Dear "Speak Out",

What Made "The Greatest Generation" Great? Part 1

If the generation of the Great Depression and WW II was great it was because so many people put into action an ethos based on collective action and unselfishness. This ethos had a lot in common with what Jesus preached in his parables and in his sermon on the mount. Many embraced this ethos because they were religious, but many embraced it because it just made sense. Regardless, it wasn't being Godly or respecting their parents that made that generation great. It was the things they did because of that unselfish ethos. It was what they accomplished not for their families alone, but for their neighbors- in the US and, during WW II, in Europe and South East Asia.

During that time regular folks fought for and won a better America for everyone. It wasn't perfect but it was a huge step forward. The ethos of the Great Depression was one of brotherhood and sharing. It promoted cooperation over greed, the greater good before profit, and human rights before punishment. This ethos helped create the prosperity of the 1950s and 1960s. An ethos that many minorities and young people attempted to apply to all races, economic levels and nationalities in the 1960s. An ethos that got lost in the backlash to the cultural revolution of the 1960s and that got lost in the roll back of Great Depression reforms beginning 40 years ago.

You see, during the 1920s most of the money being made by a booming economy flowed into the hands of people who already had everything they wanted and had way more money than they could ever spend. Very little of the profits were being shared with the workers, who would have gone out and bought things since they didn't have everything they wanted or needed. So the people who would spend that money didn't have it. Without money to spend there was no demand for products. Businesses began to make less so they cut peoples' hours or jobs and, in order to keep the profits, people's pay. This just made things worse because now the people who would have spent the money had even less than they did before. The cities were filled with homeless people travelling the country looking for jobs in order to support their families.

Like the rich businessmen who wouldn't reduce their profits, not everyone shared the unselfish ethos. Many wanderers found jobs as migrant farm workers. There were always long lines of people looking for work so employers didn't pay them much. People who lived around these farms often didn't like the fact that outsiders (who didn't always sound or look like them) were coming to their town to take jobs.

The selfish ethos also overtook countries in other parts of the world. One of the most advanced countries in the world elected a soldier who talked some about the actual causes of their economic problems and then said that it was really the fault of the minorities and left-wingers in the country. He promised to make the country great by building up their military and restricting the rights of minorities. This was Hitler's Germany. In Italy and Japan similar militaristic governments were elected. These types of governments were referred to as fascist. It was the fight against fascism that WW II was all about.

There were selfish forces working in America to. Big business got together to try to stop the government from using regulations and unions to help regular folks. They even hatched a plot to overthrow the President. In the south, where most blacks lived at this time, Jim Crow worked hard to deny them a piece of the pie. And when WW II broke out most of the Japanese-Americans living on the West coast were detained by order of the President in camps in the Mid-West because the military and the FBI didn't trust them.

But the ethos that worked, the ethos that made a better America, was embraced by enough people to transform our nation. They championed the common good and regular folks over the greedy and selfish. In the 1930s the values of regular working-class folks were often (not always, but often) about fairness and group...

action instead of scapegoating those below you on the ladder of success.

Maybe that's because they understood the true cause of their problems. Because in America we elected a disabled man who not only talked about the economic problems we faced, but put the blame where it belonged- on a system that benefited what he called "economic royalists" and not the people. This was President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "New Deal". It was so popular he was elected four times. More thoughts about the Greatest Generation's New Deal and WW II in Part 2...

Dear "Speak Out",

"An Ostrich With Its Head In The Sand."

Everyone knows this old idiom which denotes a large bird which chokes to bury its head in the sand rather than admit that danger is approaching. I would like to enlarge this idiom and add "When Four Tigers Are Circling Ready To Pounce".

You are probably asking exactly where he is going with this topic. I want to be positive in my comments while at the same time being honest as to the state of danger which we as a country now face.

There are four tigers circling us ready to pounce if they sense we are weak. Our fateful exit from Afghanistan was one indication that America is becoming an isolationist country and will ignore the problems facing the world from nations bent on invasion and domination of other countries. Ignoring invasions in other parts of the world is a direct indication that we do not realize that America could be next on their agenda.

So exactly who are these four tigers who are circling America ready to pounce? The first tiger is Russia who invaded Ukraine. The Russian leadership desires to reestablish the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics by invading these small countries and again force them to be a part of their oppressive regime. Russia is listed in the Bible in Ezekiel 38 and 39 when it invades Israel with its allies.

The second tiger is Iran which is continuing toward becoming a nuclear power. The ancient nation Assyria is modern day Iran which attacked Israel long ago. They are the fathers of terrorism. They have not honored their agreements with other countries and instead continue with their plans of attacking other Middle Eastern countries including our ally, Israel. They recently instructed militant Muslims in America to create terrorist attacks on our homeland.

The third tiger is the Peoples Republic of China which has been growing at an astronomical rate in its economy and military with our assistance as we continue to purchase its products. We need to place economic sanctions on United States companies which have moved their plants to China for cheap labor. China's tiger is ready to pounce on Taiwan in the hope of again adding her to their territory as they did Hong Kong. She is a definite menace to us.

The fourth tiger is North Korea which has been threatening to attack America with nuclear intercontinental ballistic missiles. North Korea is ranked as one of the most dangerous countries in which to live as they completely oppress and rule their people. They are not a paper tiger as some would have us to believe. It seems like at least one generation in every century chose to become isolationists. This has, and will continue to be, a very dangerous view as it has always led to inevitable war.

As Patrick Henry once said, "Give me liberty, or give me death."

Now we come to the positive portion of my article when we turn the corner on world affairs and protect our allies. Americans need to take their heads out of the sand and address these potential invaders and assert ourselves as the nation which will not allow dictators and tyrants to rule our world.

I look forward to any, and all your comments, both positive and negative. You have freedoms of speech and press and should utilize them. Lord willing, I will submit an article again next week.

LYME DISEASE cases peak in the summer months. Lyme disease is a bacterial infection that can be spread to humans by the bite of an infected deer tick. Lyme disease is very serious, especially if not properly diagnosed and treated with antibiotics.

Take precautions, like keeping your lawn mowed, avoiding tall, grassy, moist areas, wearing light colors to keep ticks visible, and using repellent. You can also perform tick checks on yourself, your children, and your pets when you are finished spending time outdoors.

Students Participate In Earth Day Clean Up

Approximately 200 students from Keshequa Central School in grades four through twelve, participated in an Earth Day Cleanup. They walked along village roads cleaning up trash and filling an estimated 18 huge black refuse bags. The students viewed this project as their way of making a small, but significant contribution in helping to preserve and beautifying their environment.

The faculty members who supervised the project were impressed with the enthusiasm and work ethic of our students. They pitched right in and worked diligently to pick up all the trash along the roads they walked.

It was a great day outside! Everyone had a nice walk, with hard, yet rewarding work being done. The students felt really good about what they accomplished!

With the summer rental season coming soon, the Livingston County Board of Supervisors is reminding all owners and managers of short-term vacation rental properties to follow all County vacation property occupancy laws, including the collection and remittance of the Hotel and Motel Room Occupancy Tax.

"With so much to see and do in our area, we expect more travelers than ever before will choose to stay in short-term vacation rental properties located within the County," said Livingston County Treasurer Amy Davies. "It's important to the County and our local tourism industry that all laws, including the collection and remittance of the Hotel and Motel Occupancy Tax, are followed. Livingston County will continue to robustly enforce all laws regarding the use of short-term vacation rental properties, along with hotels and motels, and I remind all owners and guests of their responsibility to follow them."

MAY IS LYME DISEASE AWARENESS MONTH

Lyme disease is a bacterial infection that can be spread to humans by the bite of an infected deer tick. Lyme disease cases peak in the summer months, especially during May, June, and July. Lyme disease is very serious and can become crippling or debilitating if not properly diagnosed and treated with antibiotics. Typical symptoms include fever, headache, fatigue, and a characteristic skin rash called erythema migrans. If left untreated, infection can spread to joints, the heart, and the nervous system.

Anyone who plays or works outside is at an increased risk. Mowing lawns, picking up leaves, and other outdoor activities can expose the public to ticks. Ticks most commonly live in cool, moist environments, and can be found in gardens, around shrubs, and in tall, grassy, and wooded areas. Deer, birds, mice, and other animals can transport ticks into your yard.

There are several things you can do to protect yourself and your family from tick bites. Below are some basic tips to follow:

- Keep your lawn mowed and cut down brushy areas.
- Avoid areas that may be infested such as, tall, grassy, moist areas.
- Use protective measures:
  - o If you know you will be walking in tall grass, wear long sleeves and tuck your clothes in.
  - o Try to wear light colors so ticks are more visible. Ticks can be hard to see, as they may only be about the size of a pin-head.
- Use repellent that contains 20 percent or more DEET, picaridin, or IR3535 on exposed skin for protection that lasts several hours.
- Perform a tick check on yourself, your pets, and your children when finished with outside work or play. Serious risks from Lyme disease can be reduced if the tick is removed within 36 hours.
- If a tick is found, do not apply mineral oil, petroleum jelly, or heat. Use fine-tipped tweezers to remove the tick. Contact your doctor if there are concerns about incomplete tick removal or if a rash or flu-like symptoms develop.

By following these guidelines, you can help protect yourself and your family from Lyme disease. For any other questions or concerns, please contact the Livingston County Department of Health at 585-243-7280 or visit our website at www.livingstoncounty.us/doh.htm.
