A rundown on golf clubs

Some golfers would say you're only as good as your gear. Perhaps no gear is as important to a golfer's performance as his or her clubs. The differences between each type of club may confuse those unfamiliar with golf, so a rundown of the various clubs in a golfer's bag may help novices improve their scores.

DRIVER

Drivers are what golfers utilize on the tee, so this club marks a good place to start. Drivers are designed to give golfers distance off the tee, and these will likely be the longest club in the bag. Choosing a driver depends on a number of variables that are unique to each golfer, so it's best to speak to a pro shop professional to find the right driver before hitting the links.

IRONS

Golfballs.com notes that a standard set of irons features between five and seven clubs, typically a 3-iron to a 9-iron. However, irons range from a 1-iron to a 9-iron. Golfballs.com notes a 1-iron and a 2-iron are typically only utilized by especially skilled golfers, which is why they're not often included in standard sets. According to the sporting goods experts at Dick's, the following is the average distance golfers can expect from their irons:

- 2-iron: 105 to 210 yards
- 3-iron: 100 to 205 yards
- 4-iron: 90 to 190 yards
- 5-iron: 80 to 175 yards
- 6-iron: 70 to 165 yards
- 7-iron: 65 to 155 yards
- 8-iron: 60 to 145 yards
- 9-iron: 55 to 135 yards

l say you're only as FAIRWAY WOODS

Dick's notes that fairway woods are versatile clubs that can be used from the fairway or the rough. Fairway woods can even be used in the place of a driver if golfers are more comfortable doing so. Dick's notes that average distance also determines which fairway wood to utilize.

- 3-wood: 125 to 240 yards
- 4-wood: 110 to 220 yards
- 5-wood: 105 to 215 yards
- 7-wood: 90 to 170 yards

HYBRIDS

Golfballs.com notes that hybrids can be used in place of long irons (a 3-iron to a 6-iron). Novices may be most inclined to do so, as the shorter shafts on hybrids compared to long irons makes them easier for some beginners to use effectively.

WEDGES

Dick's notes that wedges are designed for low-distance shots. There are various types of wedges, and usage can be determined by how long a shot golfers are hoping to hit. A pitching wedge can be used for shots between 50 and 120 yards, while a lob wedge is a good option for a shot between 35 and 90 yards. Gap wedges are good for shots slightly shorter than a pitching wedge, while a sand wedge helps golfers escape the dreaded bunker.

PUTTER

Putters are used on the green. As is the case with drivers, putters can be chosen after consultation with a pro shop professional to ensure the club does not adversely affect your score.

7 facts about golf carts

Golf carts are an asset to many people, particularly those residing in gated enclaves, retirement villages or specialized housing subdivisions that are part of master planned communities. Golf carts are more affordable than cars or trucks, ranging between $12,000 to $14,000 for new electric carts, indicates Kandi America. Those looking for a used cart might be able to snag a deal between $4,000 and $8,000.

As the use of golf carts away from the golf course increases, those new to these vehicles can familiarize themselves with some golf cart facts.

- 1. Golf carts primarily come as electric- or gas-powered models. Curiously, the first golf cart was invented by J.K. Wadley of Texarkana, and it was electric. Each variety has its shares of pros and cons, so it's best for drivers to do some research regarding which type will be best for their individual needs.
- 2. These days many people use golf carts while traversing the course, even when not performing in a tournament. However, Total Golf Cart says golf carts were once used primarily by senior citizens or people with mobility issues.

- 3. Those using golf carts outside the grounds of a golf course should learn local laws regarding driving these carts on public roads before investing. All areas are different. For example, in Florida, drivers may operate golf carts on residential streets, but it is only legal to drive them on a public road in specific circumstances.
- 4. Various regulations govern the wearing of seat belts in golf carts. Additional rules may mandate that carts should have efficient brakes, reliable steering, safe tires, a rearview mirror, and red reflectorized warning devices in both the front and rear.
- 5. J's Golf Carts says that if a person is unsure about whether they'll use a cart on residential roads or just the beach or other less populated areas, it may be best to buy a street legal cart to keep oneself and passengers protected.

- 6. Golf carts do not move very quickly. Most average top speeds between 20 and 25 miles per hour, indicates WilDar Golf Carts and Trailers.
- 7. Golf carts may not be covered by standard homeowners' insurance policies. A separate policy is a smart investment, particularly for those taking golf carts on roads. Furthermore, check to see if a golf cart, which may be considered a low speed vehicle, must be titled and registered.

Golf carts are gaining popularity in various communities. Prospective buyers should do some research before investing in such vehicles.

A look at 10 very important rules in golf

1. Clubs in your bag

You're allowed to carry up to 14 (that's FOURTEEN!) clubs in your bag during a competitive round. You may carry less but make sure you check the contents before you start and discard any additional ones - it can cost you penalty strokes for every hole you play.

The 2001 Open Championship final round overnight leader Ian Woosnam can tell you all about this rule after being deducted two strokes for having one club too many in his bag! Do not commit the same mistake!

2. Play within the parameters of the tee

The first tee shot of a round is always daunting, even for seasoned golfers, so make sure you tee up between and behind the front of the appropriate markers - usually white for medal tees, yellow for men, red for ladies - and within two club lengths.

With all the swing thoughts that go through the average player's head, it can be easy to forget about these basic parameters. There is a two-stroke penalty for teeing up the ball outside of them (you may take your stance outside if you prefer) in strokeplay

3. Avoid playing the wrong ball

Sounds blindingly obvious but unless you mark your ball before you start, there's a danger - with so many golf balls similarly stamped - you may mistake yours for another player's ball.

Playing the wrong golf ball in matchplay could mean loss of hole in singles and will be a two-stroke penalty in strokeplay. To avoid such a penalty, then get marking your ball more clearly with distinctive personalised symbols.

But if you're unsure the ball - in the rough, for example - is yours, notify your playing partners, mark it carefully with a tee peg, lift but do not clean it (only to identify it) and replace in the identical spot you're within your rights.

4. Green rulings

Once you have reached the green,

there are a couple of key Rules of which you need to be aware. Once the ball comes to rest on the putting surface you may mark it with a coin, or disk, lift and clean it but remember to replace in the exact spot.

Golfers are now allowed to repair almost any damage on the green, such as spike marks, ball-marks, indentations from a club or flagstick, and animal damage.

However, golfers are not permitted to repair aeration holes, natural surface imperfections, or natural wear of the hole.

5. Play your ball as it lies

Always play your ball as it lies, wherever it comes to rest, unless the Rules allow you to do otherwise.

If the player's ball comes to rest and is then moved by natural forces such as wind or water, the player normally must play it from its new spot. If a ball at rest is lifted or moved by anyone or any outside influence before the stroke is made, the ball must be replaced on its original spot.

Players should take care when near any ball at rest, and a player who causes his or her own ball or an opponent's ball to move will normally get a penalty (except on the putting green).

6. Unplayable lies

If your ball has come to rest in a position that you believe to be unplayable, you have three options.

A player may take unplayable ball relief using one of the three options in Rule 19.2a, b or c, in each case adding one penalty stroke.

The player may take stroke-and-distance relief under Rule 19.2a even if the original ball has not been found and identified. But to take back-onthe-line relief under Rule 19.2b or lateral relief under Rule 19.2c, the player must know the spot of the original ball.

7. No way back from Out of Bounds (OB)

Knowing what to do when your ball sails out of bounds is crucial to a beginner. A ball hit beyond the confines of the course (usually marked by white stakes) must be re-played from the original position adding a penalty of one stroke.

The scorecard of any course should have its boundaries clearly marked or described.

If you believe a shot has gone OB or into a water hazard always play a provisional and declare it.

You now have three minutes (it used to be five minutes) to search for it and if indeed it is lost you saved valuable time continuing with the provisional ball despite a one stroke penalty.

If your original is subsequently found in bounds or dry within three minutes of the point of search you must continue with the original hall.

8. Seeking advice

While it is one of the most sociable of sports, golf is a solitary game and this is reflected within the Rules.

You cannot ask advice on club selection for example from anyone other than your team mate (if you are playing fourball or foursomes for example) or a caddie.

Neither should you offer advice to opponents in competition. However, you may ask for information on the Rules, distances or positions of hazards or the flagstick.

9. Definition of ball striking

Striking the ball would seem like a matter of technique but it is also governed in part by the Rules.

For instance, if you find yourself in a difficult lie with an awkward stance, you must strike the ball with the head of the club.

You cannot spoon, scrape or flick it in a style that cannot be described as a 'stroke'. A two-shot penalty in strokeplay and loss of hole in singles matchplay will be the outcome.

10. Score correctly

At the end of a strokeplay round, you must make sure your card has been completed correctly - achieved by comparing scores you have marked on a playing partner's card (you will have exchanged cards at the start of the round) with those he or she has recorded.

Once you agree, the card must be signed by both parties as a correct record of each hole. Incorrect scorecards and unsigned ones will lead to disqualification.

At the 2000 Benson and Hedges International Open Padraig Harrington was disqualified from the competition just five minutes before teeing off on the final round with a five-shot lead for signing his scorecard incorrectly. Even the professionals can do
