Gardening Tips

by Jackie Kubiak #12

July is the perfect time to...

Be Water-Wise

Spring rains have ended and summer heat is picking up in July, stressing plants and making adequate water a priority. Gardens should be watered either early or late in the day when less water will be lost to evaporation, and drip systems are the best options to minimize water loss.

Water Young Trees

Any trees that have been recently planted or are less than three years old should still have dedicated watering throughout July to ensure they do not dry out and the roots can continue to establish. Use a dribbling hose to soak around trees for an hour to water them sufficiently.

Start Harvesting and Canning

By July, some fruits and vegetables are ready to harvest and it is time to start canning or preserving produce to maximize the garden's productivity. Onions, garlic and peaches can all be harvested in July, and young cucumbers can be made into delicious pickles.

Keep Weeding

Weeding is a never-ending garden task, and even during hot July days it is essential to remove unwanted plants that compete for water and soil nutrients. Weeds will be easier to pull when the soil is damp, so it can be better to weed immediately after watering the garden. Please Shop Local, see ya next month!

Outdoor Observations

by Tom Berg

The Fidgety Solitary Sandpiper

There are 85 species of sandpipers in the world, and although 43 species live in North America, the Solitary Sandpiper stands out among them. This slender shorebird is mostly brown above with a bright white belly. Its head and the upper parts of its breast are streaked with brown, and its back and wings have tiny white spots on them. It has a distinctive white eye-ring and its long bill is dark – almost black at the tip. Long legs allow it to wade in the shallows easily as it hunts for food.

One of the most striking features of the solitary sandpiper is the way it walks along the shallows in search of food. It is almost always moving, and as it walks it bobs its tail up and down. It almost looks nervous as it bobs and fidgets along the shoreline, stopping and then starting again in a seemingly never-ending trail of dipping and bobbing.

Solitary sandpipers can be seen during the spring migration along the shores of marshes, swamps, lakes, ponds, creeks and rivers. Marshlands with rotting trees in the water are a favorite feeding area. They wade in the shallows, snapping up aquatic insects, midges, worms, leeches, snails, crayfish and even small fish. Frogs, salamanders and tadpoles are also a part of their diet.

Solitary sandpipers – as the name implies – are usually seen foraging alone during their spring and fall migrations. In fact, these sandpipers will usually try to intimidate and chase away other individuals of the same species. Amazingly, however, they tend to ignore birds of other species that might be searching for food in the same general area.

Here's what's Cookin'

By Phyllis Hays, #11 with Trixie

Watermelon Fire and Ice Salsa

Tortilla chips dipped in a tangy salsa often make the perfect opener to a meal. During the height of the summer entertaining season, salsa can be transformed by watermelon, a popular summertime fruit. Watermelon's high water content and subtle, sweet flavor contribute to its refreshing, some might say addictive, nature. However, this recipe for “Watermelon Fire and Ice Salsa,” courtesy of the The National Watermelon Promotion Board, adds jalapeño peppers to the mix to bring a little heat to those cool watermelon pieces.

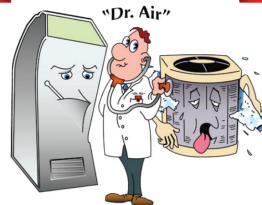

Makes 3 cups

- 3 cups chopped watermelon
- 1/2 cup green peppers
- 2 tablespoons lime juice
- 1 tablespoon chopped cilantro
- 1 tablespoon green onions
- 2 tablespoons jalapeño peppers

Swimming Safety Tips

Provide close and constant attention to children you are supervising in or near water.

- Swim in designated areas supervised by lifeguards. Always swim with a buddy; do not allow anyone to swim alone.
- Provide close and constant attention to children you are supervising, even when a lifeguard is present, no matter how well the child can swim or how shallow the water. Avoid distractions including cell phones.
- Never leave a young child unattended near water and do not trust a child's life to another child; teach children to always ask permission to go near water.
- Designate a "water watcher" whenever in a group setting.

Take smart precautions and use layers of protection.

- Stay within an arm's reach of any weak or inexperienced swimmer who is in the water.
- Have young children or inexperienced swimmers wear U.S. Coast Guard-approved life jackets around water, but do not rely on life jackets alone.
- Do not rely on the use of water wings, swim rings, inflatable toys or other items designed for water recreation to replace adult supervision.

- If you have a pool, secure it with appropriate barriers to prevent unsupervised access to the water.
- Many children who drown in home pools did so during non-swim times – when they weren't expected to be in the water, including as the swimming activity was coming to an end and everyone was thought to be out of the water.
- Children were often out of sight for less than 5 minutes and in the care of one or both parents at the time.

Ensure that everyone in the family learns to swim well and what to do in a water emergency.

- If a child is missing, check the water first. Seconds count in preventing death or disability.
- Know how and when to call 9-1-1 or the local emergency number.
- Have appropriate equipment, such as reaching or throwing equipment, a cell phone, life jackets and a first aid kit.
- Enroll in age-appropriate Red Cross water orientation and learn-to-swim courses.
- Find swim classes near you.

Swimming in a lake or pond.

Be sure you are water competent for natural environments before swimming – this is not your home pool! Always enter unknown or shallow water feet first. Watch out for currents, waves, and underwater obstructions – they're not just found in the ocean.

- Obey signs near rivers and lakes. ...
- Boaters should drive carefully.

Fresh water lacks the high saline content of oceans and seas, and as such, does not offer the same buoyancy profile of salt water. This means that swimmers need to work harder to maintain good body alignment and a high position in the water.

How do you know if it is safe to swim?

Once on the beach, look for beach warning flags, often posted on or near a lifeguard's stand. A green flag means water conditions are safe and other colors mean conditions are not safe. These flags are there to protect you. Please read and obey the posted beach signs and warning flags.

Have a Safe and Healthy Swimming Season!

As kids, we were often introduced to music by our older siblings. I remember my friend Robbie playing his older brother's Beach Boys album. Since that moment, they had a fond place in my heart. So, I was anxious to see "The Beach Boys" on Disney+. Whether you are a fan or new to their music, this documentary does a wonderful job of laying out their story with interviews from both band members and friends. The archival footage tells the story of their music and our country over the decades. The group consists of three brothers, a cousin & a friend. Only one of the brothers actually surfed, but their music would forever be associated with surfing, beaches, and summertime. Their overbearing father was abusive & controlling, but also pushed the band to fame. One victim of the abuse was brother Brian who wrote much of the music. Being shy, fame was difficult, and the constant touring took its toll on Brian. At the height of their fame, the Beatles were sweeping America. But this became less a rivalry and more a case of both bands pushing each other to be better. I highly recommend relaxing one evening this summer to "The Beach Boys." On my scale as to what I would pay to see this film, "The Beach Boys" gets $8.

"The Aisle Seat"

by Tim Fealy

Imagine an alien crash lands in the mountains of Colorado. To hide his identity, he kills a resident and takes on their human appearance. He soon blends in with the local citizens, walking among them, learning their odd human ways, befriending them, and even falling in love. There are just a few challenges to overcome. One is that no one can see through his disguise except the mayor's son who sees him as the alien he is! He was also sent to this planet to destroy it. As he starts developing human emotions, he soon questions his mission. This is the plot of "Resident Alien," now available on Netflix. It is a well-written, hilarious adventure that will have you binge watching the series. If you are not into sci-fi, do not worry as the show is more about what it is to be human and the connections we make. This has been a favorite show to relax with at the end of a long day. On my scale, "Resident Alien" also gets $8.
