MANDY CREATES SLOT MACHINE ART

Tumbleweed Smith

After graduating from college with a degree in art, Mandy Napper got a job creating advertising art for Lucky Charms. Then she got a job with a firm that makes slot machines.

“A mathematician comes up with a game and then we come up with the visual art to support that just to keep people in their seats and putting their quarters in. That’s what I do for a living, helping people gamble their money away.”

Mandy creates the symbols and artwork on the devices. “You’ve got your bells and your cherries and your lemons and all that stuff. If it’s a Chinese game what kind of symbols could we use? They need to be something different. What about three firecrackers? Usually you would have ten different symbols, the art surrounding it, the background the animation, the top screen, the advertisement, everything. So they all come together to make a game. Buffalo games are popular now so we have all kinds of western ranch scenes.”

Tumbleweed Smith

It’s a nine to five job in what she says is a very stable industry.

“It’s not contract work which is very rare for an artist and graphic designer. A lot of them have contracts and once the contract is up they have to go find something else. But this is a salaried position.”

In college she took courses on how to find a job. She sent resumes to all kinds of firms in the largest cities in the US. She prepared a portfolio and did lots of interviewing. She would fly to different cities and tell the prospective employer she was in town if they wanted to visit. She knew nothing about slot machines.

“I got a call from this firm that said they needed a junior artist. During the interview I asked about the pay. I was barely out of college and didn’t know much about the going wages for junior artists. The man interviewing me said ‘it’s not really that great. We’ll pay you about $22 an hour.’ I said yes! You know, being 24 and getting something like that right of the bat was just absolutely incredible.”

She has had that job fifteen years.

“I do my art but I have my own spin on it. There are certain rules you have to follow, but I can work within them and do my thing. It’s just the best job. And I go home and work on my own things. I garden, raise my chickens and have a great life.”

About the industry she says no matter if there’s a war going on, a pandemic, or if the stock market takes a dive, whatever the world economic situation is, the slot machines just keep right on ringing those bells and making those sounds. Mandy grew up in San Antonio and now lives in Atlanta, Georgia.

In Sulphur Springs, Ethel was an active member of Topps Club and the Quilt Guild and a longtime member of Beta Sigma Phi for 50 years. She worked as a clerk and fabric lady for Perry Brothers for over 30 years.

Tucker was a loving husband, father, and loving son all while being a hard-working provider. Tucker tragically lost his life at the young age of 27. He dedicated his life to supporting his beautiful wife Jacy and their three young children – twin daughters and a 7-month-old son. Tucker's world revolved around his family, and he always put their needs before his own. He worked tirelessly to ensure that they had everything they needed and more, and his love for them knew no bounds. He was a true family man, and his children meant everything to him. Despite his young age, Tucker was a responsible and dedicated worker. Tucker's love story with Jacy began in high school, and they were about to celebrate their sixth wedding anniversary before his passing. Although Tucker's life was cut tragically short, his impact on those around him will never be forgotten. He was a loving husband, a devoted father, and a true inspiration to all who knew him. His family and friends will forever cherish the memories they shared with him, and his legacy will continue to live on through them. After passing away, Tucker reunited with his father Robert Irwin in heaven.

Tucker is survived by his wife Jacy Irwin, his twin daughters Chleo and Eden Irwin, his son Miles Dean, his mother Deana Irwin, his brother Rope Irwin, his sister Kayla Story and her husband Brad Story, his nieces Alexis and Addalee Story, as well as his grandparents Dean and Barb Blosser from Cheyenne, WY, and Mick Irwin from Edgemont, SD as well as many aunts and uncles and cousins.

BUSINESS SERVICES

The business services industry is a very broad industry encompassing many different categories of business operations; all of them provide some sort of non-financial service to other companies. These services include advertising, marketing, consultation, logistics (including travel and facilities services), waste handling, staffing services, shipping, administration, and security services to name a few. Nearly every business in operation has need for at least one of the different kinds of service offered by the industry. Marketing companies are responsible for increasing the sales of a client company by helping the company gain new customers as well as keep current ones. Legal services are needed to deal with business transactions, as well as for litigation purposes. Logistics and shipping companies are responsible for connecting businesses to other businesses or consumers by collecting, storing, transporting, and delivering products. Staffing companies match people in need of jobs, temporary or permanent, with companies in need of qualified employees. Leasing companies fill a client's need for certain items without requiring full purchase. Security companies are responsible for keeping a company's assets secure. Consulting companies are in the business of fulfilling needs for expertise that clients cannot fulfill themselves. These companies may offer professional, scientific, or technical consulting, management or strategy consulting, or human resources consulting.
