Report: San Jose teenagers earn 2.4 times from digital platforms than national average

*Teens in San Jose earn the highest online incomes of all
US teenagers, study shows*

New data finds teenagers in San Jose earn an average of $1,705 per year from digital platforms, 2.4 times more than the national average for online earnings.

New data has revealed that teenagers in San Jose earn an average of $1,705 per year from digital platforms, ranking top with the highest income for teen digital earners.

In the neighboring city of San Francisco teens are earning approximately $1073.75 a year through digital platforms. Teens in San Diego and LA are earning an annual average of $824.20 and $867.53 online respectively.

To explore the scale of teen earnings through digital channels in the US, Whop, the all-in-one platform for digital products, gathered survey data from US teenagers aged between 12-18 years old to produce the US teen digital earnings report 2024. The findings show that teenagers in the US are capitalizing on their digital presence and turning screen time into serious income.

The study showed that two in five (42%) teenagers across the US are actively earning money online. Additionally, around one student in every high school, around 40,000 US teenagers, earns $10,000 or more each year via their digital channels. Meanwhile, just 38% of 16–19-year-olds were in employment or searching for a job in May 2024.

How are teenagers making money online?

Digital entrepreneurship ranked highly when asked about their career aspirations, 33% of San Jose teenagers stated they aspired to be a TikTok creator. A further 33% stated they'd choose to be their own boss, selecting entrepreneur. This was followed by a doctor/nurse (27%), a Youtuber (20%) and an actor (20%).

- Clothes and apparel - Selling clothes, footwear, or apparel accessories is the most common method teenagers are using to earn online, with one in six doing so. Over four hundred thousand (439,310) US teens are earning at least $1,000 a year through selling clothes online.

- Social media - One in three students under the age of 18 have been approached by a brand to

Fall energy bills to include $55.17 California Climate Credit for PG&E electric customers

In October, millions of residential and eligible small business customers will receive the California Climate Credit on their Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) electric bill. Customers do not need to do anything to receive the credit.

Residential households with an active electric account will receive an electric credit of $55.17, the same amount they received in the spring. The twice-a-year electric credit was first delivered in April, in addition to an annual natural gas credit of $85.46 for residential customers with a natural gas account. Combined-use customers' total bill credits for 2024 is $195.80.

Eligible small business customers will receive the electric credit in October, bringing their total bill credits for 2024 to $110.34.

Legacy: Six Decades of Sacred Heart Community Service will be celebrated with a special Gala on Saturday, September 28th, at the Corinthian in Downtown San Jose.

Sacred Heart Community Service marks 60 years of impact; requests donations to fight poverty

Sacred Heart Community Service (SHCS) is calling upon its supporters and the greater Silicon Valley community to help sustain its critical work as it celebrates Legacy: Six Decades of Sacred Heart Community Service with a special Gala on Saturday, September 28th, at the Corinthian in Downtown San Jose.

“For 60 years, SHCS has stood as a beacon of hope, providing food, clothing, and essential services to over 60,000 people annually. But the fight against poverty is far from over,” said SHCS Founder Louise Benson. “As we celebrate this legacy, we face a crucial need for donations to continue serving the most vulnerable in our community.”

Benson said she started her journey in 1964 from her West San Jose home, offering help to neighbors in need. Today, Sacred Heart has grown into one of the Bay Area's most impactful nonprofits, working tirelessly to fight poverty. “But, without immediate financial support, our ability to meet the growing demand for services is at risk.”

Benson said.

Senior Director of Development Elizabeth Matthews stresses the importance of the upcoming Gala:

“This Gala is not just a celebration but a crucial opportunity to secure the resources we need to continue our mission. Attending, donating, or sponsoring this event shows that we are united in the fight against poverty. Now is the time to come together and ensure Sacred Heart's work continues for decades to come.”

The Gala will feature fine dining, keynote speakers, and special performances by Poet Mike McGee, Singer Amy Dabalos, and the San Jose Jazz Youth Orchestra. Attendees can also win exciting prizes, like a one-night stay at Hayes Mansion. However, the most important gift is donations to support our community.

To purchase Gala tickets or to make a donation, visit <https://bit.ly/SHCS-Legacy> Note: attire: Formal

Cameron Zoub, CGO and co-founder of Whop, says:

"The way people make a living is changing — Gen Alpha and Gen Z's entrepreneurial mindset alone is proof of that. They aren't mindlessly scrolling as some would have you believe. They're building their networks, meaningfully engaging with brands, and creating their own path to financial freedom."

"Our findings are clear: younger generations are hungry for opportunities to make money online. It's a sign of the times, and what more is to come."

Taking action

By Matt Mahan

When I took office, I promised we would take bold action on homelessness. I promised not to let the perfect be the enemy of the good. And I promised that together we would deliver results.

Soon after, we launched our weekly Saturday clean-ups. One of the first clean-ups we organized was at Watson Park. Some of you reading this were there, and may remember, as I do, how horrific the conditions were.

Along the edge of the park near the creek—a greenspace that should be open and clean—was filled with debris, rotting former belongings and human excrement, and dozens of stolen shopping carts. Even after two clean-ups, the park and surrounding environment are still impacted by camping and neighbors have told me they don't feel safe using the park. This is unacceptable. We can't make lasting progress if we have people living in unmanaged, unsafe conditions without security, sanitation and basic rules.

This week, we took action to change that. We took another step toward fulfilling the promises I

From the Mayor
Matt Mahan
Mayor, San Jose

made to treat homelessness like the crisis it is and finally restore this park to what it should be – a clean, safe, welcoming place for everyone to enjoy.

This neighborhood will be the first to see the benefits of a new solution we are going to test — one that will preserve our park and protect it from re-encampment – our first Safe Sleeping Site.

My team and Councilmember Torres' office recently went door-to-door, letting neighbors know that they'll be the first to see the effects of this new approach. We'll be working with the neighborhood every step of the way to ensure this solution benefits everyone.

Likely to open in early 2025, these sites will serve those currently living in encampments in the immediate vicinity first. We will then create no encampment zones within a minimum two-block radius of the site to prevent the unmanaged, unsafe sites from returning to the neighborhood. This is a new approach that we believe will reduce the impacts of encampments and help get people stabilized and on a path toward self-sufficiency as we invest in more treatment beds, shelter beds and affordable housing. All of these solutions are valuable, but we can't wait for the most permanent solutions in order to take action on the crisis in front of us today.

We're still working through the details of operation, including how many people will be served at this site, but we know that services will include sanitation, trash pick-up, security and case management. There will be a code of conduct strictly enforced with bans on weapons and drug use on site, and support in accessing the resources our homeless neighbors need to get on a better path. You can see the site and hear more about the plan below.

This site will be the first of a few to move forward this year, as we step up our efforts to end the era of unmanaged, unsafe encampments and all of the issues that come with them. Last year, we reduced unsheltered homelessness in San Jose by nearly 11%, but far too many neighborhoods are still severely impacted by unmanaged encampments and can't wait years until enough affordable housing is built. While we take an "all of the above" approach that includes building new treatment beds via our County government, tiny homes, safe parking sites, and affordable housing (as well as investments in upstream homelessness prevention), we will also move more decisively to manage the situation on our streets for everyone's sake. That's what safe sleeping sites are all about.

We can't allow our public spaces to fall into squalor any more than we can allow our homeless neighbors to live in it – that's why we're moving with urgency to create a better quality of life for all of us. We'll keep you updated in the coming weeks and months as we continue to make progress and work with the immediate neighbors to establish a Safe Sleeping Site that works for everyone.

Campbell's Heritage Theatre presents an evening of music with legends Herb Alpert & Lani Hall

By William Bellou
Publisher

Campbell's historic Heritage Theatre is presenting an exciting show from two legendary performers: An Evening with Herb Alpert and Lani Hall performs at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, October 9.

Here is your chance to see two legendary performers: Music icon Herb Alpert & his wife Lani Hall, Grammy-winning vocalist and former lead singer of Brazil '66 with Sergio Mendes, and their classic recordings, "Mas Que Nada," "Fool On The Hill," "Going Out Of My Head," and "Daytripper."

Herb is celebrating his 62nd year since recording his first hit song, "The Lonely Bull" in 1962. Herb, Lani, and their incredible band, perform an eclectic mix of American standards, Brazilian jazz, some Beatles, some classic Tijuana Brass and Brazil '66 songs, as well as many surprises.

The shows are informal as Herb loves to answer questions from the audience about his and Lani's music careers, A&M Records, the Carpenters, Burt Bacharach, and the many other iconic artists they have both worked with over the past 50 years.

The show features a giant video screen that displays hundreds of classic photos, videos, and various memorabilia from Herb & Lani's music careers. A truly exciting show from two legendary performers.

Herb Alpert & The Tijuana Brass propelled his sound into the pop music limelight, at one point out-selling the Beatles two to one. In 1966, they achieved the since-unmatched feat of simultaneously having four albums in the Top 10—and five in the Top 20. Herb Alpert also has the distinction of being the only artist who has had a #1 instrumental and a #1 vocal single.

Two-time Grammy Award-winning vocalist and producer Lani Hall started her singing career in 1966 as the lead singer of Sergio Mendes's breakthrough group, Brasil '66. In 1966, A&M Records signed Brasil '66 and Lani met Herb, who is also the co-founder of A&M Records. Herb and Lani married in 1973.

Bay Area Creators present world premiere of original musical, "The Other Mr. Lincoln"

Don Hood (book & lyrics, stage director) and Harry Reed (composer, musical director) were both born and raised in San Jose, California.

Their musical, "The Other Mr. Lincoln," begins about 100 years after "Hamilton," with an incredible journey through the tumultuous times of the 1860's to the 1920's, seen through the eyes of President Lincoln's oldest son, Robert, the Other Mr. Lincoln!

As life changing as those times were, we have found during this 2024 election year, that this musical has a relevant story to tell today's audience! Spy intrigue, thwarting conspiracies, Presidential assassinations. And so much more! Witness a "Scandalous" Suffragette Movement protest, and then a "Twilight Zone"-type finale!

With a cast playing 80 different characters, and a 12-piece orchestra playing 17 songs in 11 different genres of music, it takes you through history you only thought you knew!

The World Premiere will open at the Hammer Theatre in Downtown San Jose, CA, on October 10th @8pm (Opening Night), with additional performances on October 11th @8pm, and October 12th, 2 p.m. matinee and 8 p.m. evening.

Vyacheslav Gryaznov made his 2016 West Coast debut with Steinway Society, and this is his third return to our stage. Since then, he has gathered acclaim at Berlin Philharmonie and Carnegie Hall, among others, and authored more than 40 concert arrangements. He has gained a reputation as one of the most remarkable young arrangers working today. In 2014, Gryaznov signed a publishing contract with Schott Music, the youngest Russian in their history to do so.

Gryaznov studied at the Moscow State Conservatory for his undergraduate and postgraduate degrees and earned the Yale School of Music's Artist Diploma in 2018.

"Mr. Gryaznov demonstrated a wonderful fleetness of fingers and a hugely impressive command of... monstrous difficulties that need to be conquered."

San Jose police sergeant and City Council candidate, Tam Truong, has been placed on administrative leave amid allegations of mortgage fraud. He said he plans to continue his campaign for elected office.

Truong, who's worked in law enforcement for two decades and is running against incumbent Domingo Candelas for the District 8 San Jose City Council seat in November, was sued last year for allegedly defrauding an escrow officer with the Orange Coast Title Company, which allowed him to ditch his mortgage and collect nearly $540,000 from the sale of a home.

"The employee has been placed on administrative leave for a personnel matter," a spokesperson for the department told San José Spotlight.

New President named for Evergreen Valley College

Following a nationwide search, Dr. Vinicio J. López (inset) has been named the ninth president of Evergreen Valley College (EVC) upon a unanimous vote by the San José – Evergreen Community College District (SJEC-CD) board of trustees.

A first-generation college student who began his higher education journey as a community college student himself, López has almost 25 years of experience as a community college faculty member and administrator.

After serving as an English as a Second Language faculty member, López, a native Spanish speaker, transitioned into administration where he currently serves as vice president of instruction at Skyline College in San Bruno, California.

“Throughout the search process, Dr. López demonstrated a deep commitment to our District’s core values of opportunity, equity, and social justice,” said Dr. Beatriz Chaidez, SJEC-CD chancellor. “We are very fortunate to have someone with his breadth and depth of experience and skills to serve as the next president of Evergreen Valley College.”

In addition to his current role at Skyline College, López has experience overseeing student affairs, non-credit and workforce education, dual enrollment, and international education programs, among others. His prior administrative experience includes serving as senior international education officer and dean of the Mission Campus for San Francisco City College. He has also served as dean of the Le-Jao Campus for Coastline College in Fountain Valley, California.

“I am humbled and excited to be joining Evergreen Valley College as the next president,” Dr. López said. “EVC is one of the premier community colleges in California and I look forward to working with my new colleagues among the faculty, classified staff, and administration to continue that commitment to excellence.”

At Skyline College, Dr. López is recognized for his collaboration with all stakeholders and constituency groups in order to create and implement initiatives that promote a student-first campus.

“Dr. López illustrated a deep commitment to serving and partnering with our most vulnerable students,” said Tony Alexander, SJEC-CD board of trustees president. “He understands how to foster an inclusive and welcoming learning environment that is informed by the lived experiences and voices of students and he is passionate about mentorship and the development of a future generation of leaders. The board of trustees is confident that Dr. López will be a great president for EVC.”

Among his other duties at Skyline, López is co-chair of the Enrollment Strategies Committee—a successful collegewide collaboration between students, classified professionals, faculty, and administrators—where he led development of a five-year enrollment management plan to increase student enrollment, retention, and completion.

“I would like to thank the board of trustees, Chancellor Chaidez, and the search committee for placing their confidence in me,” López said. “I look forward to working with all campus constituent groups to serve our students and help them reach their academic and career goals and to create a culture where students feel their dreams are our dreams.”

López holds a Doctor of Education degree in educational leadership, administration and policy from Pepperdine University; a Master of Arts degree in Education from the University of Phoenix; a bachelor’s degree in history from University of California, San Diego; and an associate degree in social and behavioral sciences from Miramar College.

López is scheduled to begin in his new role as EVC president on September 16.

filed a complaint against him.

“This single-count complaint filed by the district attorney’s office represents nothing more than an allegation. It is based on a misunderstanding of all the facts in this case,” Truong told San José Spotlight. “This matter has been settled through a civil proceeding, which is the appropriate venue. There is no evidence that I intended to mislead anyone. What we have here is a rush to judgment and an effort to criminalize innocent conduct without a full understanding of the facts.”

The district attorney’s office filed this charge against me on the eve of the election, depriving me of sufficient time to clear my name through the judicial process before voting begins.”

Truong said he has an “impeccable record of public service.”

“As someone who immigrated to this country from Vietnam at a young age, I believe in the rule of law and in our justice system. I am grateful for the overwhelming support from colleagues and members of the community who know me for my integrity and the strength of my character,” he said.

He said he trusts the justice system to clear his name.

“I have not committed a crime, and I plan to continue with my campaign,” he told San José Spotlight.

Sean Webby, spokesperson for the Santa Clara County District Attorney’s Office, declined to comment on a potential criminal complaint. Officials with the Santa Clara County Superior Court didn’t respond to requests for comment.

The insurance company’s lawsuit claimed Truong “used his position of trust and authority as a SJP- Police Officer to fraudulently convince” an escrow officer that a lien on his property could be removed from a preliminary title document, according to court documents from last year.

The complaint filed against Truong in Santa Clara County Superior Court in September 2022 said he showed the escrow officer documents from his 2015 Chapter 7 bankruptcy to help convince her the lien was eliminated from his home on Plumstead Way in San Jose. After defrauding the escrow officer in January 2021, the complaint alleges Truong conspired with two others to sell the Plumstead home in July 2021.

Truong’s actions resulted in the sale going through as if he owned the title of the home outright, without any liens, the complaint said. Rather than pay back his mortgage with the money from the sale, he is alleged to have pocketed the cash and later reinvested it in another home.

San José Spotlight last year also reported that Truong at one point owed more than $30,000 to a former employee of his

New chapter Unhinged: Hotel Halloween experience starts September 13 at the Winchester Mystery House in San Jose.

Winchester Mystery House to present 'Unhinged: Hotel' through Nov. 2

By William Bellou
Publisher

Winchester Mystery House in San Jose has announced that its record-breaking, immersive Halloween experience will return this fall with an entirely new chapter, "Unhinged: Hotel."

Running through Sunday, November 2, the Bay Area's premier Halloween haunt will return on select nights with a brand-new original storyline, complete with new characters and terrifying scares.

Step into the darkened halls of the Winchester Mystery House and navigate a hauntingly immersive maze like no other. Let's just say... some doors should stay closed.

"Celebrating another incredible installment of Winchester Mystery House's Unhinged, this highly anticipated attraction continues to captivate guests from around the San Francisco Bay Area every year with its thrills and hauntingly immersive experiences.

We are thrilled to work with dozens of local artists who will bring their unique talents and eerie creativity to life, transforming the historic mansion into a mesmerizing and spine-chilling spectacle," Said Winchester Mystery House Executive Director Walter Magnuson.

Guests will enter the home which includes the standard twists and turns of the Winchester Mystery House but mixed with terror and scares around every corner of the house. Following the walkthrough, guests can experience the return of The Mists, an outdoor scare zone with be haunting all nights of Unhinged: Hotel. scare zone that will be haunting all nights of Unhinged: Hotel.

Admission tickets (starting at $69.99) for Unhinged: Hotel are available now online at winchestermysteryhouse.com/unhinged.

private security company, Training and Protective Services, which he started in 2012 to offer private patrols for neighborhoods just as the city's police force was hemorrhaging officers due to Measure B, a 2012 ballot measure that slashed retirement benefits for police officers. Truong supported the controversial measure in his 2012 council run.

In a wage theft case filed with the state labor commissioner in 2014, one of Truong's employees, Kevin Halverson, claimed he worked nearly 1,700 hours in the first half of 2013, but was paid for only a little more than 500 hours.

Following a hearing and testimony from Halverson and some of his coworkers in early 2015, the labor commissioner ordered Truong to pay Halverson $34,071 in wages, damages, interest and penalties. Truong's company dissolved a short time later.

In early 2015, the San Jose Police Department suspended Truong's department-issued outside work permit, which the department uses to monitor officers' business interests separate from police work, while police leaders considered whether it was a conflict for him to profit from the department's short staffing problems.

Truong is once again running for the same seat he sought through an appointment process in 2023.

Candelas, who was ahead of Truong in the March primaries, said he's reserving judgement on his November challenger.

"I'm going to let the process run its course. My focus as councilmember for District 8 remains the same: keeping our community safe, cleaning our streets and parks and creating stronger neighborhoods," he told San José Spotlight.

Mahan said that while he awaits the outcome of Truong's case, he's withdrawing his support for him in the District 8 race.

"This is a serious charge that requires a fair, thorough and timely investigation," Mahan told San José Spotlight. "While I understand Tam Truong has stated he is innocent of this single charge, that must now be determined through our judicial system. Given these facts I am withdrawing my endorsement until such time as this case is resolved."

Times Community*San José announces area for first safe sleeping site in city historyLocated along the Coyote Creek, the site will bring relief to neighbors, restore Watson Park, and help City meet environmental mandateBy William Bellou

The City of San José just took a significant step toward establishing a safer, managed alternative to unsheltered homelessness at 1157 E Taylor St.

This location was selected from eight potential sites that the San José City Council unanimously approved for further analysis in June of this year.

If the location continues to prove suitable, it will be the first safe sleeping site to open in San José, likely in early 2025.

"Last year, we did a clean-up at Watson Park, and the conditions were shocking — a greenspace that should be open and available for all was covered in human excrement, filled with debris and overrun by shopping carts. We can't allow our public spaces to fall into squalor any more than we can allow our homeless neighbors to live in it," said San José Mayor Matt Mahan. "This area will be the first to see the benefits of this new solution to homelessness — one that will preserve our park and protect it from re-encampment. We'll be working with the neighborhood every step of the way to ensure this solution benefits everyone."

In this year's budget, the City Council voted unanimously to allocate dollars toward the creation of several Safe Sleeping Sites with the capacity to serve a total of 500 homeless people currently living on the streets of San José or along one of the City's many waterways.

"I've lived in San José for several decades, witnessing the increasing plight of people living in the streets, the creeks, or anywhere they could find," said Jeff Levine, a local resident and spokesperson for the Roosevelt Neighborhood Association. "I applaud and support 100% the City creating safe sleeping sites. Our neighborhood understands that solving homelessness requires all neighborhoods throughout the City to be supportive of plans to get people out of the creeks, highway overpasses, streets, parks and into supervised housing."

The magnitude of the homelessness crisis has affected the health of City waterways, and this initiative is a part of broader budget investments designed to maintain the City's stormwater permit and comply with the Clean Water Act by reducing pollution in the rivers and creeks that flow through San José — 88% of which is attributed to unmanaged, unsheltered living conditions along these waterways.

San José Spotlight receives prestigious honor from Santa Clara County

By Annalise Freimareck
San José Spotlight

The Santa Clara County Board of Supervisors has commended San José Spotlight for its commitment to providing accurate and critical information on issues affecting county residents.

The commendation, presented on Monday by Supervisor Otto Lee, recognizes this news organization's dedication to empowering residents, boosting transparency and igniting civic engagement. The honor covers San José Spotlight's work over the past five years since its 2019 founding, including comprehensive homelessness coverage, in-depth reporting on the fight to keep Regional Medical Center open, coverage of a potential San Jose city worker strike over higher wages and its coverage of the 2021 VTA mass shooting.

Lee said San José Spotlight has strengthened democracy in the county since it began covering the community. Santa Clara County commends organizations and individuals who do something noteworthy that benefits residents.

"Through its vigilant and steadfast commitment to San Jose and the surrounding areas, San José Spotlight has uplifted marginalized voices, holds power to account and paves the way for change," he said at the Monday meeting.

The commendation adds to this news organization's other recognitions, including the prestigious James Madison Award for its successful lawsuit against San Jose and former Mayor Sam Liccardo, who is now running for Congress, for violating state transparency laws and improperly withholding public records. San José Spotlight also won four first-place awards this year in the annual California Journalism Awards for covering stories such as a San Jose police union office manager hit with drug smuggling charges and the effects of the Silicon Valley Bank collapse on everyday business owners and nonprofits.

Moryt Milo, San José Spotlight editor, said the organization remains dedicated to its mission of providing fearless journalism that disrupts the status quo by sharing vital community stories.

"We will be out there every day covering the stories that matter, telling the stories that go untold and reinvigorating our community and their engagement because we strongly believe that reporting the news, especially local news, is a fundamental cornerstone of democracy," she said at the meeting.

San José Spotlight is the region's first non-profit newsroom covering San Jose, Sunnyvale, Santa Clara, the West Valley and the county.

The word Sikh (see-kh) means "disciple" or "student." A Sikh is a practitioner of the faith founded in the 15th century by Guru Nanak in Punjab of old British India. A Guru who is a "teacher" or "enlightener" completes the relationship of teaching and learning. Sikhism is monotheistic and stresses the equality of all men and women. Sikhs believe in three basic principles; meditating on the name of God (praying), earning a living by honest means and sharing the fruits of one's labor with others. Currently there are close to one million Sikhs living in the USA and Canada and 25 million Sikhs living around the world. Sikhism is the 5th largest religion in the world. At the Gurdwara (House of God) in San Jose we welcome all. We pray daily for peace and prosperity for everybody in the world.
