Creativity, tenacity has kept fair part of county since 1856

BEFORE FAIRGROUNDS IN KNOWLESVILLE, ANNUAL EVENT WAS HELD IN VILLAGE OF ALBION, AND BOKMAN FARM

This photograph from the 1980s captures the energy of the Fair - the skills of the young equestrians and the thrills of hurtling through the air on a carnival ride.

In January 1965, the fair finally found a home. The purchase of the Howard Venus farm was approved. The southern section of the farm, between Wood Road and Taylor Hill Road on Route 31E, became the new fairgrounds. The northern section, which included a house and barns, was later sold to Robert K. Nice.

"Illuminating Orleans" - Vol. 3, No. 24

KNOWLESVILLE - Jumping frogs, greased pigs, racing pigs, costumed goats, square dancing on horseback, manure pitching - these are some of the fun activities hosted at the 4-H Fair over the years.

Preparation work on the site began immediately. The biggest project was the construction of the 72' x 108' pole building (now the Lartz Building) to house livestock exhibits.

The Orleans County 4-H Fair opens Monday, July 24. That this is the 77th Annual Fair is a testament to the tenacity, resourcefulness, and creativity of a legion of groups, agencies and individuals who nurtured it through some lean times.

Fund raising efforts intensified. Banks, canning factories, feed dealers, fertilizer companies, farmers and individuals were canvassed. The 4-H Club leaders sold pies, seed kits, and first aid kits. They held dances, organized a scrap metal drive and a plat book sponsorship.

The Orleans County Agricultural Society's first show was held in Albion in 1856 and thereafter annually until 1942 when the stresses brought on by WWII eclipsed any thoughts of celebration.

The Birdseye company in Albion donated snap bean seeds. Volunteers cultivated ten acres of seed and sold the harvest back to Birdseye.

A Farmer's Picnic was held at Bullard Park in Albion in 1945. Re-formed after the war, the First Annual Orleans County 4-H Junior Fair was held in 1946, also at Bullard Park and from 1947-1963 at the old fairgrounds on West State Street in Albion.

The Fairgrounds was officially opened on Wednesday, August 4th by Assemblyman Alonzo Waters of Medina, John Stookey of Lockport, who represented the state 4-H clubs, and Harold Trolley, president of Cooperative Extension. Congressman Barber Conable was the guest speaker at the "Dedication of Fairgrounds and Livestock Building" on Saturday, August 7th.

We are accustomed to the spacious grounds, fine buildings, and amenities available at the fairgrounds in Knowlesville, but that site was not purchased until 1965.

Fireworks at 11 p.m. signaled the ending of that first fair. The tradition of celebrating agriculture, encouraging farm families, and inspiring the next generation of future farmers was secured.

The Field Day Committee first entertained the notion of acquiring its own property in 1958. Several sites were investigated, but plans fell through, for a variety of reasons.

(Material courtesy of former Village of Albion Historian, Dr. Neil Johnson, who chronicled the history of the fair from 1946 to 1995.)

The fair was held at the Mike Bokman Quarter Horse Farm, located at the intersection of Long Bridge Road and Route 31E in Albion, for two years - 1963 and 1964.

National Night Out !!

Tuesday August 1st 5:30 – 8 pm

The Medina Police Department, with the assistance of the Medina Police Advisory Committee are Co-Organizing this year's Orleans County National Night Out. We are proud to give an update on this year's event that will take place on Tuesday August 1st from 5:30 to 8:00 pm at the Medina Clifford Wise Intermediate School, 1016 Gwinn St. Medina, NY.

National Night Out started in the 1980s as a way to bring Law Enforcement and citizens together nationwide on the same night each year. We have expanded on that principal and put together an event that focuses on bringing many agencies and organizations together for the annual National Night Out date each year. This year NNO is celebrating it's 40th anniversary. Participants in this event will include Law Enforcement from throughout the county, Fire agencies, EMS responders, Civic organizations and other groups that will be providing activities and giveaways. Some of the big hits from past events have been the "Battle of the Belts", K-9 Demonstrations, and the Bike Rodeo.

Our mission is simple. We want an event where families can come for a night and be entertained at no cost, eating and having fun in an environment that is free of Violence, Alcohol, Tobacco and Drugs. We hope citizens can meet members of our local organizations and get to know the services they provide to our community.

We would like to thank all of our sponsors, participants, and volunteers who have helped make this event possible!

We will also be providing regular updates through our facebook pages:

Royalton-Hartland Ag Program Wins State Honor

A huge congratulations to Royalton-Hartland High School's Agriculture Program and its teacher Matthew Sweeney. Mr. Sweeney was notified that his class had received the 2023 New York State Outstanding Agriculture Secondary Program award. "This award recognizes the hard work and dedication of the students," says Sweeney. "We are so appreciative of the support that we receive from the Royalton-Hartland Central School District administration, our Board of Education and the community!"

Sweeney is also the recipient of the 2023 District 9 Golden Owl Award for his devotion to positively impact the lives of students and the program has also received a USDA Farm to School Grant which gets local food in the school's cafeteria. The District is looking to hire another agriculture teacher at the middle school level.

The recognition is the highest honor bestowed to Middle/Secondary Agricultural Programs from the New York Association of Agricultural Educators (NYAAE) at its award banquet on June 21st. "The award is given to a school whose Ag program gives students the skills necessary to be successful in their future career paths," says the NYAAE. The program was brought back to the district in 2016 and more than 700 students have actively taken part in it. The program includes hands-on learning covering agricultural science, food science and advanced agriculture science. Students are very actively involved in the Future Farmers of America (FFA) and have competed in several competitions.

Roy-Hart's agriculture program is now also a regional finalist for Region 6 for the National Association of Agriculture Educators Outstanding Program. Region 6 includes over a dozen states in the Northeast United States. The winner will be announced in August.

PROUDLY MADE IN THE USA

Refill with Randy

By Randy LeBaron

Good morning! Grab your favorite cup. Fill it up. And let's start this week right... TOGETHER!!!

Hello friends, today's article is going to be a little different but hopefully beneficial. I would like to share some insights with you, from both my personal experience as someone who has experienced much loss and my professional experience of comforting and counseling many who have suffered loss themselves, as to how you can be a better friend to someone who is grieving.

Going back to the oldest recorded book in The Bible we get a brief of glimpse of both the good and bad ways to go about helping someone who is hurting. Job, who the book was titled after, had a series of tragedies that left him mourning the loss of his children, his servants, and even his flocks and cattle. After suffering such a great loss his three closest friend came to comfort and console him. Recognizing that his grief was too great for words it says that these friends sat silently with him for seven days. So far so good... but then they began to speak.

Once they opened their mouths things started to go downhill fast because their focus shifted from bearing their friend's burdens to trying to figure out what he had done to deserve such great distress. It's human nature, right? We want to know WHY something bad happened or WHO we should blame. It is also human nature to add pain to a situation even when the opposite is intended.

In the Grief Support Group that my colleague Heather and I facilitate through Hospice of Orleans it is not uncommon to have someone share about something a friend or family member had said or did that was hurtful. At the very least it was something that evidenced the fact that the other person did not understand what they were going through. And the reality is that, in most cases, they don't. I will be the first to admit that there were things that, as a pastor, I used to say to someone after their loved one had passed that I vowed I would never say again after going through the experience myself and realizing how absurd my words were. For example, I used to say that all of the decisions and busyness leading up to the funeral service was a blessing in disguise because they had something else to think about. The reality is that having to make big decisions in the moment when you are tired, stressed, and in shock doesn't take away from the sting of what you are going through but simply adds to it and amplifies it.

Until you have gone through it yourself though it really is hard to comprehend. I remember going through the most physically, emotionally, and spiritually draining time of my life when my father passed away suddenly and then my mother, who was unexpectedly diagnosed the next day with terminal brain cancer, came to live with us as she received chemo and radiation daily. Right after her passing, as a result of physically collapsing during the Strawberry Fest Race due to stress and exhaustion, my church placed me on a six week Sabbatical. On the one hand it was very gracious of them to do so, and much needed on my end, but on the other hand I realized once returning to work that many of the members, though certainly not all, were under the assumption that by not doing daily ministry tasks for six weeks I had had plenty of time to get my grieving over with and move on.

Others who I have counseled since have also shared the expectations placed on them by even their closest friends and family members to get over their grief and get back to normal. The problem of course is that you don't get over loss as much as you learn to move forward with it and, for the person who just lost a parent, a child, or a spouse, they cannot get back to normal because their normal has been forever changed. It is understandable that you would want your friend to go back to being who they were before their loss but it's just not possible. They can learn to accept and grow into their new reality but it won't be exactly the same and it will take time. The best way I have found to describe this dynamic is to imagine having your dominant arm cut off. Eventually you will be able to function and do most things with your other arm, though it won't be easy or come naturally, but you will learn to live with it. Some things though, like jumping rope on your own, will be a thing of the past.

There is much more that could be said but I will end with this... if you find yourself in a position to offer comfort to a friend who is grieving simply sit with them until they are ready to talk and then ask them what you could do. Don't feel the need to fill in the silent gaps with well worn cliches. Don't push for them to grieve the same way or at the same pace as someone else who experienced something similar. And don't make them feel guilty for getting emotional just because it makes you uncomfortable. Instead, just show up and show them the same kind of love and grace that you would want them to one day show you when the roles are reversed.

Also, for anyone reading this who is struggling with grief please know that you do not have to go through it alone. Our Grief Support Group is open to all and we meet every 2nd and 4th Tuesday of the month @4pm in the First Baptist Church of Albion (30 W. Park St.)

See you in two weeks!
