THE TRAVELING AGGIES

Tumbleweed Smith

Jennifer Bohac took Aggies all over the world during the twenty years she was the travel director of Texas A & M's Alumni Association. She always packed two special items: patience and flexibility. When she finished her three degrees at A & M she took a job at the University of Minnesota. Although she grew up in the Houston area and didn't see much snow or ice, she decided to take up ice skating in the cold northern state.

Tumbleweed Smith

"They were shocked to find out that someone my age didn't know how to skate. Up there they start skating about the time they start walking," says Jennifer. One February she got a call from A & M and was offered a job.

"The Traveling Aggies were looking for a director because the previous director was retiring. At the time it was below freezing in Minnesota and it was 82 degrees in College Station. I said I would come down and interview for the job." She got the job in 2001, not a good travel year.

"Here I was brand new starting the program and had to deal with the effects of the September 11th attack on New York's World Trade Center buildings. It took about a year to recover."

When she took over, the Traveling Aggies were going on about ten trips a year. When she left that position a couple of years ago there were ninety trips a year.

"I was on the road probably 240 days a year and traveled to nearly 100 countries. My house is filled with all kinds of things from my trips. You get on a plane and end up on a river cruise or on a safari in Africa and by the end of that trip people are new lifelong friends. They end up going to each other's houses, then going on another trip together. Many members of the TAs have been on several overseas jaunts."

When she took Aggies through the Panama Canal, one of the favorite tours, she and her group got special treatment because an A & M grad was in charge of getting ships through the canal. After all those countries and all that travel including 26 safaris, Jennifer has some favorite places.

"I think the place that probably stole my heart is East Africa."

She always carried an Aggie flag on her trips. It's been on every continent. Jennifer says the travelers sang the Aggie War Hymn all over the world.

"I think the most memorable Aggie War Hymn story I have is when we were on a golf trip to Scotland and there was an Aggie couple that owned the pub there at Saint Andrews where we were having a big Aggie celebration. The owner of the pub Jack Willolby decided for our party he would have a bagpiper learn the Aggie War Hymn, something that's very hard to do on bagpipes. It took him a few weeks, we understand. So we were having this great party and in comes this bagpiper and literally played the Aggie War Hymn on a set of bagpipes much to the delight of the happy Aggies."

Dr. Jennifer Bohac now works with the A & M Foundation.
