With flags and solemn displays communities remember 9/11

By ANN SCHWARTZ
Just as it had been on September 11, 2001, September 11, 2021 dawned bright and sunny under a blue autumnal sky.

Near the courthouse in Aitkin, sounds included the flapping of flags, bagpipes and shouts of children.

The Aitkin Fire Department led a 9/11 Remembrance that included a walk, the singing of the National Anthem and speeches by Rep. Dale Lueck, R-Aitkin; Fire Chief Brian Pisarek and Minnesota Deputy Commissioner of Public Safety Bruce West. Jeff Erhet of the state fire marshal's office was also present.

"It does my heart good to see you here," said Pisarek, before introducing West.

"We remember the fear, sadness and anger. Our world and our lives up-ended on 9/11, how safe we felt or didn't feel. Brave men and women who had never thought of becoming a firefighter signed up to do the job," West told the group comprised of firefighters, first responders, police, families and citizens of all ages from babies to grandparents.

After West spoke, firefighters took turns reading the names of emergency personnel who perished on 9/11.

Prior to the solemn ceremony, there was a bit of a family reunion feeling at the site. Firefighters and families took photos in front of the flags that lined the lawn. There was also a flag hung from a fire truck ladder and a firefighter turnout gear. A flag at half-staff also snapped at the high school flagpole across the street.

Jeff Erhet, state fire marshal's office and Bruce West, deputy commissioner of public safety in Minnesota. Ann Schwartz photo

Motorists honked as they went by or stopped and jumped out to snap a photo of the flag display, which was to be removed by dusk on Sept. 11.

Through smooth and rocky roads over 20 years, we are still here and the Star Spangled banner yet waves, o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Leading the parade in Aitkin was a vintage fire truck with fire chief Brian Pisarek (driving) and retired fire chief Rich Fannamel.

The Crosby Police Department partnered with the Crosby Fire Department to honor the victims of the 9/11 terrorist attacks with this display in downtown Crosby.

Drought conditions prove challenging for pheasants and observers

Pheasant numbers have declined by 25 percent from 2020, but numbers remained on par with the 10-year average, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources’ annual roadside wildlife survey.

“While the decline from last year sounds significant, pheasant numbers are actually fairly good and hunters will likely still see plenty of birds when the season opens Oct. 16,” said Tim Lyons, DNR upland game research scientist. “This year, smoke from wildfires and drier-than-average conditions during the survey may have made birds less detectable, possibly skewing the index lower.”

While down from last year, this year’s pheasant indices are on par with or exceed 10-year averages in all regions of the state.

Weather and habitat are the main influences on Minnesota’s pheasant population. Weather causes annual fluctuations in pheasant numbers, while habitat drives long-term population trends.

This year’s statewide pheasant index was 41 birds per 100 miles of roads driven. All regions except the southeast saw a decline from last year in the pheasant index. Still, the southwest (63.2), south central (49.8), and west central (43.3) regions all exceeded the statewide average and remain the prime pheasant hunting areas of the state.

Habitat factors

Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acres in particular play a large role in providing habitat for pheasants in Minnesota. The program, authorized under the federal Farm Bill, pays farmers to remove environmentally sensitive land from agricultural production and restore vegetation that will reduce soil erosion, improve water quality, and provide habitat for wildlife and pollinators.

Although expiring contracts led to a decline in CRP acres in 2021, there was a net increase in conservation on private lands as more than 10,000 acres were protected through other federal and state set-aside programs.

An additional 24,000 acres of habitat were permanently protected through U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service acquisitions and by the DNR as Wildlife Management Areas (WMAs).

Many publicly owned lands are open to hunting, as are private lands enrolled in the state’s Walk-In Access program. Hunters can use the DNR’s online mapping tools to find WMAs at mndnr.gov/wmas, and the DNR Recreation Compass to help locate state hunting grounds and private lands enrolled in the Walk-In Access program, including updates on the condition of specific properties.

How the DNR conducts the roadside wildlife survey

Monitoring pheasant population trends is part of the DNR’s annual August roadside wildlife survey, which began in 1955. Wildlife managers and conservation officers in the farmland regions conduct the survey during the first half of August. This year’s survey consisted of 163 25-mile-long routes, with 148 routes located in the pheasant range.

Observers drive each route in early morning and record the number of farmland wildlife game species they see. The data provide an index of species abundance and are used to monitor annual fluctuations and long-term population trends of pheasants, gray (Hungarian) partridge, eastern cottontail rabbits, white-tailed jackrabbits, mourning doves, Sandhill cranes, and white-tailed deer.

Wildfire-related burning restrictions lifted in 14 counties

Continued favorable weather has improved wildfire risk for much of northern Minnesota. In response, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is removing fire restrictions in 14 counties.

Burning restrictions were lifted Sept. 15 in Beltrami, Becker, Cass, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Hubbard, Itasca, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Mahnommen, Ottertail, St. Louis, Roseau, and Wadena counties.

However, the wildfire risk in remains in the northeastern tip of Minnesota. Therefore, Class III burning restrictions remain in effect for in Cook and Lake counties. Under Class III restrictions.

DNR acting Wildfire Prevention Supervisor, Allissa Reynolds cautions, “Until we have a few inches of snow on the ground, we all need to continue our efforts to reduce wildfires; fires can start easily in dry grass and leaves.”

Forrest Boe, Director of

DNR’s Forestry Division, appreciates the continued support of all Minnesotans in following wildfire-related restrictions, saying, “Everyone’s efforts to prevent wildfires are helping. Thank you and let’s keep it up through the fall.”

Broadband internet access virtual and in-person free event Sept. 30

Everyone relies on the internet for school, business, government, recreation, healthcare, and more. This became even more evident over the last year with students in distance-learning and companies, large and small, that shifted their employees to working remotely—retirees even scheduled Zoom telemedicine appointments for the first time. If internet connections weren't reliable 24/7, residents and businesses scrambled to find access.

For those who live or work in Cass, Crow Wing, Morrison, Todd, or Wadena counties, does your area lack internet access? Does it have the high-speed internet you need to succeed?

To discuss these questions and more, Region Five Development Commission (R5DC) is holding a virtual Zoom event about local broadband access on September 30, from 7–8:30 p.m. You may also attend in person at one of five locations. The purpose of the event is to get organized as a region to secure federal funding for local, high-speed internet. All who live or work in the five-county area are invited.

“We want residents in our five-county region to bring their stories about internet access, frustrations, and ideas to our broadband event,” said Cheryal Lee Hills, executive director of R5DC. “A key factor in improving access to regional broadband is finding out what the needs are and learning how people are managing—or not managing—to access the internet.”

Several regional broadband events will be held statewide, leading up to Blandin Foundation’s ‘Building on Broadband’ annual meeting in October that will focus on the need for reliable, high-speed internet across the state.

“American Recovery Act funds are available for broadband expansion in areas of our five-county region where high-speed internet is currently unavailable, but we need to be organized in order to access and utilize the funding,” said Hills. “Meeting together on September 30 and hearing the stories of others who have struggles accessing the internet is a good start. It will help to highlight the need for reliable high-speed internet for so many residents across our five-county area and beyond. It’s possible to improve regional broadband when we all work together.”

Join the broadband event via Zoom or in-person on September 30 from 7–8:30 p.m. A link will be emailed to those who register. The event is open to anyone interested in discussing current high-speed internet in their area and ways to expand it by accessing federal funding.

To attend the event, either virtually or in-person, register at: <https://r5fiber.eventbrite.com>. To attend in person, select one of these locations when you register:

- Little Falls: Sprout MN, 609 13th Avenue NE, Door 8
- Long Prairie: Country Club, 406 6th St SE
