

The gift of 'Life'

NBC

Frank Capra's timeless classic "It's a Wonderful Life" celebrates 75 years of heartwarming holiday spirit when it airs Saturday, Dec. 4, on NBC. Jimmy Stewart ("The Philadelphia Story," 1940) stars as down-on-his-luck husband and father George Bailey, a man who wishes he had never been born. George gets the shock of his life when he soon meets Clarence Odbody (Henry Travers, "Mrs. Miniver," 1942), an angel sent to show him his value on Earth.

It's a Wonderful classic

Celebrating 75 years of Bedford Falls

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

As the holidays cast a bright light over winter's long, dark days ahead, TV viewers can look forward to seasonal classics to lift their spirits. One such film celebrates an auspicious milestone as it only seems to improve with age.

Jimmy Stewart ("The Philadelphia Story," 1940) stars as down-on-his-luck husband and father George Bailey in "It's a Wonderful Life," airing Saturday, Dec. 4, on NBC. Celebrating its 75th anniversary this year, the classic film will also air on Christmas Eve in what has become an annual tradition for the network.

Directed by Academy Award winner Frank Capra ("Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," 1939), the holiday film follows George from childhood to age 38 when he learns an important lesson about the meaning of life.

On the brink of financial ruin as his family's Bailey Bros. Building & Loan Association threatens to go under, he contemplates suicide on Christmas Eve and wishes he'd never been born. His wish prompts his guardian angel, Clarence Odbody (Henry Travers, "Mrs. Miniver," 1942), to show him what life would be like for his loved ones if he had never existed. George soon discovers that his beloved hometown of Bedford Falls is now known as Pottersville, named after greedy, unscrupulous banker Mr. Potter (Lionel Barrymore, "A Free Soul," 1931). George checks in with his loved ones, such as his wife, Mary (Donna Reed, "From Here to Eternity," 1953), and his Uncle Billy (Thomas Mitchell, "Gone With the Wind," 1939), who insist they've never met him.

Karolyn Grimes and James Stewart as seen in "It's a Wonderful Life"

"Each man's life touches so many other lives," Clarence tells George in the film. "When he isn't around, he leaves an awful hole, doesn't he?"

While the drama that unfolds onscreen has captured the hearts of millions over the past 75 years, the story of how the film found its way to the screen is almost as fascinating.

Based on the short story "The Greatest Gift" by writer Philp Van Doren Stern, which was, itself, inspired by the Charles Dickens classic "A Christmas Carol," Van Doren Stern self-published the book and sent it around to friends at Christmas after failing to find a publisher. The story soon came to the attention of Hollywood studio heads, who wanted to cast Cary Grant ("Bringing Up Baby," 1938) in the leading role, but it eventually found its way to Capra, who saw its potential for Stewart.

Several writers were brought in to work on the script, including Jo Swerling ("The Pride of the Yankees," 1942), Michael Wilson ("A Place in the Sun," 1951), Dorothy Parker ("A Star is Born," 1937) and husband-and-wife duo Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett (both "Father of the Bride," 1950). Unfortunately, according to legend, the writing process was rife with conflict between the writers.

Seven children from around the world follow Santa home on Christmas Eve and decide to surprise him with some help around the house while he sleeps.

The holiday spirit seems distant for the Boyce family until an unexpected visitor and miracle change everything on Christmas day.

When Blitzen announces his retirement on December 21st, a miniature horse has 3 days to fulfill his lifelong dream of earning a spot on Santa's team at the North Pole try-outs.

When a man and a woman make a deal to learn each other's holiday traditions, they realize they have a lot in common and fall in love.

13 year old kind-hearted Sonja arrives at a tiny village together with a company of bandits. But there is a curse on the village.

In the end, writing credits went to Goodrich, Hackett and Capra with scenes by Swerling.

After the script was set, cast and crew got to work on a four-acre Bedford Falls set that consisted of a main street three city blocks long, 75 buildings and stores, and a quaint residential neighborhood.

Watching the film, you might swear Stewart and company were traipsing through a winter wonderland, but the truth is that the movie was filmed from April to July 1946 in exactly 90 days, as scheduled. In fact, part of it was filmed during a heat-wave, including an iconic snowy scene — the one where George runs through a snowy Bedford Falls. Special effects artist Russell Shearman created a new “chemical snow” using soap flakes, sugar and foamite, which earned him and colleagues Marty Martin and Jack Lannan a Technical Achievement Award at the 1946 Academy Awards.

All in all, “It’s a Wonderful Life” earned five Academy Award nominations, separate from the technical award: Best Picture, Best Director, Best Actor (for Stewart, of course), Best Film Editing and Best Sound Recording. While many try to claim the film was universally panned at the time of its release, that was not so.

Time magazine claimed it was among the best films of the year, calling it “a pretty wonderful movie.” However, many reviewers did find the piece overly sentimental, and the movie didn’t break even at the box office, losing about half a million dollars. The film’s critics included the FBI, which issued a memo claiming that “It’s a Wonderful Life” had communist undertones, attempted to discredit bankers and tried to show that rich people were mean and despicable by portraying Mr. Potter as the villain.

Still, despite naysayers, Capra claimed it was his favorite film, and he reportedly screened it for his family every Christmas season, as millions of families do now.

George Bailey was supposedly Stewart’s favorite character he ever played, his first big role after returning from serving in World War II. Several of the entertainment industry’s most successful directors have also cited “It’s a Wonderful Life” among their favorites, including Stephen Spielberg (“Jaws,” 1975), Rob Reiner (“A Few Good Men,” 1992) and Edward Zwick (“thirtysomething”).

Donna Reed and James Stewart in “It’s a Wonderful life”

Since its release 75 years ago, Capra’s movie has only grown in popularity, especially since rights lapsed into the public domain in the 1970s, allowing broadcasters to air it more easily during the Christmas season. It’s become a part of many people’s annual holiday traditions with its life-affirming message and picture-perfect performances by Stewart and Reed. In 2006, AFI ranked “It’s a Wonderful Life” as the most inspirational film of all time, and the following year it ranked the film as the 20th greatest movie of all time.

Love for the residents of Bedford Falls lives on during an annual festival in Seneca Falls, New York, which some people have claimed was Capra’s inspiration for the quaint setting of the film, though no one has ever found corroborating evidence that this is the case. Regardless, each year the town welcomes fans and special guests associated with the film.

The fact that there is an annual festival 75 years after the film’s release is clear evidence that its message rings true with today’s audiences. Far from today’s typical saccharine holiday offerings, “It’s a Wonderful Life” is dark and serious as George considers ending it all before coming to his senses and facing the music.

Perhaps his tale will prompt us all to take a look at our own lives and realize that while we may focus on what we do not have or have not done in our lives, it is the impact we’ve had on those around us that really matters. For, as Clarence writes to George, “Remember no man is a failure who has friends.”

In a sometimes uncertain world, this is one holiday classic that is definitely worthy of an annual viewing or two.

Don’t miss “It’s a Wonderful Life,” airing Saturday, Dec. 4, and Friday, Dec. 24, on NBC.

Five unconventional holiday heroes

by Dana Simpson

When it comes to holiday heroes, everyone is familiar with the classics. From Santa Claus and his elves to Rudolph and Frosty, holiday cheer can be found just about everywhere this time of the year — even in the strangest of places (and genres!). Here are a few unconventional heroes to root for this yuletide season.

John McClane

“Die Hard” (1988)

In Los Angeles to visit his estranged wife (Bonnie Bedelia, “Presumed Innocent,” 1990) for Christmas, NYPD Det. John McClane (Bruce Willis, “The Sixth Sense,” 1999) finds a unique way to bring holiday cheer to the City of Angels in this classic action film. When his wife’s company Christmas party is crashed by a group of East German terrorists, led by Hans Gruber (Alan Rickman, “Love Actually,” 2003) and looking to steal millions of dollars in American bearer bonds, several people are taken hostage. McClane takes it upon himself to stop Gruber himself while awaiting the local police force.

Bruce Willis in “Die Hard”; moviestilladb.com

Davey Stone

“Eight Crazy Nights” (2002)

Now in his early 30s and still just as party-loving as ever, Davy Stone (voiced by Adam Sandler, “Little Nicky,” 2000) gets himself into a lot of trouble with the law during Hanukkah in this animated musical comedy. Softened by the spirit of the season and willing to cut Stone a break, the judge assigns the degenerate to help coach a basketball team instead of being forced to spend the holidays in jail. But when Stone meets the team’s elderly, elf-like coach, he thinks maybe a Hanukkah spent in jail would have been easier.

The Pi Kappa Sigma sisters

“Black Christmas” (1974)

Holidays become horror days for Jess (Olivia Hussey, “It,” 1990), Barb (Margot Kidder, “The Amityville Horror,” 1979) and the Pi Kappa Sigma sisters as an anonymous caller begins antagonizing them in this Christmas-themed horror flick. Once the sisters realize the calls aren’t the misguided pranks of a local fraternity, they must band together to get out alive.

Willie Stokes

“Bad Santa” (2003)

A down-on-his-luck convicted conman, Willie T. Stokes (Billy Bob Thornton, “Goliath”) is looking for a way to bring in some more money, and fast! Normally working one season a year as a department store Santa, Stokes and his partner, Marcus (Tony Cox, “Spaceballs,” 1987), devise an elaborate holiday heist at his place of work.

Gizmo

“Gremlins” (1984)

Arguably the cutest hero on the list, Gizmo is a furry mystery creature called a Mogwai. Bought on impulse while Christmas shopping in Chinatown, Billy’s (Zach Galligan, “Waxwork,” 1988) father gifts him the Mogwai along with three important rules: no bright lights, don’t get him wet and never, ever feed him after midnight. When the rules are broken, Gizmo and Billy accidentally unleash a band of vicious Gremlins on their small town.

Our favorite festive and furry films

by Dana Simpson

Despite their many differences to humans, animals have always had a way of warming hearts, even in the coldest winter weather. And while movie lovers are often quick to name human-led holiday film favorites, here is a list of five films — animated and live-action — that are fronted by at least one unlikely animal hero.

The Star (2017)

A creative retelling of the nativity, this recent computer-animated story looks at what the birth of Jesus might have been like from the perspective of the animals in the manger on that fateful night in Bethlehem. Eager to break free from his life of labor at the village mill, little donkey Bo (Steven Yeun, “Minari,” 2020) finally finds the courage to make his dreams come true. Teaming up with flockless sheep Ruth (Aidy Bryant, “Shrill”), Dave the dove (Keegan-Michael Key, “Key and Peele”), three quirky camels and a few barn animals, the troupe unwittingly becomes a major set of characters in the story of the first Christmas.

The Search for Santa Paws (2010)

A prequel to the 2009 film “Santa Buddies,” this adorable spinoff sees a magical former stuffed-toy dog named Santa Paws travel to New York City from the North Pole with his owner, Santa Claus (Richard Riehle, “The Hebrew Hammer,” 2003), hoping to settle some personal business. Along the way, however, the two Santas get into some trouble, and it’s up to their friends back home to save them.

Olive, the Other Reindeer (1999)

A clever play on the lyrics to the famous Christmas song mentioned earlier, “Olive, the Other Reindeer” tells the adorable story of Olive (Drew Barrymore, “Santa Clarita Diet”), an anthropomorphic Jack Russell terrier who finds out one of Santa’s (Ed Asner, “Elf,” 2003) reindeer has been injured and becomes determined to cheer up his owner by saving Christmas. Teaming up with a con artist penguin named Martini (Joe Pantoliano, “The Matrix,” 1999), Olive travels to the North Pole, hoping to make it in time for the big night.

Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer (1964)

A beloved classic for more than half a century, this stop-motion animated film tells the tale of Rudolph (voiced by Billie Mae Richards, “Shadow Builder,” 1998), a young reindeer who has been cast out of family events, school activities and all those much sung about “reindeer games” on account of his abnormal, bright red nose. Upset, Rudolph runs away, looking for friends who will accept him. However, when Santa (Stan Francis, “The New Adventures of Pinocchio”) needs help seeing through the fog that Christmas, Rudolph’s nose proves handy.

An American Tail (1986)

This heartwarming animated musical dramedy has become a favorite to watch during the Festival of Lights. The story of Fievel (Phillip Glasser, “Hang Time”), a Russian Jewish mouse emigrating to the United States, a land believed to be without cats. After he is separated from his parents during the trip, Fievel must learn to navigate his new home alone while trying to make friends and avoid the cats he thought he had finally dodged for good. An allegory for the Jewish experience in America, this film takes place around Hanukkah and is sure to light up any household this holiday season.

Thank You

As 2021 comes to a close, we can't help but think about how much our world has changed these past 20 months, for our programs and for the people we serve. The pandemic has continued to take its toll on the economy and the mental and physical health of our neighbors, causing us to look for more ways to be effective in our service to others and caring for those in need. We have continued our work to expand our programs and service offerings as well as pushing forward on our renovation projects in all of our buildings. We are so appreciative of the outpouring of support we have seen and grateful for our community and leaders at both City, County and State level.

NBC launches rags-to-riches production

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

While “the sun will come out tomorrow,” it might shine brightest this year on Thursday, Dec. 2, when one of the most beloved musicals of all time is featured live on NBC. “Annie Live!” airs this holiday season as a live, family-friendly television production — and there are a few names associated with it that are nearly as big as the adorable orphan’s own.

Starring in the titular role is relative newcomer Celina Smith (“Tyler Perry’s Young Dylan”), marking the second time in history that the role will be filled by a Black actress — and what a role it is!

For those unfamiliar with the musical’s storyline, Annie is a kind, loving, if not a little rough-around-the-edges foundling who is dropped off at an orphanage run by the despicable Miss Hannigan (Taraji P. Henson, “Hidden Figures,” 2016), a harsh woman who does everything in her power to make the orphans’ lives a miserable existence. With just half a locket to her name, Annie remains hopeful her parents will come back for her, but Miss Hannigan always finds a way to crush her spirit.

Then a visitor arrives and changes everything for young Annie.

Billionaire Oliver “Daddy” Warbucks, played in “Annie Live!” by none other than actor/crooner Harry Connick Jr. (“P.S. I Love You,” 2007), is the perfect image of a suave and guarded businessman. After his secretary, Grace Farrell (Nicole Scherzinger, “The Masked Singer”), pays a visit to Miss Hannigan to invite one of the orphans (surprise, it’s Annie) to spend a week with him — ultimately to improve his public image — Warbucks finds himself slowly growing fonder of the girl.

Amid New York City adventures, secrets shared in confidence and a full line-up of upbeat, feel-good hit songs, Warbucks does everything in his power (and he has a lot of power!) to bring joy and love into little Annie’s life, including helping her find her birth parents. Unfortunately, there are two scheming criminals looking to ruin Annie’s happiness at all costs.

“Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt” stars Tituss Burgess and Jane Krakowski star side-by-side once again as Miss Hannigan’s seedy brother, Rooster, and his girlfriend/partner-in-crime, Lily St. Regis. Helping Hannigan to balance the proverbial scales (in her eyes), as she believes no orphan deserves a life of luxury, Rooster and Lily concoct an evil plan to get Annie away from Warbucks for good.

While the main plot may sound familiar to anyone who’s seen the Broadway show or any film adaptation — most popular among them the 1982 film version starring Carol Burnett (“The Carol Burnett Show”), Albert Finney (“Erin Brockovich,” 2000) and Aileen Quinn (“Multiple Sarcasms,” 2010) as Annie — few would classify the tale as a Christmas story.

Of course the song-and-dance routines, feel-good message and family vibe contribute to the holiday feeling, but what many viewers (and the occasional filmmaker) has overlooked is that the story’s resolution takes place during the Christmas season — because there’s no better feeling than spending the holidays with the ones you love.

Directed by Alex Rudzinski (“Grease Live!” 2016) and Lear deBessonnet (Off-Broadway’s “The

“Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt” co-stars Jane Krakowski and Tituss Burgess to star in “Annie Live!”

Winter’s Tale,” 2014), with Sergio Trujillo (“Jersey Boys,” 2014) as the choreographer, production credits for “Annie Live!” go to Rudzinski, Robert Greenblatt (“9 to 5,” 2008) and Neil Meron (“The Wiz Live!” 2015).

Don’t miss the classic tale when it airs live before your eyes Thursday, Dec. 2, on NBC. For those who are otherwise engaged in cookie decorating, light stringing or gift purchasing, a taped version of the live broadcast will be airing once again on the network Monday, Dec. 20.

Food Network launches premiere scripted holiday film

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Much like many families that may be forced to gather in a different way for a second pandemic-affected year, Food Network is trying something different this year. Amid all of the season's baking competitions, holiday cooking tips and star-studded wintery episodes, the Discovery Inc. network is launching its first-ever scripted program on discovery+ this yuletide season. "Candy Coated Christmas" airs Friday, Nov. 19, on the streamer.

The food-centric film follows the serendipitous union of business-woman Molly (Molly McCook, "Last Man Standing") and family man Noah (Aaron O'Connell, "The Haves and the Have Nots"), who "find themselves in an unusual situation as their pasts, present and futures collide to create an unexpected outcome just in time for Christmas" (per Food Network). Word has it there is even a greenhouse full of fresh mint, a spirit-lifting Christmas party and a fateful sprinkling of snow in the small (and adorably named) town of Peppermint Hollow to set the scene.

Ree Drummond, ranch wife, mother, blogger and star of Food Network's "Pioneer Woman," also stars in the new special as Bee, the owner of the local candy shop. Her first time acting in a film, Drummond is seeing one of her own wishes come true this holiday season — she once admitted in a statement, "If I get to be in just one movie in my life, I want it to be a Christmas movie."

And despite the new project's scripted nature, it wouldn't be a Food Network production if there wasn't a recipe involved. That's why the recipe for Bee's (it's really Drummond's own creation) famous Mint Brownie Bites is available on FoodNetwork.com.

So why not settle in with a cup of hot cocoa, make those Mint Brownie Bites and take in some early Christmas fun this Nov. 19 when "Candy Coated Christmas" airs on discovery+. Who knows? If it goes well, Food Network and discovery+ may make their scripted films an annual event (watch out, Hallmark!).

Gingerbread House/People

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Put a bit of sugar and spice into your holidays with this easily customizable treat. A traditional Christmas treat in any form, gingerbread is the perfect winter snack for sharing with friends and family. Bonus: this makes a great activity for a family, even leaving time to take in a holiday film while dough sets.

INGREDIENTS:

3/4 cup melted butter
3/4 cup well-packed brown sugar
2/3 cup molasses
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1 large egg
3 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 tsp. ground cloves
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. ground ginger
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
Zest of 1 orange (optional)
Candies of choice, icing and powdered icing sugar for decorating

Tip

A hefty line of hardening icing works best to hold gingerbread house walls together.

DIRECTIONS:

- Using a hand mixer, beat butter, brown sugar and molasses for two minutes or until fluffy. Add egg and vanilla, beating until combined.
- In a separate bowl, combine flour, baking soda, spices and salt. Gradually whisk in wet ingredients and orange zest. Mix until doughy.
- Divide dough into halves, wrap in plastic wrap and chill until firm (usually about three hours).
- Preheat oven to 350 F and line two cookie pans with parchment paper.
- Roll one ball of lightly floured dough onto each baking sheet, making sure it's no thinner than a quarter-inch to avoid burning.
- If making a house, cut out four rectangular pieces (roof and sides), two square pieces (front and back) and two triangular pieces (roof gables), in addition to a large base.
- If making gingerbread men, now is the time to form them using your favorite cookie cutters.
- Place house pieces/gingerbread men on the cookie pans. Bake for approximately 10 minutes, or until dough is puffy and golden brown.
- When ready, let sit for 5-10 minutes before moving to cooling rack to finish.
- Once cool, let the decorating begin, using your favorite icings and candies.

Netflix debuts its first LGBTQ+ holiday rom-com

By Raye Smith
TV Media

The holidays are fast approaching, which means a sleighful of festive new content to ring in the season. So while stockings are being hung, candles are being lit and friends and family are coming together to celebrate, studios are giving the gift of feel-good holiday content to suit every soul.

The past few years have been groundbreaking for LGBTQ+ content in holiday films, meeting an increased demand for inclusivity. In 2020, the Hallmark Channel debuted its first holiday film featuring a gay leading couple in “The Christmas House,” as did Lifetime with “The Christmas Setup.” Hulu premiered the lesbian romance “Happiest Season” as well, the first LGBTQ+ holiday rom-com produced by a major studio, which grabbed attention with big-name stars Kristen Stewart (“Spencer,” 2021), Mackenzie Davis (“Blade Runner 2049,” 2017), Dan Levy (“Schitt’s Creek”) and Alison Brie (“Community”).

Now, Netflix is getting in the loving spirit with its own first LGBTQ+ holiday romance. “Single All the Way” premieres Thursday, Dec. 2, on the streamer.

Peter (Michael Urie, “Ugly Betty”) is out, proud and perpetually single.

Desperate to avoid his family’s judgment about his relationship status (or really, lack thereof) and to have a more relaxed holiday trip home, Peter asks his best friend, Nick (Philemon Chambers, “Of Hearts and Castles,” 2020), to join him and pretend they’re in a relationship. However, when Peter’s well-meaning but meddling mother, Carole (Kathy Najimy, “Hocus Pocus,” 1993), sets him up on a blind date with her handsome trainer, James (Luke Macfarlane, “Brothers & Sisters”), the plan starts to fall apart.

This sweetly hilarious holiday film comes from Tony-winning director Michael Mayer (of Broadway’s “Spring Awakening” (2006) and the 2006 big screen family hit “Flicka”). “Wayward Pines” Chad Hodge pens the script, as Joel S. Rice (“Signed, Sealed, Delivered”) takes on executive producing duties.

With a supporting cast rounded out by pop culture icons Barry Bostwick (“The Rocky Horror Picture Show,” 1975), Jennifer Coolidge (“Legally Blonde,” 2001) and Jennifer Robertson (“Schitt’s Creek”), this highly anticipated film is making a splash in Netflix’s lineup of festive content, which includes 23 new specials — five of them original romantic comedies.

Speaking about his writing process for “Single All the Way,” Hodge said: “I made a list of all the things I personally wanted to see in a holiday rom-com. The list ran the gamut, from honestly portraying the uniqueness of gay friendships and relationships, to the often hilarious dynamics of our families, to Jennifer Coolidge. I’m so grateful to Netflix for embracing all of it.”

Michael Urie and Jennifer Coolidge star in “Single All the Way”

Mayer also noted that it was “really gratifying to tell a story that happens after coming out!”

There’s also a cozy lineup of LGBTQ+ rom-coms for non-Netflix users across a variety of platforms. Take, for example, Lifetime’s premiere lesbian romance, “Under the Christmas Tree,” premiering Sunday, Dec. 19, in which marketing whiz Alma (Elise Bauman, “Carmilla”) meets Christmas tree whisperer Charlie (Tattiawna Jones, “The Handmaid’s Tale”), and romantic sparks start to fly between the two despite a rough beginning.

Hallmark is also releasing a sequel to 2020’s “The Christmas House.” “The Christmas House 2: Deck Those Halls,” premiering Saturday, Dec. 18, sees the return of on-screen husbands Jonathan Bennett (“Mean Girls,” 2004) and Brad Harder (“Aurora Teagarden Mysteries”) alongside the original cast. This time around, the Mitchell brothers, Mike (Robert Buckley, “One Tree Hill”) and Brandon (Bennett), compete to see who can make the best Christmas house.

Get jolly with those you love this holiday season, and don’t miss “Single All the Way” when it premieres Thursday, Dec. 2, on Netflix.
