Christmas Time at Morningside

December has been full of Christmas spirit, every day this month we have had church groups coming to sing Christmas Carols, along with Children's visits from schools and daycares. Pictured is new group "One Generation" who entertained the residents, visitors and staff Friday, December 11th. Everyone enjoyed the group and looks forward to them coming back soon.

The results of a study presented this past June at the European League Against Rheumatism Annual Congress (EULAR 2015) show that diclofenac, naproxen and etoricoxib significantly inhibit ovulation in women with mild musculoskeletal pain. Of the women receiving NSAIDs, only 6.3 percent (diclofenac), 25 percent (naproxen) and 27.3 percent (etoricoxib) ovulated, compared with 100 percent of the control group. These findings suggest that readily available non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs) could have a harmful effect on fertility, and should be used with caution in women wishing to start a family.

Infants and children who are given prescription acid-reducing medications face a substantially higher risk of developing Clostridium difficile infection, a potentially severe colonic disorder. The findings, published recently in the online edition of Clinical Infectious Diseases, suggest that pediatricians may do more harm than good by prescribing these drugs for children who have non-specific gastrointestinal symptoms such as occasional vomiting. The rate of Clostridium difficile (often called C. diff.) infection in children is increasing, with a ten-fold rise from 1991 to 2009. For unknown reasons, the infection has recently emerged as a problem in relatively healthy children lacking traditional risk factors. C. diff. is a bacterium that can cause severe, even fatal, colonic inflammation. The most important risk factor for C. diff. infection is exposure to antibiotics. Antibiotics are thought to disturb the healthy balance of microbes in the intestinal tract, allowing C. diff. to flourish.

A sister testified, she asked her preacher why was he not preaching what is written in The Bible, he said if he did, no one would come to their church! Shameful that a preacher or anyone can profit by fleecing sheep in the name of Jesus. Most so called Christian churches teach to worship Sunday, the day of their Lord and deny all Biblical Feast Days! Who is their Lord that told them to keep Sun-day holy and not to keep the Law and the Feast days Holy? Dan 7:25! The Holy Messiah did not (Mt 5:17-19, Heb 13:8)! If not by The Holy Christ, it is by man and is vain worship (Mt 15:9, 24:4)! Many are drawn to a church and willfully give tithes to a false teacher (2 Co 11:13-15), yet few are drawn to obey The Holy Truth (Jn 3:16, 6:44, 14:6, 15, 25)! Many are called, but few chosen (Mt 20:16). So Be It!
