Ask The Acupuncturist...

Veronica Cavella Pedersen, L.Ac.

Q. This winter I seem to have caught every cold or virus that was going around. I've used up all my sick days at work and feel really run down. Is there any acupuncture treatment to help the immune system?

A.: Your question reminds me of a Chinese proverb that says, "The superior doctor prevents sickness; the mediocre doctor attends to impending sickness; the inferior doctor treats actual sickness." This ancient quotation demonstrates the importance in Chinese Medicine of keeping the patient healthy by preventing disease. "Wellness visits" are encouraged, and can be scheduled monthly, occasionally, or often at the change of seasons to help keep you in good health.

What we call the immune system in Western terms is viewed as a combination of a person's "Pre-Heaven Qi" which a child inherits from parents and ancestors, similar to one's constitution and DNA, and "Post-Heaven Qi" which is nurtured throughout one's lifetime. We now know that what we come into the world with is not necessarily absolute, but can be influenced and improved upon, or damaged, by lifestyle. In ancient times success was measured by how a person "husbanded his or her Qi". This is done by making choices which will benefit health in areas such as eating nourishing food, drinking pure water, breathing clean air, sleeping 8 hours a night, and getting enough exercise. This sounds fairly simple; these are basic necessities for good health, but many people are either unaware or unable to follow these practices on a daily basis and their resistance to disease weakens. In partnership with you, your acupuncturist will be able to provide treatments and suggest lifestyle adjustments which will help boost your immunity so that you will be better able to ward off disease, and will work with you to maximize your health. Specific protocols will be tailored to your condition as determined by a Chinese Medicine examination and diagnosis. In summer a method may be administered using herbal poultices applied to the appropriate acupuncture points. This treatment is given in a series on three very specific dates which vary from year to year, following the premise that winter illness should be treated in the summer as a preventative, in keeping with the tradition of "The Superior Doctor". Since you are already feeling depleted, I recommend that you start Acupuncture now as we look forward to spring with its energy of renewal and growth. Veronica Cavella Pedersen, L.Ac. practices Acupuncture and Traditional Chinese Medicine for adults and children at 154 Deysher Road, Fleetwood, PA 19522 (Rockland Township), 610-987-0489, and invites you to submit your questions for possible publication to asktheacupuncturist@yahoo.com.
