PERFORMING WITH PUPPETS

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

Kelly Draper of Llano says he has been around puppets most of his life. "I had toy hand puppets going to school and I would entertain with them there."

Marionettes, ventriloquist dummies and hand puppets are completely different from each other. Kelly taught puppetry 24 years at Lamar University in Beaumont. He was part of the theater department. He got his first professional hand puppets when he was sixteen.

"I started doing birthday parties, nursing homes, mall shows. Wherever they wanted me I would go." part of the theater department. He got his first professional hand puppets when he was sixteen.

"I started doing birthday parties, nursing homes, mall shows. Wherever they wanted me I would go." When the Midland Symphony Orchestra did a concert featuring Prokofiev's Peter and the Wolf, it hired Kelly to do a puppet show to illustrate the story in the music. Then the Big Spring Symphony Orchestra did Peter and the Wolf and hired Kelly to perform with his puppets.

"Over the years," says Kelly, "I have performed all over the country with Peter and the Wolf. I even did it down in Mexico. When I went there, I had a limited number of puppets and puppeteers." Five people usually are required to work the puppets which Kelly made. He relates the story of Peter and the Wolf.

"Peter goes out into a meadow even though his grandfather told him not to go out there because a wolf was out there. Out in the Meadow, Peter meets a duck, a cat, a bird. Then the wolf shows up. There are hunters who are hunting the wolf, which eats the duck. The moral of the story is Peter learned to obey his grandfather." Kelly did puppet performances for the Wizard of Oz and Alice in Wonderland.

"The Fort Worth Symphony hired me to do the puppet work for 'Twas the Night Before Christmas. I did that with a couple of other symphony orchestras."

He started making puppets while a college student. Some of the puppets Kelly uses in his orchestra performances are eight feet tall and take two people to operate them. He has kept up with advancements on his craft.

"I've been to several puppet festivals put on by the Puppeteers of America and had workshops with most of the major puppeteers."

When he performed at schools, libraries and the like, he would write the script, make the puppets and do different voices. He has two trademark puppets named Marvin and Sam who introduced shows and carried on humorous conversations.

"People would stop me on the street and ask me 'how is Marvin.' I thought to myself that I should tell the person Marvin wasn't real, but I know it was a compliment."

Kelly is retired now but remains active in the arts. He makes creative items and sells them at his booth in an antique mall in Marble Falls. His items sell fast.

BUSINESS SERVICES

The business services industry is a very broad industry encompassing many different categories of business operations; all of them provide some sort of non-financial service to other companies. These services include advertising, marketing, consultation, logistics (including travel and facilities services), waste handling, staffing services, shipping, administration, and security services to name a few. Nearly every business in operation has need for at least one of the different kinds of service offered by the industry. Marketing companies are responsible for increasing the sales of a client company by helping the company gain new customers as well as keep current ones. Legal services are needed to deal with business transactions, as well as for litigation purposes. Logistics and shipping companies are responsible for connecting businesses to other businesses or consumers by collecting, storing, transporting, and delivering products. Staffing companies match people in need of jobs, temporary or permanent, with companies in need of qualified employees. Leasing companies fill a client's need for certain items without requiring full purchase. Security companies are responsible for keeping a company's assets secure. Consulting companies are in the business of fulfilling needs for expertise that clients cannot fulfill themselves. These companies may offer professional, scientific, or technical consulting, management or strategy consulting, or human resources consulting.

Super B vs. Vitamin B-12: What's the Difference and Why It Matters

When it comes to energy, metabolism, and overall vitality, the B vitamins are some of the most powerful yet often misunderstood nutrients. Many patients ask me whether they should be taking "Super B" or just a standard Vitamin B-12 injection. The truth is that both have important roles, but they are not the same, and understanding their differences can help you choose the right option for your body's needs.

What is Vitamin B-12? Vitamin B-12, also known as cobalamin, is an essential nutrient that supports red blood cell production, healthy nerve function, and DNA synthesis. It's particularly important for those who feel fatigued, struggle with concentration, or follow diets low in animal products, since B-12 is naturally found in foods like meat, eggs, and dairy. Low levels can lead to anemia, tingling in the hands and feet, memory issues, and even mood changes.

A B-12 injection delivers this nutrient directly into the bloodstream, bypassing the digestive system. That's especially helpful for people with gut issues or absorption problems, such as those with celiac disease, Crohn's disease, or age-related decline in stomach acid. Patients often report a noticeable boost in energy, clearer thinking, and improved mood after a series of B-12 shots.

What is Super B?

Super B, on the other hand, isn't a single vitamin at all, it's a blend. Typically, a "Super B" shot contains the entire family of B vitamins: B-1 (thiamine), B-2 (riboflavin), B-3 (niacin), B-5 (pantothenic acid), B-6 (pyridoxine), B-7 (biotin), B-9 (folate), and B-12 (cobalamin). Each member of the B family has unique benefits:

B-1 helps convert carbohydrates into usable energy.

B-2 and B-3 support healthy skin, eyes, and metabolism.

B-5 is crucial for hormone production and stress response.

B-6 plays a role in neurotransmitter balance and mood regulation.

B-7 (biotin) promotes strong hair, skin, and nails.

B-9 (folate) supports red blood cell production and pregnancy health.

B-12 provides energy and neurological support.

When combined into one injection, these nutrients act synergistically. That's why a Super B shot can feel like an all-around tune-up: increased energy, improved metabolism, better stress tolerance, and noticeable benefits for hair, skin, and nails.

Which One is Right for You?

If you've been diagnosed with a true Vitamin B-12 deficiency or you follow a vegan or vegetarian diet, then a B-12 injection may be the most targeted choice. It directly addresses low cobalamin levels and prevents long-term complications such as anemia and nerve damage.

However, if your goal is broader wellness, supporting energy, mood, metabolism, and beauty all at once, then a Super B injection might be the better fit. It provides the complete spectrum of B vitamins, ensuring that your body has the cofactors it needs to function at its best.

Final Thoughts

Both B-12 and Super B injections can be powerful tools for boosting wellness, and they are safe when administered by a licensed provider. The key is personalization: listening to your body, reviewing your labs, and choosing the nutrient therapy that matches your unique health goals. At Omega Hydration & Wellness, we often recommend rotating or combining both options so patients can experience the targeted benefits of B-12 along with the well-rounded support of Super B.

Gabriela Camacho

Your health is never one-size-fits-all. Understanding the difference between these two therapies allows you to make informed choices-and ultimately, to feel your best.

Patriot Day is a United States national observance that honors the memory of those who were killed in the September 11 attacks. It was first observed in 2002, after the proclamation by President George W. Bush.

On September 11, 2001 al-Qaeda launched a series of coordinated terrorist attacks upon the United States, killing almost 3,000 people. In the immediate aftermath of the tragic events, President proclaimed September 14, 2001 as a National Day of Prayer and Remembrance for the Victims of the Terrorist Attacks on September 11, 2001. A year later, September 11 was made a national day of mourning referred to as Patriot Day. This observance has been proclaimed annually since 2002.

A moment of silence is traditionally observed at 8:46 AM. Many organizations and establishments hold memorial ceremonies to honor the victims of 9/11.
