INFLUENTIAL HROUGHOUT

Throughout American Grace Hopper history women have made significant contributions in all walks of life. The following women are among those whose achievements warrant merit and appreciation from men and women alike.

Louisa May Alcott Best known for her novel Little Women, Louisa May Alcott actually published more than 250 works despite passing away at the relatively young age of 55 in 1888. An advocate for women's rights, including the right to vote, Alcott was the first registered woman voter in Concord, Massachusetts.

Elizabeth Blackwell Young girls who aspire to be doctors owe a lot to Elizabeth Blackwell, who was the first female doctor in the United States. After repeated rejection from medical schools because of her sex, Blackwell was eventually accepted into New York's Geneva College, braving prejudice from professors and fellow students alike who felt a woman did not belong studying medicine.

Pearl S. Buck

Award-winning writer Pearl S. Buck won both a Pulitzer Prize and the Nobel Prize for Literature, becoming the first American woman to win that prestigious award. Buck was also a noted humanitarian whose works helped shed light on a host of topics, including immigration, adoption, missionary work, and women's rights.

Grace Hopper was a pioneer in the field of computer programming and a well-respected, not to mention, high-ranking Naval officer. The USS Hopper, a guided missile destroyer ship in the U.S. Naval fleet, is named after the woman whose nickname was "Amazing Grace."

Helen Keller

Despite a childhood disease that left her deaf, mute and blind, Helen Keller became a nationally recognized advocate for people with disabilities in addition to an expert author and lecturer. An ardent anti-war activist, Keller, who passed away in 1968, also campaigned for women's suffrage and workers' rights.

Sandra Day O'Connor The first female justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, Sandra Day O'Connor served as an Associate Justice for a quarter century until her retirement in 2006. A breast cancer survivor, O'Connor was awarded the U.S. Presidential Medal of Freedom by President Barack Obama in the summer of 2009.

Dr. Sally Ride

Dr. Sally Ride was the first American woman, and thenyoungest American, to enter space. A Los Angeles native, Dr. Ride is currently the President and CEO of Sally Ride Science, a company devoted to creating entertaining science programs and publications for upper elementary and middle school students.

Salute to Agriculture

National Agriculture Day March 21, 2023

n National Agriculture Day and during National Agriculture Week, we celebrate our ag industry and the hardworking men and women driving its success. Agriculture plays a key role in our nation's economy and prosperity, from its roots in food production and distribution to the influence that stems from it into countless sectors here at home and around the world.

Thanks to the skill, dedication and innovation of our nation's farmers and ranchers, we enjoy one of the world's most affordable, accessible and abundant food supplies. The fruits of their labor directly impact the health and well-being of our families and communities, and we greatly appreciate everything they bring to the table.

To the agricultural producers here in our community and all around the country, Thank You, and Happy Ag Day!
