JCJC's services in Jasper County expand with new Workforce Training Center

By Teresa McCreery, JCJC Director of Media and Public Relations

The expansion of Jones County Junior College's Jasper County Center in Bay Springs to a three-building facility means residents in the area will have access to more educational services and economic development. The previous office space housed the original and JCJC's first, off-campus center in 2008. Within three years, Jasper County Supervisors and JCJC administrators realized the need to expand to a larger facility. The new 31,103-square foot Center was officially opened to the public with a ribbon cutting ceremony July 16. National, regional, state and local officials came together to celebrate the expansion.

"The (Jasper County) Board of Supervisors is the key to this whole facility (and) we wouldn't have had this opportunity if it had not been for Dr. Smith (JCJC President)," said State Representative for Jasper County, Johnny Stringer. "Jones Junior College has never gone outside of Ellisville but other community colleges have gone out...It's all because of Dr. Smith that we're here in this building today. He's given us an opportunity and the board has taken advantage of it, so we're really grateful."

The JCWTC has a 350-seat assembly room and auditorium, the Jasper County Economic Development Director's Office, the Jasper County Workforce Development Center, and Jasper Hall which includes seven-classrooms, a welding lab, a computer lab, and Adult Basic Education/GED classroom and offices.

This is the fourth campus extension JCJC has opened in the last three years. Jasper County led the way in making education and job training available for all of its citizens, with the establishment of the first off-campus center said Dr. Jesse Smith.

"Our intent is to have a Center in each of the eight-counties we serve, eventually. Our area is not going to make it in America without more than a high school education," said Dr. Smith.

Lt. Governor Tate Reeves agreed with Dr. Smith about the importance of improving the educational level of the state's citizens. The JCWTC represents the chance to improve educational levels.

"This facility represents the opportunity for people to get better educated and to get

Laurel Schools - Academics, Arts and Athletics

By Chuck Benigno

There is something special about the start of a new school year. Excitement fills the air as students get ready for new classes, new teachers, new friends and new opportunities. I love the word opportunity. If I had to simplify the role of education, I would say that providing students with an opportunity to reach their fullest potential is our most important task. Opportunity leads to hope and when students feel hopeful, their confidence soars and their dreams become unlimited. This is the business of the Laurel Schools. We are in the opportunity business and we are so excited to open the doors for the 2015-16 school year.

Academics - Our business model centers around providing opportunities in the areas of Academics, Arts and Athletics. It is not an accident that I listed academics first. We want to provide every child with a first-class education. Our goal is simple – compete academically with the same enthusiasm as we do when we compete on the stage or on the field. This begins with quality classroom instruction and course offerings that challenge young people. We are very excited about our new Pre-Advanced Placement program being offered at Laurel Middle School. Academically talented middle school students will be pushed to read, write, calculate and reflect using the College Board’s “Springboard” curriculum. We are also increasing our Advanced Placement offerings for high school students while working diligently to provide extra support in the area of ACT preparation. Laurel High School also continues to develop one of the top JROTC programs in the country with 173 cadets currently enrolled in this dynamic leadership program.

Arts - Speaking of opportunities, we are proud to announce that the Laurel Schools will start an elementary Speech and Debate League for fourth and fifth graders throughout the district. Teams from Mason, Maddox, Nora Davis and Oak Park will compete against one another in categories such as extemporaneous speaking, dramatic interpretation and expository speaking. The champion of our league will earn the opportunity to compete in Atlanta, Ga., to showcase their talents. Nora Davis Magnet School will be taking the performing arts to a whole other level. Students at Nora Davis will perform two Broadway-style musicals each year and will be given the opportunity to stay after-school for music and speech, as well as, Jazz, Ballet and Modern Dance lessons. Nora Davis students will also be given an opportunity to take violin and the show choir will become a competitive group that travels to competitions across the region. At the high school level, I can’t say enough about our band and choir programs that were rated all-superior last year. They are such wonderful ambassadors for our community. Our mission is to develop future leaders and there is no question that children who perform on the stage and speak in front of audiences have a huge advantage over those who never get these opportunities.

Athletics - If you are going to prepare young people to compete in the 21st century workforce, you better make sure they understand the importance of teamwork, perseverance, hard work and integrity. There is no better training ground for these important lessons than the arena of athletic competition. The Laurel Schools are poised for another banner year in athletics. The 5-A defending state champions in football are preparing for another title run with a challenging schedule that includes playing Hattiesburg, Oak Grove and Petal in the first few weeks of the season. The basketball, soccer and track programs are coming off district-championship seasons and I see exciting things in store for our baseball and softball teams. Some people say schools put too much emphasis on sports. I say you can’t put enough emphasis on building character, work ethic and leadership.

So, are you ready for another school year? The Laurel Schools are ready and we can’t wait to see our kids come through the doors of opportunity. May God bless the 2015-16 school year!

RE-ELECT ANDY DIAL
SUPERVISOR • DISTRICT FOUR

Dear residents of Beat Four in Jones County, I would like to express my gratitude and appreciation to the residents of Beat Four for allowing me to serve as your supervisor for nearly twenty years. We have truly been blessed in Jones County with a multitude of assets: outstanding schools, low unemployment numbers, a business friendly environment, continual help from all of the communities, and the support and opportunities offered at Howard Industries, Jones County Junior College and South Central Regional Medical Center. Additional employment prospects continue to develop at the Howard Technology Park with the addition of the new GE Aviation facility. This new industry is an investment establishing hundreds of new jobs for the entire region. My goal as your supervisor will be to continue to strengthen our county's quality of life. I humbly ask for your vote to allow my business and management experience to continue serving our community as your Beat Four Supervisor. I pray God will forever bless our county. Your prayers and support are greatly appreciated.

I look forward to our future and the hopes of visiting with you soon. Thank you again for your past and present support.

With regards,
Andy Dial

SPEAKING OF WOMEN

CHILDREN'S FOOD ALLERGIES SYMPTOMS, TREATMENT & PREVENTION

Today, there are 5.9 million children in the U.S. living with a food allergy. One in every 13 children has a food allergy, and nearly 40% of these children have experienced a severe or life threatening reaction. Many of these reactions happen at school, Christine Chard, M.D. will discuss how to keep kids with food allergies safe this school year.

Mitchell PITTS

State Representative
District 88

Phyllis Welch PITTS

Jones County Coroner

Hello to the voters of Jones County
My name is Mitchell Pitts and I am running for State Representative District 88. My wife Phyllis and I reside in the Tuckers Crossing area. We have lived there 14 years. I am a life long resident of Jones County. I am a successful business man, I served in the United States Air Force for 6½ years, a member of the American Legion, was an instrument engineer for Texas Instrument, Drilling Foreman for Getty Oil and Texaco, and retired from Chevron.

I have an extreme concern regarding our state.
I will be a voice for everyone.
Please vote for and elect Mitchell Pitts our next representative.

I will be your full time representative and together we can and will make a difference!

Thank You,
Mitchell Pitts

Anderson Square's Summer Art Camps' final days

By Linda Cranford

After several weeks of fun filled Kid's Summer Art Camps at Anderson Square, with each week having a different theme, the final days of camps are coming to an end with a two-day Mermaid Art Camp, Monday and Tuesday, July 27 and 28.

Last week's camp, The Secret Garden, saw participants creating garden inspired ornaments that double as sun catchers, charm bracelets, hand built pottery free-form glazed bowls, paint-your-own-pottery glazed goblets, giant tissue paper flowers, and recycled-material bird houses.

Adults will enter the creative world of Anderson Square beginning Thursday, July 30, with a slab pottery bowl creation class. Anderson Square owner, Suzanne Anderson Boyd, said guest artists are being booked now for August classes in mixed media and artisan crafts.

Mary Ann Stroka, from the Stringer Alpaca Farm, will be teaching a Beginner Crochet class August 5, from 12:30 until 2:30, and August 6, from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m.; and, an Alpaca Mixed Media class August 11, from 10 a.m. until 12 p.m., and August 13, from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. Trina Holifield will present Cheerful Crosses classes August 7 and 14, and again August 20 and 21, from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. each night. Jack Thomas will conduct Puppet Art classes August 11 and 12, and August 18 and 19 from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. each night. Holifield will return the end of August for a two-night Harvest Art class, August 25 and 27, from 6 p.m. until 8 p.m. each night. Micro-macrame Jewelry making, with Linda Cranford, will be coming in September.

"Keep a look out for Holiday inspired classes for paint-your-own-pottery," said Boyd. She added that Anderson Square is open from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday for the paint-your-own-pottery where anyone can arrange to come in, choose an existing form, and create their own pottery art piece. Anderson Square is located in the North Laurel Shopping Center.

Watch for the Anderson Square Ad in the Impact for future events and activities. Visit their Facebook page or call Boyd, or Jack Thomas, at 601-340-3153 or 601-498-6905.

better trained for the jobs of the future. The government's role is to create the environment which encourages those of you in the private sector to invest capital and create jobs," said Reeves.

Originally Jasper County Supervisors estimated they would need $2.5 million for their vision to become a reality. However, with the East Central Planning and Development Districts' assistance in finding more funding, officials realized the impact of their vision was more than a dream. Eventually, $4.5 million in funding came together from four main sources: $1,750,000 from the U.S. Dept. of Commerce (EDA); $350,000 from the Delta Regional Authority; $1,400,000 from the East Central MS Planning and Development District; $1,000,000 from the MS Development Authority (CAP Loan).

"We want to commend Jasper County for their vision and the courage to step out on this project," said Community Development Director for the East Central Planning and Development District, Jenifer Buford. "You have a board of supervisors in Jasper County that are very proactive. They are visionaries."

The U.S. Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development, Jay Williams said he knew the ribbon cutting ceremony for the JCWTC was a monumental event because of the level of collaboration. He commended all of the participants who made the expansion of the Jasper County Workforce Training Center possible through funding or providing services. The former Youngstown, Ohio mayor said having the vision to excel and having the ability to provide education is a priceless gift to the public.

"Providing economic opportunity through education and through skills training is critical to keeping this region, this state and this country competitive. The investments we are making in education are invaluable....Making sure we have the skills that are necessary for today's jobs and tomorrow's jobs are some of the most important things that we in public service can do," said Williams.

With 50 million people unemployed and five million available jobs, Alternate Federal Co-Chairman for the Delta Regional Authority, Michael Marshall said job training will be even more important in the coming years.

"Manufacturing will have fewer jobs but there is going to be more high skilled jobs. There will have to be workforce training programs in place like this facility here. That's the key to our future. That's the key to our economy. That's the key to our growth. This is your money and it is being put to the right use," said Marshall.

Jasper County Board of Supervisors attorney, Ricky Ruffin pointed out the impact the Center will have on the county is far reaching. He also added that taxes will not be raised to pay for the Center.

"Whether you're a traditional student or a non-traditional student, you can get an education here. You can also learn a trade here. Through some of that innovation and progressive thinking by the board of supervisors, it's not going to raise your taxes; not one dime. Be proud of this facility," said Ruffin.

Bay Springs' CEO of Hol-Mac Corporation, Charles Holder, is extremely proud of the new JCWTC. He believes if we can get the people who want to be trained it will be a blessing to the county.

"It will be a big help if they can come and train here for Hol-Mac Industries because the companies that don't require training practically don't exist anymore," said Holder. "This is the best thing that's happened in Jasper County as far as economic development. This is economic development."

To ensure those economic development opportunities continue to grow and expand, the county's Economic Development Director's office is located within the Center. EDA Director, Haskins Montgomery said this is a perfect occasion for workforce development and economic development to work together.

"This facility will give our men and women an opportunity to apply themselves and to enjoy a better quality of life to provide for their families," said Montgomery.

Currently, the JCWTC offers GED/ABE classes, academic college courses and non-credit workforce training in Microsoft Office software and welding. Machining and Commercial Truck Driving will be added in 2016 and future workforce training programs include Millwright, Mobile App Development and Health Care Assistant. College-credit for welding and commercial truck driving will also be offered soon.

While the main campus is located in Ellisville, Jones County Junior College's newly expanded Jasper County Workforce Training Center is a part of a network of Centers in JCJC's eight-county district. The Centers are located in Leakesville, Waynesboro and Stonewall. Each Center offers an "anchor" program, like health care, pipe-fitting and petroleum technology, as well as credit and non-credit college courses, Adult Basic Education, GED and workforce training, including technical skills training as needed.

For more information about the Jasper County Workforce Training Center, email Center Director, Gary Suddith at gary.suddith@jcjc.edu or Lela Bryan at, lela.bryan@jcjc.edu.

Preventing ACL injuries in female athletes

By Linda Cranford

South Central Sport's Medicine recently hosted a Coaches' luncheon conference at South Central Place for coaches throughout South Central Mississippi.

South Central Orthopaedic Surgeon Dr. Derrick Burgess, who joined South Central Orthopaedics last year, and established the South Central Sport Performance+ Program at the Wellness Center, spoke to the group about the importance of preventing ACL (Anterior Cruciate Ligament) injuries in female athletes.

"In the past year, I have seen 22 ACL injuries in local athletes, and twelve of those were female athletes ages 14 to 17," said Burgess. "Basketball, soccer, and cheerleading are the high-risk sports for ACL injuries. The ACL is the most frequently torn ligament, and it's mainly a non-contact injury, especially in basketball players. What happens? They almost always say, I jumped, came down, and heard my knee pop. Very seldom do I hear that from male athletes. In soccer, the ACL tears usually occur when the athlete pivots and changes direction."

Burgess said females are four to five times more likely than their counterpart male athletes playing the exact same sport to injure their ACL. "Many factors have been looked at as to the reason for this. Women tend to be more quadriceps dominate, have weak hamstrings, and tend to land in a more knock-kneed position."

"I do not operate on anyone who comes in acutely with an ACL tear," said Burgess. "They are usually sent to physical therapy for at least two to three weeks to regain the motion. If you operate on a stiff knee, they generally tend to struggle more during the post-operative phase of getting their motion back. In the young active population, surgery for ligament reconstruction, across the board, is almost always done. If they have an unstable knee and continue with their activities, they are at a higher risk of further damage. Surgery is performed within three weeks to three months of the injury. Study has gery is performed within three weeks to three months of the injury. Study has been shown that people, who go past three months without having their ACL fixed, tend to have a worst outcome.”

Burgess said studies have shown that it takes at least six months of intensive rehabilitation before an athlete should return to sports activities. “Each person is different. Their ability to regain strength determines the time that they return to sports activities,” explained Burgess. “After an ACL injury, a person rarely returns to the level of performance they were at prior to the injury. They may be just a step slower than before.”

Burgess said the key is prevention. “That’s why we developed the Sportsmetrics program, here. It was the first scientifically proven program to decrease ACL injuries in female athletes,” explained Burgess. “The focus of the program is on proper jumping and landing techniques, developing upper and lower strength, and increases the ability to change directions quickly. It’s a six week program, three times a week, for about an hour and 15 minutes. The training is usually done in a small group setting. Our current group has six girls in it. Four of the girls are in the rehab phase after their ACL reconstruction surgery, and two are going through the program for strengthening and ACL prevention.

Exercise Physiologist, Whitney Whittington, and three of the girls participating in the program were on hand to demonstrate the different training exercises used in the Sportsmetric Program at the South Central Sports Performance+ Program at the Wellness Center.

“Each session starts with dynamic warm-up, then they move into plyometrics or jump training, then strength and flexibility training,” explained Burgess as the girls went through the drills. “This program is more for the off-season. It’s hard to incorporate this into the regular season. It’s a very tough program, and very physically demanding. There is no way you can do it, and not come out stronger.”

“If you will notice, this is a very scientifically designed program,” said Daniel Diers, physical therapist and athletic trainer with South Central Sports Medicine. “The exercises are done in a specific order, for a specific reason.” Drier encouraged the coaches to implement the WIIP program of the Sportsmetrics Program into their athletic training.

Burgess said the WIIP program is a scaled down 20-minute version of the Sportsmetrics Program, and includes its main components, which start with the dynamic warm-up, then moves into plyometrics/jumping, strength, flexibility, and agility drills.

“This has been very informative,” exclaimed Roslyn Haskins, Laurel High School assistant basketball coach, who was attending the luncheon. “The stretching techniques and the entire WIIP program would be excellent for any athletic program. I will definitely incorporate it into our program next year.”

DAR releases third book on history of Ellisville

Submitted

The Tallahala Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) has just released its third book, titled “A Testament to Our Ancestors.”

The third volume covers the 1960-1961 edition of the Progress-Item newspaper and includes a section regarding the Free State of Jones. The book is dedicated to the early administration and faculty of JCJC.

“We couldn’t have done (the book) without the information from the Progress-Item found in the JCJC archives,” said Sue Thomas Coker, editor. The publication was originated and compiled by Cindy DeVall.

DAR is selling a series of books about the history of Ellisville, and the money raised through the purchase of the books goes toward the restoration of the Deason Home.

The latest book, as well as volumes 1 and 2, a cookbook and books about the Deason Home and Amos McLemore, are available for purchase at Ward’s Pharmacy in Ellisville. Volume 3 costs $20.

JCJC library director Julie Atwood and editor Sue Thomas Coker hold the Tallahala Chapter of DAR’s third book, “A Testament to Our Ancestors.” Research for the book was conducted using JCJC’s archives.

Magnolia State Bank announces promotion of Suzette Sullivan

Submitted

Magnolia State Bank is pleased to announce the promotion of Suzette Sullivan to Chief Operations Officer (COO) for the company.

In this new role, Suzette Sullivan will oversee and manage deposit, debit card, and ATM transaction processes and numerous other day-to-day management activities to keep Magnolia State Bank operating with competitive strategies for growth. Sullivan will manage wire transfers, daily funds with correspondent banks and the Federal Reserve, all third-party account relationships, and the Magnolia State Bank Operations department.

Born and raised in Taylorsville, Suzette began her financial career as a teller at her hometown Magnolia State Bank in 1997. Suzette also gained experience in customer service, account service, operations and processing, wire transfers, and merchant capture at Magnolia State Bank before her promotion to COO. Suzette continues to live in Taylorsville with her husband, Brian, and their two children.

“Suzette adds key leadership experience and operations expertise that will position Magnolia State Bank for increased efficiency and continued success in Mississippi banking,” said Thomas Brown, Chairman of the Board.
