He later served as an Air Defense Artillery Officer with the nuclear-armed Nike Hercules Missile System adding another overseas assignment as a Battery Commander in the Republic of South Korea to his domestic service. He completed additional assignments as an instructor and with the test and evaluation community, his Army career culminating in 1987 as a Major and having been personally awarded the Bronze Star, the Meritorious Service Medal with 2 Oak Leaf Clusters, the Joint Service Commendation Medal, the Army Commendation Medal with 1 Oak Leaf Cluster to go with the Republic of Vietnam Gallantry Cross with Palm, the Vietnam Service Medal with 3 Bronze Stars and the National Defense Service Medal. Having earned a Master's Degree in Aeronautical Engineering with Stanford University in 1972, Dick entered the civilian defense sector in Huntsville with Dynetics working almost immediately on the Strategic Defense Initiative, more commonly known as "Star Wars" program, directly leading to the end of the Cold War. He continued his work with missile defense working on foundational programs like the Patriot Missile System. Following the U.S. withdrawal from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty of 1972 in 2002, with the creation of the Missile Defense Agency, Dick's work moved into today's premier Homeland Defense Systems of Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) and the Ground-based Midcourse Interceptor, which stand guard today. Finally, after 45 years of contributions to this nation's defense as a citizen-soldier, Dick retired in 2012 in beautiful Huntsville, Alabama, his family in close company. Dick was an avid sports fan. Throughout his life, he played baseball and basketball with various organizations, refereed high school basketball games, bowled in leagues, played golf, and coached his kids in DYA baseball. He was passionate about football, most especially Army Football, Auburn University Football, and the Buffalo Bills. He was excited for the Iron Bowl each year but most especially looked forward to the Army-Navy Game. Go Army, Beat Navy! He was a major league baseball fan and would attend as many games as he could, especially when traveling for work. While living in Maryland, he became a loyal fan of the Baltimore Orioles. He loved playing any card game and was very good at all of them. He is survived by his wife of 54 years, Monica; three children and their spouses: Mary Jo (Clyde) Wikle of Madison, Ala., Chris (Natalie) Ehrenreich of Kennesaw, Ga., Joseph (Pamela) Ehrenreich of Dawsonville, Ga.; grandchildren: Katie Wikle, Carl Wikle, Lauren Ehrenreich, Sydney Ehrenreich, Tristan Ehrenreich, Aidan Ehrenreich, Killian Ehrenreich, and Stephen Ehrenreich; sisters: Diane Walker of Lockport, NY, and Marian (Daryl Osbourne) Pulis of Oswego, NY. He is preceded in death by his parents, Carl and Wayve (Raymond) Ehrenreich, of Lyndonville, NY; brother, David E. Ehrenreich of Lyndonville, NY; and his daughter, Mary Katherine Nicole (Nikki) Ehrenreich. He will also be missed by his beloved Chihuahuas: Jack, Roxie, and Zoey. Friends and family were

Albion approves running electric for new scoreboard at Bullard Park

By Tom Rivers, Editor
Posted on OrleansHub.com on 28 July 2022

The village will pay for the $5,500 cost as part of its share of federal American Rescue Plan Act funds. The electric service will be extended from near the new bathrooms and pavilion to the youth football playing field. The 100 amp line will be big enough to serve other possible uses in the future, said Village Trustee Tim McMurray.

The youth football and cheerleading program raised money for the scoreboard through many fundraisers.

Bullard Park has long hosted Albion youth football teams, but the park hasn't had a working scoreboard for years. Mark Cammilleri, owner of the local Burger King, also donated $4,300 scoreboard which has been delivered and is ready to be installed.

A group of volunteers and the Albion

Department of Public Works will work on the scoreboard installation. Aric Albright, the sewer plant chief operator and electrician, and Jay Pahura, the DPW superintendent, will take the lead with the electric service.

Albion has been the only team in the youth football league without a scoreboard and the team often gets fined by the league about $50 every home game it doesn't have one.

Not having the scoreboard also is challenging for spectators, players and coaches who often aren't sure of the score and how much time is left on the clock.

In other action on Wednesday, the Village Board accepted the resignation of Jessica Saraceno from the Albion Police Department.
