A relationship between two major families in the Southwest Michigan funeral business that dates back several decades becomes a formal one again as the two reunite for the future. After more than two decades of serving the families of the South Haven area, Filbrandt Family Funeral Home, at 1076 S. Bailey Avenue, is reuniting with Starks Family Funeral Homes & Cremation Services of St. Joseph. The merger, announced by Tom Starks as owner and president was formalized on Tuesday, June 15th. Jeff Filbrandt, owner and funeral director in South Haven says, "When we decided to step back from the day-to-day operation of the funeral home, we wanted to transition our business to someone that will serve our families in South Haven much the same way we do presently," and adds, "The Starks are very professional, caring and have a desire and passion to serve. Their family is very community-minded and has a heart for South Haven." Tom says the relationship with the two funeral home families goes back decades, noting, "Jeff apprenticed as a funeral director with us in 1984," and adds, "I was mentored by Filbrandt's senior funeral director, Ralph Frost." Starks goes on to tell us, "Before Jeff opened this facility in 2000, our family served in South Haven as Calvin, Starks & Frost Funeral Home. This reunion is a homecoming, and we are excited to work side-by-side with Jeff, Ralph and their staff." Tom says South Haven families will see familiar faces at the Filbrandt Chapel, including Jeff, Ralph and Dylan Ridley as they continue to serve as funeral directors alongside Tom and his two daughters, co-owners Laura and Olivia Starks. Starks points out, "During the transition, we will take time to learn from each other which is something we've done for decades," and adds, "We will share our best practices to make sure families in South Haven are always well cared for by our families." Jeff notes he feels very positive about his decision but added that he has much to be grateful for as he reflects on his years in South Haven, saying, "I want to thank my family for all of the sacrifices they made to help me lead a small town funeral home. It is a 24/7 commitment. I am grateful to all of my co-workers who have been so gracious in serving the families here, and I want to thank the South Haven community for their support, encouragement and guidance as we helped families through difficult times." As the ownership transition moves forward, Tom reports a common

A Taste of Tavern On The River

Glen: One of our area's great treasures is the St. Joseph River. Unfortunately, there are not a lot of dining choices on the river. Jordan Gottlieb has thrown a life preserver to one of these rare locations with the launch of Tavern On The River in St. Joseph.

When you walk in, you get the feeling you are walking into a joint in the Florida Keys. It's freshly painted and cleaned up, and it's ready to please locals and tourists alike. Here, you'll find plenty of tables on the river's edge. It's a fantastic spot!

As the 2-man band set up on the dock-side stage near the new outdoor bar, Doug and I grabbed a couple of brews and started in on the Snack Basket appetizer (Picture a charcuterie basket, instead of charcuterie board.) It had a variety of rarities not found around these parts, such as deep fried Shishito peppers, which were not breaded and carried a touch of spicy kick. The house-made garlic Cornichon pickles were also excellent and something I had not had before. The basket had several delightful cheeses, including a fantastic feta that crumbled like feta, yet had a velvety smoothness to it. It's mild saltiness and creaminess cooled my tongue from the zip of the Shishitos.

"Do you like spicy?" That was the question Jordan asked us. We both assured him that we love spicy and could handle what came our way, which was a chicken sandwich called Nashville Hot. As Jordan sat it down in front of us, he said "This sandwich is not for people who say 'I like it a little spicy.'" If you can't handle the heat, don't order the Nashville Hot from the Tavern on the River kitchen! It was BLAZZIN' HOT! I don't want to mention Doug's reaction because I don't want anyone to think less of him, but I LOVED IT. It is hands-down my new favorite sandwich in St. Joseph. While Doug went to get some additional ice water, I smashed through my half and snatched the rest of his. The chicken was so juicy from the buttermilk brine and had an excellent fried crisp. Sweet Hottie pickles, crunchy slaw, lettuce, tomato, and Louisiana mayonnaise awaited their crown...Nashville Hot sauce made with roasted red Fresno peppers. Jesus himself would order this over the Chick-Fil-A Spicy Chicken Sandwich. Lol

Reading the menu to order the Greek Salad, I learned that the delicious Feta cheese is from Kourellas, one the premier dairy companies in Greece widely known for top quality organic ingredients for the Mediterranean diet. I was impressed with the Greek Vinaigrette, which didn't have a dominant vinegar bite that I often find in vinaigrettes. We added grilled chicken to the salad for only $4 more, but you can also add crispy chicken, shaved ribeye or choose shrimp to stick with Mediterranean cuisine.

Both Doug and I noted the uniqueness of the menu. It had some familiar pub-type items, but also a smattering of uncommon fare, too. The menu diversity has a lot to do with Jordan, who is the owner and mastermind behind the menu.

"I have an eclectic culinary background beginning with my Pastry Chef degree from Le Cordon Bleu Institute of Culinary Arts, to my time working in Chicago restaurants," Gottlieb explained. "Around here, I worked with Bit of Swiss and Greenbush for many years. I've taken what I've learned through my journey and incorporated those ideas into my menu."

His baking expertise is evident in his pizzas. Jordan makes a fermented dough that takes 36 hours to ready, and it is cooked to perfection. The bottom and edges were crispy, but the center was soft with a little chew. The longer fermentation process enriches both the structure and taste of the dough.

Head down Langley Avenue from downtown, since Langley is closed for construction, or dock your boat right there on the Morrison Channel. Tavern on the River is literally right next to Clementine's Too. Oh, and bring the whole gang...it is very family friendly now.

Doug: Floats my boat!

Getting Michigan Back to Work

We are in the midst of a historic labor crisis. Despite more than 231,000 people drawing unemployment insurance (UI) benefits in Michigan and over 379,926 jobs posted across the state, businesses cannot seem to lure workers back to work. Employers across every industry have increased wages, enhanced benefits, and offered incentives – all to no avail. While there are many issues contributing to this problem, the most glaring cause is expanded federal UI benefits.

The current maximum UI benefit is $662/week (state and federal Pandemic Unemployment Assistance [PUA]), which amounts to an hourly rate of $16.55. At this rate, more than 41 percent of workers in Michigan have the potential to earn more drawing UI benefits than what they might earn working 40 hours per week. To make matters worse, we are seeing jobs that pay well above $20/hour go unfilled as well. In fact, a NFIB's jobs report for April showed a record 44% of all small business owners reporting job openings they could not fill.

A survey by the U.S. Chamber further highlights the problem: One in eight (13%) who became unemployed during the pandemic and remain unemployed have turned down at least one job offer in the past year, and one in six (16%) not actively seeking work say the amount of money they are receiving from unemployment benefits and government programs makes it "not worth looking" for jobs. Even more—28 percent of all respondents—agree that "there are a lot of people who are not looking for work because they can do almost or just as well collecting unemployment benefits."

To summarize, paying unemployed individuals the equivalent of $34,000 a year not to work has disincentivized UI recipients to return to their place of employment or advance their knowledge and skills to obtain higher paying jobs.

With the pandemic finally subsiding and restrictions lifting across the country, Michigan should follow the lead of 26 other states and terminate the extra $300 in federal unemployment benefits. Every single one of these states have seen their number of UI recipients decrease at a (much) faster rate than those continuing to pay the enhanced benefits, suggesting that ending the aid could push more people to take jobs.

As the Voice for Business in the region, our Chamber joined forty business-advocacy organizations from across the state in sending a letter to Governor Whitmer imploring her to take swift action and end enhanced benefits in Michigan before their September expiration. The letter, which was sent to the House and Senate as well, also recognizes that UI benefits are not the only policy changes that can move the needle. Thus, we also advocated for the following:

- Offering return-to-work bonuses to UI recipients;
- Aggressively enforcing work search requirements;
- Reinstating work registration requirements with the Michigan Works! Offices;
- Fully funding the Going Pro Training Fund;
- Allocating federal funds to invest heavily in solutions that will break down the barriers to employability, including access to affordable childcare, affordable housing, and reliable transportation.

Job providers are doing their part. They are raising wages, offering signing and retention bonuses, offering cash to interview and competitive benefits including job flexibility, work-from-home options, longer vacations, shorter shifts. The truth is there has never been a better time to enter the workforce. It is a worker's market whether you are skilled or unskilled.

Michigan's elected officials must step up and solve this ever-worsening crisis by diligently removing any and all barriers to employability. Businesses have already expanded the amount of time they are closed to try and cope with being shorthanded. Soon, they will begin closing their doors for good.

Life Changing Moments

Suddenly a sound like the blowing of a violent wind came from heaven and filled the whole house where they were sitting. . . . All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit. ~ Acts 2:2,4

Big, life-changing events can happen in a moment. Most tornadoes, for instance, last less than ten minutes; but in those short moments, a lot can happen. On May 22, 2011, at 5:34 P.M. a tornado touched down just west of Joplin, Missouri. Thirty-eight minutes later 8,000 buildings were destroyed, 1,000 people were injured, and 161 lives were lost.

Some of us know what it's like to lose just about everything. In a moment, the flames, floods, or fierce winds can take away our possessions. In a moment, a doctor can click on that bright X-ray panel and our life can change. In a moment, that seemingly harmless temptation can snap its jaws around us like a bear trap and before you know it, we're getting comfortable with attitudes, using words, or walking down paths no child of God ever should.

Bad, destructive things can happen in a moment. Good, beautiful things can happen too. On that first Pentecost, it happened very suddenly. There was a sound of a violent wind and the disciples were filled with the Holy Spirit. They in turn began telling others about the wonders of God and within moments, many other people were also filled with the Holy Spirit.

The Holy Spirit has used some special people and special moments in our lives to introduce us to Jesus and enable us to put our trust in him. What a moment it is when the sign of the cross is made on the head and heart when a child or adult is baptized into God's family. What a moment it is when a youngster sits on grandma's lap and hears about the Savior's love. What a moment it is when a weary soul comes to Jesus for rest, when the sin-laden conscience is assured that Jesus has taken away all sin.

Even as you read or listen to this devotion, the Holy Spirit is working in your heart to calm and comfort you. What a wonderful moment!

Prayer: Dear Lord, as I approach this day, help me to value every moment you give me. Amen.

concern is how pre-arrangements will be transferred, and says rest assured that pre-planned funerals with Filbrandt Family Funeral Home will be honored, but he encourages anyone with pre-arrangements to meet with the staff to make sure the plans still meet their needs. Another assurance Tom shared is that the Starks family has its own crematorium so that loved ones never leave the care of the Starks staff, promising, "We treat each person with the highest respect at all times." Tom says the Filbrandt Chapel staff will continue to be involved in the community and that the funeral home will share its resources with events and nonprofits that are valued by the people of South Haven, adding, "We are part of this community and taking care of each other is integral to who we are as a family and as a business." Starks Family Funeral Homes & Cremation Services has served Southwest Michigan for more than six decades. ity to both sample and sell all of their creations in the same place is a simple, yet incredibly important fix to state law. I appreciate the strong bipartisan support this bill received to help this growing industry." David Ringle, Director of Happiness Cedar Springs Brewing Company was one of the first to respond, saying, "We are grateful for this legislation that will allow us to expand services to our customers after a very difficult year," and adds, "As a destination location in a small town it is key for us to be able to serve all of our product lines to our guests." The bill amends the Michigan Liquor Control Code to allow a person to hold an on-premises tasting room permit and an off-premises tasting room license in conjunction at the same location under certain conditions.

When the data regarding your cemetery consists of coffee-stained maps, handwritten and type-written books, and random spreadsheets, preserving the history of a community can be an extremely difficult task. Yet, that's the reality for many communities. The effects of disjointed data can cause headaches for municipal Clerks and even frustration for the public-at-large. Some organizations have invested time and money to consolidate their records, but still cannot visualize all the burial records on a map. There are many challenges that come with effectively operating a cemetery, and data is one of the biggest. For the folks of Hagar Township those challenges are being tackled head-on, through a new cemetery mapping project underway. Hagar Township, with 3,671 residents and the responsibility of maintaining three cemeteries including Lake Shore, Curtis, and Harris, has taken the lead to modernize their historic cemetery records. The township has enlisted the GIS (Geographic Information System) team from Wightman, a multi-disciplinary architecture and engineering firm based in Benton Harbor, to preserve their historic cemetery records and make them accessible through an interactive database and map. Hagar Township officials understand the benefits of an online mapping system. Township staff will be

What Coloma State Senator Kim LaSata began, Governor Gretchen Whitmer has completed, much to the satisfaction of tasting room operators, microbreweries and craft distillers all around Michigan. The governor recently signed LaSata's Senate Bill #49, which will enable small distillers, wine makers, and microbreweries to have an on-premise and off-premise tasting room permit, helping small businesses grow and supporting the economy. The governor says, "Michigan is home to some of the best microbreweries and craft distillers in the country, and this bill make it easier for these businesses to create and operate tasting rooms," while adding, "I'm proud that this bipartisan bill will make it more convenient for Michiganders to sample fine spirits and delicious micro-brews, while also creating jobs and helping grow our small businesses and economy faster." As sponsor of the legislation, Sen. LaSata says, "Michigan is renowned for its craft beverage industry, contributing billions to our state's economy and employing tens of thousands of hardworking men and women, including many in our state's great southwest region," and adds, "At this critical time when our state is getting back to work and with tourism on the rebound, ensuring our craft beverage producers have the abilenabled to visualize records like never before, finally able to place a location with a name. Staff will also maintain more accurate records, with an up-to-date listing of what cemetery plots are owned by which family. The township's cemetery system will become an important planning tool, allowing the municipality to visualize capacity issues before they occur, which can facilitate strategic growth. Upon completion of the project, a public online mapping system will be available beyond the walls of township hall, a space where citizens and the public researching history or genealogy can now independently locate loved ones. The township is utilizing the help of resident volunteers to assist in completing the mapping work. The first step onsite is to utilize high-accuracy GPS to locate known cemetery site features, and then lay out spacing based on corner markers. Equipped with tape measures, metal detectors, and tablets, the volunteer group, which includes township residents, Hagar Township staff, and Wightman personnel, has gathered at Lake Shore Cemetery on two recent Saturdays to begin acquiring the data needed to complete the online map. Volunteers visit each gravesite and input data including the name, birth and death dates, any military service, as well as a photo of the headstone. With the data collected, Hagar Township's modern GIS cemetery system will offer the preservation of historical cemetery records, capturing the knowledge base of seasoned staff, enable citizens to find loved ones using online interactive cemetery maps, provide a centralized access to records for staff, ensure consistent placement and management of plots, and provide a real-time picture of cemetery capacity. During the last phase of the project, Wightman will train Township staff on how best to manage and maintain their new GIS system, so that the cemetery data will always remain current. Hagar Township's online cemetery map is anticipated to be available later this year. Digital mapping of the township's cemeteries ensures the past will always be present. Wightman is a full-service consulting firm featuring a dynamic team of more than 130 professionals who work to analyze, advise, design, and deliver successful projects in partnership with governments, businesses, and institutions in the region. MOODY Continued from page 9 been known to wait extreme amounts of time to capture perfection in the realm of wildlife, weather conditions and many other situations. Berrien Springs photographer Allen Smith captured a great image of patience in practice while taking a photo of his friend, award-winning professional photographer Molly Pate of Berrien Springs who has been known to lie in wait on the sand of local beaches for interminable amounts of time waiting for the winning shot to develop before her lens, as was shown in a photo accompanying this story on www.MoodyOnTheMarket.com. The good news is that the Box Factory for the Arts in St. Joseph is ready to once again reward local talent in the form of photographers of all ages who are being invited to enter their showcase called "ReShoot." That's the Box Factory for the Arts photo show which will be on exhibit from July 23rd through September 12th, with an opening reception slated to be held on July 30th from 5:30 to 7:30 pm. Photographers are encouraged to enter the competition, but are limited to two entries each for which a $5 per photo entry fee will be charged. Photos must fit into the categories of: Still life, People, Animals, or Landscape. All images must start in the camera and be taken by the photographer entering the show. Manipulation or enhancements made to the photo are acceptable. Ribbons will be awarded to 1st place and runner up photographs for each of the four categories in the show. Photos will be accepted at the Box Factory, located at 1101 Broad Street in St. Joseph, on July 16th and 17th from noon to 4 pm. They must be wired for hanging. No saw-tooth hangers, hanging loops or easel-back frames will be accepted. Susan Johnston of Stevensville will judge the show. She began her photographic career 40 years ago, and worked to develop her style by attending the Santa Fe Workshops and the Brooks Institute. She has exhibited her work at the Buchanan Art Center, Fernwood, the Box Factory for the Arts, Lakeland Hospital, and the Gilmore Car Museum. In 2018 she was awarded Best Photograph at the Midwest Museum of American Art. For more information, you can visit the Box online at www.boxfactoryforthearts.org or follow the Box Factory on Facebook.

That's it for this week, folks. Enjoy a fun and safe 4th of July weekend, and we'll see you Saturday right here in MailMax, as well as online 24/7 at www.MoodyOnTheMarket.com. If you plan to use consumer-grade fireworks, please be both responsible and considerate of others in the neighborhood who may have pets or family members who are severely stressed by the noise of your celebrations.

Dave Ramsey

Dave Says

Bless them, don't enable them

Dear Dave,

My husband and I are both teachers, and we're on Baby Step 7.

We're struggling with things where our wills are concerned. Three of our four adult children aren't being wise with their money, and my husband and I disagree on how to talk to them about it and how it may affect us re-structuring our wills. We don't want to be judgmental, but at the same time we agree something needs to be said or done.

Danielle

Dear Danielle,

Let's say someone is working at my company, and taking my money in the form of a paycheck. Let's also say this person isn't doing a good job. If I don't talk to them about their performance because I don't want to be seen as judgmental, I'm not doing my job. I owe them the feedback necessary for them to become a good team member. Otherwise, they could just get fired one day without really knowing what happened because I refused to "judge" them.

You're supposed to judge people. The idea that you're not supposed to is ridiculous. But you don't have to be a jerk about it. There's a big difference between judging people and being judgmental. But it's unkind not to share insights or suggestions for a better way of life with those you love most. Holding back and telling yourself the way someone behaves is just the way they're made is wrong in most instances. Overspending and not saving money aren't character traits—they're decisions.

They're adults now, and they're going to do what they want. They don't have to understand or support your ways of handling money, but you and your husband have every right to tell them they have to start behaving in certain ways if they expect to receive your money when the time comes. If they're misbehaving, and you give them money, you're funding that bad behavior. That's not love, that's enabling. And a big pile of money isn't going to heal the bad things—it's only going to magnify them.

Sit down with your kids, and have a loving, clear discussion about the situation. Remind them that they're adults, and you and your husband are no longer able to tell them how they have to live. But let them know in no uncertain terms, gently but firmly, they will not receive your money if they continue to behave in ways you both consider foolish or unreasonable. Let them know they'll always have your love, just not your money, unless they begin behaving more intelligently and maturely with their finances.

You can't make them do anything, Danielle. But you can ensure they understand you two won't be sharing your wealth with people who can't handle it and use it wisely.

—Dave

One Whale of a Critter

Today I'll share more of my trenchant observations about the animal kingdom. The key topic today is whales. But first, a bit of opening commentary on birds I observed when my wife made the mistake of taking me on an oceanside getaway to St. Simon's Island, in Georgia.

The day we reached St. Simon's, we strolled around downtown, and I quickly spied a species of bird I'd never seen before: Gray Kingbirds. The vast majority of Gray Kingbirds are denizens of the Caribbean islands. But a small population has established a foothold on St. Simon's Island.

Around mid-day, we met up with our friends Caroline and Charlie, who weighed the pleasures of joining us for a beach escape against the tedium of hanging around with me for several days. They ultimately chose the sun and sand, hoping, I think, that the surf, or the sounds of surf guitar, would keep me from boring them to tears.

No such luck! Because that first evening, we went back downtown for dinner, and I spotted the Gray Kingbirds again, and prattled lengthily about them to Charlie. That evening, I noticed he had an extra martini at dinner. When Caroline asked him why, he told her about our conversation, and before I could even begin sharing my kingbird knowledge with her, she gulped down a pre-emptory extra martini herself.

Item: Sitting in a beach chair for several hours, one notices LOTS of birds flying about. If you latch your eyes onto one, and keep tracking it, it's kind of mesmerizing. I often followed specific birds this way, from the moment I "latched" until the moment my view of it was blocked by an attractive person in a skimpy swimsuit.

Item: Occasionally I got to wondering about all the gulls and terns -- how many there are, and why they all fly by as though on urgent missions, speeding north along the shoreline. Except for the ones flying as though they were on urgent missions heading south along the shoreline.

What's the deal with this? Birds spend prodigious amounts of time foraging for food (except for the gulls mobbing the family next to us, which was feeding them popcorn, sheesh!) Anyway, if the northbound tern is racing toward a reliable food source, then where is the southbound bird winging off to at high speed? And how many times might I have possibly observed the same tern going back and forth in front of me, perhaps trying to hypnotize me so his cohorts could pilfer the goldfish crackers from my beach bag? Good thing the mesmerization was broken occasionally by attractive persons in skimpy swimsuits, eh?

Item: I saw three "new-to-me" bird species on the trip, but there was one that I just couldn't locate, though not for lack of trying. It's called the Seaside Sparrow, and before the trip, I studied all manner of birdy sources for intel on where I might spot one. But to no avail. It eluded me. Just like it had when I visited my in-laws in Florida in February! I now think of myself as Captain Ahab, and the Seaside Sparrow as my "Moby Dick." And that explains why, after a bit longer preface than planned, the key topic of today's column was whales!
