4 Easily Forgotten Road Trip Safety Tips

Getaways come in many forms. A getaway can be restful and relaxing whether it involves a journey to a small island thousands of miles from home or a favorite campsite that's just a few hours away by car.

As the world gradually emerges from a pandemic that put travel on the back burner for billions of people across the globe, people anxious to get away from home may finally feel comfortable seeking getaways that don't involve air travel. If the open road beckons you in the months ahead, the excitement ahead can make it easy to overlook certain safety measures. The following are four easily forgotten safety measures to keep in mind as you head off for parts unknown.

1. Have your vehicle serviced before hitting the road.

The pandemic significantly affected people's driving habits. Millions of people spent the pandemic working remotely, and many have continued to do so even after being vaccinated. Total driving distances fluctuated throughout the pandemic. For example, the Federal Highway Administration reported that the total distances driven in July 2020 had declined by 11 percent compared to the same month a year earlier. That decline was more drastic according to figures examining total distances driven in April 2019 and April 2020, when driving had decreased by 40 percent compared to a year earlier. Though driving may have increased as the pandemic wore on, it's still a good idea for drivers to have their vehicles serviced before a road trip. Request a full tune-up that includes an oil change, a battery check and a tire rotation. These services and other maintenance tasks like fluid refills can reduce the likelihood of breakdowns and reveal any issues that might make driving less safe.

2. Determine if your vehicle is the subject of a recall.

Recalls are issued if a safety issue has been uncovered since a car hit the market. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has a list of recalls available on its website at NHTSA.gov/Recalls. Recalls are fixed free of charge, and it's best to look well in advance of a trip to ensure you have time to take the vehicle in for its update.

3. Get used to driving with accessories on the vehicle.

Summer road trips are typically taken with bicycle racks attached to rear windows or the top of the vehicle. Drivers unaccustomed to having bicycles or storage units attached to their vehicles should make a few trial runs so they can get acclimated. Backing up with bike racks on the back of the car can be tricky for novices, so a little practice with the bikes on the back may be helpful. Drivers who intend to tow campers also may benefit from a little pre-trip practice.

4. Pack a map.

Though maps have long since fallen out of favor due to the availability of GPS, people traveling to remote areas may find their smartphone signals fading in and out as they get closer to their destinations. A map can help road trippers overcome service interruptions and arrive at their destinations on time.

Road trips may be especially popular this summer. Some simple safety measures can ensure drivers and their passengers stay safe.

Is Your Ride Road Ready?

For many of us, the onset of the pandemic was also the start of less drive time. No longer commuting, carting kids around, or enjoying road trips meant our cars got minimal use and maximum down time. Cars aren't meant to sit for long periods, so before you get back on the road, it's best to check a few key things—or have the experts do so by making an appointment with your local service technician.

- Battery: You may need to charge the battery to get it started. Do this using a battery pack or a traditional jump from another vehicle.
- Oil: Chances are your engine oil needs changed. If you're planning to take it somewhere for service, at least top it off with fresh oil before you go. A good rule is to change the engine oil a minimum of once per year.
- Inspection: Request a multi-point inspection—your mechanic will inspect the vehicle's fluids, belts and hoses, brakes and suspension.

3 Pandemic Travel Trends That May Stick Around

(Family Features) COVID-19 has challenged families in different ways, and many had to cancel or reschedule trips during the pandemic due to travel restrictions, which meant missing out on quality time with loved ones and the mental health and self-care benefits of going on vacation.

Although 61% of families had a trip canceled due to the pandemic in 2020, travel is still top of mind as 82% of families already have travel plans in mind for 2021, according to the 2021 Vrbo Trend Report. The report, which includes vacation rental marketplace data as well as survey data from family travelers, also revealed some travel habits that arose during the pandemic are likely to remain popular this year.

"Let's face it, the pandemic makes it tough to predict what travel will look like in 2021," said Melanie Fish, Vrbo's travel expert. "That's why we combined search and demand trends with a first-of-its-kind traveler survey of U.S. families. The combination gives us the most accurate picture possible of the plans families are making."

Consider these pandemic-era trends as you make your vacation plans moving forward:

Staying in the Driver's Seat

With travel restrictions and social distancing guidelines in place throughout much of 2020, many families opted to avoid flying and visiting crowded places by instead jumping in the car to hit the open road. This trend is likely to continue in 2021 with 59% of families saying they are more likely to drive instead of fly on their next trip. A change of scenery can be refreshing and motivating after staring at the same four walls in your home, so consider taking a road trip and exploring a new destination, even if it's just down the road from home.

Mixing Work and Play

Many people were forced to adapt to working from home or facilitating e-learning for their children due to COVID-19. While turning homes into makeshift offices or classrooms wasn't an easy task for many families, the schedule flexibility provided by the remote setup allowed for the rise of the "flexcation" - mixing vacation time with virtual work and school. In fact, 1 in 3 families surveyed said they were able to travel because they were working from home, and 52% of those who took a flexcation during the pandemic found the experience refreshing with 67% saying they would do it again.

Another benefit of flexcations is experiencing amenities you may not have access to at home. Consider some of Vrbo's most sought-after amenities and vacation spots when planning your next getaway:

- Splash in the sun in Cape Coral, Florida where 92% of vacation rentals have pools.
- Cook over an open fire in Sevierville, Tennessee, where barbecue grills are included at 87% of vacation homes.
- Cozy up by the fire with a book and some hot chocolate in Steamboat Springs, Colorado where fireplaces are an amenity offered in 87% of vacation rentals.

Seeking Wide Open Spaces

Many travelers gravitate toward vacationing in peaceful and picturesque destinations, and the open sky, fresh air and scenic views may be even more appealing amid the pandemic. According to the report, 61% of U.S. families said they are more likely to visit an outdoorsy destination than an urban one and 54% are more likely to head to a national park than an amusement park.

Find more ideas for planning your next vacation - or flexcation - along with the full Trend Report at vrbo.com.

Plan an Angler's Adventure Like a Pro

(Family Features) Fishing is a treasured pastime for Americans from coast to coast, but the experience can be as individual as the person reeling them in. A successful angling excursion begins with thoughtful planning and all the right gear.

If you're new to the sport, gearing up for your first fishing season may feel equally exciting and overwhelming. On the other hand, a seasoned pro can always benefit from periodically taking stock of tackle, gear and other equipment to increase the thrill of a great catch.

License and Registration

With just a few exceptions, fishing requires a license. Thanks to the internet, a fishing license is easy to come by, even if you're not a resident of the place where you'll be dropping a line. Pay close attention to the different types of licenses offered so you're not vulnerable to fines or penalties. It's a good idea to store your permit in a waterproof container in a cubby on your boat or in your tackle box.

Boat

Unless you're planning to fish strictly from the shoreline or a bridge, you'll probably need a boat to reach the best fishing waters. Boat styles vary depending on the species you're angling for and the body of water you'll use to drop a line, and dozens of features and options let you customize your experience.

A leading boat maker like Alumacraft gives you ample selection with more than 80 models focused on fishing and hunting. The brand, which is celebrating its 75th anniversary this year, puts careful attention into the performance of each vessel while continually introducing innovations like a rigging system, called Alumatrac, that allows a host of custom accessories to be attached to the inner side of a boat's gunwales. A lighter, stronger all-aluminum transom, made for today's larger, more powerful outboard motors, can help enhance your fishing experience.

Advance Intel

If you're traveling to a place where you don't know the locals, online research and area fishing reports can help you pinpoint the best places to find your favorite catch. For those new to the sport, or if you're branching out to target new species, be sure to do some research and learn from gaming experts about the best tricks for targeting the fish you prefer.

Tackle and Gear

Some elements of a fishing excursion are obvious, like rods and reels, but also be sure your gear includes a well-stocked first aid kit, sunscreen, sunglasses to reduce glare from the water, snacks and water to keep you safely hydrated. Bring plenty of extra line and tackle so you don't have to call a day short if you snag a favorite lure. Depending on the manufacturer, fishing-specific boats like the Alumacraft multi-species or crossover boats are designed with built-in lockable rod storage and integrated dual aerated, LED-lit livewells for organizing your gear and keeping your catch safe.

Spend more time planning your next fishing adventure at alumacraft.com.

The Mentor Nissan Story

In 1970 Phil Greenberg opened Bedford Datsun on the historic Bedford Auto Mile. Taking his automotive sales experience and his insistence on doing right by people, his investment quickly grew.

In 1981 Nissan Corporation retired the Datsun name. As Phil proudly raised the new Nissan sign his son, Jeff, began to assume ownership of the family business. For over twenty years Jeff would make the Bedford Nissan name synonymous with great value and customer service.

As their roster of loyal customers- many of them now second and even third generation customers- grew, Jeff would pass the baton to his son, Matt, in 2006. The Cleveland area would continue to respond to the Greenberg family's tradition of customer service excellence by helping them recognize continual growth.

In 2011 the opportunity presented itself for the Greenberg family to expand their successful, customer centered model east into Lake County.

With the opening of Mentor Nissan consumers in Lake, Geauga, and Ashtabula counties could now have access to quality Nissan cars, trucks, and SUV's from a dealership who would care as much about their ownership experience as they did giving them a great deal.

Backed by a Nissan Certified Service Department staffed with only the most skilled and conscientious technicians in the area, Mentor Nissan continues to get rave reviews as they increase their satisfied Nissan owner base year after year.

See for yourself. We welcome you to stop in just to look around and evaluate us for yourself! We are confident that you will like what you see and that you, too, will want to become a part of the Greenberg family legacy that is Mentor Nissan!

Thomas E. Pyle Insurance Agency

Thomas E. Pyle Insurance Agency was founded by Thomas Pyle in 1991. His daughter, Jennifer, joined him in the agency in April of 1996, taking over as President in 2010. She has continued her father's legacy of providing excellent products and services throughout the State of Ohio. In the agency, our agents enjoy the personal aspect of getting to know other people and helping them. We find it gratifying to be able to help clients customize policies they are comfortable with as insurance policies can differ in coverage, deductibles, and limits. Education is key in choosing what coverage is right for you. Many people just look at the bottom line – their premium – and do not even consider differences within the policy language. Every carrier has their own policy. Understanding what protection you have, or don't have, is important.

At Thomas E. Pyle Insurance Agency, we treat you like family, not just a number. We truly care about our cliental even outside the world of insurance. We also contribute to community events, schools, charitable organizations, and our first responders. Our staff would appreciate the opportunity to help you. Call us for a free, no obligation quote. For those who are already a part of our insurance family, a sincere thank you for your continued business.

Purchasing insurance thru an AGENT gives you an advantage that you don't get online or buying direct over the phone.
