Dave

Dave Says Planning for future purchases

Dear Dave,

How far in advance do you recommend figuring future purchases into your budget?

Robbie

Dear Robbie,

I recommend starting to put money aside, and including it in your budget as soon as you know the need for an item is a real possibility. Waiting until things go wrong or something breaks down will leave you in a real mess, more times than not.

For example, if you're pretty sure you'll need another vehicle in a year or two, the smart thing is to start putting money aside now. Do some research on prices, then do the math to see how much you'll need to set aside each month. And remember, it's a whole lot easier to save money when you don't have things like credit card payments and other debt hanging around your neck. That's one of the big reasons I want to help people learn to live debt-free!
