Andrews hoping for quick passage of small modular reactors legislation

Legislation intended to encourage the development of small modular nuclear reactors in Michigan has received its first state House committee hearing.

State Representative Joey Andrews tells us the House Energy Committee last week heard from a wide range of supporters.

"The utilities all came out in support," Andrews said. "DTE, I&M locally, Consumers -- all supportive. The laborers and the carpenters on the union side came out in support, and then representatives from the University of Michigan and the nuclear department there. So, a lot of really strong support for the bills."

The bipartisan legislation creates incentives for the design and construction of SMRs while offering tax credits to workers in the nuclear industry. It would also create grants for colleges to train students in the nuclear field. Andrews says that's attracted the support of Lake Michigan College, which was also represented at the hearing.

"Because they ran a nuclear certification program for a number of years and want to do so again. So, a lot of interest in being able to train the workforce in Michigan and retain the workforce in Michigan."

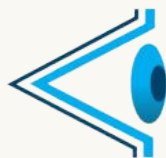

Andrews says the University of Michigan also has one of the top nuclear engineering departments in the country. It's complained that it trains the best nuclear scientists in America, but then they leave and go work somewhere else. He says this legislation could help fix that by putting Michigan at the forefront of the nuclear industry.

Andrews is expecting quick passage of the legislation in the House once it's moved to the floor. He says that could happen as soon as next week, depending on when House Energy Committee Chair Pauline Wendzel calls for a committee vote.

I hope all is well with all you lovely readers, the sun has been shining and Spring is well on its way! I can't wait for the warm weather to be here, as I am sure most of you feel the same. One of my favorite times of year is when the weather breaks and we can finally be outside doing activities and enjoying a beverage or two in the sunshine! There are constantly new items coming out year-round and I want to foreshadow a couple of new brands that is about to hit the market very soon!

brand was that what we drink should be held to the same standards of what we eat. Her ready to drink cocktail line is made with high quality ingredients, that are simple and uncomplicated and well...absolutely delicious!

Betty Booze has a ready to drink bourbon line, as well as a ready to drink tequila line. In the Bourbon inspired cocktails these are the different flavors available: Sparkling Bourbon with Peach Honey Mint, Sparkling Bourbon with Oak Smoked Lemonade, Sparkling Bourbon with Apple Ginger Sour Cherry. In the tequila Line up, you will find these choices: Sparkling Tequila with Smoky Pineapple, Sparkling Tequila with Lime Shiso, and Sparkling Tequila with Oak Smoked Lemonade.

You can find all these flavors in individual 4 packs or both line ups will have variety pack (either tequila or bourbon) of 3 of each flavor! Expect to see these at a store near you mid-April, we are anxiously awaiting their arrival!

Beatbox and Shaq!

Beatbox may already be a well-known name in our market, and it's currently experiencing a major surge in popularity. Now, they've brought on a new ambassador and introduced a few fresh flavors, with none other than NBA legend Shaquille O'Neal leading the charge! Shaq recently just became an investor and ambassador for Beatbox Beverages. His new exclusive flavor is Blueberry Lemonade. Beatbox also just came out with Watermelon Lemonade and then coming soon Lemon Squeeze. All three of these will be available in a variety pack that will hit the market in May. Also coming soon for all Beatbox flavors are 4 packs! You soon will be able to purchase these beverages as a 4 pk rather than just the single serve you see out there currently.

Well, that's all for me, enjoy your spring, and as always, please enjoy responsibly.

Explaining Leprechauns as Only I Chaun

When my kids were little, they always busily prepared for a big day of revelry on March 17th. But for them, it wasn't about St. Patrick. Thanks to the power of modern marketing, they thought all the hoopla was in honor of the "Lucky Charms" leprechaun.

Here's how popular this cartoon character was in my house: An important St. Patrick's Day ritual for my boys was smudging their foreheads with ashes from charred Lucky Charms marshmallows.

However, one year the observances were marred by festering arguments between the kids regarding key aspects of the Lucky Charms canon. For example, they disagreed about how tall the leprechaun is. Sons No. 3 (then age 18) and No. 4 (then age 16) jokingly said he's taller than No. 5 (then age 12). This made No. 5 positively green with anger, sort of like a leprechaun-sized Incredible Hulk.

This year marks the 63rd anniversary of the creation of Lucky Charms cereal, and the recipe hasn't changed a bit since 1962: Sugar-coated chunks of sugared oats, mixed with "magical" sugar-coated marshmallows that come in a variety of shapes, colors and sugars. What's been kept under wraps all these years is the secret ingredient that gives the marshmallows their magic: Finely ground bits of sugar-coated leprechaun.

Since its creation, thousands of execrable cartoon shows have paused for hundreds of inane commercials wherein Lucky Charms are hawked by a cereal-addicted leprechaun. What hardly anyone knows is that he's actually the long-lost "Fourth Elf," the brother of Snap, Crackle and Pop. With a costume change and some unfortunate plastic surgery on his ears, he became the Lucky Charms leprechaun, and General Mills' marketing staff worked for endless hours at herniatingly large salaries to come up with his highly imaginative name: "Lucky." (His real name is Zeppo).

I've always found it odd that a product aimed at children would be promoted in TV ads with such blatant animosity between kids and Lucky. It's been the same story for decades: Some kids plan ways to pilfer Lucky's cereal; Lucky tries to prevent their thievery and fails; the kids taunt Lucky for being unable to thwart them; Lucky broods over a pint of Guinness. It's been nearly two-thirds of a century of Irish tragedy worthy of Eugene O'Neill.

Now I realize many anal-retentive readers will e-mail me to quibble that "O'Neill wasn't Irish! He was born in Connecticut!" to which I'd be tempted to retort "I know! I wanted to use Irish dramatist Dermot Bolger instead, because his name is way more amusing, but nobody knows who Dermot Bolger is!"

But what I'd actually retort is "Forget O'Neill, there's another celebrity featured in this column who ISN'T Irish, but wants everyone to think he IS! Brace yourself: It's Lucky the leprechaun!"

Aye, the voice of Lucky for 30 years 'twas no bonnie lad of the auld sod. Lucky's brogue was faked! - by American voice actor Arthur Anderson (nickname: "NOT the Guy Who Started the Huge Consulting Firm").

More shocking still, it seems that Lucky found his own product repulsive. The story goes that Anderson tried the cereal just once; he immediately spewed the first spoonful out, and forever after privately referred to it as "Blecchy Charms."

Dave Says

Preparing for the Future

Dear Dave,
I've been listening to your show, and following the Baby Steps, for about a year. But I received some news from a family member recently, and I'm not sure what to tell them. One of my cousins just discovered she has cancer. She's a single mom with two young kids, and it doesn't sound like she has thought much about the future. What are the best steps she can take financially at this point to make sure her family is protected?

Jacki
Dear Jacki,
I'm truly sorry to hear about this. A cancer diagnosis is a scary thing, so please remember to pray for her and be there for her all you can.
Most of the time when folks ask if a person has their affairs in order, they're usually referring to a few different questions. First, are you right with God? Then, do you have life insurance and a will? Another important thing is having all the paperwork of your life organized and in a safe location, so someone you trust can handle the details in a worst case scenario.

Everyone should have good term life insurance in place. My advice is to have a policy worth 10 to 12 times your annual income. When it comes to a will, make sure it's state-specific. Probate and estate regulations aren't federal laws, they're state laws. So, any will should be drawn up according to guidelines for the state in which you live.

It's probably the hardest thing to think about, I know, but arrangements should be made for any minor children. Sitting down to talk with two or three trusted family members, or close friends, to decide who will take them if the worst should happen is a good idea, too. Whoever is chosen for this responsibility should be a person who's incredibly mature, caring and willing to love and raise these kids as if they were their very own.

Good luck, Jacki. I know this is a difficult time for your whole family. Be there for each other, pray a lot and hug on one another all you can. God bless you all.

– Dave

Preparing Your Air Conditioner for a Cool, Comfortable Summer

As spring creeps forward and temperatures climb, homeowners are turning their attention to summer—and the inevitable hum of air conditioners. March is the perfect time to prepare your AC unit for the season ahead. A little proactive care now can ensure your system runs efficiently, keeps energy bills in check, and avoids those sweaty breakdowns when you need cool air most. Here's your step-by-step guide to getting your air conditioner summer-ready.

First, start with the basics: replace or clean your air filters. Clogged filters restrict airflow, forcing your unit to work harder and driving up electricity costs. Check your filter monthly during peak use, but give it a fresh start now—either rinse reusable filters or swap in a new one. A clean filter also improves indoor air quality, a bonus for allergy sufferers.

Next, inspect the outdoor condenser unit. Winter storms and yard debris like leaves, twigs, or grass clippings can clog the fins and coils. Clear a two-foot radius around the unit and gently rinse the exterior with a garden hose (avoid high-pressure settings to prevent damage). If the fins are bent, a fin comb from your local hardware store can straighten them out, restoring optimal airflow.

Inside, ensure your vents and registers are unobstructed. Move furniture, curtains, or rugs that might block airflow, and vacuum dust from the grilles. This small step helps maintain consistent cooling and reduces strain on the system.

Now, test your AC before the heat hits (it's not recommended to run your AC if the outside temperature is under 60°). Set the thermostat a few degrees below room temperature and listen for unusual noises—grinding, rattling, or hissing could signal trouble. If the air feels lukewarm or the unit struggles to start, don't wait for a meltdown. Schedule a professional tune-up. HVAC experts can check refrigerant levels, tighten electrical connections, and lubricate moving parts, catching issues early.

Speaking of thermostats, consider upgrading to a programmable or smart model if you haven't already. These devices let you set cooling schedules, saving energy when you're away and ensuring comfort when you're home. Many utilities offer rebates for smart thermostat installations—check with your provider.

Finally, boost your AC's efficiency with some home tweaks. Seal gaps around windows and doors with weatherstripping or caulk to keep cool air in and hot air out. Draw blinds or curtains during the day to block solar heat, especially on south-facing windows. These low-cost moves lighten your AC's workload and trim your bills.

Summer's heat is inevitable, but a sweltering home isn't. With a few hours of prep, your air conditioner will be ready to deliver reliable relief all season long.

If for some reason your AC isn't up to the challenge of the summer heat, BOSS Services is here for you 24 hours a day to keep you cool and comfortable.

Is he flirting with you..... yes!
Bet it's your new haircut and hi-lites.....

Wood-look, click vinyl is today's floor.

Wood-look click vinyl meets so many of today's demands for a hard-working floor. A real-wood appearance. A selection of wood types. Waterproof, scuff resistant and relatively easy to install without special tools.

That's why click vinyl flooring was what most flooring professionals analyzed, examined and evaluated at the SURFACES flooring trade show in Las Vegas. It was our best opportunity to locate exceptional value on a flooring that can work in many rooms.

A range of wood-look tones to match your taste. Technology has progressed to the point that it's harder and harder to distinguish real wood from a click vinyl representing the same species of wood when placed side by side. White oak naturals. Light stains or washes on white oak, hickory and maple-looks. Natural wood-warm neutrals complement the taupe, mushroom tones and natural sisal of today's interiors. Dark grays are still available but used selectively.

FloorArt offers eleven in stock unique, natural or lightly washed tones that let wood grain be the hero. Our real wood display boards let you compare the look of real wood to click vinyl. If you prefer real wood, we have the most current hardwood styles available. But many have moved to click vinyl for easy maintenance.

Waterproof, easy-to-maintain floor in every specie. Click vinyl tongue and groove construction interlocks planks for a smooth, waterproof surface. You get a natural wood look without the extra care of a solid wood floor. Simply sweep regularly and clean messes right away. Damp mop frequently with a neutral vinyl cleaner. There is no need to use any shine or polish products.

Resistant to kid and normal pet scratches. Click vinyl durability is a great replacement for indoor-outdoor carpet because the surface resists scuffs from pets and kids roughhouse. Click vinyl comes in traditional 48" long planks but is also available in wider 9" by 60" planks. Either way, a staggered installation enhances the overall natural wood-look of your floor and keeps it looking beautiful for decades. If dog nails are a concern, one brand offers an ac5 rating which warranties against dog nails for 10 years.

A good Do-it-Yourself opportunity. Multiple on-line videos offer complete guidelines and lists of the tools you'll need to do your own click vinyl floor. Though some say a utility knife and a square and wood block will do, a circular saw or saber saw makes the job easier and cleaner. No fancy tools are required. Videos show you how to lay out your floor before starting. Also, how to work around special corners and avoid narrow strips to improve the final appearance. And importantly how to rotate planks for the best natural design. A click vinyl floor "floats" making it easier on your feet. No added underlayment is needed as there is one already attached. A good mallet and tapping block make sure you get a tight fit.

If you want a beautiful, durable, wood-look floor, go click vinyl. And FloorArt gives you the best opportunity to be proud of your floor.

The Silent Battle of Hearing Loss

"The silent battle of hearing loss" refers to the often unseen and unacknowledged struggles people face with hearing impairment, where they may experience difficulty communicating and participating in social situations due to their hearing loss, but without outwardly showing obvious signs of distress, leading to a feeling of isolation and a "silent" battle against their condition.

Humans are social creatures, and when hearing, communicating, and interacting become more challenging due to hearing loss, it's naturally easier to decline invitations, ship and transact online and just stay home. The unfortunate reality of living a socially withdrawn life, however, is that it not only can impact your overall life happiness, but also increase your risk for dementia, according to researchers at Johns Hopkins.

Let's take a closer look at the ripple effect that staying connected through better hearing can have on your well-being:

- Strong support network – Hearing better makes it easier to maintain your relationships with friends, family, caregivers, and other important people in your life and in turn, communicate your needs with them (and vice versa). As a result, you'll have your "village"—the people who are there for you when you need them.

- Engaged in life – Whether you take an art class, volunteer in your community, or simply spend more time with family and friends, better hearing helps make it easier to live an active lifestyle.

- Socializing - When you can hear better, you are more likely to take part in conversations, make plans with others, go to restaurants or family events, and so on.

Don't let the silent battle impact you!
Treating your hearing loss with hearing devices can help you stay connected and involved with the world around you. Contact our office today at (888) 675-9480 for your FREE hearing screening.

Pet Lover

The Pet Corner

I've heard it said the only thing wrong with dogs is that they don't live long enough. If you've ever owned a pet, you know this is true. Of course, we realize their average life spans aren't nearly as long as we'd like, and yet when they pass, we feel the loss and are heartbroken. So, it's with great sadness that I have to write Ace the Tenacious Terrier crossed the Rainbow Bridge last month after a brave fight with an unusual digestive disorder that went undiagnosed until it was too late. Ace had tummy troubles for most of the years he was with us, and many trips to the vet led us to try many solutions, none of which really worked. But the symptoms would clear up for months and he would seem fine, only to come back again and make us wonder what did he eat that upset him?

The hardest part about treating pets that are ill is that they can't tell you what hurts and why they don't want to eat. Ace was an anxious little dog anyway, scarred forever, I believe, by whatever happened to him in his first year of life. He loved his human family, not so much other dogs outside the family. He played with the cats, loved to go for walks in the neighborhood but didn't enjoy car rides too much. He really was content to play with his toys (mostly destuffing them), sit in Dad's recliner, and lie in the hot sun in the back yard. I often wondered if he came from the South because he didn't care a lot for cold and rain—although he would slide down a pile of snow; his version of a bath, I guess. He didn't think anyone should walk down his street and would loudly protest, but things like getting his nails trimmed terrified him. Ace was with us for eight years. I wish it could've been longer, and I'm sorry we couldn't have found out what really ailed him sooner. The only consolation is knowing he passed in the place he probably felt the safest, at the end of our bed. R.I.P., Acey, I hope you've found Foo Foo and Zombie, your pack and cohorts in pet mischief. We miss you.

Because I had never been without a dog in my entire life, we have adopted a sweet girl we've named Gracie. She has quickly accepted her new family, and we are learning her attitudes. Dad is her new best friend, and she has taken up her place beside him in his recliner, just as Ace did. In some ways it's a bit spooky, as if he put a bug in her long floppy ears that says, "this is how we do things in this house." She's only been with us for a little over a week now, so more about Gracie next month.

Five years later, Corewell doctor reflects on the start of COVID

It was five years ago today that the first two cases of COVID-19 were identified in Michigan, and healthcare providers across the state are reflecting on how things have changed and what we have learned since.

Once COVID hit Michigan, things progressed quickly. Governor Gretchen Whitmer first discouraged non-essential travel five years Tuesday, the governor ordered schools to close five years ago Wednesday, and the lockdown took effect March 23, 2020.

Dr. Robert Nolan, chief medical officer and emergency department physician at Corewell Health in Southwest Michigan, tells us it was a while before rapid COVID tests were even available locally. The care for COVID someone would have received at the hospital in St. Joseph back then was a lot different than it is now.

"You would have been encountered by someone in full-on PPE, which is that kind of space suit that looks like that we have," Nolan said. "You would have been put in a negative pressure isolation room. I don't know if many people remember this, but we had actually set up tents outside of the emergency department out of concern of being overwhelmed."

Now, Nolan says they can quickly test anyone for COVID, the flu, and RSV all at the same time. And he says the virus today isn't the same as it was back then.

"By and large, we're not seeing the same sort of illnesses that we saw in otherwise healthy folks when COVID really hit us early on in that first six months to a year. We would actually have relatively healthy people really getting struck with respiratory problems and becoming hypoxic, low oxygen levels and things like that."

Nolan believes both medical staff and the general population have changed since COVID.

"Prior to COVID, I think people took a more cavalier approach when they were sick, getting out in public and maybe going to the grocery store or other public places," Nolan said. "People have a lot more respect now that if you're not feeling well, to kind of isolate yourself and not expose people to whatever crud you happen to have going on.”

Nolan says the effects of COVID still linger for hospital staff as it was a stressful time for them and many became burned out. Staffing shortages continue to be a problem for many hospitals.

As for whether the lockdowns were worth it, Nolan says we responded to COVID the best we could with the information we had at the time. He calls the pandemic an incredible opportunity for health systems and the public to learn, and hopefully, better respond to the next pandemic.

Berrien County announced its first two COVID cases on March 21, 2020. Van Buren County followed four days later.

Unofficial buzz suggests Taco Bell coming to Exit 23, former Long John Silver's site

Social media has been buzzing the past couple of days about the apparent decision by Taco Bell to locate a new restaurant at I-94 Exit 23, at the former site of Long John Silver's in Stevensville.

Long John Silver's quietly closed recently. The only surprise, according to many social media commenters, is that it hadn't closed long ago. Rarely have we observed such a general lack of enthusiasm for a disappearing restaurant in the Twin Cities area. It appears customers—or non-customers-- were 'done' with Long John Silver's well before the chain closed the local outlet.

As for Taco Bell's rumored entry to Exit 23, it appears there's considerable support, as well as some who long for more exotic and upscale quick-serve restaurants. 'Raising Cane's' and Portillo's are two that seem to generate a lot of interest but currently have no plans to locate here.

Meanwhile, efforts to get official confirmation of Taco Bell's plans have not produced anything. However, the number of separate, unconnected social media posters strongly suggests that Taco Bell indeed will be the new occupant next to Burger King at Exit 23. Stay tuned!

Love Your Enemies

[Jesus said] "But to you who are listening I say: Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who mistreat you."
Luke 6:27,28

"Good fences make good neighbors." So the saying goes. But what happens when the neighbor yells at your son over the fence, "You're the worst person I've ever met!" Or what about when you're playing a yard game with friends, and she starts walking around her backyard, pounding pots and pans just to annoy you? Or what about when she slams the door in your face when you calmly walk over to her house to ask if you can talk?

Many of us have a neighbor, a co-worker, or a classmate who has wronged us in one way or another. Who is your person? Now listen to Jesus' words in our Bible reading today: "Love your enemies. Do good to those who hate you. Bless those who curse you. Pray for those who mistreat you." Really? Can Jesus be serious? In a world that is increasingly divided and promotes a take-care-of-yourself attitude, is Jesus' command to "love your enemies" reasonable?

Not according to our reason. But his ways are above our ways. His reason is above our reason. And thank God it is because Jesus' love for us is not "reasonable." When his enemies pounded nails through his hands, he prayed, "Father, forgive them." When cultural divides dictated, "Don't associate with those 'sinners,'" Jesus went out of his way to show love to those he should have avoided. And when it comes to us, the Bible tells us, "While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).

And just like that, his command, "Love your enemies," doesn't seem so unreasonable. Motivated by his love for us, we too, can pray for those who hurt us, bless those who curse us, and do good to that person who hates us. Motivated by his love, we can love our enemies.

Prayer: Dear Jesus, may your love for me motivate me to love others, even those who aren't always lovable. Amen.

Regional Director,
SMR Chamber

Meet Our Ambassadors & New Staff!

I think it's time for you to get to meet some of the key people who make YOUR Chamber so impactful in Southwest Michigan!

First, let me introduce you to our Ambassadors, starting off with our Ambassador of the Year: Leanne Brownfield, Assistant Vice President at Sturgis Bank in Berrien County! With 15 years in community banking, she specializes in business, municipal and private banking. A Southwest Michigan native, Leanne attended Lake Michigan College and is committed to raising her family here in Southwest Michigan with her husband, Corey. She is passionate about helping her customers, actively volunteers in her community and is proud to serve as a Chamber Ambassador.

Our full roster includes:

Dave Clark, Clark Insurance Agency; Grayson Ege, Mid-West Family; Jo Farrell, MailMax; Donna Hill, Attitudes Salon; Julee Laurent, Think Tank Media; Sandra Kopach; Phyllis Palmer, Cressy & Everett Real Estate; Kimberly Pichot, Andrews University; John Pinto, JV Studios; Bob Rogers, SERVPRO of Berrien County; Jonathan Smith & Tiffany Gray-McMahon, ABC 57; Kathi Szabo, Lake Michigan College & Eclectic Well-Being; Tanya Urias, Honor Credit Union; and Luralynn Wright, KSS Enterprises.

From the bottom of my heart, I can't thank each of them enough for showing up with a smile, getting their hands dirty alongside our staff, and for being the most amazing Volunteers that we've been fortunate enough to have!

Speaking of staff, we've been adding staff over the last year - growing from a team of 3 in February of 2024 to a team of 7 today! Let me introduce you to our newest additions:

Alain Pichot, Marketing Manager: He works to amplify the Chamber's presence, connect with the community, and spotlight programs that make a difference.

Though he was born in Berrien Springs, Alain's journey took him across the globe. He spent his early years in Guinea, West Africa, before moving to Colorado, Maryland, and finally Virginia, where he finished high school. His path eventually led him back to Berrien County, where he earned a degree in Graphic Design from Andrews University and dove into marketing for local nonprofits and businesses. After graduation, he took his talents to West Lafayette, Indiana, working at a marketing agency on multi-media campaigns for small businesses and major organizations like Purdue and Franciscan Health. After living in five states and two countries, Alain has come full circle, bringing his expertise back home to Southwest Michigan.

When he's off the clock, you'll likely find Alain at the park with his Westie, Margot, swimming in the lake (as long as the water temp is above 72°F) or playing at the local chess club. Fun fact: he's officially ranked as Michigan's 570th highest-rated chess player—though we didn't ask how long that list is.

Cassandra Adams, Finance & Administration Manager: Born and raised in North Carolina during her early childhood, Cassandra moved to Michigan and eventually settled into her mother's family home where she completed her primary studies and graduated from Eau Claire High School. Cassandra went on to earn a BA in Psychology and an MA in recreation and Parks Administration from Central Michigan University, all while simultaneously starting and raising a family and pursuing a career within the non-profit industry.

Cassandra has grown to love everything Southwest Michigan has to offer and is excited to continue to serve the community as the Finance and Administration Manager of the Southwest Michigan Regional Chamber. Her passion for personal development and entrepreneurship gives her the motivation and drive to continue making a difference in the communities that we live, work, and play in.

Cassandra currently resides in Coloma, Michigan with her significant other and their four children, multiple chickens, and an orange tabby cat. When she is not immersed in her work and family responsibilities, she is often found diving into her personal passions of reading, writing, creating, and traveling. She also enjoys visiting our local coffee shops, waterfronts, and nature trails.

For more information on what's happening with the Chamber, including our role in advocating for businesses, head to our website www.smrchamber.com or feel free to connect with me directly at sspoonholtz@smrchamber.com or 269-932-4040. See you around Southwest Michigan!
