Introducing Phaseshifter Records in the Arts District

Joe Davis is a record collector's dream. He appreciates music, knows the value of good music, and is willing to share what he knows. He's a published musician and enjoys virtually all genres. He's passionate about sharing the backstory of the inspiration behind the music and worked at some of the world's most iconic music outlets. Now, Joe is looking forward to bringing his life's passion to music lovers in Southwest Michigan through his newly acquired music store, Phaseshifter Records in the Benton Harbor Arts District.

Davis is the new owner of the soon-to-be former 3 Pillars Music store in Benton Harbor. Ready for retirement, lifelong area resident Tom Ives sold his store to Davis this month. Besides a side gig of selling collectable records online, Ives is getting out of the record store game. Enter Joe Davis.

"I have a background in music retail. I was a shift manager for a long time at a store called Rhino Records in California. I managed another store briefly called Mad Platter out there, and then I moved on to Amoeba Records in Hollywood when that store opened. Love the store, love that job, but eventually moved back to Michigan where I'm from and had family. Tom was here and I've been helping off and on for the last 10 years or so and we just had a great relationship."

Asked about what inspired his move from "helping out" at 3 Pillars Music to becoming the owner, Davis said it was the right opportunity at the right time.

"Well, he offered it to me. That's the first thing. I love what Tom has achieved here with 3 Pillars. I love the store. I've loved being a part of it. I had been looking for a way to do more live music in the area."

Cultivating Live Music

Davis notes his wife works at the Krasl Art Center in St. Joseph and there's a live music component there. Though he's been happy to play a small role in that over the last year, he wants to see more live and local

Fun and interesting things to do in Southwest Michigan

Gear up for some serious fun with this sampling of events. There's something for everyone.

Mark your calendar for July 12 at 8:00 p.m. as 10,000 Maniacs take the stage at the Acorn. They have covered plenty of ground in its 40 years, from cult-stardom to international stardom, to their current status as a cornerstone alternative band. But the sound and spirit of 10,000 Maniacs remains consistent. The live shows embrace their entire catalog, and the line-up is still anchored by four of the six original members.

Worth Waiting For

*It is good to wait quietly for the salvation of the LORD.
Lamentations 3:26*

Waiting is hard. In a world in which everything moves faster and faster, we expect everything to come to us quickly. It is hard to wait. What if you know what you are waiting for is worth the wait? Does that make it easier? That wedding date you've had circled on your calendar for over a year. That vacation you've planned and saved up for. That visit from loved ones you haven't seen for a long time.

Israel's history was a history of waiting. When Adam and Eve sinned, God promised to send his Son to crush the devil's head. But he wouldn't come in their lifetime. They had to wait. From Abraham to David to Jeremiah and beyond, for centuries, the people waited and waited.

We live in a time of waiting, too. Waiting for Jesus to come back and be delivered from our sorrows and suffering once and for all. When will that day come? We don't know. Since the day Jesus ascended into heaven, God's people have been waiting and praying, "Deliver us from evil."

But that waiting is hard. You know how hard it is if your health is failing, your body is weakening, and you simply want to see your Savior. "Lord, deliver me." You know how hard it is if you've had to spend another night in a hospital bed or another day struggling to make ends meet. "Lord, deliver me."

You know how hard it is if you've been mocked or bullied for confessing Christ at school or work. "Lord, deliver me."

While we wait for the Lord's deliverance, we are tempted to grow impatient, discouraged, frustrated, and even angry with him.

But the Bible says, "It is good to wait quietly for the salvation of the LORD." We can come before God in humility, saying, "Lord, I don't have the answers to life's problems. You do. I don't need to be in control because you are. I don't have to worry because you love me. Lord, forgive my fears and frustration, my impatience and anger. I wait in hope for you. Because you love me and are coming to deliver me, I know you are worth waiting for."

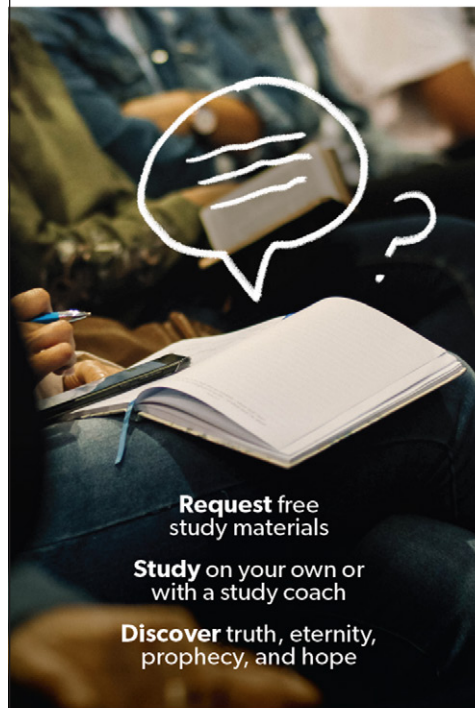

Prayer: Lord, help me wait patiently for your deliverance. Amen.

Member Spotlight: Present Pillars

This week I want to take some time to spotlight one of our members doing extraordinary things in Southwest Michigan. That member is James Gunter, Executive Director and founding Pillar of Present Pillars in Benton Harbor.

If you're unfamiliar with Present Pillars, here's a quick background on them: When Present Pillars first started back in July of 2021, their mission was to spotlight and support fathers and highlight the importance of fatherhood involvement in children's lives - which still stands true today.

Since their inception, the organization has primarily supported the community of Benton Harbor through a fatherhood program and barrier navigation. Earlier this year, they opened The Pillar Center at 240 W. Main St. Benton Harbor, which allows their team to centralize services and engage men and fathers of all stages and circumstances.

"Statistically speaking, the impact on a child's life by having a father figure present is huge, the odds of living in poverty drop by 50%, teen pregnancy by 75%, and incarceration by 80%," says James. "Continuing to engage these current and future fathers and provide them with a safe space to navigate and gain mentor guidance ultimately creates a fellowship that fosters the type of community change that's needed."

Since opening The Pillar Center, Gunter and his team of Present Pillars have opened a new barbershop called 'Legends'; started connecting youth with trade-based jobs; launched new programs to help support fathers; and continued to grow their vision of 'Healthy Father. Healthy Family. Healthy Community.'

One of the current programs which kicked off this week is part of the National Fatherhood Initiative's® (NFI) 24/7 Dad® Key Behaviors Workshop which helps fathers in Berrien & Cass Counties develop a set of behaviors that will help them gain new skills. The program is based on the 12 key behaviors of a 24/7 Dad that are associated with the five characteristics—or traits—of the 24/7 Dad (as identified in NFI's evidence-based 24/7 Dad® curriculum). Those traits are Self-Awareness, Caring for Self, Fathering Skills, Parenting Skills, and Relationship Skills.

Facilitated by Sylvester Crayton, a Fatherhood Coach at Present Pillars. Crayton is a very vocal advocate for the importance of a father's presence. His passion for reaching young men who grew up in situations similar to him is what led him to this work.

"Don't let growing up without a father stop you from being a father," said Crayton. "NFI is excited about Present Pillars efforts to help fathers learn how to practice important behaviors of an involved, responsible and committed father through the 24/7 Dad® Key Behaviors Workshop," said Christopher Brown, President of NFI. "Research shows that a major barrier to father involvement is a lack of skills in dads, many of whom grew up without fathers in their lives. At a time when nearly 20 million children in the U.S.—more than 1 in 4—live in father-absent homes, Present Pillars should be applauded for its efforts to help dads get involved."

As I mentioned, the program kicked off this week, July 8th to be exact, and takes place every Monday until August 12th.

Additionally, James recently shared they are gearing up for their 3rd Annual Shop with a Pillar. Over the past two years they've provided shopping experiences for 218 youth alongside 63 volunteers. The purpose of this initiative is to pair Pillars of our community with youth who could use some extra positivity this holiday season. Priority is given to youth who have lost their fathers to death, incarceration or absenteeism.

This year our goal is to serve 300 youth and engage 80+ volunteers. Walmart recently presented Present Pillars with a $5,000 donation kick-starting the fundraising for the $20,000 goal.

To learn more on any of these programs and initiatives, including how you can get involved with Present Pillars visit presentpillars.org, call 269-363-4000, or email jgunter@presentpillars.org

That's a quick look at one of our amazing members doing some big things to help better our community. To get more information about all things Chamber related visit our website at smrchamber.com. You can also connect with me directly at sspoonholtz@smrchamber.com or 269-932-4040.

"I really was looking for some way to do promotion to do shows around here, and this is a good place to do it. It's a small place, so you have to bring in acts that are appropriate to the space. I just want to see the Arts District survive and thrive and I want to be a part of it. I want to see the store keep going. That was the main motivator."

About his love for music, Davis said it has been a lifelong pursuit.

"A lot of people get heavily into music in their teenage years and they just kind of grow out of it, or only love the stuff that they experienced in their teens and 20s. I just never really stopped. I still love the things I did when I was a teenager and I still love metal. I still love punk. I still love classic rock, jazz, all that stuff."

A Phaseshifter for the Arts District

About the new name, Phaseshifter

Records, Davis said Ives, the former owner, is keeping the 3 Pillars Music name because it's connected to other online ventures, so Davis has chosen a new name and reserved related social media accounts that will soon light up with information.

"Phaseshifter is a guitar sound. It's sort of a spacey guitar sound. It's on recorded music all over the place, but nothing that would probably jump out at you. It's not a subtle sound. It makes your guitar sound like it's flying through space. I picked the name because it's kind of a spacey sounding name and I'm a huge science fiction buff."

Asked about buying a shop where most of the inventory is on a medium that has come and gone from the mainstream at least a couple of times, Davis wasn't fazed.

"When I started at Best Buy (in Mishawaka), it was all CDs and no vinyl. I've seen vinyl come, I've seen it go, and I've seen it come again. All these formats do that. There's a lot of young people who are buying CDs now, which most older folks tell you are not worth anything, but there's quite a few expensive collectible CDs nowadays. There's also a huge indie, boutique cassette (market). They print 50 to 100 copies of a cassette, and they sell out immediately. Who even makes a player anymore?"

With the sale complete, Davis running the store, and the name change in the works, he said the next steps will emerge in the fall.

"I'm going to basically just keep it going for the summer and make some changes and then probably have a grand reopening - probably in October. Long-term plans... I love what Tom's done with the jam band stuff and the bluegrass... my background is a little more in punk and metal and hard rock and stuff. (I'm) going to bring in some more genres to get represented in the store and make it just a more diverse array of music."

Vinyl Wanted: Perusing record collections

Part of bringing diverse music requires Davis to find that music. He encourages people who want to sell their record collections to reach out to him directly. He recently had the opportunity to pick through a true 'barn find' in Kalamazoo where the owner had amassed somewhere in the neighborhood of 4,000 records.

Beyond finding new and used vinyl for customers, Davis said the shop will maintain the current crop of services.

"We're still going to have instrument repairs, guitar restrings, we're still going to do stereo repairs. But my driving motivator now is just to make it a great record store. That's the part I'm good at."

Asked about being involved in the community, Davis said he wants to make sure the Arts District continues to thrive and that the people of Benton Harbor and the entire region feel welcome.

"This store has been here a long time. I really want to bring the Black community in here more. I would love to work with any local churches or choirs or Black music groups, hip hop artists, anything like that. I want this to be a place for everybody and I want people not just to feel welcome, but to know that it's for them and they're a part of it."

The 'no way' find

Asked about what he wants people to think about when they think of Phaseshifter Records, Davis said it's about nurturing the 'No way' find.

"That's the best thing about record stores. That's what my wife and I talk about all the time. The best feeling for me when I'm in a record store, the thing that I love and the thing that keeps me coming back is what I call the 'no way' find. That's when you pull out a record and you cannot even believe it's sitting in this store and you're like, 'No way, I can't believe I found this here.' That's what I want people to experience in this place."

Phaseshifter Records (still bearing the 3 Pillars Music signage) is located at 198 Water Street in Benton Harbor. The current hours of operation are Wednesday thru Sunday, 11 am to 5 pm.

The Overstuffed Story of That Wild Bikini

I constantly search for column topics that will appeal to the broadest variety of readers, and I'm certain this week's subject – the bikini – fits the bill.

Well, every guy I talked to liked the idea.

The official "birthday" of the bikini is generally said to be July, 1946. Two-piece bathing costumes definitely existed prior to that, but apparently none ever dared go where the bikini went: below the bellybutton.

The bikini was "invented" in France, and the first one was modeled by a young woman who worked as a nude dancer in a Paris casino. Hmm. Can you imagine being way overdressed in a bikini compared to what you wear at work?

One of the bikini's "inventors," Jacques Heim, actually created a two-piece suit early in 1946. He called it the "Atome" for its small size. But a guy named Louis Reard split the Atome, refining it into an even smaller suit. Nuclear weapons tests were taking place at that time on Bikini Atoll in the South Pacific, so Reard gave the suit the name it still bears today, saying the bikini would generate a burst of excitement equal to The Bomb.

The first bikini was something men scrambled to see up close. After all, the fabric featured an intriguing "newspaper" design. In fact, close-up photos of the suit clearly reveal portions of a column by Farrell and Head.

The bikini took a while to achieve popularity. But by 1960, it was da bomb on the beach, and the famous ditty "Itsy Bitsy, Teenie Weenie, Yellow Polka Dot Bikini" was a big hit for a guy named Brian Hyland.

Any deep-thinking columnist would make a profound observation here about this song's permanent place in the nation's cultural consciousness. I, however, mention Brian Hyland merely to torture you with meaningless trivia about him: Hyland is a cousin, by marriage, to the late Louis Feinberg, who himself became a permanent part of the nation's cultural consciousness, as "Larry" of the Three Stooges.

(Whaddya say, guy readers? Can a column get any better than this? Bikinis AND the Stooges! All that's left is to worm in some reference to beer!)

Since the innocent days of Hyland's dopey song, we've advanced to highly sophisticated and psychologically challenging bikini-related entertainment for a new millennium. I speak, of course, of the Nickelodeon Channel's "SpongeBob www.MailMaxOnline.com SquarePants" – which is still in production! – set in an undersea community called Bikini Bottom.

You say SpongeBob is not remotely sophisticated or psychologically challenging? Okay then, YOU try answering this question posed by my No. 5 son, when he was a mere tadpole: "If SpongeBob lives in Bikini Bottom, what happened to Bikini Top?"

My mind immediately wandered off in contemplation of lost bikini tops, so to distract him – and me – I tried Googling pictures of the real Bikini – the South Pacific atoll – to show No. 5 where SpongeBob might live. Unfortunately, I was inundated with pictures of wild bikinis. Most of them rather, um, overstuffed.

Imagine your wife catching you surfing the internet looking at pix of girls in skimpy bikinis, and then trying to convince her that you're innocently researching a column topic.

Of course, in my case, this actually worked. But dude, it won't in yours.

Dave Says

He Needs to be Reminded

Dear Dave,
My husband and I both work outside the home, and he has come up with an idea for our fun money. He wants us to set up an account where we both put 5% of our earnings for discretionary spending. The issue in my mind is that he would have a lot more to spend, because he makes much more money than I do. He says he feels he should be able to spend more since he makes more. I'm not a greedy person, and I don't spend money on a lot of frivolous things, but I do think things would be even. I feel we should each put in the same dollar amount—one that's fair to both of us—if we're going to do this. What do you think?

Val
Dear Val,
This isn't a good plan. I'm sure your husband means well, and that he's really a good guy overall, but it sounds to me like he probably hasn't thought this whole thing through. As they stand now, the details of his idea play out as pretty immature and selfish. And something tells me you wouldn't marry a man like that.

Think about it this way. There are plenty of families out there where only one person works outside the home and generates an actual income. Would it be fair to say that whoever brings home the paycheck is the only one who can have fun spending once in a while? Of course, not! In most cases, spouses who don't work outside the home take on tons of responsibility and accomplish several things every single day—especially if the couple has kids. If you put a monetary amount on all that, it'd wind up being a pretty nice income dollars-wise.

Remember back when you two got married? If it were anything close to a traditional ceremony, I'll bet the preacher pronounced you two "as one." As in every thing and every way. That means you have one income, a combined income, and it's our income. If you own a home, it's our home. It's not more his home just because he makes more money than you. Our kids, our marriage our everything. Get the picture?

Marriage is not a me proposition. It should always be a we thing. Your husband needs to be reminded of that.

—Dave
