Easy Homemade Grill Seasoning

- 1 cup kosher or regular salt
- 4 tablespoon black pepper
- 1/4 cup chili powder
- 1/4 cup garlic powder
- 1/4 cup onion powder
- 3 tablespoon paprika
- 2 teaspoons of Cayenne Pepper

Mix all of the ingredients together. Store in an airtight container in a dry place. I use this grill seasoning for Steak, Chicken, Burgers and Pork Chops.

From Jackie #12, Enjoy!

The Yellow-Rumped Warbler

Yellow-rumped warblers are fairly large when compared to other warblers, since they have a wingspan of nine inches. The males are very colorful during spring migration and the breeding season, with a mixture of bright yellow, white, gray and black. The signature yellow patch on their rump helped give them the name “butter-butts.” They also have bright yellow patches on their sides and the top of their heads. Females are a bit duller in coloration.

Large numbers of yellow-rumped warblers migrate north in the springtime as they head for Canada, Alaska and the mountains out west. The coniferous forests in Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and other western states play host to many breeding yellow-rumped warblers. Great flocks of them also go north along the east coast and stop in our northeastern states like Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Like most warblers, the yellow-rumped “butter-butts” love to eat insects. Flying insects, crawling insects like beetles and caterpillars, spiders – it doesn’t matter to them. They are also pretty adept at flying out from a stationary perch and catching flying insects in midair. But when insects are in short supply, they are just as happy to eat a variety of small fruits and berries.

Speaking of berries, yellow-rumped warblers are the only species of warbler able to eat and digest the natural waxes found in bayberries and wax myrtle berries. These waxy berries were traditionally boiled down and used as candle wax by early colonists, but the butter-butts can eat them! They also eat grapes, juniper berries and even the berries from poison ivy vines. Keep an eye out for them this spring!

Here's what's Cookin'

By Phyllis Hays, #11 with Trixie

Mango Salad with Spinach and Blueberries

Salad dressing
¼ cup extra virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
3 tablespoon honey divided
1 medium lemon - juice
freshly squeezed or more, to tastefreshly ground black pepper to taste

1 cup blueberries
½ cup walnuts
cup Feta cheese crumbled

Make salad dressing
Combine olive oil, mustard, lemon juice, and half the amount of honey (saving the other half) in a mason jar.
Whisk well with a fork, until emulsified. Or, close with the lid, and shake vigorously. Add more lemon juice to taste.

Salad ingredients
6 oz fresh baby spinach
1 large mango cored, peeled,
and diced

Assembly

In a small bowl, combine walnuts together with the remaining half of honey. Toss to combine well.

I prefer to arrange the mango salad in individual bowls for presentation purposes.

Add fresh baby spinach to each individual salad bowl. Add diced mango, blueberries, honey walnuts, and Feta cheese on top of spinach.

Drizzle with the salad dressing. Season with a small amount of freshly ground black pepper.

Alternatively, you can combine all the salad ingredients in a large serving bowl, add the dressing, and toss to combine.

Gardening Tips

by Jackie Kubiak #12

May Vegetable Gardening Tips

May is an exciting time, as frost fades into a distant memory, warm weather (but not too hot) finally arrives and everything wants to grow. With the right quantity of rainfall and long days, plants are at their happiest. In central Indiana, the average last frost date is expected to be around May 10-May 15, which means that May is the month we begin to transplant summer vegetable plants into the vegetable garden — tomatoes, peppers and eggplant along with planting warm season crops such as squash, corn, beans, cucumbers and okra. May is often the busiest month of the year for the vegetable gardener: there's the setting out of transplants, on top of maintaining the early spring-planted crops such as potatoes, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, leeks and onions.

May is the time that the vegetable garden fills up with plants in a hurry. And the gardener is always looking for just a little more space, to add that recently-discovered heirloom tomato plant, or that new lettuce that is heat resistant and slow to bolt or that new burnt orange-colored pepper. So many choices, so little space.

Extend your harvest season by planting sweet corn and beans every two weeks through the end of June.

Please Shop Local, see ya next month!

Fit & Healthy Family Guide

Tick exposure can occur year-round, but ticks are most active during warmer months (April-September). Know which ticks are most common in your area.

Before You Go Outdoors

Know where to expect ticks. Ticks live in grassy, brushy, or wooded areas, or even on animals. Spending time outside walking your dog, camping, gardening, or hunting could bring you in close contact with ticks. Many people get ticks in their own yard or neighborhood.

Treat clothing and gear with products containing 0.5% permethrin. Permethrin can be used to treat boots, clothing and camping gear and remain protective through several washings. Alternatively, you can buy permethrin-treated clothing and gear.

Use Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)-registered insect repellents external icon containing DEET, picaridin, IR3535, Oil of Lemon Eucalyptus (OLE), para-menthane-diol (PMD), or 2-undecanone. EPA's helpful search tool external icon can help you find the product that best suits your needs. Always follow product instructions. Do not use products containing OLE or PMD on children under 3 years old.

- Avoid Contact with Ticks
- Avoid wooded and brushy areas with high grass and leaf litter.
- Walk in the center of trails.

After You Come Indoors

Check your clothing for ticks. Ticks may be carried into the house on clothing. Any ticks that are found should be removed. Tumble dry clothes in a dryer on high heat for 10 minutes to kill ticks on dry clothing after you come indoors. If the clothes are damp, additional time may be needed. If the clothes require washing first, hot water is recommended. Cold and medium temperature water will not kill ticks.

Examine gear and pets. Ticks can ride into the home on clothing and pets, then attach to a person later, so carefully examine pets, coats, and daypacks.

Shower soon after being outdoors. Showering within two hours of coming indoors has been shown to reduce your risk of getting Lyme disease and may be effective in reducing the risk of other tickborne diseases. Showering may help wash off unattached ticks and it is a good opportunity to do a tick check.

Check your body for ticks after being outdoors. Conduct a full body check upon return from potentially tick-infested areas, including your own backyard. Use a hand-held or full-length mirror to view all parts of your body. Check these parts of your body and your child's body for ticks:

- Under the arms
- In and around the ears
- Inside belly button
- Back of the knees
- In and around the hair
- Between the legs
- Around the waist
