BIBLE TRUTHS

DIVORCE & REMARRIAGE. - "But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and cleave to his wife; And they twain shall be one flesh: -. What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder" (Mark 10:6-9) - "And he saith unto them, Whosoever shall put away his wife, and marry another, committeth adultery against her. And if a woman shall put away her husband, and be married to another, she committeth adultery" (Mark 10:11-12). Dividing that which God hath joined for life is direct disobedience to the will of God. Adultery must be confessed as sin and forsaken in order to be in favor with God. - If John the Baptist had accepted popular present day teaching on divorce and remarriage, he might not have lost his head. Read Matthew 14:3-11. - He was great and he was mighty in spirit because he was a man of convictions. Read Luke 7:28. - He was willing to die for the sake of Bible truth regarding divorce and remarriage.

Holding forth the Word of life.

Why Go To A Holistic Expo?

Let's look at the word "holistic." According to Webster, the definition of Holistic is "relating to or concerned with wholes or with complete systems rather than with the analysis of, treatment of, or dissection into parts <holistic medicine attempts to treat both the mind and the body> <holistic ecology views humans and the environment as a single system>." When going to a "holistic" expo, it simply relates to the whole mind, body & spirit connection.

By attending a Holistic Expo, you will be pleasantly surprised at the wide variety of exhibitors that are presenting their services, products and information. Many expos offer free lectures where everyone is invited to learn about the presenter's topic. Questions are always encouraged by all exhibitors who are eager to share their information.

It is a great time to learn, explore and sample services and products you may be interested in. We are very lucky to live in an area that has a number of fantastic expos. This includes the Inner Peace and Wellness Center's, Third Annual Spring Holistic Expo this coming weekend, Saturday, April 9, 10-6 & Sunday, April 10, 10-5. The Holistic Expo will be held indoors at the Hamburg Field House. Admission is $7.00. Part of the proceeds will be donated to Red Creek Wildlife Center who will be there Saturday and Sunday Noon to 3 with a bird of prey. All the lectures are free with everyone encouraged and welcome to sit in as many lectures as they would like. This year there are over 60 vendors for you to explore. Tasty food will be available to purchase. Bring the children on Saturday and let them explore the Crystal Corner and at 1PM learn Animal Tai Chi for kids.

At the Inner Peace Expo I will be offering foot reflexology and reiki, plus answering your questions about hypnosis. Stop by and say hello. Sign up sheets for reiki and foot reflexology classes available.

Ask the Acupuncturist
Veronica Cavella Pedersen, L.Ac.

Q.: Can you suggest a Chinese herbal supplement for acid reflux? I am currently taking a prescription drug, but I have heard you are not supposed to stay on it for the long-term. Would the supplement interfere with my pharmaceutical drugs?

A.: Let me start by explaining that Chinese Herbal Medicines rarely consist of just one active ingredient as western supplements often do. Rather they are elegant prescriptions combining several or many different herbs which work synergistically to address a variety of specific health problems, including what is commonly called acid reflux. No fewer than 400 individual herbs make up the Materia Medica of Chinese Herbal Medicine, with a similar number of classical formulas, some of which have been in use for hundreds of years. The best formula for you would be chosen based on an examination including pulse and tongue diagnosis, your detailed health history, and an exploration of your symptoms, and when and why they occur. Often such a prescription would be taken along with Acupuncture treatments for better and faster results.

Herbal prescriptions are made up of a chief herb which is known to have the greatest effect for the presenting problem, then other herbs to support and reinforce the chief herb, more helper herbs to boost the desired effect while moderating any harsh properties, and finally additional herbs which guide the entire formula to its target to resolve the problem. The prescription can be compounded from raw herbs in the correct proportions, selecting the herbs to treat your specific problem. While this ancient method is very personalized, it requires involvement and effort on the patient's part. The raw herbs will need to be washed thoroughly at home, then cooked into a tea, sometimes more than once a day and drunk as directed. In our busy society many find this challenging because with their busy schedules it is all they can do to get dinner on the table! Also the taste of the tea is very foreign to Americans, and in my experience many have trouble getting it down. In modern times other presentations containing the same herbs are available for convenience including liquid extracts, pills, capsules and powders. While purists may insist that the traditional tea is superior, I believe that whatever leads to patient compliance is the way to go. Chinese Herbal Medicines seldom interfere with pharmaceuticals; more often it is the other way around, with the stronger pharmaceutical winning out. Caution must be exercised however, especially if the patient is currently taking a blood thinner, but this will be discussed and all medications, prescription and over-the-counter, will be reviewed. I also recommend that the source of any herbs, whether raw or in patent medicines, be discussed as not all suppliers are totally reliable. We have heard too many horror stories about contaminated Chinese products ranging from baby formula, pet foods and even toys, so caution is recommended. This being said, many safe and effective Chinese Medicines are readily available from sources with excellent quality control and in a formulation that will be agreeable to you when provided by a qualified practitioner.

Veronica Cavella Pedersen, L.Ac. practices Acupuncture and Traditional Chinese Medicine for adults and children at 154 Deysher Road, Fleetwood, PA 19522 (Rockland Township), 610-987-0489, and invites you to submit your questions for possible publication to asktheacupuncturist@yahoo.com. She is also available to speak to your group about the benefits of Acupuncture and TCM. See ad and like her on Facebook.

How To Avoid Caregiver Burnout

Caring for an aging or sick relative is not always so easy. In addition to the physical demands of caring for such loved ones, tending to sick people can take a mental toll, potentially contributing to a condition referred to as caregiver stress.

Women are more likely than men to serve as caregivers to elderly or disabled adults. That increases their risk for caregiver stress, says the Office on Women's Health, a division of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

The Mayo Clinic notes that caring for a loved one can strain even the most resilient person. It can be quite difficult to be a person's sole caregiver and witness a loved one's health deteriorate due to a debilitating illness. As the population ages, nearly 80 percent of the long-term care that takes place in the United States is overseen by people who are not healthcare professionals, including daughters, granddaughters sisters, and aunts.

Caregiver stress can manifest itself in many different ways, including physical and emotional problems. The following are some ways to handle the stress of caring for a sick and/or elderly relative.

- Investigate available resources. Explore all of the opportunities in your area that may relieve some of the burden of caring for your loved one. These may include in-home visiting care services, meal delivery, adult activity programs, and more.
- Ask for help. Find out if responsibilities can be split among other family members, giving each person a chance to rest and recuperate.
- Get physical. Physical activity in any form can help reduce stress and improve feelings of well-being, offers the Alzheimer's Association. Go for a walk, take an exercise class or ride a bicycle. Expect to feel more relaxed and less stressed after physical activity.
- Speak with a therapist. Discuss your feelings with someone not directly related to your family or circle of friends. Caregivers may have feelings of anger, depression and anxiety, and may even be in denial about how much care this person really needs. Talking about your feelings with a professional can put them into perspective.

- Focus on things you can control. You may not be able to cure the illness or disability, but there are things in your control. Rather than dwelling on things beyond your control, try to improve the things you can control.
- Try to have fun. It's easy to make caregiving the only part of your life. However, you have to leave room for letting off steam. Don't feel guilty about going out with friends or a spouse. Make time for yourself.

Caregiver stress is a very real thing that negatively affects the health and well-being of caregivers. Some simple coping methods can relieve some of that stress.

Stress can wear out caregivers if they do not lighten their loads.
