at the

Beans Creek Winery

THE BEANS Creek Winery has been in operation for a good 20 years. It faced a difficult transition with the death of founder Tom Brown. Brown's wife, Becky, and son, Josh, worked hard to keep the business going — a testament to their hard work and love for this endeavor.

James D. Davis Jr. is the managing partner of Beans Creek Winery and part of a new team that is, according to him, “trying to bring a fresh look and operating with business acumen to grow the business so that it becomes a destination place.”

Davis is an eloquent advocate for the pleasures of wine. A trip to California's Napa some 15 years ago led him and his wife to a winery tour, where they were served a lunch that featured paired wines, including a dessert of apple tart and Moscato. Davis had been a casual wine drinker and had gone to wine tastings. This was an epiphany that showed what can happen when you have the right setting, the right wine paired with the right food, and the right people. And that was it. He set about putting his passion for wine into action, expanding his knowledge and exposure to wine. This increasing involvement eventually led him to his current role at Beans Creek Winery.

That love for all things wine is on full display at the winery. “I tell everyone there’s two things about wine: Wine is meant to be paired and shared. It’s really meant to be paired with the right food, and it’s meant to be shared with other people. When you do that, special things happen — special memories happen.”

Beans Creek Winery seeks to educate people on wine. The type of wine glasses used influences the taste, as does pairing it with certain foods, and much depends, of course, on the winemaker. Visitors to the winery can taste the same wine in different glasses and note the various aromas and flavors.

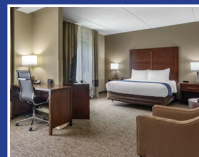

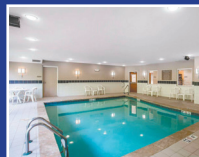

There's also a real attempt to demystify the many preconceptions about wine. Enjoying wine is an exclusive club that requires a lot of special knowledge about vintages and locales.

In an effort to combat these misconceptions, the winery offers 23 varieties, all made from Tennessee fruits and grapes, which reflects a desire to appeal to a broad range of palates. Beans Creek Winery has a wine club with a tiered membership system. It offers the Grape Jam Music Series, a live music event, from May to October. The venue also hopes to host trivia nights.

The winery has a devoted local following, which has been a mainstay of its success. The staff offer guidance in picking out appealing wines, even going so far as to steer people to a store or other winery.

"Wine is just a connection among people," said Davis. It's a concise statement that also says quite a lot about the guiding principles behind Beans Creek Winery.

Discover some of Manchester's favorite foods

A Manchester native shares some of the best places to dine in the city.

By Gabriel Grant Huff
Photography by James Jordan

THERE IS one thing a person living in Manchester can count on — possessing a myriad of food options to satisfy anyone’s palate.

Just ask Erin Kehely, a Manchester native. An ambassador with the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and member of Manchester’s Tourism and Community Development Commission, she’s a third-generation realtor with Advantage Realty Partners. Her father and grandfather were both agents in the Manchester area as well. Kehely knows some of the best dining spots in Manchester and shared some of her favorites.

Kami Sushi & Asian Kitchen

Those with a taste for Asian food will find the Kami Sushi & Asian Kitchen to be a noteworthy place. The cream cheese crab wontons — deep fried to a golden brown — serve as a great starter before moving to the main Asian dishes. Kehely would recommend the Double Trouble Roll, holding crab meat, avocado, and cream cheese inside a roll that’s deep-fried to perfection. The roll is topped with spicy crab, crunchy flakes, and eel sauce. Kehely advises not to forget to add the Japanese gyoza to your order.

Jiffy Burger

People fancying classic American dishes can't go wrong visiting Jiffy Burger. Go down the nostalgic road by ordering hot dogs, sandwiches, salads, and milkshakes. Kehely loves the Bonnaroo Burger and Jiffy's batter-dipped fries. With the restaurant possessing antiques, she cannot help but travel down memory lane while eating there — especially since her parents also worked in the antique business.

The Mercantile Café

The Mercantile Cafe is another Manchester favorite, serving homemade Southern food alongside burgers, chicken sandwiches, seafood, and soups. Offering ice cream and a variety of retro candies in addition to baked goods, this shop will certainly satisfy your sweet tooth. Kehely suggests trying one of the many Meat and Three options offered. Advertising its Southern hospitality, the quality service is friendly and fast. After consuming a hearty meal, customers should not forget to browse The Mercantile's gift shop.

J&G Pizza and Steak House

Another spot of pride for Manchester is at 520 McMinville Highway. J&G Pizza and Steak House is a city landmark, built by Jim and Lisa Rouvelas in 1972. The restaurant began serving customers the following year. Newcomers will need a minute to look over the menu's different varieties of pizza and sandwiches; pasta and salads are also great options. Do not forget to select a starter, whether the choice is mozzarella sticks, hot wings, feta cheese, or onion rings. Kehely's usual order is the House Special pizza — the order is her dad's and 11-year-old daughter's preferred choice as well. Here is a fun fact: Kehely has known the Rouvelas her entire life, and her grandfather sold the property to them back in 1972. Unsurprisingly, J&G is Kehely's all-time favorite restaurant.

Boskey's Grille

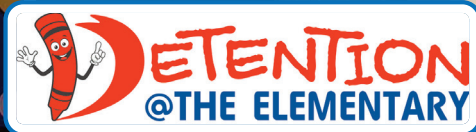

Looking for an upscale eatery in Manchester? Kehely points to the WillowBrook Golf Club, also situated on McMinville Highway and another locally owned restaurant. Located inside is Boskey's Grille, hosting an extensive menu containing a variety of sandwiches, wraps, chicken, pasta, soups, and salads. Entrees include Boskey's Ribeye, sirloins, and ribs, which come with an endless list of sides. The menu is definitely worth investigating.

"We have a lot of wonderful local restaurants that I would love to see the community supporting," Kehely said. "Our local businesses are the heartbeat of our town."

OUTDOOR ENTHUSIAST

An Outdoor Experience

Opportunities abound for experiencing the outdoors near Manchester.

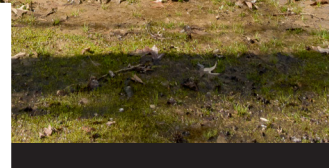

By Sara Hook
Photography by James Jordan

You wake up to the chirping of birds. It's the perfect temperature outside — warm, with a light breeze to keep the air fresh.

Flowers are blooming everywhere, the butterflies are out, and those clear skies will last all day long. Perhaps it's time to go on an adventure. What kind of adventure doesn't matter; Manchester and Coffee County are full of opportunities.

Needing to cool off in the water? Head over to Normandy Lake for swimming or kayaking or hike to one of the swimming holes at Old Stone Fort. Just want a relaxing time outside? Go fishing or birding at Tims Ford State Park. Hoping to see some flowers? As one of the best spring wildflower locations in Tennessee, Short Springs is a perfect choice.

It's a favorite location for student pastor and outdoorsman Tim Hensiek. While he's camped, hiked, fished, and kayaked all around Coffee County, he thinks Short Springs is one of the most beautiful.

“It’s a great way to get the family together — great way to see the outdoors, to experience some fun adventure, to see wildlife, and to see the beautiful woods surrounding you as you stroll down the path,” Hensiek said. “There’s beautiful flowers and plant life to be able to see in the area, and there’s three different waterfalls you can see.”

Hensiek has always loved the outdoors, whether he is on a challenging hike, enjoying the water, or simply seeing God’s beautiful creation around him. He has hiked through multiple Tennessee state parks and 24 national parks as well as completed several sections of the Appalachian Trail. While those are challenging hikes, locations near Manchester are versatile. Multiple loops and trails allow people to pick the distance and challenge that work for them.

Some families may not be able to do something long or challenging, especially if they have young kids. A great option for them, Hensiek said, is Old Stone Fort. Several trails are fairly easy, and there are lots of options for other activities.

“It’s a great way to get the family together — great way to see the outdoors, to experience some fun adventure, to see wildlife, and to see the beautiful woods surrounding you as you stroll down the path.”

- Tim Hensiek

“You can swim in the river. You can play in the creeks that are around there,” Hensiek said. “There’s great hiking, there’s picnic areas, and there’s playgrounds if families have little kids. You could easily spend the day out at Old Stone Fort.”

For those who have never gone on an outdoor adventure, Hensiek advises preparing with good shoes, water, snacks, and a clear game plan. There are also many ways to get comfortable with the outdoors without getting too adventurous at first — the Little Duck River Greenway, for example, is a wonderful way to get comfortable with hiking.

“We have an awesome greenway here in our community, and that’s a great way to get outside and get started walking,” Hensiek said. “Maybe a family’s not for sure if being in the woods is for them? Well, walk through our greenway.”

Similar options exist for other outdoor activities. Get comfortable swimming at the pool and then branch out to a local lake or camp in the backyard before finding a good park. Manchester is full of beautiful opportunities and wildlife, ripe for exploration. Don’t be afraid to take a risk and experience it.

FAMILY EXCURSION

A Day Out with the Family

Take a family vacation in Manchester.

By Sara Hook
Photography by James Jordan

LIFE IN Manchester is always bustling. Between work, kids' activities, and the daily grind, it can feel like there's never enough time to relax.

But sometimes, the best vacation is right in your own backyard or a trip to Manchester, Tennessee. A day out in Manchester can be the perfect way to unwind and reconnect with your community. Whether it's a peaceful afternoon in the park, a delightful dinner at a favorite local spot, or an evening exploring town, Manchester has plenty to offer to make any day special.

For Heather Phillips, life is constantly on the go. As a mortgage lender, wife, and mother of two, she's always busy with her children's activities and sports games. When they find time to go out, the Phillips family enjoys scenic drives or dining at local restaurants, which is a rare treat. Some of their favorite spots include The Mercantile, Kami Sushi & Asian Kitchen, and Common John Brewing Co. They also love shopping at local boutiques like Wisteria Hill, Reese's Genes, and Owen's Provisions & Apparel.

“Manchester has a lot to offer,” Phillips said. “There are the parks, the Coffee County Fair, hiking trails, and plenty of fishing opportunities. The town is great at hosting local events.”

The Rotary Park Amphitheater and the Manchester Arts Center are key venues for such events, offering concerts, movies, plays, and musicals. For sports enthusiasts, Manchester provides excellent facilities like Dave King Park, Fred Deadman Park, and the Manchester Sports Park, which feature softball fields, baseball fields, tennis courts, and soccer fields.

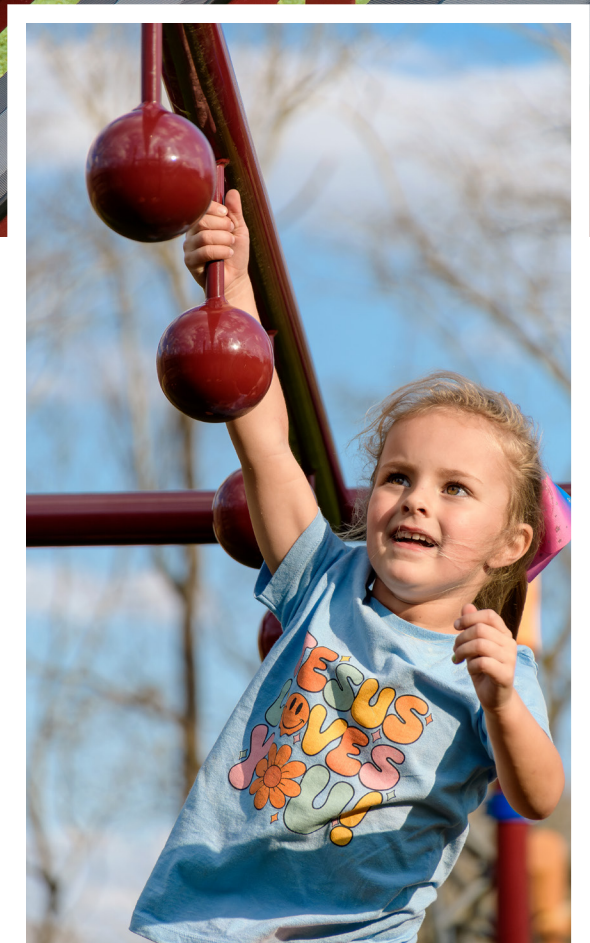

Heather and her husband, Adam, both grew up in Coffee County—Heather in Tullahoma and Adam in Manchester. They cherish the strong sense of community and close-knit relationships that are unique to this area.

“It’s a slower-paced, relaxed, family kind of atmosphere in this town,” she said. “We lived in El Paso, Texas, for a while, and that’s big-city living. It’s hard to get to know people and find that family-friendly vibe, but here, it comes so naturally.”

“Manchester has a lot to offer. There are the parks, the Coffee County Fair, hiking trails, and plenty of fishing opportunities. The town is great at hosting local events.”

- Heather Phillips

The Chamber of Commerce plays a big role in fostering this community spirit, along with local nonprofits that organize numerous events. Local businesses also contribute to this welcoming atmosphere.

“You walk in, and they treat you like you’ve lived here your whole life,” Heather said. “There’s an authenticity here because of our close-knit community.”

For families who have lived in Manchester their whole lives, there’s always something new to discover. The Manchester Chamber of Commerce has plenty of information on local events and activities, making it easy to stay engaged and find new adventures.

So, step out and explore your hometown. Attend community events, visit local businesses, and enjoy the friendly atmosphere that makes Manchester special. There’s always a new experience waiting for you in the place you’ve always called home.

CONCERTS

in Manchester

Despite its proximity to Nashville, Manchester might have the edge on Music City for special and unique-to-the-area venues for live music. The Farm is the world-famous home of Bonnaroo, the yearly Music and Arts Festival. The Caverns has become a must-play spot for artists of every genre, from Bluegrass to Gospel to Psychedelic Rock. Past standout shows at The Caverns featured Dawes, Guster, Brandi Carlile, The Flaming Lips, Brothers Osborne, and Gov't Mule.

Common John Brewing Company

Common John Brewing Company has quickly become more than just a brewery—it's a vibrant live music hub that draws crowds from across the region. This local gem offers an exceptional blend of craft beers, community spirit, and a thriving music scene that has put Manchester on the map for more than just the iconic Bonnaroo Music and Arts Festival.

Common John Brewing Company was initially celebrated for its diverse selection of craft beers. The brewery offers a variety of styles, from hoppy IPAs and rich stouts to refreshing lagers and unique seasonal brews. Each beer is crafted with a passion for quality and a commitment to local ingredients, making it a beloved spot for both locals and visitors.

However, it's the brewery's live music scene that has truly set it apart. What started as occasional live performances has evolved into a robust calendar of events that showcases a range of musical talents. From local singer-songwriters to regional bands and touring artists, Common John Brewing Company has become a go-to venue for music lovers.

The Caverns

Located in the rolling hills of Pelham is a nature and music destination: The Caverns. Known worldwide as the home of Emmy award-winning PBS series "Bluegrass Underground," The Caverns also welcomes artists from a host of musical genres from around the world.

Patrons flock to what is known to locals as Big Mouth Cave to enjoy the pre-historic natural sounds that the cave boasts of.

Claustrophobic concertgoers can enjoy a different venue, The Caverns Above Ground Amphitheater. It opened to the public in 2020 as an outdoor alternative to live music at the Caverns.

NOT SURPRISINGLY, THE TOWN OF MANCHESTER OFFERS ITS OWN MUSIC VENUES:

Besides it's craft beer and food, Common John Brewery has an extensive music calendar: www.commonjohnbc.com

Prater's Bar-B-Que, which also has a locale in Morrison, offers steady live music: www.pratersbbq.com

Bonnaroo's Sonic Boom

FROM MANCHESTER AND BEYOND

By Richard Klin // Photography by Ashleigh Newnes

Bonnaroo began in 2002. The name originates from Creole slang that loosely means “having a good time” and is part of an album title by the late New Orleans music legend Dr. John. As the name would suggest, the early years of the festival had a distinctive “jam band” feel. Over 20 years later, Bonnaroo has become one of the biggest festivals in the country, with an impact and fame that extend nationally and internationally.

As famous as Bonnaroo is, it is also firmly anchored to the Manchester community. This was helped along a great deal by the late Lonnie Norman, Manchester’s mayor and all-around community booster. Music festivals and elected officials are often not a natural mix, but Mayor Norman was a fervent Bonnaroo advocate, especially enjoying presenting the key to the city — shaped like a guitar — to the festival’s headliner.

Bonnaroo is held on 700 acres and has drawn crowds of up to 80,000. Its musical offerings have also broken the bounds of genre and style — the lineup is as eclectic as imaginable and is hardly confined to the realm of the jam band. The Beastie Boys played their last performance here in 2009. Paul McCartney, U2, Bruce Springsteen, and Nashville's Jack White have all played Bonnaroo.

This year's musical lineup is way too immense to list in full. It includes Post Malone, Red Hot Chili Peppers, Megan Thee Stallion, Jason Isbell, and Jon Batiste. The festival offers a host of nonmusical activities as well. There is yoga (yoga-roo), activities for children, parades, crafts for sale, a Ferris wheel, and much more.

Soberoo is for music lovers who want the festival experience but desire to be substance-free while doing so. Splash-a-roo denotes the large fountain and waterslide, perfect for cooling off, as it can get pretty hot. The Roo Run is a 5K run. Past festivalgoers could even avail themselves of an on-site chapel where legal marriages could be performed.

Bonnaroo, to say the least, is difficult to summarize. The festival is an amazing experience, but attending it requires some research. It's a vast, sprawling endeavor that draws tens of thousands. Attendees can camp in their cars or in a selection of tents that range from functional to spacious. Know before you go — and if you do go, it promises to be an unforgettable, eye-opening four days.
