ORLEANS COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT
PRESS RELEASE

Attention All Orleans County Parents and Caregivers:

Orleans County Sheriff Christopher M. Bourke is pleased to announce a Child Passenger Safety Seat Check Point Event will be held on Saturday, September 21, 2024, at the Orleans County Public Safety Building from 10:00am-2:00pm.

According to data, vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for children between the ages of 1 to 13. Preventative measures, such as proper installation of car seats, booster seats and seat belts can reduce the likelihood of death and injuries. Informing and instructing parents and caregivers on child passenger safety and proper installation of car seats is critical to saving young lives.

Our Certified Child Passenger Safety Technicians will inspect your car and/or booster seats to ensure that your child is in the appropriate seat for their size and age.

For Child Passenger Safety Seat questions, please contact Certified Technician Kevin Colonna at 585-589-5527 or Kevin.Colonna@orleanscountyny.gov.

Orleans/Niagara BOCES Extended School Year Closes Out With Picnic

The Orleans/Niagara BOCES Extended School Year (ESY) program at the Orleans Learning Center (OLC) ended with a great celebration picnic!

Coordinator Michelle Kulbago and her staff went all out making sure the students, staff and special visitors, District Superintendent Dr. Taweepon Farrar, Director of Special Programs Dr. Ron Barstys and School Attorney Melissa Kathan had an amazing time on a beautiful summer day. "It meant a great deal to the OLC staff here to see Dr. Farrar join in the fun," says Mrs. Kulbago. "The staff are over the moon thrilled to have her as our new Superintendent!"

Entertainment was provided by the ONBOCES Super Band. Three of the performers are OLC staff - Gary Withey (Teacher Aide), Tom Smith (Job Coach) and John Osterhoudt (Teacher). "The staff and students just loved it," says Mrs. Kulbago. "They got a few local performers to come out to round out the band and donate their time and talent for free. We are grateful to Gary, Tom and John for the extra effort it took to plan, set up and perform for us."

OLC would like to extend a special thank you to ESY secretary Mary Niemiec and school nurse Mary Lou Cohen who were outstanding with looking out for the students' well-being all summer.

DO YOU HAVE HEEL PAIN OR ARCH PAIN?

Heel Spur Syndrome/Plantar Fasciitis is a common problem among people who are active. It starts as a dull intermittent pain in the heel and progresses to a sharp persistent pain. Classically, it is worse in the morning with the first few steps, after sitting, after standing or after walking.

- Plantar fasciitis often begins with irritation and tearing of the fibrous band of tissue on the bottom of the foot, which may eventually result in the formation of a heel spur.
- Contributing factors: Flat pronated feet, high arched feet, poor shoe support, increased age, sudden weight increase, increased activity level, family tendency.
- 95% of our patients' symptoms are resolved with conservative treatment, avoiding surgical intervention.
- We also offer surgical procedures with the best post-op success rates using Endoscopic Plantar Fasciotomy techniques (minimal incisions and scarring; often back in a shoe in 1 week).

Oak Orchard Community Health Centers Builds Relationships with Farmworkers and Farm Owners

Since 1973, Oak Orchard Health (OOH) has been committed to providing person-centered and culturally competent care to our most underserved communities, especially in our Agricultural Community. OOH was originally funded as a migrant health project. Agriculture is the number one industry in Western New York, specifically in Orleans and Genesee Counties, where most of our farmworkers and their families reside, work, and attend school.

Farmworkers are exposed to risky and harsh conditions, such as harmful chemicals, long working hours, working with large animals, operating heavy equipment, and extreme weather conditions. Agricultural workers are also responsible for feeding our local communities and our country, and we must keep them healthy.

With his permission, Jose Iniguez shares his story of working with Oak Orchard Health to keep his farmworkers healthy. Iniguez began his journey when he came to the US at age 16 in 1991. He began as a farmworker in Washington State, saying, "My employer was ahead of the times, engaging in state-of-the-art growing practices, so I learned a lot." In 1994, he had the opportunity to come to New York, bringing the knowledge and skills he had learned in Washington State and working his way up to VP and Chief Operating Officer at Lamont Farms. He is one of the three partners.

HOW OAK ORCHARD COMMUNITY HEALTH CENTERS KEEPS FARMWORKERS HEALTHY

One step to keeping farmworkers healthy is the Oak Orchard Health Outreach Team and their Community Health Workers (CHW). CHWs visit the farms or camps and provide necessary healthcare, health education, immunizations, and blood pressure checks. They can also help set up future medical appointments and get prescriptions filled. The Community Health Workers are certified Spanish interpreters and have built a trusted relationship with the farmworkers, their families, and the farm owners. In addition to the above services, the outreach team provides the following services:

- COVID-19 education, testing and vaccinations
- Spanish-English interpretation and translation
- Transportation
- Expanded evening hours for just Farmworkers so they don't lose pay

APPLE HARVESTING IS LABOR INTENSIVE

Apple harvesting is a labor-intensive process by the time it hits the stores. Jose Iniguez says, "By the time you get apples to the store, it has been touched 20-25 times from the time it blossoms and eventually turns into an apple. Mowing is also important to the upkeep of the orchard; mowing before the harvest can make it easier to move ladders, bins, and boxes through the orchard. The bottom line is that a lot of hard work goes into each apple by the time you get it to the store. To achieve this, it takes many people; you must prune the trees, removing suckers and bad wood, which help stimulate the tree to produce more fruiting spurs. Pruning also opens the branches so sunlight and air reach the ripening fruit. This is why so many workers are needed for one harvest."

Lamont Farms has not had a good harvest in almost eight years due to the weather and the COVID-19 pandemic. "But this year is looking much better," said Iniguez.

Not only does Jose Iniguez have to work with the farmworkers, but he also has to adhere to NY State labor laws, harvesting times, weather, and balancing out the needs of the farm owners. If they have bad weather or there is a miscalculation in their numbers, workers are still paid at least 30 hours per week. Most farm workers do not know they have sick time available. Lamont Farms recognizes this and encourages workers to take the available time so that farmworkers can get the care they need. Because of how well Lamont Farms treats their employees, they have had a return rate of 95% over the last 10 years. Iniguez says, "It has taken us almost 20 years to build this team. It is built on a lot of trust".

Starting the School Year Strong: Health Tips for a Successful Year

As the summer days become shorter and the crisp scent of autumn fills the air, it's time to prepare for another exciting school year. Students, teachers, and parents alike are faced with decisions and lifestyles that can positively or inversely affect their health. By adopting a series of healthy habits at the start, you can ensure you're taking positive steps toward physical and mental success. As you gear up for the first couple of weeks, here are some essential health tips to start your school year off on the right foot.

Prioritize Sleep

If you've heard it once, you've heard it several times. Getting an adequate night's sleep is the foundation of good health and success. Whether it's television, practice, grading papers, or studying that keeps you up late, try to aim for 7-9 hours of quality sleep each night.

Keep a Balanced Diet and Stay Hydrated

While sleep gets you started, maintaining a balanced diet will help sustain your energy and overall well-being. Start your day with a balanced breakfast and make sure you're incorporating fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and lean proteins into your meals. Avoid excessive sugary filled snacks and make sure you're consuming large amounts of water. Consider carrying a reusable water bottle that you can fill up frequently, and avoid some of the soda or sugar-filled energy drinks.

Schedule Exercise and Activity

Exercise often takes a backseat, especially as we approach cooler weather. Engaging in regular physical activity (at least 30 minutes a day) promotes physical health and reduces stress. Whether it's a membership to the local gym, YMCA, or indoor activities, make a plan and then do your best to stick to it. We can all become accustomed to sitting for too long, it's important to not fall into this trap.

Manage Stress

The school year can bring about a variety of stressors. Whether it's assignments, exams, grading, or social pressures, there is plenty that can add stress to your life. While deep breathing and meditation can help keep your anxiety in check, also considering hobbies you love to help keep a balanced state of mind.

Stay Organized

Getting organized in the first place can help to prevent burnout. Of course we all want to maximize our free time, but it's important to take some time for yourself. There are a variety of tools available to help you maintain a calendar, so make sure that in addition to social activities and work, you're adding in some personal relaxation. Set goals and prioritize the tasks that will help you achieve them.

Nurture Your Social Connections

Spent time with friends, join clubs and organizations, engage in positive social interactions (co-workers, family, and others). These are all imperative to maintaining positive mental health. These connections can become your foundation during some of the challenging times you'll face ahead.

Practice and Maintain Good Hygiene

You may get the appropriate amount of sleep, have a balanced diet, and get some exercise, but if you're not maintaining good hygiene your health could suffer. Consider the basics, wash your hands regularly, keep your personal spaces clean, and follow basic health guidelines to prevent the spread of illness. Without question, you're going to come in contact with a variety of germs in the coming weeks, months, and year, so take control of your actions and position yourself for healthy outcomes.

Don't Set Yourself Up for Failure

Plan out what success looks like and set realistic goals for achieving it. Once you have your end goals set, find ways to break those down into smaller milestones and allow yourself to celebrate those along the way. This is a great way to boost your motivation and sense of accomplishment, rather than holding out any celebration to the very end.

Don't be Afraid to Ask for Help

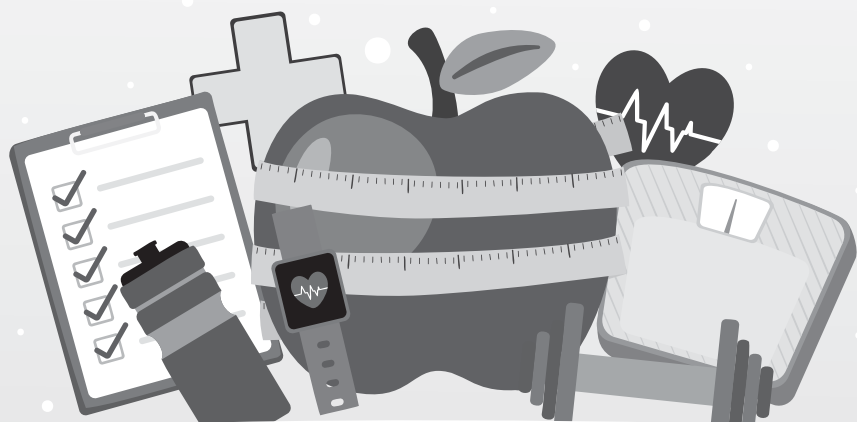

Whether you're a teacher, student, or parent, you're not alone. When you need help, ask for it. Remember, if you have a question or need advice, someone else is probably thinking the same thing and you can often work it out together.

Be Present

Whether you're at home, school, or at an event, be present to what's going on around you. Which sometimes means putting down your phone. They can be valuable for safety, communication, and taking photos to help capture events. They can also remove you from important moments going on. Remember, just as helpful as cell phones can be, they can also be a distraction. As you set goals for the day and week, consider personal goals for the amount of screen time you're giving yourself.

The start of the school year marks an opportunity for a new beginning. In addition to focusing on how you'll perform, take steps to priority your healthy habits. From physical to mental health, create a game plan and strive for success on all levels. Remember, your personal health is the best step in maintaining a positive educational and professional journey. Equally as important to your health is the health of those around you. It goes without saying, if you're sick - stay home. Here's to a great 2024-2025 school year!

Tips to throw a memorable end-of-summer soirée

One last bash as summer winds down is a great way to send off a season that's synonymous with recreation and leisure. And end-of-summer soirée also provides an opportunity to get together with friends and family before a new school year begins and families' schedules fill up.

As August inches closer to September, hosts can consider these tips as they plan a memorable sendoff to summer.

- Avoid Labor Day weekend. Labor Day marks the unofficial end of summer in many places, but hosts may want to avoid choosing this popular three-day weekend for their end-of-summer soirée. A survey from the travel experts at The Vacationer found that roughly 137 million people had travel plans over Labor Day weekend in 2022. Travel is undeniably popular on Labor Day weekend, and hosts likely won't want to contend with guests' travel plans. The weekend before Labor Day may produce a greater turnout, which undoubtedly makes for a more enjoyable affair.
- Pick a summer theme. An end-of-summer party should have a theme that evokes the season's special vibe. A beach theme with some sand in the backyard, some specialty cocktails served with mini beach umbrellas and, of course, some water play for adults and kids can help to establish a vibe that's synonymous with summer.
- Serve traditional fare. Though hosts who already hosted a handful of backyard barbecues this summer might have had their fill of hamburgers and hot dogs, an end-of-summer party is the last time many people will eat such foods until next spring. So while it's alright to offer some alternatives, such as meat cooked on a smoker or grilled fish, be sure to offer the standard hamburgers and hot dogs as well.
- Invite the neighbors. It's tempting to throw a season-ending bash that lasts into the wee hours, but that can be problematic for hosts whose neighbors are within arm's length. That potentially sticky situation can be remedied by inviting the neighbors to the party. Neighbors won't be upset by a little extra nighttime noise if they're living it up as well. If that's not an option, hosts can just remember to turn the volume down a notch once the sun sets.
- Create a contingency plan. August can be a bit on the rainy side in many areas, particularly those where hurricane season hits full swing as summer winds down. Though summer storms tend to come and go in the blink of an eye, it's best to have a contingency plan in place. If possible, ensure outdoor entertaining areas can provide some respite from the elements if need be. A well-placed pergola can keep guests and food safe from the rain and a retractable patio awning can provide an extra layer of protection. Hosts also can clear out part of their home interior and have some backup games at the ready to accommodate guests if the party has to move inside for a little while.

An end-of-summer soirée can be the perfect way to say so long to a beloved time of year.
