Gift-Wrapping Tips and Tricks

Much of the focus of each holiday season is on gift-giving, but all those gifts will eventually need to be wrapped. Stacks of presents just waiting to be covered with paper and ribbon can overwhelm gift givers, prompting them to put off wrapping gifts until the last minute.

Handle oddly-shaped items
Wrapping rectangular boxes can be a snap, but what about something that's round or full of angles? Think about placing oddly-shaped items inside another item to make the shape more uniform. Shoe boxes, coffee cans and even paper towel rolls can hold items. Then place the wrapping on these containers.

Cover prices
To enable easy exchanges or returns, do not cut off the price tags of gifts. Instead, place a festive sticker over the dollar amount, but leave the scan bar visible. This way the gift recipient can return the gift with ease if necessary.

Keep supplies at the ready
Devote a bin or bins to wrapping supplies and tools. Having scissors, paper, tape, ribbon, and more in a designated spot will cut down on having to hunt and peck when it comes time to wrap. Martha Stewart suggests getting a rotary cutter to cut long straight or decorative edges on wrapping paper. Rotary cutters may be easier to use than scissors, especially when paired with a ruler.

Wrap on a firm surface
Devote a table or counter to wrapping gifts. This will keep the paper taut and neat and make it easier to cut and position. You risk tearing the paper or puncturing it when working on carpeting or bedding.

Color- or pattern-code gifts
It's easy to visualize who gets what gift when each recipient has his or her own special wrapping paper. This is also a handy idea when wrapping gifts from Santa, as it will differentiate the Santa gifts from the ones being given by Mom and Dad. ■

GIFT GUIDE

How to Time Holiday Shopping Right

The holiday season begins at the end of November and stretches into the first week of January. But this five-week stretch may not necessarily be the best time for everyone to shop.

Harvard Business Review says that the retail industry has been turned on its head in recent years, and shoppers and retailers may want to rethink their approaches to the holiday shopping season. Consumers are no longer interested in retailers dictating their shopping schedules, and some people have grown accustomed to buying products when they want them — especially when price is of no concern.

Even budget-conscious shoppers have changed their habits, says the shopping advisor RetailNext. Many holiday shoppers are delaying their shopping until January to take advantage of post-season sales.

Holiday shopping need not wait until after the holiday season, either. A 2017 RetailMeNot survey found that 45 percent of U.S. consumers said they planned to start shopping before Nov. 1. One-quarter of the survey respondents said they planned to start shopping before October, and 12 percent started shopping for the holidays in the summer.

So when should consumers do their holiday shopping? It all depends on what fits a person's individual needs.

• Shop sales, not schedules. If budget is a big concern, shoppers should grab items that are on sale whenever they are available. That can mean shopping at any time of the year. People can try making a master shopping list early in the year and saving it on their mobile phones. While shopping throughout the year, items from the list can be purchased and stored until the holidays.

• Shop your strengths. Those who get a thrill from tackling their entire shopping list in one haul can still do that. Shopping in this manner can help shoppers focus on the task at hand and reduce the likelihood of wasting time. But keep in mind that, according to a survey conducted by Business Wire, 65 percent of holiday shoppers scramble to complete their purchases in the last two weeks before Christmas, so shoppers who delay may be stuck in long lines at the mall.

• Embrace in-store pickup. Many retailers are merging their online and brick-and-mortar operations. Shoppers have the convenience of price-comparison and online shopping, with the physical enjoyment of going out to the store to complete their purchases. In-store pickup often enables shoppers to avoid hefty shipping fees, as in-store pickup is free. Plus, scoping out items online — and ensuring they're in stock — saves the hassle of making a trip in vain.

Shoppers can look beyond the conventional holiday season to get the best prices and deals that fit their shopping needs. ■

PRESS RELEASE

Have a Sober Plan During Thanksgiving Holiday

in an effort to keep our roadways safer this Thanksgiving Holiday, Orleans County STOP-DWI Coordinator, Sheriff Christopher M. Bourke announced that local law enforcement agencies will actively participate in The STOP-DWI Thanksgiving High Visibility Enforcement Campaign (November 24-28, 2021).

As Thanksgiving Eve is one of the biggest drinking nights of the year, it is vital that law enforcement presence be at its peak on this night to bring awareness to the dangers of impaired driving, reminding drivers to have a Sober Plan while traveling to prevent injuries and save lives.

Although STOP-DWI efforts across New York have led to significant reductions in the numbers of alcohol related fatalities, there are still too many lives lost due to DWI crashes.

You can help- Save Lives- Don't Drink and Drive - Have a Sober Plan!

- ✓ Plan a safe way to get home.
- ✓ Call for a ride from a sober friend/ family, taxi, or Uber.
- ✓ Uber apps can be found at: Google Play and iTunes
- ✓ Have a Plan Mobile App- <http://www.stopdwi.org/mobileapp>

Sheriff Christopher M. Bourke

The STOP-DWI Crackdowns are promoted by New York STOP-DWI Association with additional funding from the Governor's Traffic Safety Committee and implemented by the STOP-DWI Foundation.

ATB is thankful for all our hard-working associates. Have a safe and Happy Thanksgiving!

REAL ESTATE GUIDE

How to create a sunroom

As fall inches closer to winter, it's not uncommon for people to look to the coming cold with a degree of lament. Spring, summer and fall provide ample opportunities to enjoy the great outdoors, but such chances are few and far between once the winter freeze settles in. Though winter might compel the masses to huddle up inside, there's still a way to take in the great outdoors on cold winter days and nights.

It might not prove an exact substitute for summer nights around the firepit, but a sunroom affords homeowners a chance to marvel at snowy winter landscapes without venturing out into the cold. Sometimes referred to as "all-season rooms," sunrooms can make for a great retreat on quiet summer mornings or crisp autumn afternoons. Sunrooms can be treated as blank canvasses, which makes decorating them more fun. But a few tricks of the trade can help homeowners turn their blank canvasses into welcoming spaces to take in all that nature has to offer throughout the year.

• Define the purpose. The experts at Better Homes & Gardens recommend homeowners decide how they want to use the sunroom before they begin decorating it. When the weather gets too chilly to dine outside, will the sunroom serve as an alternative dining space in the same way patios and decks do during the warm weather? Or do homeowners want to turn their sunrooms into reading rooms? Though it's possible to make sunrooms multipurpose spaces, it may be hard to create a relaxing vibe in rooms that are too crowded with furnishings or too busy. Defining how the space will be used also makes it easier when shopping for furnishings.

• Define when the room will be used. In addition to defining how the room will be used, homeowners should give ample consideration to when the room will be used. A year-round sunroom will need to be heated, while a three-season sunroom likely won't require heating. Cooling might be a concern on hot summer afternoons, but many homeowners will likely spend such days outside anyway, so cooling the room may be as simple as installing a ceiling fan and ensuring windows can be opened to let fresh air in. Homeowners who want a year-round sunroom should install insulated glass to keep the room even warmer when the mercury dips.

• Opt for bright colors. Bright colors can make sunrooms feel all the more inviting and make for a perfect match with all the natural light already in the room. The renovation experts at HGTV note that white walls and ceilings can maximize the warm illumination of the natural light that will be pouring in from the floor-to-ceiling windows. Better Homes & Gardens adds that brightly colored cushions, pillows and area rugs with similarly hued colors and patterns can add visual interest and texture to a sunroom.

• Make use of a view. Homeowners needn't direct too much of their focus on decor if their sunrooms come with a view. Art on the walls and other decorative items around the room are less important if a sunroom affords a view of the ocean or a lake or dense woods that attract local wildlife. In rooms with a view, arrange furniture so residents and guests can comfortably look outward and take in all the surround landscape has to offer. Sunrooms are a great place to take in nature no matter the weather.

Travel Thoughts By Kim

Let's go on an adventure together...Cross Country!

I have written about several main features of the cross country motor home trip I took with my brother, sister-in-law, and her sister in the fall of 2016. I thought I might use this issue of "Travel Thoughts By Kim" to pull it all together and talk about how we did it.

The rough...very rough outline of our route - when you have a plan, but not really.

Our mother passed in April 2016 - to say it was a very difficult year for us is a huge understatement. We needed a distraction to just get away and for the three of us to spend time together. Kevin and Lylace invested in a motor home earlier in the year and tried a few times to talk me into going on little trips with them. But, I'm not a "camper". And, then, they mentioned going on a 15-20 day trip through the mid-west that I thought sounded interesting and a good way for us to reboot our lives after so much sadness. So....we started planning.... and 15-20 days turned into 30+ days. We dubbed it our "Most Excellent Adventure"...and, it truly was!

I'm a "planner"...yeah, I've gotten more spontaneous in recent years, but my brother's suggestion that we just "see where the road takes us" was a bit unsettling for me. So, we compromised. We sat down and decided on a couple major points to work around, a list of things we each hoped to get to see or do, and mapped out a rough...very rough...route to accomplish it all. And, from there, we just "went where the road took us"!

What we knew: We were stopping for a couple days in Wisconsin to pick up Lylace's sister, Donna, we all wanted to spend some quality time in South Dakota, and we had to spend a week in Louisiana visiting with Lylace's son and his family. The only time constraint we had was getting to the only pre-booked campground in South Dakota. Other than that, we were flexible and able to change plans as we went. Each morning, we looked ahead and decided how far we wanted to go - general rule of thumb was to get to the next campsite in time to set up before it got too dark, what we wanted to see/do within that distance, and about mid-day, we searched for a campground to call and book for that night. We mostly looked for KOA's, but also stayed at some Good Sam's and a Jellystone park. Some were better than others, but for the most part, had really good experiences with all the parks we chose along the way.

The gang as we prepared to head out on the main portion of the trip.

We started out with just me, Kevin, Lylace, and their dog, Kahlua. We made stops on the way to Wisconsin at the Rock & Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland and Michigan's Upper Peninsula - including the Mystery Spot in St. Ignace. When we got to Wisconsin, we spent a couple days visiting family and seeing the sights - remember my article on the cranberry bogs?

Donna joined us and we headed out for the main portion of the trip. First stop was Lake Itasca, Minnesota to see the head waters of the Mighty Mississippi River - the only place where you can actually walk across the river. This also resulted in us seeing the Mississippi from start to finish, as we also visited the Mississippi Delta when we got to Louisiana and several points in between.

We spent a week in South Dakota seeing The Badlands, Custer State Park, Crazy Horse, Mount Rushmore, Deadwood, and so much more. If you ever get the chance to go to South Dakota, GO!!! What an awesome state. I've been there twice, now, and would jump at the chance to go again.

It is a real thrill to watch America go by from the table of a motor home...you never know what you'll see.

We, then, headed to Louisiana with lots of states and stops in between. We spent about a week in Louisiana visiting family, where I broke off from the group and took a side trip to Pensacola, FL to visit a friend. I also spent time with another friend in New Orleans. Other friends we visited along the way were in Minnesota. After Louisiana, we headed back to Wisconsin to drop Donna off and then home....seeing more states as we took a different path up north and east.

While we were planning the trip, I was nervous about being cooped up in a motor home with three other adults and a dog for so long....remember my comment about not being a "camper"? So, I told myself that if at any time I felt I'd had enough, I could always find the nearest airport and fly home....I never even considered that option, again! It was one of my best memories and times with my brother and his wife at a time when we all needed it so very much. I cherish that trip and am happy for each and every one of the 34 days, over 6000 miles, and 21 states we experienced together.

Just one of MANY special moments captured on our trip. This is my brother and sister-in-law overlooking the Badlands in SD - my favorite photo of the over 2000 taken on the trip!

6 advantages to dining out

Dining out was once a rarity reserved for special occasions. More recently, consumption of food away from home has played an increasingly larger role in everyday life. According to the United States Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service, the increase in dining out since the 1970s is owed to a larger share of two-income households, more convenient and affordable food outlets, increased advertising and promotion by food chains, and the smaller size of most households. One shouldn't discount the wide array of options and the convenience that dining out can provide. There are many advantages to dining out, and the decision to do so during the pandemic can help local restaurants stay afloat as they continue to confront the challenges of the COVID-19 outbreak.

- 1. It's fun and exciting
Dining out can be a fun and exciting experience that takes people away from the routine of daily life. Dining out presents an opportunity to look forward to a specific day on the calendar. For many, it can be a respite from making meals at home. Dining out is a social endeavor, even if you aren't interacting with that many other people in the restaurant.

- 2. Introduces new foods
Dining at a restaurant can be eye-opening for customers willing to try new things. Restaurants that specialize in ethnic cuisine can introduce diners to classic recipes from around the world — something they may not normally try if they do not dine out.
- 3. Prolongs the dinner hour
Dining out gives diners a chance to linger and converse without the distractions of home and daily schedules. A restaurant can be a good way to focus on communication with family and friends.
- 4. Escape workplace distractions
A workday lunch or business meeting held at a restaurant can help coworkers escape workplace pressures and distractions. Such meals also can be a great way for managers to foster strong relationships and build camaraderie within their teams.

- 5. Convenience
One of the best arguments for eating out is the convenience factor. When time is of the essence, making a reservation, eating out and allowing the restaurant to handle everything from service to cleanup cuts down on work at home. This frees up opportunities to do other tasks, including spending time with one another.
- 6. Variety
Many households are comprised of people with different palates. Restaurants have many offerings, which means that each member of the dining party can choose his or her own unique dish. This is not something easily achieved at home. Dining out has been gaining popularity for more than 40 years. Individuals and families can explore the many different advantages to enjoying a meal at a local eatery.
