Crafting Excellence:

How Kevin Vick Built Houston's Award-Winning Remodeling Firm

By Lesley Bercegeay

Building a respected company doesn't happen overnight. It takes years of hard work, follow-through, and a promise to do things the right way, every time. For Kevin Vick, owner and founder of Vick Construction & Remodeling, those values have shaped every home he's touched and every relationship he's built along the way.

It's the story of a builder who didn't just enter the construction industry — he earned his place in it through hard work, vision, and an unwavering belief that every home deserves care and attention down to the smallest detail.

Kevin's path to homebuilding wasn't typical. As a young adult, he worked in the hospitality world, valet parking, greeting guests, and spending long shifts managing top-rated restaurants. Those early jobs gave him an understanding that would later define his business: exceptional service means more than just doing a job. It means anticipating needs, following through, and treating people with respect. "In hospitality, you learn quickly that every experience matters and is an opportunity for that experience to be impactful," Kevin says. "That's something I carry into every project we do."

That early foundation of service became the cornerstone of Vick Construction & Remodeling. From day one, Kevin built his company on a simple but unwavering principle: quality comes first. Whether it's the way he communicates with clients or how every finish is applied, doing things right defines everything his team does. Before any work begins, they take time to study each project in detail, anticipating challenges and planning for success. "We never rush through bids or make promises we can't keep," Kevin says. "Cutting corners might save time up front, but it costs more in the long run. Our clients deserve craftsmanship and value that stand the test of time."

Communication is another hallmark of the company's success. Kevin and his team stay in close contact with clients, trades, and vendors, ensuring that no question goes unanswered and no issue lingers. It's an approach that has earned Vick Construction & Remodeling an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau and a five-star reputation on Houzz. "We're hands-on from day one," Kevin says. "Our clients always know where things stand. That transparency builds lasting trust."

Behind the company's reputation is a network of experienced, licensed, and insured professionals, many of whom have worked alongside Kevin for years. These aren't revolving-door partnerships; they're long-term relationships built on mutual respect and shared standards. The team treats every home with care—keeping work areas clean, respecting privacy, and maintaining security—so that the remodeling process feels as comfortable as possible for homeowners.

Standing alongside Kevin for many years at the start (now retired and consulting) is his father, David Vick, a second-generation builder and respected engineer. With over six decades of experience and degrees from both the University of Mississippi and the University of Virginia, David serves as a consultant on many projects, helping ensure that every design and structural decision is sound and lasting. Together, they offer more than eighty-five years of combined expertise—a powerful blend of craftsmanship, technical mastery, and inventive problem-solving that's increasingly rare in today's remodeling industry.

Over the years, Vick Construction & Remodeling has earned some of the industry's highest honors, including multiple Texas Association of Builders Star Awards, PRISM Awards for design excellence, the Better Business Bureau Pinnacle Award, and more than a decade of Best of Houzz awards for customer service. Each recognition reflects not just beautiful results, but a consistent standard of professionalism, ethics, and personal care that has become the company's standard.

Kevin's leadership also extends beyond his projects. He holds five professional designations from the National Association of Home Builders and the National Kitchen & Bath Association. He has served as President of the Remodelers Council, Financial Director for the American Society of Interior Designers Gulf Coast Chapter, and Director for both the Greater Houston Builders Association and the Texas Association of Builders. His involvement reflects his dedication to elevating standards across the industry—not just within his own company.

For Kevin, every home tells a story, and every client relationship matters. Many of his projects come from referrals—proof that people trust Vick Construction & Remodeling enough to recommend them to their friends and family. "You can't buy that kind of trust," Kevin says. "You earn it."

From full-home renovations and additions to custom kitchens, luxury baths, and outdoor living spaces, Vick Construction & Remodeling approaches every project with the same philosophy that started it all: do it right, do it with passion, and do it with integrity. “We’re not just building houses,” Kevin says. “We’re building relationships—and that’s what keeps us passionate about what we do. We truly believe we are improving the world in which our clients live, one project at a time.”

In a city full of builders, Kevin Vick stands apart not because of flashy promises, but because of quiet consistency and a dedication to doing the hard work the right way. For Houston homeowners seeking a partner who listens, communicates, and delivers lasting craftsmanship, Vick Construction & Remodeling continues to be the name synonymous with trust, excellence, and pride in every nail, beam, and brushstroke.
