ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A misunderstanding tests the temperament of the sometimes headstrong Aries. But instead of blowing your top, take time for a pleasant diversion while things cool down.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A workplace problem could make the divine Bovine see red. But talk it out before you consider walking out. Some surprising facts emerge that change your earlier focus.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You face a choice between ignoring your uneasy feelings about your relationship with that special person and demanding explanations. A close friend offers wise counsel.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change you'd been hoping for carries an unexpected complication. Stay the course, and things will work themselves out. Be sure to make time for family and friends.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Aspects favor spending time with loved ones. On the job, new ideas are generally welcomed. But some demands for changes could cause problems. Be ready to defend your choices.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Good news: That workplace problem is close to being resolved with results that should please everyone. Take time off to indulge your love of fun and games.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Most of the time, you are the most unflappable person around. But be ready to be thrown off-balance in the nicest way when Cupid takes aim in your direction.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It's not often when someone tries to "sting" the sharp-witted Scorpion. But it can happen. Continue to be skeptical about anything that seems too good to be true.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your strong sense of self-esteem helps you serve as a role model for someone who needs personal reassurances. Your efforts pay off in an unexpected way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone close considers revealing a painful secret. Withhold any judgment. Instead, open your generous heart and offer dollops of your love and understanding.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your talents as a peacemaker are called upon once more, as an old problem re-emerges with new complications. Move cautiously in order to avoid falling into hidden traps.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The artistic side of yourself is enhanced with the reception given to your new project. Use this success as encouragement toward fulfilling your larger goals.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your natural sense of leadership is combined with a deep sense of responsibility. People trust you to give them both guidance and understanding.

Depression

There's a man sitting at a bar just looking at his drink. He stays like that for half an hour. Then, a big trouble-making truck driver steps next to him, takes the drink from the guy, and just chugs it all down.

The poor man starts crying. The truck driver says, "Come on man, I was just joking. Here, I'll buy you another drink. I just can't stand seeing a man crying."

"No, it's not that. This day is the worst of my life. First, I fall asleep, and I'm late to my office. My boss, in an outrage, fires me. When I leave the building to my car, I found out it was stolen. The police say they can do nothing. I get a cab to return home and when I leave it, I remember I left my wallet and credit cards there. The cab driver just drives away. I go home and when I get there, I find my wife left me. I leave home and come to this bar.

And when I was thinking about putting an end to my life, you show up and drink my poison!"

For some reason, I have been thinking about this dog a lot. She deserves to be remembered, so this is a column that was written some time ago.

A few years ago we went to a home on a complaint about a dog being treated in a cruel way. In fact, the caller told us that no dog in his house lived long. A white pit bull type dog came onto the porch with us. She wagged her tail and leaned against me. A man answered our knock. We showed him our identification and stated our reason for being there.

He came out on the porch and his demeanor, body language, and verbal abuse of us gave me reason to believe that the complaint was a valid one. However, it was the dog's reaction that let me know the true story. She was terrified of him. As soon as she saw him, she dropped to the porch and began urinating. He demanded that she come to him, and she trembled as she crawled to him. She just crouched in front of him.

Honestly, I did not know what to do. The thought came into my mind that if I mentioned her terrified reaction to him, she would pay the price after we left. I spoke with him about kind treatment of animals, how dogs think and learn differently than we do, and this was a wonderful dog that could be such a good friend of his. His wife assured us he loved his dog and was kind to her. We did not believe her for one second.

We had no solid evidence of cruel treatment that would hold up in court; the caller who had complained said that he would not be willing to testify in court. There was nothing else we could do. A follow-up call a couple of weeks later revealed the dog "disappeared." I hope that means she ran away.

Virginia has excellent standards of adequate care required for companion animals. The law can make you feed and water all of your animals. The law can make you provide shelter for them, and can even require veterinary care for them. The lack of adequate care can be proven in court.

There is no law, though, that can measure the love and gentle treatment provided to companion animals. Because of that, harsh treatment and emotional abuse happen in homes and can continue unless a human witness is willing to testify in court.

It is heartbreaking and one of the reasons that we still have a screening process in place for people who want to adopt our shelter animals. And yes, I still think of that poor, sweet, terrified dog.

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Enamel Ware

Enamel has been used to decorate metal since medieval times, creating elaborate designs on copper, silver and other metals. Enameled pieces for home use were rare before the 1800s. Around 1880, a few artists on the East Coast made plaques picturing nature to decorate a metal box or lid for a bowl. These pieces by artists like Gertrude Twitchel sell for thousands of dollars today.

Enameled metal bowls and ashtrays were favored gifts. Modern jewelry, vases, desk sets and even large wall plaques were made in art schools. Colorful geometric designs, flower forms and imaginative modern creatures were favored. Artists signed the enamels on the front or back if selling through a shop, but many independent artists left their work unsigned.

An 11-inch-diameter shallow bowl with a stylized picture of a rooster, fish and three round, thin-line designs on the front was signed "Karamu OH Hykes" on the back. It was unidentified when first offered for sale, but a Cleveland collector realized it was made by Sterling Vance Hykes (1917-1974), a talented artist who taught at Karamu, a Cleveland settlement house. His work sells for several thousand dollars today. Unidentified, it would probably bring about $400 or so because of the talent it showed.

Q: When I unpacked some Johnson Brothers Old Staffordshire dishes after two years of no use, there was a brownish powder coming from the dinner plates. Are they safe to use? Would they have lead glaze? The plates were in my family from the 1950s.

A: The brownish powder may have come from the packing materials or the cardboard box the dishes were packed in. Some antique porcelain was decorated with lead glaze. If the glaze is cracked or chipped, the lead can leach out. It's best not to eat acidic food on old china, and do not store food in it. The Food and Drug Administration set regulations on the amount of lead in glazes on ceramic dishes used for food in 1971. The standards have been revised since then. Dishes don't have to be lead-free, but plates cannot contain more than 3 parts per million of leachable lead. Your dishes were made before those safety standards were set. The only way to determine if the glaze on your dishes has lead in it is to test it. You can buy a home lead testing kit or see if your local health department can test the dishes.

NASA Webb Telescope Program Director is County Native

At this point you have probably seen one of the five pictures taken by NASA's James Webb Space Telescope. But you may not have known that the man behind the success is Gregory Robinson, a Pittsylvania County native and 1978 graduate of Dan River High School.

On Tuesday, July 12th, NASA released a series of pictures taken by the James Webb Space Telescope, which has been dubbed as the largest and most powerful space telescope in the world. Now that the telescope has entered its science operations, it will allow researchers to look inside of dust clouds to see new stars that are forming and help them look for signs of life on planets outside of our solar system.

For this week's episode of PittCo Happenings, we interviewed Robinson about his local connections, experience working with NASA, the Webb telescope program, and advice for listeners.

Before Pittsylvania County Schools integrated in 1970, Robinson attended three elementary schools in the County: Southside, Mount Hermon, and Glenwood. He attended Blairs Junior High School before going to Dan River High School in the ninth grade. Robinson was the ninth of eleven children born to a family of sharecroppers, and he was the only one to pursue a STEM-related field. He earned a Bachelor's in Math from Virginia Union University and a Bachelor's in Electrical Engineering from Howard University. Before the pandemic, Robinson says that he would visit his family in Pittsylvania County several times a year.

Robinson has been working for NASA since 1989 and became the Director of the James Webb Space Telescope Program in 2018. As an electrical engineer, Robinson says the space part is really the product of the application of building systems.

"The scientists say, 'we want to go to a certain place in space and study certain things,' and of course, we flow down those requirements to something smaller, something we can build," Robinson said.

The James Webb Telescope program first launched in 2002. Since its launch, Robinson says that approximately 20,000 different people have worked on different elements of it. When Robinson assumed the Webb Program Director position in 2018, the program was behind schedule and over budget. The New York Times reported that within a few months Robinson brought the efficiency schedule from 55% to 95%. In his interview with Pittsylvania County, Robinson explained that there were several primary areas he focused on to get the project back on track:

Improving alignment between a variety of organizations, including the NASA team, the contractor workforce, the White House, and Congress.

Creating more detailed, and thorough plans that stretched further into the future.

Fostering a culture of transparency where all stakeholders had the same level of information and were kept informed of any changes or updates.

With a successful launch, the Webb telescope, which includes both optical and infrared viewing, is already capturing images of never-before-seen areas of space. These images are also showing scenes from the early days -- or what Robinson described as the "toddler years" -- of the universe. These areas are so far away that the light has travelled millions of light years by the time it reaches the Webb telescope.

"We are actually seeing stars and galaxies that actually started many hundreds of million, and in some cases, a few billion years ago, and that light is just reaching us. So, we're looking at something that happened a long time ago just reaching us," Robinson said.

When asked what he wanted to share with the Pittsylvania County and Danville communities, Robinson provided the following pieces of advice:

Invest time and energy into schooling and go to college if possible.

Find something that you are interested in and work hard at that.

Maximize interactions with people and be intentional about working in teams of all sizes.

Laidback Golf Tour Deep Springs Tournament Results

On Monday July 25th nineteen members of the Laidback Golf Tour journeyed to Deep Springs Country Club to participate in their tenth tournament of their season. They found the Ellis Maples designed gem to be just as challenging as it was in the previous years. Beautifully manicured with lightning fast greens that yield very few birdies and low rounds. The group finished just prior to the much-needed rain which began as they were leaving.

The course only gave up five rounds in the eighties and five birdies for the day. There were no rounds in the seventies and four rounds over 100. All flights were won by repeat season winners today; with Willard Vicks winning for the second time in a row here in D-Flight. Mike Asbury won his third tournament of the season with his round of 81 in the A-Flight. Last tournament's winner Fran Hensley finished second by a stroke at 82. Doug Facchina claimed his third win of the season in B Flight with a score of 83. Randy Kenyon picked up his second season win with 91 in the C-Flight as Willard Vicks topped the D-Flight with a score of 92 for his fourth season win and a promotion to C Flight.

The Tour's next scheduled tournament is at Stoney Creek in Whitsett, N.C. on Thursday August 11th beginning at 10am. Entry fee will be $75 with registration request by Monday August 1st. Register by emailing golftripman@yahoo.com.

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

1. Who first released "Do Wah Diddy Diddy"?
2. Name the girl group that released "You Can't Hurry Love."
3. Did any of Steppenwolf's singles top the charts in the U.S.?
4. Which artist wrote and released "Only the Good Die Young"?
5. Name the song that contains this lyric: "To the tables down at Mory's, to the place where Louis dwells, to the dear old Temple Bar we love so well"

Answers

1. The Exciters, in 1963. The song was later covered by Manfred Mann in 1964. Their version topped the chart for two weeks.
2. The Supremes, in 1966. Sixteen years later, Phil Collins covered the song, and his version went to No. 1 as well.
3. No. But their "Born to Be Wild" and "Magic Carpet Ride" did ... in Canada. Steppenwolf formed after the Canadian group The Sparrows disbanded.
4. Billy Joel, in 1978. Joel is thought to have written the song after a high school crush he'd had.
5. "The Whiffenpoof Song," written in 1907 by members of the Yale Glee Club. The Whiffenpoofs (aka The Whiffs) are the oldest college a cappella group. Fourteen seniors are selected each year to re-create the group, and they tour internationally for that year.
