Time for Spring Fishing

MAINE (May 13, 2022) -- The water is starting to warm up and so is fishing throughout the state! No matter where you live, or where you are visiting, there are fish to catch near you. In this month's Fishing Report, Maine's fisheries biologists are reminding anglers that fish are hungry in May... Make your bait or lure match the natural food available for the best chance for getting a bite. Slow retrieves and slow trolling speeds can be more productive.

Spring stocking is underway. Our hatchery teams are stocking nearly 400,000 fish in over 450 waters this spring! Most waters are stocked in May depending on water levels and temperature. View the Stocking Report online, updated daily.

Remember that the water is extremely cold this time of year, and water levels are often high and fast - ALWAYS wear a life-jacket. Be a good land user by picking up after yourself (and others), asking for permission to access private land, being mindful of road conditions, and parking where you should.

Early Spring Fishing Tips

"During the early season the 'go to' bait for my kids and I are worms. They can be easily found and work quite well. They can be purchased at most gas stations, convenience stores, as well as local tackle and bait shops. Bobbers or a fishing float while fishing with worms may be beneficial for beginners since it will help keep the bait from getting stuck on the bottom. We also like to use small spinners and lures. We find that a slow retrieval works best this time of year. Just fast enough so that the spinner blade is turning, or a lure/spoon has a slight wobble. Great options are small Panther Martin spinners, Rooster Tails spinners, Mepps Aglia spinners, Rapala floating lures, Phoebe spoons, and let's not forget about the old Super Duper! All of which come in a variety of colors and sizes." - From Fisheries Resource Technician Stephen Seeback

"For fly anglers fishing the rivers and streams for brook trout, my favorite fly is the Woods Special. For pond brook trout fishing my favorite fly is the Micky Finn. For catching a brook trout with lures my favorite lure as a kid was the gold Phoebe." - From Fisheries Resource Supervisor Greg Burr, Grand Lake Region

"In May the fish are hungry, but the water is still cold and there is an abundance of wild forage. Making your bait or lure match the natural food available is the best chance for getting a bite. Slow retrieves on lures or flies, and slow trolling speeds can be more productive." - From Fisheries Resource Biologist Tyler Grant, Rangeley Lakes Region

"While fish can suddenly be on the bite at any time, there is a lot of truth to the old adage, "The early bird gets the worm." Some of the best spring trout and salmon fishing often occurs from dawn to 8:00 AM, and dusk is also a good bet." - Fisheries Resource Supervisor James Pellerin, Sebago Lake Region

"Presentation can often be the key to improving your angling success. Try to minimize the "unnatural" in your gear. Keep hook sizes appropriate for the species you're targeting; don't use a size 2/0 hook for brook trout. Minimize the use of swivels, if possible. Choose the right pound test for your line. Heavy line is more difficult to cast and it can greatly impact bait presentation and hook sets. Keep your line as light as possible and make sure you know how to use the drag settings on your reel." - From Fisheries Resource Supervisor Jason Seiders, Belgrade Lakes Region

BCM Offers Free Valet Bike Parking at 21 Thompson's Point Concerts

PORTLAND, ME (May 12, 2022) -- Bicycle-riding music fans will once again be able to safely park their bikes for free at all 21 concerts in the State Theatre Summer Concert Series at Thompson's Point, the Bicycle Coalition of Maine (BCM) and Sierra Nevada Brewing Co. announced on Thursday.

"We're pleased to again offer valet bike parking as an alternative to driving for folks attending concerts at Thompson's Point this summer," said Bicycle Coalition of Maine Event Director Colleen Donohoe. "More shows means even more opportunities to ride!"

This is the third year that the Coalition is offering this service at the outdoor venue's shows.

Valet bike parking is a concept that is becoming increasingly popular and is similar to a coat-check service. Concert attendees can ride their bikes to Thompson's Point for any show, drop their bicycle off with BCM staff and volunteers near the entrance at no cost, receive a wristband that matches one put on their bike, and enjoy the concert worry-free.

The bikes will be stored on racks in a secure area, and when the show is over, attendees can return to the valet bike parking tent and have their bike brought to them by a volunteer.

The Coalition says they are actively looking for volunteers to staff this year's concerts.

"We've had outstanding help from volunteers since starting this program, and we couldn't do it without them," said Donohoe, who added that interested parties can email ride@bikemaine.org. "We have a blast running the valet bike parking, and all volunteers receive a free ticket to that evening's show."

This initiative is part of the BCM's commitment to encouraging active transportation, the Coalition says, noting that vehicle parking passes tend to sell out for most shows.

Valet bike parking will make its 2022 debut in two weeks at the Sylvan Esso concert on Thursday, May 26, and will continue for every summer show, culminating with Rainbow Kitten Surprise on Saturday, Sept. 17.

In addition to support from Sierra Nevada Brewing Co., Martin's Point Health Care and L.L.Bean are also sponsoring the valet bike parking program.

"Gorham Cleans Up" A Success

GORHAM, ME (May 13, 2022) -- The third "Gorham Cleans Up" up event held on April 3, 2022 in Gorham hosted by the Gorham Conservation Commission was a huge success, thanks to the efforts of more than 100 volunteers.

More than 1,600 pounds of trash and litter were collected, filling two dump trucks. Follow along in the video linked on the Gorham Recreation Department's Facebook page, courtesy of GoCam, as volunteers beautify Gorham.

Much gratitude to the wonderful volunteers and the Gorham Conservation Commission for cleaning up the community. Stay tuned for the next clean up event date and details to be announced in the fall.

Newsmakers, Names & Faces Efficiency Maine Holds Free Consults for Energy-Efficiency Projects

AUGUSTA, ME (May 11, 2022) – Efficiency Maine has been providing incentives to businesses and institutions around the state to upgrade their building systems and recently began offering free virtual consultations for businesses interested in learning more about how to get started on an energy-efficiency project.

"There's never been a better time to switch from outdated oil and propane heating systems to heat pumps, as well as upgrade lighting systems to LEDs,' says Rick Meinking, senior program manager for commercial initiatives at Efficiency Maine. "To help businesses get started. we're excited to offer customers a no cost, no obligation virtual consultation with a member of the Efficiency Maine team. We hope that these discussions will help customers define the solutions that will reduce their business's energy use and costs."

Commercial and industrial businesses interested in assessing their needs before starting a project can sign up for a virtual consultation on the Efficiency Maine website. Businesses ready to get started with a project can call 866-376-2463 or send an email to CIP@efficiencymaine.com.

Efficiency Maine offers a variety of incentives for businesses of all sizes. Many are already experiencing the money-saving benefits of updated systems.

Fryeburg Academy installed two heat-pump based variable refrigerant flow (VRF) systems with heat recovery in their campus student union and is now saving more than $900 a year.

"It's been a wonderful addition to campus," said Dave Powers, facility manager at Fryeburg Academy. "It's comfortable in the winter. Now in the summer, for the people who work year-round, they have an air-conditioned space. During this winter's cold snaps, the heat worked great. Prior to this project, I would've had all kinds of issues keeping up with the heat during this last cold spell.

"Every penny that we save on utility expenses, we can put into educating the students," said Powers. "It's really great to be able to put the money into programming and not into utilities."

Mastway Development, the developer of the mixed-use campus Stevens Commons located in Hallowell, also upgraded to energy-efficient technology with the help of Efficiency Maine. Mastway Development installed three VRF systems in the newly constructed Cleveland Hall, a student residence for the University of Maine at Augusta located in Stevens Commons.

"The new VRF systems have been a game changer for us," said Matt Morrill, chief executive officer of Mastway Development, which is currently working on the revitalization of Stevens Commons. "Switching from inefficient oil-fired steam systems to an all-in-one product that provides both heating and cooling makes a world of difference in comfort and savings. That, coupled with the Efficiency Maine rebates, have allowed us to make the numbers work on redevelopment projects that otherwise would not have been feasible. The team at Efficiency Maine was very accommodating and helped us gather early estimates that resulted in the project being completed on time and on budget."

Some of Maine's smaller businesses also are benefiting from Efficiency Maine's incentives. For instance, Wheelers Insurance in South Paris upgraded their heating system from an oil boiler to two high-efficiency heat pumps, saving approximately $200 a year.

"We have noticed that it is more cost efficient, the rooms are more comfortable, and we're doing our part to help the environment," said Leanna Bowie, marketing manager of Wheelers Insurance. "The process of working with Efficiency Maine was super smooth. It was a matter of filling out an application and arranging for the work to be complete."

"Overall, the experience was convenient and it added value to our business," added Wheelers

Insurance Chief Executive Officer Michael Newsom.

Humble Comfort Food and Spirits in Brewer worked with Efficiency Maine to upgrade the restaurant's heating, cooling, and lighting. Humble installed two heat pumps that both heat and cool, and also upgraded from fluorescent lighting to LEDs. With the upgrades, the business has reduced energy costs by about $200 a year.

"The restaurant is much brighter and warmer since the new lighting was installed," said restaurant owner, Meghan Black. "I remember the first day I walked past the heat pump and it blew warm air in my face. It was the best feeling in the world.

"I have definitely seen a decrease in my electricity bill since the new lights went in," Black continued. "It was a hard year at the restaurant, and the lights and the heat pump made me excited to get back to work."

Bike to Work Day Coming to Congress Square Park in Portland

PORTLAND, ME (May 13, 2022) -- Nearly a dozen organizations and businesses are teaming up to host a Bike to Work Day celebration in Congress Square Park on May 20, the Bicycle Coalition of Maine announced Friday.

The festivities will take place from 8 - 10 a.m., and will include bike mechanic demos, safe-cycling tips, safety gear giveaways, music, and free coffee, bagels, and donuts.

"We want to encourage Mainers to bike to work in honor of both Bike to Work Day and National Bike Month," said Bicycle Coalition of Maine Mission Advancement Director Mariah Healy. "And we want to celebrate the ones who do!"

The organizations involved include the Portland Public Library; Friends of Congress Square Park; the Portland Gear Hub; Portland Bike Party; City of Portland Maine Parks, Recreation & Facilities Department; the Portland Bicycle and Pedestrian Advisory Committee; CyclingSavvy; and the Bicycle Coalition of Maine.

The free coffee, bagels, and donuts are being generously donated by Tandem Coffee Roasters, Rose Foods, and HiFi Donuts, respectively.

Bike to Work Day was launched by the League of American Bicyclists in 1956, and has since become a worldwide event that promotes the bicycle as a healthy, sustainable, and fun way to commute to work.

Job Corps Launches Recruitment Drive in Maine WASHINGTON, Job Corps campuses in qualify if they rec

WASHINGTON,
D.C. (May 9, 2022) – The U.S. Department of Labor's Job Corps program has launched a recruitment drive in Maine, offering immediate openings and free career training for low-income students ages
16–24 in the nation's leading industries.

"This is a great opportunity for young adults in Maine who are trying to leverage a strong job market," said National Director of Job Corps Rachel Torres. "We are a gateway to skills, credentials and opportunity. Our students need Job Corps, and the workforce needs our students."

There are two

Job Corps campuses in Maine: Loring (in Limestone) and Penobscot (in Bangor). They offer career skills training in highgrowth industry sectors, including Advanced Manufacturing, Automotive and Machine Repair, Construction, Health Care, Hospitality, Information Technology, and Transportation.

Job Corps is free for ages 16–24 from low-income households who meet the eligibility requirements, and students can apply and enroll at any time. Job Corps provides handson career skills training, on-campus housing, meals, health care and job search assistance. Applicants may qualify if they receive SNAP, TANF, or free or reduced school lunch, or if they are experiencing homelessness or are a foster youth.

The recruitment drive in Maine is part of a national effort to restore Job Corps campuses to full capacity after pandemic safety measures had restricted enrollments, due to the residential aspects of the program. Job Corps has restored pre-pandemic admission standards nationwide and has immediate openings in Maine.

For more information about Job Corps, or to begin the enrollment process, visit jobcorps.gov or call 800-733-JOBS (5627).

UMaine Research Shows Impacts of Childhood Trauma

MAINE (May 13, 2022) -- Childhood trauma can impact a person's life into adulthood. According to University of Maine research, adverse childhood experiences may even have a negative impact on cognitive function as people age.

UMaine researchers assessed the intellectual abilities, verbal memory, visual memory and executive attention of participants ages 55 to 90 years old recruited as part of the Maine-Aging Behavior Learning Enrichment (M-ABLE) Study at UMaine. Self-report measures were also used to examine levels of depressive symptoms, self-efficacy and cognitive concerns. Finally, a questionnaire measured childhood experiences of abuse, neglect and household dysfunction. Over 56% of participants reported experiencing early life abuse or neglect.

The results show that adverse childhood experiences were negatively associated with annual income level and years of education, but positively associated with depressive symptoms and self-reported cognitive concerns. Adverse childhood experiences were also a significant predictor of lower performance on measures of intellectual function and executive attention; however, these relationships were no longer significant after adjusting for years of education.

"In other words, the number of years of education accounted for the significant relationship between early life adversity and worse cognitive function," says Amy Halpin, first author of the study and a UMaine doctoral student in clinical psychology. "This means that more years of education may help mitigate the harmful impact of adverse child-hood experiences. It is still unclear if there is a critical window in which this education should be completed, or if education at any point in life can promote better brain functioning in older adults."

Overall, the researchers suggested that a greater degree of childhood adversity may increase vulnerability for cognitive problems in late life by way of fewer years of early education, lower socioeconomic status and greater risk for mental health concerns.

"Although we cannot change the past, we can identify activities and behaviors that may help lessen the negative downstream effects of childhood adversity. Studying things that increase resiliency may help us to identify targets for interventions and encourage meaningful lifestyle changes for older adults at risk," Halpin says.

In particular, learning more about coping styles and personality traits may shed light on how individuals overcome early life adversity and identify psychosocial treatments that may reduce risk and help prevent cognitive decline in later life.

The study was published in the Journal of the International Neuropsychological Society. To the researchers' knowledge, the study is the first to comprehensively examine the effect of adverse childhood experiences on cognitive functions and risk of cognitive decline in independent community-dwelling older adults.

"Notably, mediation analyses suggested that the relationship between childhood adversity and lower cognitive performance was a result of less education. These findings have important implications for public health and programs that support continued education in those with adverse childhood backgrounds. Further, building self-efficacy may help to increase resilience and support learning in this population," says Rebecca MacAulay, co-author and principal investigator of the study, and assistant professor of psychology at UMaine.

MacAulay says longitudinal research is needed to better understand how these relationships change over time, and to be able to determine cause-and-effect relationships. It also will be important in developing interventions for older adults that support autonomy and learning, such as the Maine Understanding Sensory Integration and Cognition (MUSIC) Project that teaches music to older adults.

Navigating the Iconic Machias River

A kayaker maneuvers around an obstruction at Long Falls on the Machias River

Part One: Third Lake to Little Falls By Ron Chase

(May 13, 2022) --Planning a spring paddling trip on the Machias River in Washington County requires evaluating a combination of factors. Weather, ice-out, road access, water levels, and blackflies are all issues that need to be investigated. After about thirty trips, I've become discriminating about my expectations. Experience suggests a trip beginning in late April and ending in early May is usually the ideal timeframe so that's when I scheduled a Penobscot Paddle & Chowder Society club trip this year.

As anticipated, all the necessary components fell into place. The water level was moderately high, most of the roads were open, a quality five day weather forecast predicted, ice was out on the lakes, and the dreaded blackflies had vet to appear. My longtime friend and frequent outdoor accomplice, Ken Gordon, enthusiastically agreed with the planned schedule. Unfortunately, several other interested club members were unable to participate during the narrow window of opportunity. Time flexibility is one of the few benefits of being old and retired.

Selecting the segment

of river to paddle was the next step. The Machias has several access points providing a variety of options. Trips can be from one to seven days in length and begin at various points between Fifth Machias Lake and the village of Machias. Since the road to Fifth Lake was closed, we chose a five day trip from Third Machias Lake to Machias. Our fifty-five mile itinerary entailed traversing two lakes, portaging a major waterfall, and navigating eight challenging whitewater rapids plus many easier

The means of river travel has changed for Ken and me. We no longer use tripping canoes. Instead, we've migrated to expedition kayaks. The primary reason is to avoid physical discomfit. After a knee replacement, I can no longer kneel in a canoe without pain. Expedition kayaks have other advantages besides comfort. They're quicker, drier, and more maneuverable. The primary disadvantage is less space for gear.

After leaving my vehicle in Machias, we transported kayaks and gear in Ken's car to Third Lake. Fortuitously, the dirt roads were in good condition. The weather was cool, windy, and gray when we launched at the outlet.

The scenic sector of river between Third and Second Lakes is a succession of narrow technical rapids interspersed with flatwater. The most significant rapid, Long Falls, consisted of three pitches that warranted careful attention. After thoroughly scouting the twisting descent, we set up safety with a throw bag for the first pitch and then continued to an eddy on the right above the second where a fallen tree blocked part of our preferred route. Following careful inspection, we negotiated around the obstruction, ferried out into large waves that plummeted through the third pitch, and successfully dodged numerous rocks and a strainer during the extended runout. My latest book, Maine Al Fresco: The Fifty Finest Outdoor

A kayaker plunges down Little Falls on the Machias River

Adventures in Maine relates tales of two substantial misadventures on Long Falls.

A delightful series of technical Class II rapids followed to Second Lake. A strong tail wind quickly propelled us south to the outlet adjacent to a sandy beach that has been a campsite during trips past. A large eagle provided entertainment and methodically scrutinized us during much of the two mile stretch of calm water to First Lake. The welcome tail wind again assisted our traverse to the southern end of the lake and a convenient campsite.

The weather improved on day two with warmer temperatures and partly sunny skies, but pesky northwest winds persisted. Our first challenge was Class III Carrick Rips. We again set up safety before proceeding tight right, ferrying left around a menacing boulder, and finishing in a substantial wave train.

Shortly after, the West Branch entered on our right. Several exhilarating rapids followed as we paddled through an expansive stand of tall pines to complex Airline Rapid just below Route Nine. We maneuvered through breaking waves and around several potentially hazardous obstacles to a lunch spot at the bottom.

Flatwater continued for a few miles to Little Falls, which is not little. We carried our gear to what I consider the most picturesque campsite on the river at the foot of the falls and navigated the demanding rapid along the left shore in empty kayaks before settling in for a relaxing evening.

Many more adventures awaited us during the remaining three days of our trip. The exciting Wigwam Rapids were on the agenda for day three.

Biden's Deferral Of Student Loan Repayment be struggling to make time-ly student loan payments.

There is a false belief that Americans who have gone to college are all members of the economic elite. While student loans have been essential for millions of low-income Americans to escape poverty, about 40 percent of student loan borrowers never finish their education. Too many had dreams of graduating from college, but didn't realize that their life circumstances would later make it impossible for them to finish their education. It might be difficult for members of the upper-middle-class to understand how difficult remaining in school can be for young people from poor families with unstable incomes. Others finished college, but selected jobs in forestry, social work, special education, journalism or some other occupation which provided financial rewards much smaller than they expected. Way too many worked very hard in high school to earn college admission, but took out student loans in their late teenage years only to become victims of the false promises of a college education.

The Covid-19 pandemic presented a national emergency. In response to the worldwide outbreak of disease that resulted in mortality not seen since World War II, President Biden appropriately suspended repayment of qualifying federal student loans. In the name of protecting tax payers and in a blatant attempt to appeal to the majority of Americans who do not have a college degree, Republican U.S. Senators have introduced a bill to prevent President Biden and his Secretary of Education from further suspending the accrual of interest or deferring repayment of Federal student loans. The Republican sponsors of this Senate bill are without any empathy be struggling to make timely student loan payments. For opponents of continued student loan deferrals to describe President Biden's suspension of repayments as "a massive handout to doctors and lawyers" is an extreme exaggeration. The continued student debt forbearance relief provided by the Biden administration will not only stave off countless student loan delinguencies and defaults, but also allow thousands of hardworking young Americans to actively participate in our economy and avoid other financial stressors such as prolonged delays in homebuying.

The Christian Civic League of Maine Responds to the Leaked Draft of the U.S. Supreme Court Decision in Dobbs

The Christian Civic League of Maine has always been committed to the basic belief that every human life is sacred and worth protecting, from conception to natural death. Because human choices cannot morally infringe upon a human life, the Christian Civic League has consistently fought for providing alternatives to women who are faced with the heartbreaking choice between their future and the life of another.

It is true that in the age of Roe v. Wade these alternatives may not have been so obvious. Today, however, it is becoming increasingly difficult to ignore the growing number of pregnancy centers and couples waiting to adopt. The existence of these resources make the choice to kill a child one that need not even be considered.

This is why the Christian Civic League is tentatively optimistic about the upcoming Supreme Court decision in Dobbs v. Jackson. Even though the overturning of Roe v. Wade (as indicated in the leaked draft) would not immediately affect the rights of the unborn in Maine, it will create a platform to begin a conversation over whether those rights ought to be protected. In the words of Policy Director Mike Mc-Clellan, "While this would end the Federal presence in the abortion fight, the battle would simply now fall to the states."

As the debate over the rights of the unborn continues, the Christian Civic League plans to continue to support and promote ways to help women in crisis other than abortion. Our hope is that the willingness of churches and communities to assist women in crisis will make it obvious that every child can be guaranteed a loving family from conception to natural death.

Reliance on Russian Oil and A Transition to Renewable Energy

The recent war in Ukraine has highlighted a dire issue for the U.S.: reliance on Russian oil. Energy prices have surged after President Biden's ban on Russian oil. This dependence on oil has burdened civilians and exacerbated the climate crisis. A transition to renewable energy would not only lessen this burden, but would also decrease greenhouse gas emissions, contributing to Biden's goal of fifty percent reduction in greenhouse gas emissions from 2005 levels by 2030. In order to support this transition, please ask Representative Pingree, Representative Golden, Senator Collins, and Senator King to support strong climate legislation such as the Energy Innovation (HR 2307).

Skyline Farm Carriage Museum Exhibit Opens in North Yarmouth

NORTH YAR-MOUTH, ME (May 9, 2022) – Skyline Farm Carriage Museum's current exhibit "Town & Country: Rocking & Rolling Down The Lane" showcases approximately forty unique business and personal horse-drawn carriages and sleighs that would have been used in New England.

When summer arrived in New England, various cold weather horse-drawn vehicles were put in the barn loft. Down came the wheeled vehicles for country and city. Country vehicles were much simpler in design than city vehicles. Come see examples of both.

Skyline was recently loaned a Brewster & Co. Cee Spring Landau.

This rather large vehicle combines the best of a Brougham and a Victoria. The Landau's double-hooded roof arrangement was great for summer or winter travel. Also on display are a lovely sleigh by J.F. Hall, Rockland, Maine, circa 1890, a Buxton oil delivery vehicle that once delivered to homes and businesses via horse, a double seat Albany, a heating contractor sleigh, and a postal delivery sleigh.

The museum, located at 95 The Lane, North Yarmouth, is open to the public on Sundays, from May 15 through June 26, 1-4 p.m. or by appointment. Free admission; donations are appreciated.

For more information, contact Greg Cuffey at (207) 892-0188 or info@skylinefarm.org. Skyline Farm is a nonprofit, all-volunteer organization.

12, 2022) -- To listen to April Verch and Cody Walters is to be immersed in tradition. To watch them perform is to be transported. Be it regional Canadian roots, American old-time, 50's Country, Scandinavian folk music, or something original that sounds as though it's been around for a century—the one common thread is their love and reverence for the music and traditions that have been passed down to them.

Husband and wife duo April Verch & Cody Walters is a true partnership of kindred musical spirits, each a worldclass musician in their own right. Combining their unique backgrounds from Verch's native Ottawa Valley and Walters' heartland roots in Kansas, their music showcases endless creativity and versatility—transitioning effortlessly from traditional Ottawa Valley step dancing and fiddle tunes, to old-time fiddle-banjo duets with tight-knit vocal harmonies, to innovative sandpaper foot percussion, all contrasted against Verch's sweet soprano voice.

Verch and Walters began playing together in 2007 when Walters joined the April Verch Band as their bassist. Initially formed as a pickup band centered around Verch's own fiddle and dance stylings in 2000, the band grew and blossomed into an established trio of world-class musicians, spanning several musical traditions and backgrounds, yet all united in their mission to share the music they love. Together they have traveled to four continents, performed in fourteen countries, and played everywhere from tiny pubs and dusty festival workshops all the way to legendary stages such as the Kennedy Center and the Ryman Auditorium. In 2018—fittingly amidst their ever-busy tour schedule—April and Cody were married.

During the heart of COVID lockdowns in 2020, the couple began performing as a duo out of necessity, and learned firsthand that sometimes, art born of necessity can yield unexpectedly beautiful results. They developed new material, arrangements and a concert performance that hum with the ease and playfulness that can only be cultivated through deep understanding and trust-as musicians and as partners.

The duo's diverse repertoire and unbridled passion come to life on stage with a presence and masterfully executed. Audiences remark at their sincerity in sharing stories between tunes. Verch's delicate voice, energetic footwork, sand paper foot percussion and stunning playing (sometimes combined all at once!) are jaw-dropping. Walters' melodic banjo stylings, solid rhythm guitar accompaniment and tasteful vocal harmonies are at once understated and brilliant, dueting with Verch's skills in glorious harmony. Their ability to preserve the authentic folk traditions of the past and reintroduce them into the musical landscape of the present is a testament to their masterful musicianship and widespread appeal.

leading her own band and with 14 albums in her name (two of which were nominated for JUNO Awards, among other honors), there is nothing that fulfills Verch or gives her more joy than playing and sharing her music with the world. "It's like the reward for everything else," she says. Together, she and Walters are exemplary tradition-bearing performers: never forgetting the roots of the music, that connection to the people out there in the audience or on the dance floor, to the community sparked by a good song. about joining together to celebrate everyday life, Verch & Walters are looking forward to returning to New England this spring, a favorite tour destination of theirs since the beginning of their career! They are no stranger to Saco River Theatre, having performed there as "The April Verch Band." This will be their first duo performance for their audience and they can't wait!

New Law Ties Electric Grid Planning To Climate Goals

AUGUSTA, (May 9, 2022) - Electric utilities in Maine will for the first time be required to create a comprehensive plan for supporting the state's ambitious climate and clean energy goals under a landmark bill signed into law earlier this month.

Conservation groups that worked closely with lawmakers and the Mills Administration to strengthen the bill are calling it the most significant climate action accomplishment of this legislative session.

LD 1959 will require utilities to undergo a transparent "integrated grid planning" process for developing a reliable electric grid that supports the transition to clean energy at the lowest possible cost to electricity customers. Utilities will not only have to forecast the increased demand for energy as heating, cooling, and transportation are electrified, they must also encourage innovative strategies to balance demand with clean supply through increased energy efficiency, flexibility, and energy storage.

"You wouldn't build a house or a road without a plan, and we shouldn't undertake a once-a-century overhaul of our electric grid without one, either," said Jack Shapiro, Climate and Clean Energy Director at the Natural Resources Council of Maine (NRCM). "Linking grid planning to Maine's bipartisan climate and clean energy goals is a major step forward for every Mainer who cares about avoiding the worst impacts of climate change and creating a healthier, more prosperous state for us all to live in."

"Instead of making incremental upgrades in the grid to accommodate each new distributed solar project, for example, integrated distribution planning will help us be strategic about the long-term investments we need to transform our power sector," said NRCM's senior climate advocate Rebecca Schultz. "Requiring our utilities to conduct integrated grid planning is about ty just turned back to or-creating a climate-resilient future that works for all Mainers. A future in which a modern electric grid and cutting-edge technologies power our homes, businesses, and transportation with clean, reliable, and affordable energy produced here in Maine."

Under the new law, grid planning conducted by utilities must be tied to the Maine Won't Wait Climate Action Plan and the goals to reduce greenhouse gas emissions 45% by 2030 and 80% by 2050 that were passed by bipartisan majorities in the Legislature. The new inclusive grid planning process will be conducted with extensive opportunity for public input and will incorporate equity and environmental justice considerations. Utilities currently conduct grid planning behind closed doors with little to no opportunity for public input from experts and oth-

The utility accountability provisions included in LD 1959 respond to long-standing reliability and performance issues with Maine's largest utilities that have been rated as among the nation's worst performing. Clear metrics will be used to evaluate utility performance, with mandatory financial penalties for poor performance and the possibility of being replaced for consistent fail-

Superintendent's Update

By Gorham Superintendent, Heather Perry GORHAM,

(May 13, 2022) -- Friday the 13th. YUP, sure feels like that doesn't it? Been a busy two weeks and unfortunately a time where COVID 19 has taken "center stage" once again. It seems our new neighbor does like the spotlight every once in a while! Even with the challenges associated with an increase in positive cases impacting our schools, it has still been a very positive two weeks for learning though. Here's some pictures to show a snapshot of what's been going on...

We have plenty to talk about...so let's get to

COVID 19 INFOR-MATION & REMINDERS

As we continue to see positive cases spike here in the Gorham Schools, I just wanted to send one more STRONG RE-MINDER that we absolutely are STRONGLY RECOMMENDING that staff and students wear face coverings while indoors. Due to staffing shortages caused by COVID 19 we are having to move Great Falls Elementary School to fully remote today. I expect we will be able to reopen Great Falls to in person instruction on Monday; however, we are also struggling with staffing at both Narragansett and Village Schools due to COVID 19 impacts. We will see what the future holds at these two schools as we move through the next week.

COVID 19 is still very much present in our schools, and although I do NOT foresee a time when we will reinstitute a mask mandate in the schools (unless the Maine CDC adjusts their Standard Operating Procedures for schools again), I do know that it is important for all of us to make choices to help curb the spread of COVID 19 so that we can keep our schools safely open to in person instruction. each must take responsibility and make choices to help curb the spread. There are no mandates, but the more we can do to curb the spread, the better off our entire community will be. Here is what you can consider doing:

- 1. Wear a mask while indoors (STRONGLY Recommended).
- 2. Consider getting vaccinated/booster if you haven't already done so.
- 3. Monitor symptoms daily.
- 4. STAY HOME IF YOU ARE SICK.
- 5. Get tested if you are having symptoms (home tests are fine).
- 6. Keep your distance when possible.
- 7. Open up those windows and get outdoors whenever possible.

We are coming into the home stretch of our school year with just four weeks to go. There are lots of exciting things happening for our students...end of year celebrations, field ance/ Just so folks are experiences, graduations, etc. Let's make sure we all do what we can to ensure students and families are able to fully participate in these awesome events! We all have choices to make now... no mandates! Yeah! But with choices comes responsibility. Let's all do what we can to pitch in and curb the spread!

Remember, you can follow the data in two key

- 1. Keep an eye on our daily active positive case county by school on our website.
- 2. Follow Maine CDC color coded guidange...medium risk.

Because of the recent positive cases after a previous lull, I've had folks reach out to ask about protocols and guidance about what to do if you test positive or are a close contact. As a reminder...our current school guidelines are outlined below. Please reach out to your school's nurse with further questions.

COVID19 Guidance as of 5.10.22

BCM Hosts Variety of Free Events for Global Road Safety Week

PORTLAND, ME (May 9, 2022) -- The Bicycle Coalition of Maine (BCM) has planned a variety of free events to honor and celebrate Global Road Safety Week from May 15-21

"Keeping cyclists and pedestrians safe is the cornerstone of the BCM's mission," said BCM Executive Director Jean Sideris. "This is a chance for Mainers across the state to learn something new, attend a ride, honor fallen cyclists, and celebrate the joy of biking."

The week kicks off on Sunday, May 15, with a free "Fix-A-Bike" workshop at Maine Beer Company that will cover routine maintenance, roadside repairs, and how to perform a basic tuneup.

Sunday's schedule

also includes a free bike rodeo in Augusta that teaches kids how to ride in a closed, mock traffic course. Additional free rodeos are scheduled on Saturday, May 21 in Lincoln and Naples.

The first virtual event—a free spring biking webinar entitled "We're Bringing Safety Back"—will be held on Monday at noon.

Global Road Safety Week will also mark the return of the BCM's Urban Riding Classes, which help cyclists feel more comfortable riding in traffic in a city setting. This on-bike education opportunity will include how to safely take the lane, make left turns on busy streets, and avoid being "right-hooked" by drivers. These free classes will be held in Portland and Lewiston on Tuesday, May 17, as well as Portland and Orono on Thursday, May

The annual Ride of Silence is held around the world on the third Wednesday of May to honor those who have been injured or killed while cycling on public roadways. The BCM is once again the statewide coordinator for this silent slow ride. The Coalition will be holding their own free event in Portland on May 19, but also encourages folks in Andover, Lewiston, Saco, and Yarmouth to join rides being held locally.

Mainers looking to become local bicycle and pedestrian advocates can sign up for a "Community Spokes" training, which will be a two-part virtual session on Wednesday, May 18 and Thursday, May 19. Through training, education, and ongoing technical support, Spokes across the state can help improve biking and walking conditions in their communities, the BCM says.

The final weekday event will be a Bike to Work Day extravaganza. The Portland Public Library; Friends of Congress Square Park; Portland Gear Hub; Portland Bike Party; City of Portland Maine Parks, Recreation & Facilities Department; Portland Bicycle and Pedestrian Advisory Committee; CyclingSavvy; and the Bicycle Coalition of Maine are all teaming up to throw one big celebration in Congress Square Park on Friday, May 20 from 8 - 10 a.m. People who bike to work on Friday are encouraged to stop by the park for free coffee, donuts, and bagels donated by Tandem Coffee Roasters, HiFi Donuts, and Rose Foods, as well as bike mechanic demos, safe-cycling tips, safety gear giveaways, music, and more.

More information about the BCM's Global Road Safety Week plans can be found at bikemaine. org/global-road-safety-week-events/ or bikemaine. org/events.

Global Road Safety Week and its campaigns are coordinated by the United Nations Road Safety Collaboration (UNRSC) and chaired by the World Health Organization. All stakeholders—national and local governments, international agencies, civil society organizations, private companies, and the public generally—are invited to plan and host events.

FY 23 PROPOSED GORHAM SCHOOLS BUDGET FACT #2

Did you know that just under 78% of our School's Total Budget is in staffing costs. We are a "people driven" organization! But did you also know that 70% of our overall budget is expended DIRECTLY in our classrooms to support our students? That is well above previous targets set by the state of Maine. Finally, did you know that just 3.2% of our total budget is spent on system administration. Private industry standards for businesses with budgets the size of our school's budget set standards in this area at a much higher rate, often 10% or more. Bottom line...the funding we get from our community goes where it needs to go - to direct support for our student's learning!

Want to learn more? Check out our Proposed budget informational website and watch our recent FY 23 budget presentation to the Town Council.

As a reminder, next step in the budget approval process is the Town Council vote on the School's Budget on June 7, 2022. This meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. in council chambers. Then on June 14 there will be a budget validation referendum vote by the public.

As always, if you have any questions, please reach out (heather.perry@gorhamschools.org).

TWO DATES FOR DUNK & DISCUSS EVENTS WITH SUPER-INTENDENT PERRY!

Although the first date was a wash because Aroma Joe's experienced an unanticipated worker shortage and had to close their lobby area down...two dates remain if folks are interested in participating.

As the year winds down, as we work to gain approval for our FY 23 Proposed School Budget and as we reflect and think ahead to goals for the coming year, I wanted to offer up an opportunity to just simply sit down with folks who might be interested to chat! In the past, I've held these meetings early in the morning and have had some feedback that isn't the best time, especially for parents who are working to get their children ready for school. So for these I'm going to try an after school time. I realize that time can also be hectic and busy for folks, but perhaps a little more available. We'll see.

There are NO AGEN-

DAS for these meetings. I simply show up. Individuals who participate can come with specific questions you may have, or you may share ideas or information you think is important for me to be aware of and to consider in my role as Superintendent of Schools here in Gorham. These meetings are really more of just a conversation and an opportunity for me to LISTEN and for you to get any questions you may have answered. The only "norm" I will insist upon is that all conversations are respectful and civil. This is not a meeting to air your political beliefs or for me to air mine.

Dates/Time/Location for three of these meetings are listed below. I welcome anyone who cares about the community of Gorham to attend!

Monday, May 16 at 4:00 p.m. at Aroma Joe's - Gorham, ME.

Thursday, May 26 at 7:00 p.m. at Aroma Joe's - Gorham, ME.

Hope to see you there!

JOBS FOR MAINE'S GRADUATES (JMG) CA-REER & CORNHOLE DAY - WHAT?

Leave it to our creative GHS JMG students to find a way to meaningfully connect the fun of cornhole to exploration of careers and connecting with area Gorham businesses! Our students are nothing if not creative!

Although this event is for STUDENTS ONLY (so not open to the general public), it is an event that has been entirely created and put together by students in the JMG program at GHS.

This event is for ALL grade levels 9-12! A handful of our employers are hiring ages 14+, while others are only hiring 16+ or 18+, so we encourage everyone to attend! Even seniors doing senior internships, especially given all the great opportunities that are only available to ages 18+.

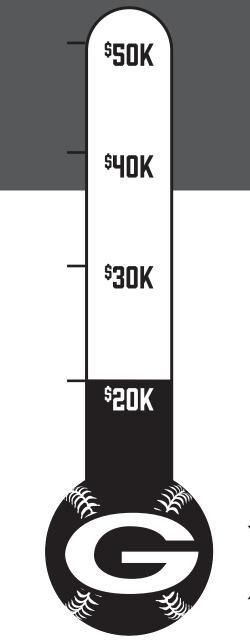

- The goal of this event is for students to make career connections, whether this is to find a part-time job, summer work, or to connect with a business that you might be considering for your future career and have a little fun while doing it!

FLAGSHIP CITEMAS Dremelatie

Cumberland: Matthew Bernstein, Casco Bay High School, Portland

Androscoggin: Kelsey Boucher, Robert V. Connors Elementary School, Lewiston

AUGUSTA,  $\mathbf{ME}$ (May 12, 2022)—Sixteen Maine teachers were announced as 2022 County Teachers of the Year today at a ceremony in the Hall of Flags at the Maine State Capitol Building. Governor Janet Mills joined Education Commissioner Pender Makin, Educate Maine Executive Director Jason Judd, State Board of Education Chair Fern Desjardins, 2022 Maine Teacher of the Year Kelsey Stoyanova, and Maine County and State Teachers of the Year Association Co-President Heather Whitaker to announce the new class

Year.

As part of the Maine Teacher of the Year Program, hundreds of teachers across Maine are nominated by a member of their school community. Through a rigorous application process, one teacher from each county is selected as a County Teacher of the Year by a panel of teachers, principals, and business community members within the county.

of County Teachers of the

"It is a privilege to congratulate Maine's 2022 County Teachers of the Year," said Governor Janet Mills. "As the daughter of a long-time public school teacher, I know how hard each of these teachers works every day to make sure our kids have the best shot at success. I am so grateful for all they do for our students, our communities, and our state, and I promise that my Administration will do all we can to support them."

"It's such an honor to celebrate these extraordinary teachers and elevate them as true ambassadors for all Maine teachers and the teaching profession," said Education Commissioner Pender Makin. "These teachers were nominated by students, colleagues, and parents for the difference they make every day in the lives of their students, for their innovation and leadership, and for their commitment to their schools and communities. You are all true heroes, and the Maine Department of Education is so grateful for all you do."

"We are so proud of the 2022 County Teacher of the Year cohort. They are truly remarkable teachers and we look forward to working with them throughout their year of recognition," said Educate Maine Executive Director Jason Judd.

Maine County Teachers of the Year serve as ambassadors for teachers, students, and quality education state-wide throughout the year. The Maine County Teachers of the Year are available to make presentations to local and regional organizations. Throughout the summer, they will continue to participate in an intensive Maine State Teacher of the Year selection process.

The Maine Department of Education's Teacher of the Year Program is administered through a collaborative partnership with Educate Maine. To learn more about the Teacher of the Year Program visit: https://www.mainetoy.org/. The event was also broadcast live on the Maine Department of Education's YouTube page.

Universities, Coalitions Assess Status of Wolves in Maine

MAINE (May 9, 2022) -- John M. Glowa, Sr., president of The Maine Coalition, Inc., (MWC) a 501c(3) nonprofit organization dedicated to wolf recovery in Maine through research, education and protection, is pleased to announce a new collaboration with Princeton University and Michigan Technological University. This collaboration will include the collection, preservation and analysis of wild canid scats, primarily from Maine, and is the latest development in a citizen science project to assess the status of wolves in Maine begun by MWC in 2019.

Wolves were documented to have been killed in Maine in 1993 and 1996. Since then, other than MWC's efforts, little has been done to assess the status of wolves in Maine and the northeast. Given their similarity of appearance to eastern coyotes, it is likely that additional wolves have been killed in Maine, and in fact, since 1993, no less than nine wolves have been documented killed south of the St. Lawrence River from Massachusetts to New Brunswick. Canada's wolf range in Ontario and Quebec is just sixty miles from New York and seventy-five miles from Maine.

In fact, an 85 pound probable wolf was killed this past winter in central New York. Wolves have been documented to travel more than 1,000 miles during dispersal, making the northeast U.S. well within range for natural wolf recolonization. Furthermore, the northeast U.S. and maritime Canada contain tens of thousands of square miles of potential wolf habitat and abundant prey, making the region suitable for the natural return of wolves.

In 2019, MWC volunteers found scat from the first live Eastern wolf ever documented in Maine. The Eastern wolf is a smaller wolf found in southern Ontario and Quebec, which typically averages approximately 60 pounds. It is similar in appearance and size to the eastern coyote (aka coywolf) with which it can interbreed. Maine may also be home to larger gray wolves dispersing south from central Canada and the Great Lakes region. To date, MWC has collected more than one hundred wild canid scats, primarily in a 3.3 million acre region of Maine called the North Maine Woods. The assistance from Princeton and Technological Michigan Universities will help to assess the status of wolves in Maine by analyzing the scats and interpreting the results. Eventually, our hope is to have one or more graduate students in the woods of northern Maine monitoring radio-collared wolves.

Any wolves in the northeast are currently protected under the federal Endangered Species Act, although the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has claimed that their populations have recovered in most of the U.S. They have not recovered in the northeast, despite abundant habitat and prey, and the region's proximity to wolf range in Ontario and Quebec. MWC hopes to gather information to support the continued listing of wolves in the region under the Endangered Species Act and to promote natural wolf recolonization through research, education, and protection.

Cabin fever got you down?

Escape with Maine's most intriguing Hermit.

"Ryan is an excellent storyteller, and this tale is as good as any novel, especially since it's based on real people and real events." - Bill Bushnell, Bushnell on Books

"I can tell you it will not take you many days to read, because you won't be able to put it down. I wasn't surprised when Hermit was named a top pick for 2019 on a December Maine Calling show on Maine Public Radio." - George Smith, Bangor Daily News
